Council Housing: Street Warden Scheme

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities make an additional charge on council house rents to pay for street wardens. [127659]

Yvette Cooper: We do not collect information centrally on local authority funding for particular warden schemes.

Council Housing: Westminster

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes she expects to be upgraded in Westminster under the Decent Homes Initiative over the life of the programme; and how much she expects the Government to have spent on the programme over its lifetime. [126445]

Yvette Cooper: In the City of Westminster there are 12,407 homes owned by the local authority and managed by City West Homes the Council's arm's length management organisation. The Government have allocated £74 million in supported capital expenditure to City West Homes between 2002 and 2006 for its decent homes programme.

Local authorities started reporting on decent homes in 2002. Between 2002 and 2006 the number of non-decent council homes in Westminster was reduced by 9,665. At 1 April 2006 there were still 1,182 non-decent council homes. Data by local authority for registered social landlords (RSLs) have only been collected since 2005. Between 2005 and 2006 the number of non-decent RSL homes was reduced by 167. At 1 April 2006 there were still 1,706 non-decent RSL homes.

The decent homes programme also covers non decent homes in the private sector occupied by vulnerable households but we do not hold these data at the local authority level.

The cost per house of meeting the decent homes standard varies across the country and the Department does not collect those figures separately. Some local authorities are refurbishing the houses in their area significantly above the decent homes standard. What the improved standard is and how it will be achieved will be determined by local circumstances and the level of resources that can be brought to the programme locally. The Government expect over £31 billion to be spent on refurbishing council homes by 2010, this includes local authorities' own investment and raising houses above the decent homes standard.

Departments: Consultants

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor spent on (a) consultants and (b) advertising in (i) 2004-05 and (ii) 2005-06. [130102]

Angela E. Smith: In respect of the spend on consultants I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by Baroness Andrews to Lord Smith of Clifton on 18 May 2006, Official Report, column WA61.

The spend on advertising in 2004-05 and 2005-06

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated total budget is of the Home Condition Report database. [129252]

Yvette Cooper: The Home Condition Report Register is provided under a concession agreement so there is no cost to Communities and Local Government.

Homebuy Scheme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many individuals have completed a sale to part-own or own their social home under the Social Homebuy scheme; [129227]

(2) how many (a) housing associations and (b) local authorities are offering the Social Homebuy scheme. [129230]

Yvette Cooper: 33 Social Homebuy sales were completed up to the end of February 2007 and there are 575 applications in the pipeline. The sales are mainly from the four first housing association pilots.

41 housing associations and two local authorities have now begun offering the scheme to their tenants as part of the Social Homebuy pilot. We expect a further 37 housing associations and six more local authorities to do so by April 2007.

Housing: Carbon Monoxide

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the percentage of private homes in (a) England and (b) each region which have carbon monoxide levels higher than those deemed safe by the World Health Organisation. [131017]

Angela E. Smith: While data are collected for carbon monoxide emissions and carbon monoxide related fatalities, no statistics are routinely collected about carbon monoxide levels in homes.

Housing: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projections the Government have made of the future net financial position of housing revenue authorities over the next five years on the basis of current policy. [128319]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 19 March 2007]: This Department does not make forecasts of future net financial positions on a local authority basis.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of providing new houses for key workers by (a) purchase assistance, (b) purchase from housing associations and (c) construction of (i) social housing and (ii) council housing. [119833]

Yvette Cooper: The Government offer specific housing assistance to key workers in areas experiencing problems of recruitment and retention difficulties under the key worker living (KWL) scheme. The scheme operates in London, the south east and east of England. Key worker living funding is divided between Open Market HomeBuy (equity loans to purchase properties on the open market) and new build products such as New Build HomeBuy (shared ownership of newly built homes) and intermediate rent (where the rent is set at a level between that charged by social and private landlords).

On 2 October 2006 Open Market HomeBuy was re-launched in partnership with four mortgage lenders. Half of the equity loan is provided by Government and half by the mortgage lender. This reduces the level of public sector subsidy required making it possible to help more people into different forms of shared ownership. The average grant per unit for key worker Open Market HomeBuy completions in the current financial year prior to the re-launch of the product was £39,687. Currently the average grant rate per unit for key workers that have purchased under the new Expanded Open Market HomeBuy product is £26,762.

The estimated average grant per unit for New Build HomeBuy properties in the three key worker living regions under the national affordable housing programme for 2006-2008 is £34,623.

We do not collect data on key worker access to social rented properties. The average cost of providing a social rented unit nationally was £133,941 of which £62,000 was the average public subsidy in the form of grant. Statistics are not collected on the construction costs specifically of new council housing.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to bring forward proposals to establish a common definition of community land trust in statute law. [127160]

Yvette Cooper: The Department is currently examining what further action may be required to facilitate development of the community land trust model.

Housing: South East Region

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the effect of Planning Policy Statement 3 on the number of dwellings that will be built on greenfield sites in the south-east. [131622]

Yvette Cooper: No specific assessment has been made of the effect of Planning Policy Statement 3: "Housing" on the numbers of dwellings likely to be built on greenfield sites in the south-east. This will depend on the decisions of local planning authorities in identifying suitable locations for housing to meet the needs of households in their areas, as well as their wider planning policies, especially in relation to the density of housing development.

PPS3 gives local planning authorities the tools and flexibilities they need to ensure that priority is given to the development of brownfield sites, including by taking stronger action to bring more brownfield land back into use, by setting targets and trajectories for brownfield development which reflect local circumstances, and by managing the release of land over time to deliver against those targets and trajectories.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes in the south-east were built on windfall sites in each year between 2001 and 2006. [131624]

Yvette Cooper: This information is not held by the department.

Housing: Surveys

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the collation of data for the next English Housing Survey. [129273]

Yvette Cooper: The Department currently conducts two continuous housing surveys: the Survey of English Housing and the English House Condition Survey. However, these are to be merged into a single survey, the English Housing Survey, which will start in April 2008 with fieldwork conducted throughout the year.

The proposed timetable for the publication of annual reports from the existing surveys is:

Survey of English Housing

Report for the year	Date of publication
2005-06	September 2007
2006-07	May 2008
2007-08	May 2009

English House Condition Survey annual reports are published every May. The report for 2005 will be published in May 2007.

The timetable for publishing outputs from the new English Housing Survey has not been finalised. Some preliminary reports based on the first survey year (2008-09) may be published towards the end of 2009.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department is (a) gathering and (b) compiling data on individual homes for its housing surveys. [129275]

Yvette Cooper: The Department conducts two continuous housing surveys, the Survey of English Housing and the English House Condition Survey. Both are sample surveys that involve interviewing households at randomly selected addresses in England. Property inspections are also conducted as part of the English House Condition Survey.

In accordance with the National Statistics Code of Practice, no information is published that would enable individuals or their addresses to be identified. Moreover, the identities of participating households are anonymous; and their addresses are known only to the survey teams.

Local Government Finance

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to make available to local authorities that part of this year's local authority Business Growth Initiative awards which has been withheld; and what assessment she has made of the impact on local authority budgets of the withholding of those awards. [132747]

Mr. Woolas: As we have previously announced, in the three years to 2007-08 local authorities will receive up to £1 billion through the Local Authority Business Growth Initiative. We have abolished the ceiling but due to judicial reviews brought by Corby and Slough borough councils, this year payments have been scaled back to 70 per cent. of their value to protect the important incentive this scheme creates for authorities both in this year and next year. Authorities received £316 million this year which is more than two and a half times the £126 million of grant paid last year and 50 more authorities received LABGI grant this year than last.

There is therefore a detrimental effect on local authorities due to the action of Slough and Corby councils. I have made no assessment of this impact.

Planning: Aviation

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether, under Planning Policy Statement 3, open land associated with an airfield and used for recreational aviation will be potentially subject to development; and if she will make a statement; [131225]

(2) whether, under Planning Policy Statement 3, the Government have changed their policy on the protection of airfields from development; and if she will make a statement. [131256]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Ashford (Damian Green) on 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 500W.

Public Footpaths

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, columns 152-3W, on public footpaths, whether the requirements placed on local planning authorities in respect of changes to rights of way also apply in respect of the proposed creation of new public footpaths, cycleways and bridle paths. [128111]

Yvette Cooper: The proposed creation of new public footpaths and bridleways is covered by the Public Paths Orders Regulations 1993, as set out in the answer given to the hon. Member for Colchester on 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 152-3W.

There are three ways of creating new cycle tracks:

(a) New cycle tracks can be created under powers in section 24(2) of the Highways Act 1980. Planning permission is usually required for this.

(b) Cycle tracks can be created by converting an existing footpath, or part of a footpath, by an order made under the Cycle Tracks Act 1984, to which the Cycle Tracks Regulations 1984 apply. These require consultation with one or more organisations representing persons using the footpath, any local authority, parish council or community council whose area the footpath is situated, statutory undertakers and the local police.

(c) Cycle tracks can also be created by converting part of the footway (the pavement adjacent to a road) by an order under the Highways Act 1980. There are no statutory procedures for footway conversions, but proposals are advertised by site notices and notices in local newspapers, following the appropriate council resolution.

Advice on the conversion of footpaths and footways is contained in Local Transport Note 2/86 "Shared Use by Cyclists and Pedestrians" and advice on the establishment of new cycle tracks is to be found in Local Transport Note 1/89 "Making Way for Cyclists", which also provides advice on footway conversion notices.

Regional Government

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many regional assemblies are reviewing their social, economic and environmental partners membership; and at what cost. [131207]

Yvette Cooper: Regional assemblies as voluntary bodies decide their own composition so long as a minimum of 30 per cent. of their members represent social, economic and environmental partners as set down in their letters of designation. Regional assemblies will review their membership following local government elections each year. The south west and east of England regional assemblies are currently undertaking a review of their regional stakeholder members. This is being undertaken in the ordinary course of business at no additional cost.

The Yorkshire and Humber assembly has recently commissioned a study into the role of social, economic and environmental partners, with the aim of ensuring that all partners are supported in helping deliver the broad objectives agreed by the region. The total cost of the work is £7,980.

Regional Planning and Development: Eastern Region

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which social, economic and environmental partners receive (a) subscription and (b) grant money from the East of England Regional Assembly; and at what total cost. [132245]

Yvette Cooper: The East of England Regional Assembly (EERA) does not pay subscriptions to partnerships, nor does it provide grants for which organisations can apply. However, as part of its purpose to promote the social, economic and environmental wellbeing of the region, it does contribute its funds towards a range of initiatives undertaken by regional partners.

In 2006-07 EERA allocated approximately £150,000 towards the work of regional organisations which carry out social, economic or environmental initiatives, £75,000 of which was allocated to the East of England Sustainable Development Round Table and its associated Climate Change Partnership. Similar amounts are proposed for 2007-08. Further details of projects or partners which have received support from EERA are contained in its Annual Business Plans available at the EERA website.

Rents: North West Region

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how many Rentcharge payers the Government Office for the North West has arranged to receive Rentcharge redemption in each of the last five years. [127904]

Yvette Cooper: In the period 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2006, the National Rentcharge Unit received 1,786 applications for redemption. Of these, 214 are still under consideration, 667 were redeemed and 905 were not redeemed.

	Cases received	Redeemed	Not redeemed	Total
2003	406	156	250	406
2004	299	146	153	299
2005	310	152	158	310
2006	326	74	38	[1]112
Total	1,786	667	905	1,572

[1] Cases still under consideration—214.

A regional breakdown is not available.

Right to Buy Scheme

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers housing associations and trusts have to impose a two-year moratorium on the selling of houses under right-to-buy legislation. [130610]

Yvette Cooper: Social landlords have no general power to suspend the right-to-buy. However, the availability of the right-to-buy may be affected either by demolition plans or by the tenant's own behaviour.

Where there are plans to demolish the property, service on the tenant of an initial demolition notice suspends the right-to-buy by preventing the tenant from forcing the landlord to complete the sale. Once a final demolition notice has been served, the right-to-buy no longer arises. An initial demolition notice can last up to five years. The final demolition notice must specify, demolition within 24 months (but may be extended by direction of the Secretary of State).

A landlord may also seek an order from the court suspending the right-to-buy for a specified period on the grounds of antisocial behaviour by the tenant. A tenant may not compel a landlord to complete a right-to-buy sale if an application for a demotion order, or for a suspension order or possession order on the grounds of antisocial behaviour is pending against him or her. In addition, where a tenant is in arrears of rent the landlord cannot be forced to complete the sale so long as payment of the arrears remains outstanding.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Olympic Games

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 871W, on the Olympic games, what estimate has been made of how the £1.5 billion benefit to the London economy from the games will be apportioned between the London boroughs. [132500]

Mr. Caborn: The likely economic benefit to individual London boroughs of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games is not yet known. DCMS and our Olympic partners are continuing to analyse and evaluate the many economic, social, cultural and sporting benefits for London, and all sections of the UK, from hosting the games.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department plans to take to ensure that south west London boroughs share in the (a) economic, (b) social and (c) sporting benefits arising from the 2012 Olympic Games. [132580]

Mr. Caborn: The Olympic Board has agreed that the Mayor will be responsible for delivering the games' social, economic and environmental benefits for London, as well as improving sports participation at community and grass roots level for all Londoners. As a result, the Greater London Authority (GLA), on behalf of the Mayor, has co-ordinated the preparation of a detailed delivery plan for each of the Olympic sub-objectives relating to London, looking at how potential benefits can be realised for all boroughs, including those located in the south west.

These plans include the summer of sport competitions, the employment and skills taskforce and the pre-volunteer programme, for which Croydon is a pilot borough.

In addition, Wimbledon will host the Olympic tennis tournament in 2012.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people were charged for television licence evasion in Lancashire in each of the past five years. [127097]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

Local information on charging is not centrally held.

Data on the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates court and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to television licence evasion in the Lancashire police force area in the years 2001 to 2005 can be found in the following table.

Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates court and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to TV licence evasion in Lancashire police force area[1,2]

	Prosecuted	Found guilty
2002	5,058	4,753
2003	3,824	3,444
2004[3]	4,145	3,733
2005	6,270	5,762

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] The TV licensing provisions of the Wireless Telegraphy Act 1949 were replaced by new provisions in the Communications Act 2003 which came into effect 1 April 2004.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Compensation Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library (a) the Defence Analytical Services Agency statistical information and (b) feedback from (i) users and (ii) claimants on the analysis of the first year of the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme. [132291]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 31WS. A copy of the report is available in the Library of the House. The report is also available on the Service Pensions and Veterans Agency (SPVA) website:

http://www.veterans-uk.info/pdfs/afcs/afcs_evalreport0506.pdf

Armed Forces: Deployment

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether guidelines exist on how far in advance of deployment a battalion's flight dates should be confirmed; and if he will make a statement. [131982]

Mr. Ingram: Formal guidelines are laid down on how far in advance flight dates should be confirmed to battalions. Defence Instructions and Notices number 03-020 states that detailed itineraries and arrangements for all tasks are to be issued, generally two weeks before the task date. In practice, however, for operations and exercises, battalions are normally given at least 10 to 30 days notice of departure.

In all situations the guiding principle is to give soldiers as much notice as possible of likely departure dates.

Armed Forces: Drugs

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the report of the Directorate of Army Personnel Strategy following its examination of factors which lead to drug use among soldiers referred to in the answer of 17 May 2006, on armed forces (drug offences), Official Report, columns 952-3W. [132212]

Derek Twigg: The Directorate of Army Personnel Strategy's examination of factors which lead to drug use among soldiers is not yet complete. I will consider placing a copy of the report in the House Library when it becomes available.

Bombs

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what munitions testing has been undertaken of the ERBS M85 cluster bomb; and what the failure rate is of the self-destruct mechanism. [131014]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 18 April 2007]: There have been a number of trials of the 155 mm L20A1 Extended Range Bomblet Shell, which contains M85 bomblets. When the totality of test and acceptance firings is analysed over the life of the munition, the average bomblet failure rate is approximately 2 per cent. As part of its ongoing quality and performance regime the MOD continues to actively monitor the performance of this system and explore ways of reducing the failure rate still further in partnership with the supplier.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel were redeployed to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan within (i) one month, (ii) two months, (iii) three months, (iv) four months, (v) five months, (vi) six months, (vii) one year and (viii) two years of completing their last deployment in each of the last three years. [128237]

Mr. Ingram: Deployment figures are currently provided at aggregate levels based on manual returns. They are not available in central individual level databases. As such these data could not be collated without incurring disproportionate cost.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason UK forces operate north of Baghdad; and if he will make a statement. [132619]

Des Browne: UK forces operate in and around Baghdad, including north of the city, in order to provide support to coalition operations, mentoring and training of Iraqi Security Forces and the provision of Force Protection to UK military and civilian personnel based in and around the city.

Iraq: Police

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of militia infiltration into the Iraqi Police Service; what risk this poses to joint patrols; and if he will make a statement. [131980]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 157W.

Nimrod Aircraft

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether he has received representations on the safety of Nimrod aircraft from fleet flight crew since September 2006; [126588]

(2) whether he received representations on the safety of the Nimrod fleet before September 2006; [126589]

(3) what representations he has received on the use of fuel lines on Nimrod aircraft. [126481]

Mr. Ingram: Representations has been defined as parliamentary questions and letters from third parties to Ministers.

Defence Ministers did not receive any official representations on the safety of the Nimrod fleet or the use of fuel lines on Nimrod aircraft from January 2006 to September 2006. Looking back beyond this date could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Since September 2006, whilst Defence Ministers have received official representations on the safety of Nimrod aircraft from members of the public, none of these referred to the use of fuel lines on the aircraft. I have no evidence to suggest that any of these representations were from serving flight crew.

In recent weeks the Department has received three requests under the Freedom of Information Act on the safety of Nimrod aircraft and on the use of fuel lines on the aircraft. There is no evidence to suggest that any of these requests are from serving flight crew.

War Pensions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many letters the Veterans Agency has written to personnel in March 2007 waiting for (a) war disablement pensions and (b) Armed Forces Compensation Scheme payments; and if he will make a statement. [131721]

Derek Twigg: We do not hold specific data on the total number of letters sent to those claiming war disablement pensions and payments under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Science: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 701W, on science: curriculum, (1) what consultation has taken place on the content of the national curriculum planning guidance; [130264]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the national curriculum planning guidance. [130265]

Jim Knight: As part of the consultation on the secondary curriculum review, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority is seeking views on general draft supporting materials. The materials have been designed to be used on the website and can be found at:

http://www.qca.org.uk/secondarycurriculumreview/

An extract has been placed in the House Library.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Horses: Databases

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he expects (a) the information from the National Equine Database to be available to members of the public and (b) members of the public to be able to retrieve (i) statistics on the number of racehorses slaughtered each year, (ii) the ages of racehorses at the time of slaughter and (iii) the reasons for the slaughter of racehorses. [131245]

Barry Gardiner: The National Equine Database (NED) was developed to hold centrally the information confined in horse passports. This is to prevent theft and aid the early recovery of horses and, in terms of veterinary surveillance, help control equine disease outbreaks.

The NED system has been enhanced to hold pedigree, performance, evaluation and grading information on each horse born or resident in the UK with a passport. The enhanced system will be called NED Online and will be available for the public to use. Some of the information will be free and some will be available for a fee, although horse owner names and addresses are confidential to the Government. Currently, when a horse is slaughtered, basic equine identification information is collected including the passport issuing body (for racehorses this would be Weatherbys) and submitted to NED. However, not all horses with a Weatherbys passport race.

As NED Online develops, its facilities will continue to improve in line with users' requirements. However, there are no plans as yet to enable members of the public to retrieve details of slaughtered racehorses.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bangladesh

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of recent attacks by Muslim extremists against the judiciary in Bangladesh. [132566]

Dr. Howells: We are aware of reports that the prosecutor in the trial of leading militants has been shot. However, no individual has been charged and we are not aware of any militant organisation having claimed responsibility.

Chad: Peace Keeping Operations

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response she plans to make to the conclusions of the recent UN mission to the Central African Republic and Chad on the measures needed to bring peace and stability to eastern Chad. [132030]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 18 April 2007]: We are very concerned about the humanitarian situation in eastern Chad and the Central African Republic (CAR) and the spill over of violence from Darfur. We take every opportunity to call on the Governments of Chad and Sudan to implement their commitments to respect each other's borders and honour their obligations to protect their citizens.

On 27 February, Assistant Secretary-General Hedi Annabi briefed the UN Security Council, in closed consultations, on the Secretary-General's recommendations for deployment of a UN peacekeeping force in Chad and CAR following a second Technical Assessment Mission to the two countries.

The UK will continue to work with the UN and partners on the Security Council to create the necessary conditions for a UN mission to Chad and CAR, as called for under UN Security Council Resolution 1706. On 16 April my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary stated to the Security Council that agreement is needed for a UN peacekeeping operation in Chad.

EC External Trade

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has (a) made to the EU and (b) received on the negotiations on economic partnership agreements with African, Caribbean and Pacific countries. [132066]

Mr. Hoon: The Government are working closely with the European Commission who are negotiating economic partnership agreements on behalf of the EU, EU member states and African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries. They listen carefully to the views of non-governmental organisations (NGOs) while doing so to ensure that these agreements are truly development-focused and designed to deliver long-term development, economic growth and poverty reduction in ACP countries.

The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) is leading the UK representation on these negotiations supported in its work by the Department for International Development (DFID) and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO).

Recent representations:

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development met with ACP Ministers and negotiators in November 2006.

My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade met NGOs on 11 January. He and my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development, meet with them three to four times a year.

As part of the Trade Policy Consultative Forum my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade meets quarterly with NGOs and the business community to discuss a variety of trade policy issues—Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs) usually feature on the agenda; the next meeting will be in May.

DTI and DFID officials met with Richard Bernal, Caribbean negotiator, on 14 March.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development met with ACP and EU Ministers in Bonn on 1 March at the EU-ACP Joint Ministerial Trade Committee.

DTI officials met with Peter Thompson, Director-General Trade in charge of EPAs on 26 March.

UK officials have discussions with the Commission and other EU member states on a daily basis/at/around ACP and 133 meetings and in the margins.

Also, UK officials meet with officials from other member states on a quarterly basis.

DTI, DFID and FCO officials met with NGOs on 17 April.

Honours

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the individuals who are not UK citizens who were awarded honours in the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007, indicating in each case the (a) date of announcement, (b) honour in question and (c) reason for the award. [131058]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 16 April 2007]: As the information requested is lengthy, I will arrange for it to be placed in the Library of the House and will arrange for a copy to be sent directly to the hon. Member.

As honorary awards to citizens of countries where Her Majesty the Queen is not Head of State are not formally announced, the date of the Queen's formal approval of such awards has been given.

Maldives: Politics and Government

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the recent police beatings of the chairman of the Maldivian Democratic Party and the political situation in the Maldives; and if she will make a statement. [132964]

Dr. Howells: Our high commission in Colombo, also accredited to Maldives, has been in regular contact with the Maldivian Government and with officials of Maldivian Democratic Party about the arrest and treatment of Mohammed Nasheed. Mr. Nasheed has now been released. We have made clear to the Government that any allegations against the police should be investigated fully and transparently. Law enforcement agencies should abide by the rule of law and any measures to maintain law and order should be proportionate.

The recent collapse of the inter-party talks in Maldives was a setback for the reform agenda. Our high commissioner in Colombo has urged the parties to resume formal talks as soon as possible and to work together constructively to accelerate the implementation of the Roadmap for Reform Agenda.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further measures she plans to support at the UN and within the EU in order to put pressure on Sudan to abide by its agreements and accept the hybrid AU-UN peacekeeping force. [132027]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 18 April 2007]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary chaired a meeting of the UN Security Council on 16 April to take stock of recent international efforts on Darfur, and to make the case for further measures to pressure the Government of Sudan and rebel movements to abide by their agreements. During that meeting she welcomed the announcement by the Government of Sudan the same day accepting deployment of a heavy support package, and called on them to accept the rapid deployment of a full African Union-UN hybrid force, as well as an immediate ceasefire and a resumption of the political process. If they do not, we will be forced to press for tougher measures, including further targeted sanctions and an expansion of the arms embargo.

Following UK lobbying, the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council adopted strong conclusions in January and in March on the need for Sudan to abide by its international obligations. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister wrote to Chancellor Merkel on 21 March to reiterate this ahead of the 25 March European Council. We continue to press the EU to maintain this position.

HEALTH

Carers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department has taken to provide respite support for carers as referred to in paragraph 5.55 of the Our Health, Our Care, Our Say health White Paper. [131924]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We plan to issue guidance to local authorities in the summer of 2007 to help them design services based on principles that reflect best practice in the provision of planned emergency cover. We are making £25 million available to support implementation of the guidance from October 2007. The funds are additional to the £185 million carers' grant which helps local authorities support carers through the provision of much needed breaks. The new money is intended to ensure that cover is available in the event of a crisis or an emergency.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the number of people diagnosed with bowel cancer as a result of participating in the NHS Bowel Cancer Screening Programme. [131163]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Billericay (Mr. Baron) on 22 March, Official Report, column. 1128W. These are the latest available figures.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the demand for FOB testing kits outside the 60 to 69 age range for the NHS Bowel Cancer Screening Programme. [131164]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: 3,383 men and women aged 70 and over had opted in to the NHS bowel cancer screening programme as at 23 March 2007.

Dental Services: Birmingham

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions patients who met current acceptance criteria for restorative dentistry at Birmingham Dental Hospital have not been given a referral on the ground that there was not the capacity within the NHS waiting list target times for the patient to be seen. [131049]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information requested is not centrally collected. However, the Department has made it clear that clinical priority must be the main determinant of when patients are treated.

Dental Services: Children

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children received orthodontic treatment in each year between 2002 and 2006; and how many have received such treatment in 2006-07. [129017]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is provided for the years ending March 2002 to March 2006. Information for the year ending March 2007 is not yet available.

Number of children receiving national health service general dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS) orthodontic treatment, England only, April 2001 to March 2006

Year ending March	Number of children treated
2002	524,205
2003	523,422
2004	552,332
2005	573,109
2006	591,064

Notes:
1. Data are for claims scheduled for the financial years ending March 2002 to March 2006 in both GDS and PDS.
2. The number of children treated is based on the claims containing at least one orthodontic treatment which were processed at the DPD during the year stated.
3. The claims for orthodontic treatment may have been for a transitional payment, complete treatment or incomplete treatment.
4. Orthodontic treatment is as defined under items 32, 55e and 55f of the statement of dental remuneration.
5. Children are defined as patients under 18 on the date of acceptance for treatment.
6. Patients have been identified by using surname, first initial, gender and date of birth.
7. England data are for both GDS and PDS.
8. Because of the transition arrangements from GDS to PDS, patients may have been double counted. For orthodontic cases, which have long durations, this could be a serious distortion.

Dental Services: Northamptonshire

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents in Northamptonshire were registered with an NHS dentist (a) in April 2006 and (b) in the most recent month for which figures are available. [131572]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information requested is not held in the format required.

Registration data no longer form part of the data available under the new national health service dental contract; the new measure is patients seen within the last 24 months and is available at primary care trust level. In response to part (a), data are available as at 31 March 2006. In response to part (b) the latest data available are as at 31 December 2006.

Both datasets can be found in annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England quarter 3: 31 December 2006" report, which is available in the Library and is available at www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental06q3

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents in (a) Kettering, (b) Wellingborough, (c) Corby, (d) Northampton South, (e) Northampton North and (f) Daventry constituency were registered with an NHS dentist (i) in each year since 1997 and (ii) in the latest month in the most recent year for which figures are available. [131575]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Constituency level registration data from 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2006 are contained in annex C of "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006" which is available in the Library and also at www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity.

Registration data no longer form part of the data available under the new national health service dental contract; the new measure is patients seen within the last 24 months and is available at primary care trust level. This latest data available are as at 31 December 2006. This information is contained in annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England Quarter 3: 31 December 2006" report, which is available in the Library and also at www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental06q3.

Constituency level data are no longer available and could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Dental Services: Reform

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish the report of the Implementation Review Group on the first 12 months of the NHS dental reforms. [131331]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Department plans to publish a report on the first 12 months of the reforms once we have full year data. The first year data are likely to be available in June. The report will take into account the main issues discussed by the Implementation Review Group so far.

Departments: Publications

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was of publishing the Partnership Agreement - An agreement between Department of Health, NHS Employers and NHS Trade Unions published on 28 February. [127836]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The total cost of publishing the "Partnership Agreement - An agreement between Department of Health, NHS Employers and NHS Trade Unions", published on 28 February, was £1,464.00 plus VAT.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in her Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131554]

Ms Rosie Winterton: For the period prior to the financial year 2005-06, data could be established only at disproportionate cost. A breakdown of sums paid in financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07, specific to the Department, is given in the following tables.

Number of 2006-07 leavers

	Compulsory	Voluntary
£0-£25,000	1	16
£25,001-£50,000	1	2
£50,001-£75,000	1	2
£75,001-£100,000	0	2

Doctors: Conditions of Employment

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date she expects the new contract for staff and associate specialist doctors to be implemented. [133048]

Andy Burnham: NHS Employers and the British Medical Association have submitted proposals to the Government on a new contract for staff grade and associate specialist doctors. In line with the arrangements for all public sector pay proposals, those proposals are currently under consideration by the Public Sector Pay Committee of the Cabinet Office.

Drugs: Prison

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her predecessor's statement of 28 September 2004 on the integrated drug treatment scheme for prisons, what funding has been spent in each year since the annual £40 million budget was announced; how many and what percentage of prisoners have received drug treatment via the programme; and whether the March 2008 target for allocating effective treatment services will be met. [127241]

Caroline Flint [pursuant to the reply, 22 March 2007, Official Report, c. 1131W]: Implementation of the integrated drug treatment system (IDTS) commenced in 2006.

The current year's investment in IDTS totals £17 million. This comprises £12 million from the Department and £5 million from the Home Office. This will fund IDTS implementation in 45 prisons, allowing some 24,000 prisoners to receive treatment via the programme by March 2008.

Health Professions: Training

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many medical staff in the English NHS received all or part of their medical training in Scotland. [128340]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Health Services: Cornwall

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust on future provision of health services for families with under fives previously provided through Surestart funding. [133049]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust (PCT) which has been working productively over the past year with the Cornwall county council's children's services to ensure that there has been no reduction in service delivery and that there is now a focus on the modernisation of service delivery.

NHS South West confirms that Sure Start funding has enhanced the partnership working at the frontline of service delivery in Cornwall, providing a joint agency contribution to delivering the five "Every Child Matters" outcomes. The PCT continues to work in partnership with the county council to address the multi-disciplinary needs of children who have used these services in the past and aims to deliver equitable and sustainable services across the whole of the county.

I understand that a review of children's health services will be announced at the primary care trust board meeting on 30 April 2007 and the hon. Member may wish to engage with the PCT for further information on this matter.

Health Services: Public Appointments

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many directors of public health were medically qualified in each year since 1997. [131327]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Hospital Wards: Closures

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many isolation units were closed in each of the last three years; in which hospitals; what the extent was of the consultation procedure prior to closure in each case; and if she will make a statement. [131102]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number and use of isolation units is not collected centrally.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, columns 438-40W, on hospitals: waiting lists, what percentage of those waiting for (a) out-patient appointments waited longer than 11 weeks, (b) diagnostic tests waited longer than 13 weeks and (c) in-patient appointments waited longer than 20 weeks in the most recent period for which figures are available; and when her Department expects to receive data relating to March 2007. [131884]

Andy Burnham: At the end of February 2007, 1.8 per cent. of patients waiting for a first out-patient appointment had been waiting longer than 11 weeks; 5.5 per cent. of patients waiting for an in-patient admission had been waiting longer than 20 weeks; and 19.3 per cent. of patients waiting for one of the 15 key diagnostic tests on which monthly data are collected had been waiting more than 13 weeks.

Of the over-13-week diagnostic waits, 62 per cent. were for audiology assessments. Plans to address this were published on 6 March in "Improving Access to Audiology Services in England".

March 2007 in-patient and out-patient data will be published on 4 May 2007. March diagnostic data for the 15 key tests will be published on 16 May 2007. The March census of diagnostic waits, which covers other long wait tests, will be published in July.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were waiting for inpatient treatment as given by the commissioner-based waiting list in each year since March 1994 until the most recent period for which figures are available; and how many patients were waiting (a) over three months, (b) over six months, (c) over nine months and (d) over 12 months in each period. [131928]

Andy Burnham: The figures are shown in the table.

Department of Health QF01 and Monthly Monitoring

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of patients on inpatient waiting lists were seen within six months in each year since 1990, as given by (a) the Hospital Episodes Statistics database and (b) Korner data. [131944]

Andy Burnham: The figures are shown in the table.

It should be noted that Korner data measures the numbers still waiting at the end of a period, while Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) measures the time waited for patients admitted during a year. HES figures do not take into account periods of suspension for medical and social reasons.

The table shows that 90 per cent. of patients admitted during the financial year 2005-06 had waited under six months. The six-month standard was in place from the end of December 2005, and therefore the HES figures for 2005-06 only reflect only one quarter where the standard was in place.

Influenza

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 17 July 2006, Official Report, columns 244-5W, on avian influenza, what information her Department holds on (a) the fatality rates for the pandemic influenza outbreaks of (i) 1918-19 (H1N1), (ii) 1957 (N2N2) and (iii) 1968 (H3N2) and (b) the equivalent fatality rates amongst humans catching animal variations of each virus. [131162]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Contemporary Ministry of Health estimates of deaths in England and Wales were 200,000 for 1918-19 and 30,000 for 1957. Contemporary estimates for the 1969-70 pandemic are around 80,000. The fatality rates for humans catching the animal variations of each virus is not known.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what exercises were conducted to test the UK's preparedness for an outbreak of pandemic flu; when each was conducted; and if she will place in the Library the evaluations of these exercises. [129906]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department funds the Health Protection Agency (HPA) to undertake regional and national exercises to prepare the health community in England to respond to an influenza pandemic.

Local and regional exercises

1. 23 June 2005—Exercise Arctic Sea
2. 21 September 2005—Exercise Aurora
3. 28 October 2005—Exercise New Day
4. 8 January 2007—Exercise Athena

National exercises

5. 14 and 15 June 2006—Exercise Shared Goal
6. 1-2 to 30 January and 19 and 20 February 2007—Exercise Winter Willow

European Union exercise

1. 23-24 November 2005—Exercise Common Ground

The reports for Exercise New Day, Exercise Aurora and Exercise Arctic Sea have been placed in the Library and are also available on the HPA website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/hpa/erd/erd_exercises.htm

The report on Exercise Athena will be published later in the year, and copies will be placed in the Library when available.

Exercise Common Ground, a European Commission (EC) commissioned and HPA-run influenza pandemic exercise, was undertaken with participants that included the EC and European Union member states. The final report is on DG-SANCO of the European Commission website at:

ec.europa.eu/health/ph_threats/com/common.pdf

Evaluation reports for national exercises, such as Exercise Shared Goal and Exercise Winter Willow, are not formally published. However, the lessons identified through national exercises are taken forward and inform national policy where appropriate through TIDO (Prepare), the official committee on resilience.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's central planning assumption is for the (a) clinical attack rate and (b) case mortality rate in an outbreak of pandemic influenza. [131952]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government's current planning assumptions are based on a range of possible clinical attack rates of between 25-50 per cent. and overall case fatality rates of 0.4-2.5 per cent.

Junior Doctors: Recruitment

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what checks are performed on qualifications claimed by applicants under the new procedures for junior doctor hospital appointments. [127201]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Applicants are expected to bring with them to interview and assessments for specialty registrar programmes, evidence of the qualifications required, as outlined in the relevant person specification. The evidence required and the application process has been designed in accordance with the requirements of the post-graduate medical education training board.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what system of accountability is in place for the Modernising Medical Careers programme for junior doctors. [127208]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The four United Kingdom Health Departments are responsible for the overall implementation of Modernising Medical Careers. The Health Departments co-ordinate action through a United Kingdom Modernising Medical Careers Strategy Group which includes members from the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges, the General Medical Council, the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (PMETB) and national health service employers. Each country also has a dedicated implementation team.

The Royal Colleges are directly responsible for developing the new competency-based curricula which are approved by PMETB. The Royal Colleges also work closely with postgraduate deans over the development of person specifications for the recruitment process and the postgraduate deans themselves oversee selection into posts.

The number of training opportunities available in 2007 was based on local discussions between local NHS employers, strategic health authorities and postgraduate deans.

Kidney Patients: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex were on the waiting list for treatment for dialysis services in each year since 1997. [130967]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally. There is no specific waiting list for dialysis. Dialysis is often an emergency treatment and patients with no kidney function will die in a matter of weeks if they do not receive dialysis. For patients whose disease has been identified well in advance of end-stage renal failure, dialysis begins at a time when the individual and his or her consultant feel it is appropriate. Part one of the national service framework for renal services recommends starting to prepare people for dialysis about a year before it will be needed, as such preparation leads to better outcomes for the patient.

Maternal Mortality

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will conduct an inquiry into maternal deaths as a contemporary successor to Why Mothers Die 1997-1999: The Confidential Enquiries into Maternal Deaths in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [133012]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department continues to fund and recognise the work of the confidential enquiries into maternal deaths and the next "Why Mothers Die" report, covering the three-year period from 2003-05, is due out in December this year.

Maternity Services: Expenditure

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total expenditure by her Department on neonatal care services including staff costs but excluding National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group-funded services was in each of the last five years. [132256]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not available in the format requested.

Estimates of total expenditure on neonatal care services for the last three financial years are available from the programme budgeting returns and are as shown.

These data cover all primary, secondary and community expenditure. It is not possible to split the expenditure to exclude information on a National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group.

Medicine: Students

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on the Medical Training Application Service. [131759]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The cost for the Medical Training Application Service in 2006-07 is £1.75 million, funded proportionately by all four United Kingdom Health Departments.

Mental Health Services: Buckinghamshire

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people treated by a mental health trust responsible for Buckinghamshire were (a) moved from an enhanced care plan approach to a standard care plan approach and (b) discharged from either an enhanced care plan approach or a standard care plan approach in each year since 2001. [132982]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally. The Department is currently undertaking a review of the care programme approach to provide patients with greater control and care tailored to their individual needs. A public consultation was held from 14 November 2006 to 19 February 2007 and further guidance will be issued in due course.

Mentally Ill: Cannabis

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people were treated for cannabis-induced psychosis in each of the last five years; and how many were under 18 years old; [131203]

(2) what treatments are available for people suffering from cannabis-induced psychosis. [131204]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about the number of finished consultant episodes in patients with a primary diagnosis of mental and behavioural disorder due to the use of cannabinoids and which has resulted in a psychotic disorder, or a resident or late-onset psychotic disorder is shown in the table. The data do not include those patients seen in primary care.

Data are collected by gender and in the age ranges 0 to 14 years, 15 to 59 years, 60 to 74 years and 75 years and over, but are not available prior to 2002-03. Separate data relating to people under 18-years-old and who were treated for cannabis-induced psychosis are not available.

Since a large number of drug users may be using more than one drug, treatments are generally user-specific rather than drug-specific. Treatments provided for cannabis-induced psychosis can include help with stopping or reducing cannabis use, including specialist services where cannabis addiction may be present, anti-psychotic treatment as appropriate and support in understanding the harmful effects of cannabis.

The Department has also distributed a cannabis toolkit for service users and healthcare professionals, to help to reduce and stop the use of cannabis. However, decisions about the development of drug treatment services are the responsibility of local commissioners who are best placed to assess the needs of their local population.

Midwives: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were employed in hospitals in Lancashire in each of the last five years. [126221]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

NHS: Crime of Violence

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many physical attacks there were on NHS staff in each year between 1997 and 2006 in each strategic health authority. [130814]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested has not been collated centrally for the period 1997-2004.

A table outlining the estimated number of reported violent and abusive incidents collected by the Department for 2000-01, 2001-02, 2002-03 for each strategic health authority (SHA) in England is available in the Library.

In April 2003 the NHS Security Management Service (NHS SMS) was created and assumed responsibility for the issue of tackling violence against NHS staff. The NHS SMS has collected data on the actual number of reported physical assaults on NHS staff in England 2004-05 and 2005-06.

A breakdown of the figures for each SHA, for the 2004-2006 reporting periods, is provided in the table shown.

NHS: Equal Pay

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate of cost over and above current provision she has made of the impact of the Equal Pay Act 1970 on individual (a) primary care trusts and (b) NHS trusts in the Eastern Region; and if she will make a statement. [127636]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are around 120 equal pay claims outstanding against national health service organisations in the East of England strategic health authority area. It is not possible to estimate what, if any, additional cost will arise from these claims as there are a number of significant legal issues which need to be resolved before liability can be assessed.

Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre NHS Trust

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking (a) to safeguard the future of Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre NHS Trust at Headington, Oxford and (b) to ensure that provisions for local services and specialist work can be maintained in the area. [131390]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities (SHAs) to analyse their local situation and develop plans, in liaison with their local national health service trusts and primary care providers, to deliver high quality NHS services including orthopaedic services while maintaining financial balance. The Department is working with the Specialist Orthopaedic Alliance, specialist orthopaedic hospitals and their host SHA to reach a long-term sustainable solution to rewarding the work of specialist orthopaedic hospitals through payment by results.

Nurses: Schools

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school nurses there were in (a) England and (b) each region of England in each of the last 10 years. [131674]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of school nurses employed in each health region is shown in the table. School nurses have only been separately identified in the national health service workforce census since 2004.

Nurses: Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many students qualified to become nurses in each of the last five years; and how many vacancies for nurses there were during that period. [128335]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not collected information centrally on the number of students who qualified to become nurses over the last five years.

The following table shows the number of vacancies for nurses which trusts are actively trying to fill, which had lasted for three months or more (full time equivalents) at 31 March of each year for the last five years.

Occupational Health: Manpower

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) occupational physicians and (b) occupational health nurses were employed in the NHS in each year since 1997. [131328]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest available data on the number of doctors in occupational medicine in each year since 1997 are shown in the table.

Occupational Therapy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of how NHS-employed occupational therapists engage with home improvement agencies. [128056]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No assessment has been carried out centrally. It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders to assess the needs of their local communities and to commission services accordingly.

Osteosarcoma

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence was of osteosarcoma for each of the age groups (a) 0 to nine years, (b) 10 to 19 years and (c) 20 to 49 years in areas of the United Kingdom supplied with (i) fluoridated and (ii) non-fluoridated drinking water. [129701]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Procurement Projects

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the 20 largest procurement projects initiated by her Department since May 1997 have been; what the (a) original budget, (b) cost to date and (c) consultancy fees have been; and what the final cost was of each project which has been completed. [106599]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected in the form requested. However, the Department does have details of the 20 largest private finance initiative and information technology (IT) procurement projects since 1997. For the national programme for IT the lifetime contract value is £6,202.5 million and the expenditure up to 31 December 2006 was £1,001.5 million.

The following table provides details of the 19 largest private finance initiative (PFI) projects.

[1] Unitary payments only start once the facility is operational.
[2] Most schemes involve the private sector contractor providing both soft (cleaning, catering etc) and hard (building maintenance) FM services over the lifetime of the contract. Those marked as hard FM only in this column subsequently have lower unitary payments.

Notes:
1. The figures for the unitary payments in column 4 are expressed in nominal terms—i.e. the Department has applied a deflator (RPI—the one normally used in contracts) to the baseline figure submitted to it by the Trust or PCT concerned. Figures will therefore vary as a result of changes to RPI.
2. Unitary payments may fluctuate both up and down as a result of adjustments made relating to the performance of the contractor, additional services requested by the trust and the effect of refinancing.
3. For all schemes the contract length is assumed to be 30 years, the standard length introduced under the Standard Form Contract in 1999.
4. Consultancy Fees: Information on consultancy fees incurred in reaching financial close (i.e. construction in the table) was centrally collected for monitoring purposes for the majority of PFI schemes up to 2005. To collect information on the remaining schemes would incur disproportionate costs.
5. The Department submits details on original budgets and cost increases for PFI schemes each year for the Health Select Committee. This information can be found on their website at:
www.parliament.uk/parliamentary_committees/health_committee/health_committee_reports_and_publications.cfm

Prostate Cancer

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken by her Department to raise awareness of prostate cancer. [132069]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1203W.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in making National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence-approved treatments for prostate cancer available on the NHS. [132070]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Tyne Bridge (Mr. Clelland) on 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1796W.

Prosthetics

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many amputees have used NHS prosthetic limbs in each of the last 10 years; [132163]

(2) what estimate she has made of waiting times for NHS prosthetic limbs in each of the last 10 years; [132164]

(3) what provision the NHS makes for therapy and gait training for amputees using prosthetic limbs. [132165]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about the number of amputees using national health service prosthetic limbs is not collected centrally. There has been no estimate of waiting times for NHS prosthetic limbs made centrally.

It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders to commission services in order to meet local needs. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the health community including the provision of, and access to, prosthetic services.

A multidisciplinary team, which may be headed by a rehabilitation consultant and usually including a prosthetist, physiotherapist, occupational therapist, nurse, and in some cases a counsellor, will consider the needs and expectations of the patient and will provide the most appropriate prosthetic limb and suitable training where required.

Ritalin

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people being prescribed methylphenidate drugs have been prescribed those drugs for longer than (a) two, (b) five and (c) 10 years. [132893]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Speech Therapy

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) post graduates and (b) first degree graduates with recognised qualifications in speech and language therapy there were in 2006, broken down by higher education institution; and what proportion in each case are known to have (i) gained and (ii) retained employment in the NHS in speech therapy after graduating. [127666]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate her Department has made of the number of language and speech therapists required in England; [131604]

(2) what her estimate is of the number of speech and language therapists expected to retire in the next 10 years. [131606]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is not collected centrally on the number of speech and language therapists who are expected to retire in the next 10 years.

No assessment has been made of the number of speech and language therapists required in England. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities with support from the national workforce review team to analyse their local situation, develop plans and take action to recruit the appropriate staff required to deliver high quality speech and language services.

The workforce review team, an arm's length body hosted by NHS South Central, produces supply estimates (including assumptions about retirement) for professional groups. Its estimates for speech and language therapists is available at:

www.healthcareworkforce.nhs.uk/index.php?option=com_docman&task=doc_download&gid=295

Surgical Dressings

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training has been provided for medical and health care practitioners in the NHS on maggot debridement therapy; and if she will make a statement. [127743]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Post-registration training needs for national health service staff are determined against local NHS priorities, through appraisal processes and training needs analyses informed by local delivery plans and the needs of the service. Because services are delivered at a local level, funding for continuing professional development, including training in new therapies, is included as part of the baseline allocation to strategic health authorities (SHAs). How it is allocated is for individual SHAs to determine locally against their work force planning strategies.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what monitoring has been put in place since 2004 for failed Iraqi asylum applicants under the UK enforced returns programme upon their return to Iraq. [131593]

Mr. Byrne: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 593W.

Biometrics

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 969W, on biometrics, whether technology is (a) currently available and (b) in development to conduct such checks; and if he will make a statement. [130332]

John Reid: Technology is available that could attempt to match a facial image against a still image obtained from CCTV footage. However, the results are likely to be variable and would depend on the features of the technology used, the quality of the available images and the number of facial images that a single CCTV image was checked against.

Chlorine: Security

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the implications for public security of arrangements for the use of chlorine; and if he will make a statement. [132237]

Mr. McNulty: We regularly review the implications for public security of arrangements for the use of a variety of substances.

Criminal Justice Act 2003

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what he intends the surcharge provided for in sections 161A and 161B of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to be used for. [132133]

John Reid: In a full year it is expected that the surcharge on fines will raise £16 million.

Money from the surcharge will be spent on a range of services for victims of crime and witnesses. These include £3 million for witness care units, £3 million for independent domestic violence advisers, and £1.25 million for services to victims of sexual violence through the Victims' Fund. Details of how the rest of the money will be used in support of victims and witnesses will be announced in due course.

Internet: Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals were prosecuted for internet piracy in each of the last five years. [130832]

John Reid: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts for certain offences under Common Law, Criminal Justice Act 1987, Theft Act 1968 added by Theft (Amendment) Act 1996, Computer Misuse Act 1990, Trade Marks Act 1994, Copyright Designs and Patents Act 1988, Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 as added by Copyright and Related Rights Regulations Reg. and Trade Marks Act 1994, in England and Wales, 2001 to 2005 can be viewed in the attached table.

Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

The number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts for certain offences under Common Law, Criminal Justice Act 1987, Theft Act 1968 added by Theft (Amendment) Act 1996, Computer Misuse Act 1990, Trade Marks Act 1994, Copyright Designs and Patents Act 1988, Copyright, Designs & Patents Act 1988 as added by Copyright and Related Rights Regulations Reg. and Trade Marks Act 1994, in England and Wales, 2001 to 2005[1,2]

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used. Source: RDS Office for Criminal Justice Reform

Life Imprisonment: Prisoner Releases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders convicted of life sentences since (a) 2000, (b) 2001 and (c) 2002 have been released from prison. [129658]

John Reid: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 488W. Answering the earlier question of 12 June 2006 referred to involved significant manual checking of records and was integral to informing the need for a data quality review in the Department. Since then the data quality review has begun and as part of that review we are developing a new database that will enable us to collect the data requested centrally. But, at this time to answer the question would involve a disproportionate cost.

Naturalisation Test

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the key aspects of Britishness are which the Life in the UK naturalisation test is testing; and how they were decided upon. [130018]

John Reid: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 16 April, Official Report, column 470W. These aspects were selected in accordance with the advice of the Advisory Board on Naturalisation and Integration.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many and what percentage of people convicted under section 1 of the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 received a (a) fine and (b) custodial sentence in each of the last five years, broken down by age group; [131180]

(2) how many and what percentage of people convicted of having an article with a blade or point under section 139 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 received (a) a fine and (b) a custodial sentence of (i) less than six months, (ii) six to 12 months, (iii) 12 to 18 months, (iv) 18 to 24 months, (v) two to three years and (vi) four years in each year since the Act was introduced; [131181]

(3) how many and what percentage of people convicted of carrying an offensive weapon under section 139A of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 received (a) a fine and (b) a custodial sentence of (i) less than six months, (ii) six to 12 months, (iii) 12 to 18 months, (iv) 18 to 24 months, (v) two to three years and (vi) four years in each year since the Act was introduced; [131184]

(4) how many and what percentage of people convicted of encouraging violent behaviour involving the use of a knife under the Knives Act 1997 received (a) a fine and (b) a custodial sentence of (i) less than six months, (ii) six to 12 months, (iii) 12 to 18 months and (iv) 18 to 24 months in each year since the Act was introduced; [131220]

(5) how many people and what percentage of people convicted of carrying an offensive weapon under section 1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 received (a) a fine and (b) a custodial sentence of (i) less than six months, (ii) six to 12 months, (iii) 12 to 18 months, (iv) 18 to 24 months, (v) two to three years and (vi) four years in each of the last 30 years. [131241]

John Reid: The information requested is contained in the tables.

Table 1 shows persons sentenced (all persons sentenced have previously been convicted) under the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 by outcome and age group for the years 2001 to 2005.

Table 2 shows persons sentenced for the requested offences relating to knives and offensive weapons by outcome and custodial sentence length since the Offensive Weapons Act 1996 amended or added to section 139 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988. No persons convicted or sentenced have been notified to the Home Office court proceedings database under section 2(1)(b) of the Knives Act 1997.

Information is available only from 1986 to this level of detail for offences under the Prevention of Crime Act 1953.

Court proceedings statistics for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Data for "having an article with blade or point on school premises" excludes convictions for West Mercia PFA until clarification of these cases is obtained.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Prisons: Television

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners in (a) category C prisons, (b) category D prisons and (c) youth offender institutions have access to Sky television. [132350]

John Reid: No prisoners in category C or D prisons or young offender institutions now have access to subscription satellite TV channels in their cells. Where digital equipment is being installed, prisoners have access to selected free-to-air channels under the Sky brand name.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Serious Organised Crime Agency officers are designated as having powers of arrest; and how many arrests have been made since 1 April 2006. [124767]

John Reid: On 1 April 2006, 1,821 SOCA officers were designated with the power of arrest. Since then an additional 27 SOCA officers have been designated with the power of arrest. SOCA also has a number of officers seconded from other agencies and of these 168 are designated with the power of arrest.

For the period April to September 2006, 358 people were arrested as a result of UK based enforcement activity on SOCA operations. This figure includes both arrests by SOCA officers and arrests by other agencies on behalf of SOCA.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 402W, on the Serious Organised Crime Agency, with which criminal offences the 316 people were charged. [129046]

John Reid: The information requested is in the following table.

Nature of Offence	Number of individuals charged[1]
Drugs trafficking	240
Illegal immigration	68
Money laundering	24
Fraud	1
Firearms trafficking	3
Counterfeit Currency	1
Identity Cards	3
Total	340[1]

[1] The total is greater than 316 because some individuals were charged with more than one offence.

Terrorism: Money Laundering

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many terrorist investigations have been assisted following the introduction of the money laundering regulations 2003. [132793]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

Financial investigation is a fundamental part of all counter-terrorist investigations. The Money Laundering Regulations 2003 place a number of requirements on the regulated sector, such as to identify their customers and hold customer records.

and to have in place other procedures which in turn support the reporting of suspicious activity, which have proved valuable in the wider terrorist effort.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Alcoholic Drinks

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what quantity of (a) beers and ciders, (b) aperitifs, fortified wines and spirits and (c) wines were purchased by the Refreshment Department in each of the last three years; what the cost of these purchases was in each year; and what percentage of each of these items was imported. [131065]

Nick Harvey: Accounts have not yet been finalised for the full year ending March 2007, but estimated alcoholic beverage purchases during the 11 months to February 2007 were as follows:

April 2006 to February 2007[1]	Quantity (litres)	Estimated cost of purchases (£)	Percentage quantity imported
(a) beers and ciders	40,000	60,100	17
(b) aperitifs, fortified wines and spirits	5,700	80,400	12
(c) wines	57,300	379,900	98

[1] 11 months

Detailed purchase information is not currently available for the year 2005-06 due to technical issues that are being investigated by the software supplier. The Director of Catering Services will write to the hon. Member with the requested information when it becomes available.

The software used by the Refreshment Department does not retain historical information of purchases on a product-by-product basis for earlier years. However, I would remind the hon. Member that information about beverage purchase quantities and the percentage of imported products for the 11 months from April 2004 until February 2005 has previously been provided to him. I corrected the information originally provided by my predecessor in my letter to the hon. Member on 21 November 2005, but for ease of reference I set out in full the corrected information provided to his previous question tabled in March 2005:

April 2004 to February 2005[1]	Quantity (litres)	Percentage quantity imported
(d) beers and ciders	38,051	17
(e) aperitifs, fortified wines and spirits	4,579	8
(f) wines	56,987	95

Water

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate he has made of (a) the carbon footprint associated with the use of bottled water within the House and (b) what the footprint would be were only tap water available. [132473]

Nick Harvey: No estimate has yet been made of the carbon footprint associated with the use of bottled water within the House, but one is now being drawn up.

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what measures are being (a) taken and (b) considered to promote efficiency in the use of water on the House of Commons estate. [131067]

Nick Harvey: The measures being taken to promote efficiency in the use of water on the House of Commons estate include: surveys of toilets, shower rooms and washrooms to obtain quotations for the installation of controls for urinal cisterns, conversion of existing turn or cross head taps to non-concussive self closing push taps, installation of pressure compensating aerators to taps to reduce water flow and the replacement of existing showers with aerated showers to reduce water flow. Thames Water staff inspected most of the toilets on the House of Commons estate in early 2006 and fitted a water saving device to approximately 20 WC cisterns. A consultant is currently investigating how to better promote and implement the energy and water saving policy among staff and other users of the estate's facilities.

A proposal to run an environment champions programme in each estate building is also currently being considered, which would promote better energy and water efficiency and waste management.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Overseas Aid: Water

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was allocated to projects involving water and sanitation by his Department in 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [132068]

Mr. Thomas: The UK has agreed that half of our direct aid to poor countries should be spent on basic services, including water. We will double our support to water and sanitation in Africa to £95 million a year by 2008-09 and then double it again to £200 million a year by 2001-11.

DFID's total support to the sector, including through the World Bank, the multilateral development banks and the EC, was £242 million in 2005-06. Our bilateral funding was just over half of this at around £130 million in 2005-06.

Our total support to sub-Saharan Africa has increased significantly to £78 million (from £46 million in 2002-03), so we are on track to reach the World Water Day target of £95 million by 2007-08.

Further detail on DFID's expenditure in the sector can be found in our report 'Financial Support to the water sector 2004-2006', which will be placed in the Library of the House. This is our most recent report and was published in March 2007. Details of our 2006-07 expenditure are not yet available.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Aerials: Planning Permission

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many planning applications (a) to construct and (b) to add to existing telecommunications masts in each council area of Northern Ireland were approved in the last 12 months. [132188]

David Cairns: The Department of the Environment's Planning Service approved 155 planning applications for telecommunications masts between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 2007 and the following table shows the number approved in each district council area. I regret that the Planning Service's electronic records system does not provide a distinction between an application for the construction of a mast and an addition to an existing mast.

Community Support Officers

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what facilities are to be provided for the training of community support officers to be recruited in Northern Ireland; and at what cost. [133043]

Paul Goggins: Training for PCSOs will be based on a six-week programme, comprising both classroom and practical-based learning. It is envisaged that part of this training will take place within the community and the environments in which PCSOs will work. The programme will include role specific training, skills development, and the knowledge necessary for working in the community—including human rights, diversity, ethics and problem solving. As with other members of police staff, PCSOs will have access to ongoing training as needed.

Full costings for training are not yet available.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the recruitment of community support officers (CSOs) in Northern Ireland to begin; and when he expects the first CSOs to be deployed. [133044]

Paul Goggins: The following table sets out the proposed timetable for the first recruitment campaign. This has yet to be finalised and is therefore subject to change.

Date
4 May 2007	Extensive outreach campaign to inform the public and potential applicants as to the role and functions of a PCSO
Week beginning 21 May 2007	Recruitment advertisements
October 2007	Recruitment process completed
January 2008	First training programme commences
February 2008	First PCSOs on patrol in E District (Armagh, Banbridge, Craigavon and Newry and Mourne)

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the operating costs of Driver and Vehicle Licensing Northern Ireland was in each of the last six years. [133029]

David Cairns: The operating cost of Driver and Vehicle Licensing Northern Ireland in each of the last six years was as follows:

	Amount (£000)
2000-01	11,329
2001-02	12,169
2002-03	13,713
2003-04	15,514
2004-05	17,091
2005-06	18,511

Further Education: Student Drop-outs

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what analysis has been carried out to ascertain the main reasons why students in further education in Northern Ireland dropped out of their courses in the last three years. [132185]

Maria Eagle: A range of analysis has been carried out by DEL to ascertain the main reasons why students in further education in Northern Ireland dropped out of their courses in the last three years. This includes analysis of the available data regarding the 'reasons for withdrawal' variable contained within the Further Education Leavers Survey (FELS) returns as well as analysis uncertaken by the Education and Training Inspectorate on retention within a college as part of their inspecton process.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many students in further education in Northern Ireland failed to complete their course in the last 12 months; and how many of them were in the final year of their course. [132187]

Maria Eagle: During the 2005/06 academic year a total of 24,219 enrolments, which equates to some 16 per cent. of total provision, in the Northern Ireland Further Education Sector failed to complete their course. Some 16,157 of this total were final year enrolments.

Notes:

1. The source for this analysis is the Further Education Statistical Record (FESR) and the Further Education Leavers Survey (FELS).

2. The figures quoted include students who dropped out of their original programme of study and subsequently transferred to another course.

3. The data above pertain to "assessed" provision only and are the latest available.

Licensed Premises

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many businesses were licensed to sell alcohol in each district council area in each of the last six years; how many of those businesses breached their licence over the same period; and what penalty was imposed in each case in which all proceedings are complete. [130922]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Court data in respect of licensed premises are recorded by Petty Sessions District. The information requested is tabled as follows.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many alcohol licence applications were made in each district council area in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years; and how many were (a) accepted and (b) declined. [130952]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Court data in respect of alcohol licence applications in Northern Ireland are recorded by petty sessions district. Similar information was sought last year and published on 9 October. One application refused in Craigavon in 2001 was omitted from the answer provided then. The following table corrects this mistake and shows the number of alcohol licence applications granted and refused in each of the last six years for each petty sessions district.

Northern Ireland Water

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what septic tank emptying service Northern Ireland Water has offered since 1 April 2007; what charges are planned for this service; what revenue is expected in each of the next three financial years; and if he will make a statement; [133315]

(2) what the status is of the septic tank emptying agreements between Northern Ireland Water and households in Northern Ireland; what direct communication the households concerned have received on the alteration of the agreements; and if he will make a statement. [133316]

David Cairns: The Water and Sewerage Services (NI) Order 2006 transferred responsibility for the delivery of water and sewerage services from the Department's Water Service Agency to a statutory water and sewerage undertaker. A government-owned company, Northern Ireland Water (NIW) has been appointed as the undertaker and the issues raised are operational matters for it. I have asked the Chief Executive of NIW (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to these questions.

Proscribed Organisations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his assessment is of (a) recruitment, (b) weapons procurement, (c) bomb making capability and (d) other recent activity by dissident Republican paramilitary organisations. [132478]

Mr. Hain: As stated in the fourteenth IMC report, dissident republicans continue their attempts to recruit members and to procure and develop weapons. Dissident republicans have proved they are capable of making munitions and are a real and capable threat, as the recent find of a sophisticated mortar device in Lurgan demonstrates. While they continue to be intent on causing serious harm, I have every confidence in the PSNI's ability to deal with this threat.

Regeneration

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which communities have received funding from the Renewing Communities programme since the establishment of the scheme; and how much each received. [132281]

Mr. Hanson: The Renewing Communities programme was established April 2006 as a wide range of over 60 actions spread across eight Government Departments. It incorporates existing policies and programmes that are central to Government's efforts in tackling deprivation wherever it exists. These are mainstream programmes involving allocations of funding in excess of £200 million and supporting disadvantaged communities across all of Northern Ireland.

In addition, a smaller number of pilot projects have been developed to target disadvantaged communities and to test new ideas and new ways of working to combat specific aspects of local deprivation. These pilot projects account for an annual budget of approximately £14 million over the two years 2006-08. Careful analysis of these projects will show that many are open to participants and communities from across the traditional divide. While we are barely half way through what is a two year funding initiative, it is too early to report accurately on the actual spend in specific communities. However, it is worth noting that around one third of all the Renewing Communities Actions are specifically targeted on pilot programmes in single identity Protestant communities experiencing some of the worst levels of deprivation.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps were taken to ensure that (a) the Renewing Communities programme and (b) the projects supported by funding from that scheme honoured the equality provisions as laid out in the Northern Ireland Act 1998; and if he will make a statement. [132282]

Mr. Hanson: In developing the Renewing Communities Action Plan, all Government Departments were asked to identify existing policies and programmes that were relevant to addressing the needs of disadvantaged communities, including those in Protestant areas, in line with recommendations made in the cross-departmental Taskforce Report published in April 2006. This included two emerging programmes in the Children and Young People's package and the Skills and Science package announced in early 2006. Each of these major policies and programmes, forming the core of Government's response, have already been subjected to equality screening by the responsible lead Department.

Also included in the Renewing Communities Action Plan are a number of initiatives designed to try new ideas for tackling specific aspects of deprivation and to test new ways to work with and in disadvantaged communities. After thorough evaluation and assessment, if these projects prove successful, then the appropriate lead Department will take steps to roll out successful programmes across all communities experiencing similar deprivation. At this stage the lead Department will be required to carry out an equality assessment prior to the introduction of any new policy.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the operation of the Renewing Communities programme since its establishment; and what the future plans for the scheme are. [132283]

Mr. Hanson: The Renewing Communities Plan has been a positive development for Northern Ireland. A cross-departmental Delivery Team, chaired by the Head of the Northern Ireland Civil Service, has been established to review and monitor progress of all of the actions contained in the Renewing Communities Action Plan. The Delivery Team has reported regularly to me on the progress of the programme across all of the actions and of the arrangements to ensure cohesive inter-departmental working where appropriate. Individual lead Departments and their delivery agencies have been tasked with the responsibility for the evaluation of all their relevant actions before the Delivery Team completes an overview assessment of all the programmes of actions.

Following these two levels of assessment, the Delivery Team will determine those particular programmes which are considered to have potential to be rolled out across all disadvantaged communities and mainstreamed as part of each Department's contribution to tackling deprivation wherever it exists.

Social Rented Housing

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many public authority houses were sold by the housing associations and the Northern Ireland Housing Executive between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2007. [132099]

Mr. Hanson: Between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2007 the Northern Ireland Housing Executive sold a total of 29,844 houses to sitting tenants In the same period registered housing associations in Northern Ireland sold 911 houses to sitting tenants.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total housing stock owned by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive and the housing associations (a) is and (b) was in April (i) 2000, (ii) 2002, (iii) 2004 and (iv) 2006; and if he will make a statement. [132100]

Mr. Hanson: The total housing stock owned by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive at the dates requested was:

At 31 March	Total stock
2000	128,622
2002	113,272
2004	102,850
2006	95,067

The total housing stock which is owned by the Northern Ireland registered housing associations is not yet available as the returns for the year ended 31 March 2007 are not due from associations until Friday 29 June 2007.

Stock owned by the Northern Ireland registered housing associations, excluding the Northern Ireland Co-ownership Housing Association stock, at the dates requested was:

At 31 March	Housing apartments	Supported sheltered bedspaces	Total
2000	17,389	3,873	21,262
2002	18,900	3,695	22,595
2004	21,052	3,845	24,897
2006	22,076	4,427	26,503

South Eastern Education and Library Board

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the timetable is for reinstatement of the South Eastern Education and Library Board; and if he will make a statement. [133332]

Maria Eagle: Commissioners were appointed to the South Eastern Education and Library Board only because of the failure of Board members to operate effectively and within the resources allocated by my Department and voted by Parliament. I have always made clear that I would respond positively to any credible approach from Board members that was coupled with a firm assurance that they were prepared to work together constructively, meeting the necessary corporate governance requirements, taking decisions within the resources allocated and taking account of Government policy priorities. To date no such approach has been forthcoming.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business: Ethics

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy Management Committee last met. [132902]

Margaret Hodge: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to his questions, 132544, 132545, 132546 and 132547 answered on 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 767W.

The CSR Academy did not have a management committee. The Project Director reported to DTI and the Academy Chairman through quarterly reports and met with DTI on a regular basis.

Companies House: Standards

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether Companies House targets issued by his office on 16 April vary from existing targets. [132610]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 19 April 2007]: There are some changes between the targets set for Companies House in 2006-07 and those set in 2007-08. Copies of written statements giving targets for both years are available in the House of Commons Library; and at 30 March 2006, Official Report, column 100WS, and 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 4WS.

Departments: Trade Unions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many meetings (a) he and (b) his Department's Ministers held with (i) business representatives, (ii) trade union representatives and (iii) consumer representatives in 2006. [128750]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ministers regularly meet business, trade union and consumer representatives but information on the number held could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

TRANSPORT

Airports: Fees and Charges

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the potential contribution to environmental protection of the proposed measures in the European Commission's draft Directive on Airport Charges; and if he will make a statement. [131726]

Gillian Merron: The draft directive on airport charges sets common principles to be respected by airport operators when they determine the level of airport charges. It contains no measures concerning environmental protection, but does not prohibit airport operators from setting environmental charges provided that they do so in accordance with the directive. The Department is currently consulting UK stakeholders on the proposals.

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the airport emissions charging principles recommended by the European Civil Aviation Conference (ECAC/27-4); and if he will make a statement. [131733]

Gillian Merron: ECAC recommended a harmonised method for classifying aircraft according to their NOx emissions for the potential purpose of emission charges. The Civil Aviation Act 2006 provides powers for all airports to introduce charges that reflect the pollution generated by each aircraft type, in the way that Heathrow and Gatwick already do. Those charging schemes already follow the recommended method.

British Airways: Standards

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment his Department has made of the recent performance of British Airways; [132008]

(2) what discussions he has had with British Airways on their record of service to travellers in recent months; [132009]

(3) what steps he is taking to ensure that (a) British Airways and (b) BAA plc has made appropriate preparations to manage risk. [132010]

Gillian Merron: As private companies, British Airways and BAA are responsible in the first instance to their shareholders for their performance. However, on behalf of transport users the Department takes a close interest in the operations of all UK airports and airlines as we do with all transport sectors, and in that context regular engagement is maintained with BA and BAA, including on consumer issues.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [131547]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport came into being on 29 May 2002 and therefore figures before this date are not available.

Since that date, the figures are:

	Involuntary	Voluntary
2002-03	1	1
2003-04	0	26
2004-05	0	109
2006-07	0	352

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131552]

Gillian Merron: The Department was formed in May 2002 and the information requested is in the table as follows.

Lump sum compensation payments

	2002-03	2003-04[1]	2004-05[1]	2005-06[1]	2006-07[1]
Department for Transport	One involuntary staff exit (between £50,001 and £75,000) and one voluntary for which details are not available	i. 17 ii. 3 iii. 0 iv. 0 v. 0; Six other voluntary exits for which details are not available	i. 26 ii. 52 iii. 29 iv. 1 v. 0; One other voluntary exit for which details are not available	i. 72 ii. 31 iii. 26 iv. 6 v. 10; 17 other voluntary exits for which details are not available	i. 260 ii. 66 iii. 12 iv. 6 v. 8

London Airports: Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what impact charges on the emission of oxides of nitrogen on (a) landing and (b) take-off at Heathrow and Gatwick airports have had on such emissions in each year since their introduction; and whether the revenue from those charges is hypothecated for spending on further emissions reduction measures. [131725]

Gillian Merron: It is too early to assess the effect of charges. The current framework is essentially revenue neutral with rebates for clean aircraft funded by the less clean aircraft. This, and other levers, have encouraged the industry to commit to reducing NOx emissions by 80 per cent. for new aircraft in 2020 compared with 2000.

Roads: Construction

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many miles of motorway and trunk road network of national strategic routes have been widened to ease traffic bottlenecks. [131752]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1246W.

TREASURY

Civil Servants: Location

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil servants have moved to (a) Huddersfield and (b) Kirklees since the Lyons Review. [132007]

Mr. Timms: By December last year 11,068 posts had been relocated out of London and the South East to every nation and region in the UK, with 2,287 moving to Yorkshire and Humberside.

To date no posts have been moved to Huddersfield or Kirklees.

However, a number of posts have moved to within commuting distance of Kirklees, including 293 posts relocated to Leeds from seven different Government Departments (DCA, DCLG, DFES, DH, DTI, HMRC and HO), with a further 113 DWP posts relocated to Halifax and 129 DWP posts to Bradford.

EC Budget: Contributions

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the UK has paid per head of UK population in gross contributions to the European Union since becoming a member. [132808]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 23 January 2007, Official Report, column 1669W.

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) gross and (b) net contribution paid by the UK to the EU was since (i) 1997 and (ii) 1 January 2006; and whether he holds information on what those figures are since 1972. [133015]

Ed Balls: Details of the United Kingdom's gross contributions after taking account of the abatement, the amount paid to the EC Budget, public sector receipts and net contributions to the EC Budget in the years 2000 to 2005, together with an estimate for 2006, can be found in Table 3 (page 46) of the European Community Finances White Paper (Cm 6770) published in May 2006. Figures for earlier years can be found in the equivalent tables which have been published in earlier editions of this annual White Paper. An outturn figure for 2006, together with an estimate for 2007, will be published in the 2007 edition of the White Paper.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1750W, on ministerial visits, what the cost was of each visit undertaken by the Economic Secretary to the Treasury in the last two years. [133236]

Ed Balls: All ministerial visits are conducted in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers. As with all inquiries relating to the cost of ministerial travel, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the information the Government have published on an annual basis since 1999, listing overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 and the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year.

NHS: Finance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has made an assessment of the likely impact on the NHS of Schedule 3 of the Finance Bill. [132993]

Mr. Timms: Such information, as is available, on the impact of Schedule 3 of the Finance Bill is included in the Regulatory Impact Assessment 'Managed Service Companies' published on the HMRC website on 29 March 2007.

Public Expenditure: Scotland

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what basis central government funding is allocated to Scotland; whether he plans to review the funding formula; and what the allocation per head of population was in (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales in 2006. [132805]

Mr. Timms: The basis for central Government funding of the devolved Administrations is set out in the Statement of Funding Policy published by the Treasury in July 2004. The Government have no plans to review the Barnett formula. Identifiable spending per head in England, Scotland and Wales in 2005-06 is £6,762, £8,265 and £7,666 respectively; these figures include both devolved and reserved spending and are published in Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (Cm 6811).

Stamp Duties

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the number of zero-carbon homes which may qualify for relief from stamp duty under the provisions of Clause 19 of the Finance Bill, broken down by region. [132995]

Ed Balls: No estimate is available of the numbers of qualifying zero-carbon homes by region.

Suicide: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suicides were committed in each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [132919]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 20 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many suicides were committed in each London borough in each of the last ten years. I am replying in her absence. (132919)

The attached table provides the number of deaths where suicide was the underlying cause of death, in each London Borough, from 1996 to 2005 (the latest year available).

Table 1: Number of deaths where suicide (death from intentional self-harm, or injury or poisoning of undetermined intent) was the underlying cause of death[1], London boroughs, 1996-2005[2, 3]

Figures are for persons aged 15 and over.
[2] Based on local authority boundaries as of 2007.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Tax Credits

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library the official advice provided to the then Chancellor of the Exchequer regarding his decision in 1993 to reduce from 25 to 20 per cent. the tax credits on dividends. [132446]

Ed Balls: I and my ministerial colleagues do not have access to the papers of the previous Conservative Administration.

Taxation: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he made of the potential for fiscal incentives to contribute to the promotion of responsible drinking prior to the 2007 Budget; and what discussions he had with the Secretary of State for Health on this matter. [131938]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor makes decisions about the appropriate level of excise duty on alcohol at Budget time, taking all relevant factors into consideration. Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide range of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

WALES

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132190]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office ensures that value for money is achieved on all hospitality expenditure, which is conducted in accordance with the principles of Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Grandparents: Parental Responsibility

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many grandparents claim income support allowances for grandchildren towards whom they act as parents. [133013]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 23 April 2007

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Frigates: Romania

Harry Cohen: To ask the Solicitor-General what progress has been made with the investigation by the Serious Fraud Office and Ministry of Defence Police into the sale of two ex-Royal Navy frigates to Romania by BAE; and if he will make a statement. [132856]

The Solicitor-General: The Serious Fraud Office is investigating alleged offences involving BAE Systems plc. Further comment cannot be made for cases currently under investigation.

TRANSPORT

Airports: Security

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of tonnes of liquids which have been confiscated at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick, (c) Stansted, (d) Manchester and (e) Birmingham airports since 10 August 2006. [132904]

Gillian Merron: The Department does not collect any data on the amount of liquids confiscated through central search at UK airports.

Bus Services: Accidents

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving passengers on London bus services were reported in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) London borough and (b) London bus route; and if he will make a statement. [132648]

Dr. Ladyman: Information showing the number of reported personal injury road accidents involving bus/coaches by London borough in each of the last five years is given in the following table. 2005 is the latest year for which data are available. Many of these accidents include buses/coaches which had no passenger casualties. Additionally some of the buses/coaches may have had no passengers at all. The information requested broken down by bus route is not collected.

Dartford Tunnel: Tolls

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a discount for Bexley residents has been considered as part of the consultation on the future of Dartford Crossing tolls. [132791]

Dr. Ladyman: No decisions have yet been taken. The Department will be consulting on its proposals for local discounts in due course.

Driver Information Systems

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to publish the results of the consultation on the In-Vehicle Information Systems; and if he will make a statement. [132535]

Dr. Ladyman: The replies to the consultation are in the process of being analysed, with consideration also being given to other relevant material such as the 26 October 2006, Official Report, column 1769 Adjournment debate on satellite navigation. Once this work is complete, the results of the consultation will be published. No date has yet been fixed but I expect the information to be issued shortly.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps (a) to regulate in-vehicle information systems and (b) to produce a code of conduct to mitigate incorrect routeing by navigation systems; and if he will make a statement. [132552]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport is reviewing the existing legislation and practice on in-vehicle information systems (MS). The review is being informed by responses to the recent MS public consultation and by other relevant information. Our chief interest is to ensure, whether by regulation, code of practice and/or other means, that the human-machine interface aspects of route guidance systems are safe and that the guidance offered by such systems is designed so as to avoid inappropriate routeing. No conclusions have yet been reached on the best way forward. Any proposal developed following the review will be subject to further public consultation as part of the statutory process.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many keepers of foreign registered vehicles re-registered their vehicle details with the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last 10 years. [132946]

Dr. Ladyman: The following are volumes of used imported vehicles since 2001 We do not have figures for the last 10 years.

	Number
2006	94,730
2005	112,908
2004	130,558
2003	133,999
2002	107,267

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the crackdown on overseas registered vehicles announced in August 2006. [132947]

Dr. Ladyman: Checks by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) on drivers and vehicles on international journeys in the South East of England increased from 14,100 in 2005-06 to 34,500 in 2006-07. 47 per cent. of the vehicles checked for roadworthiness were found to have defects which could result in prohibition, 20 per cent. of the checks on drivers' hours showed offences and 26 per cent. of vehicles weighed were overloaded.

This increased level of activity has been effective in the number of dangerous vehicles and drivers been prevented from continuing their journeys on the UK road network. It is too early to say whether there has been any deterrent effect.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the change in numbers of foreign registered vehicles on UK roads over the last 15 years. [132949]

Dr. Ladyman: We do not collect data on the number of foreign registered vehicles on UK roads.

Rescue Services: Compensation

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps he is taking to ensure a quick resolution of the dispute between the Maritime and Coastguard Agency and coastguard rescue officers over injury cover; [133517]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Maritime and Coastguard Agency on the dispute with coastguard rescue officers over insurance cover; and if he will make a statement. [133520]

Dr. Ladyman: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency has kept me fully informed of developments with the withdrawal of front-line services by some Coastguard Rescue Teams. Full-time staff within the MCA and the volunteer members of its Coastguard Rescue Service are covered for injuries sustained while on duty and consequential loss of earnings by the Civil Service Injury Benefits Scheme (CSIBS) details of which can be found at:

http://www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk/upload/assets/www.civilservice_pensions.gov.uk/rules/csibs_81206.pdf

Discussions within the MCA have resulted in agreement on interim arrangements and a full search and rescue service has resumed. A MCA working group is being set up to consider compensation arrangements for the future.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that volunteer coastguard rescue officers injured on duty receive prompt and adequate compensation; [133518]

(2) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of injury cover for volunteer coastguard rescue officers. [133519]

Dr. Ladyman: In the event of an injury on duty, the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has in place the following procedures:

an interim payment scheme to avoid hardship; entitlement to make a claim as a person performing duties on behalf of the Crown from the Civil Service Injury Benefits Scheme.

The MCA is actively considering future arrangements and is discussing concerns with coastguard rescue officers.

Road Traffic Offences: Foreign Registered Vehicles

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the cost of traffic penalty evasion by foreign registered vehicles in the UK. [132941]

Dr. Ladyman: We have made no quantified assessment. However we have recognised this is an important enforcement issue which we intend to address through the deposit scheme and which will require an immediate payment from those who cannot provide a satisfactory UK address.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has powers to receive up-to-date foreign vehicle keeper data from foreign vehicle licensing agencies for the purposes of assisting UK local authorities in carrying out their civil enforcement responsibilities. [132942]

Dr. Ladyman: Currently there is no European or international law providing a legal framework for data exchange specifically for these purposes. Therefore each case would need to be considered on its merits and the specific legal duties arising, including data protection and privacy issues.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether any foreign registered vehicles have been stopped and made to pay an immediate deposit for a traffic penalty since the passage of the Road Safety Act 2006. [132943]

Dr. Ladyman: No. The graduated fixed penalty and financial penalty deposit provisions for roadworthiness and traffic offences in the Road Safety Act 2006 have not yet been implemented.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government plan to take to improve enforcement of traffic penalties against the owners of foreign registered vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [132945]

Dr. Ladyman: We intend to introduce regulations under the provisions of the Road Safety Act 2006 that will allow police officers—and also enforcement officers from the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency—to issue fixed penalties to offenders in non-GB-registered vehicles and to offenders without a satisfactory address in the UK.

A deposit will be taken from the offender at the time the fixed penalty notice is issued. Enforcers will also be able to immobilise a vehicle in any case where there is any risk that an offender may refuse to pay a deposit. It will also be possible for enforcers to immobilise a vehicle where it appears an offender to drive away in contravention of any prohibition which has been issued, either in respect the driver, or in cases where the vehicle has been deemed unfit to continue with the journey.

West Coast Mainline: Railway Stations

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment has been made of the ability of platforms on the West Coast Mainline to facilitate longer trains. [133480]

Mr. Tom Harris: Platforms at stations on the West Coast Main Line already have the capability of accommodating longer trains or proposals exist to extend them this as necessary.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Ports: Thames Estuary

Bob Spink: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the impact of the operation in the Thames estuary of the proposed liquefied natural gas importation plant on Canvey Island on the operation of the proposed container terminal at Shell Haven; and if he will make a statement. [132135]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

The application for planning permission for a liquefied natural gas importation facility on Canvey Island is currently the subject of an appeal to the Planning Inspectorate, following refusal of the application by the Local Planning Authority in September 2006. It would be inappropriate to prejudge the outcome of the appeal process.

The application for a Harbour Empowerment Order for a container terminal at Shell Haven is currently under consideration by the Secretary of State, further to his minded view of 8 August 2006.

The regulation of navigation in the Thames estuary is the responsibility of the Port of London Authority as the conservancy authority and statutory harbour authority. It is for the Port of London Authority to assess any operational traffic impacts and make proper provision for the safe regulation of river traffic to and from any relevant port developments which may be implemented in the estuary.

Press Gallery

22. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what assessment has been made of utilising part of the Press Gallery above the Commons Chamber for visitor access. [132699]

Nick Harvey: Only security-screened pass holders or Members' guests can sit in front of the security screen and visitors are restricted to the area behind the security screen. This is based on security advice and a result of a number of incidents of which the Member will be aware. However, Mr. Speaker is keen to welcome visitors to the House and has asked that officers look into this proposal.

Services Survey

25. Bob Spink: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission when he expects to report the results of the recent survey of services. [132702]

Nick Harvey: The report of the Survey of Services is currently being drafted by FDS, the independent market research company contracted to undertake the survey. The report will be considered by the House of Commons Commission in May and will be made available to Members and their staff.

Parliament: Parking

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much he estimates would be raised each year by the introduction of a £10 flat fee charge to use car parking facilities on the parliamentary estate, assuming a continuation of the present level of usage. [132472]

Nick Harvey: There are no plans to introduce charges for use of car parking facilities on the parliamentary estate.

Portcullis House: Escalators

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will ensure that the opportunity afforded by the works due to be undertaken to the Portcullis House escalator is used to reintroduce motion-sensitive operation. [132470]

Nick Harvey: The new escalators will incorporate motion sensitive operation with an energy-efficient control system.

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how long the Portcullis House escalator has been in use; how much has been spent on (a) repairs and (b) maintenance since its introduction; and what the estimated cost is of the works planned for autumn 2007. [132471]

Nick Harvey: The escalators have been in use since Portcullis House opened in September 2000. The following has been spent on:

(a) Repairs: £26,421

(b) Maintenance: £5,112 (£852 per annum).

The estimated cost of the escalator works for this summer is £327,000.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent on hospitality by his Office in the financial year 2006-07. [133265]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for South Holland and The Deepings (Mr. Hayes) and the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 11 October 2006, Official Report, column 788W.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his meetings with outside interest groups which took place between 1 January and 31 March. [132436]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

EU Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister on which occasions in the last 12 months he has met representatives of campaign bodies and think tanks advocating closer EU integration. [133093]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Charities: Regulation

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps she has taken to ensure that the work of the Charity Commission and the Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator are fully compatible in respect of charities which work across the UK. [132932]

Edward Miliband: The Government are keen to promote compatible regulation for charities that operate throughout the UK, while recognising that charity law and regulation is a devolved matter in Scotland and Northern Ireland. There is a UK and Ireland Charity Regulators' Forum, to advance a consistent regulatory approach and to share information and best practice. The first meeting of regulators in England and Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic took place in October 2006. The Charity Commission and the Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator (OSCR) have developed and published a Memorandum of Understanding, and specific guidance for charities that operate in both jurisdictions. The Commission and OSCR are also working together on the Statement of Recommended Practice for Charity Accounting and jointly sponsor the Committee which is reviewing this. They also hold regular bilateral meetings as appropriate to discuss other matters of mutual interest.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on hospitality by her Department in the last 12 months. [133235]

Hilary Armstrong: Costs incurred on Official Hospitality in 2006-07, which covers the last 12 months, will be available only when the Department's resource accounts are fully audited and laid before Parliament. This is expected to be before the 2007 summer recess.

All Cabinet Office expenditure on official hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list the meetings between Ministers from her Department and outside interest groups which took place between 1st January and 31st March. [132437]

Hilary Armstrong: Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Coroners

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on changes in the point of arrival for military fatalities from overseas and the implications for the Coroners Service; what plans she has to allocate further resources to the relevant coroner in the event that the point of arrival for military fatalities from overseas is changed (a) temporarily and (b) permanently; and if she will make a statement. [131715]

Ms Harman: I have had discussions with the Secretary of State for Defence about military inquests but decisions about the repatriation of military fatalities are for him. The bodies of service personnel will now arrive at RAF Lyneham which is within the jurisdiction of the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner. It is expected that he will transfer the majority of inquests to the place where the funeral is to be held. I will continue to regularly review progress regarding these inquests.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132207]

Ms Harman: My Department follows the principles of "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety" in respect of hospitality.

These sources are supplemented by DCA internal policy on regularity and propriety forming part of the departmental Finance Manual that applies to all staff. This requires that hospitality be appropriate to the circumstances and states that it is not appropriate for public money to be used for staff functions such as leaving parties.

The only specific reference to alcohol within the policy relates to staff conferences, where it states:

"a modest amount of table wine can be provided with the (conference) meal. However, the amount and frequency should be tightly controlled. The cost of the wine should form part of the consideration of the overall cost of the event".

Beyond this, DCA policy requires that all substantive hospitality given or received by staff be approved in advance by a senior officer with details entered on a hospitality (and gifts) register.

This policy covers all DCA staff, including those in agencies. It excludes Ministers and judges who have their own codes of conduct.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by hiss Department. [132198]

Hilary Benn: DFID's Staff Handbook contains detailed guidance on official entertainment including expenditure on alcohol. Financial control is largely managed through delegation to Heads of Department who are responsible for their respective budgets. Further controls are exercised through sample spot checks of expenditure undertaken by DFID's Accounts Group.

Gaza: Sewers

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has been made of the long-term effects of the sewage situation in Gaza following the flooding of Um Al Nasser on 27 March. [132083]

Hilary Benn: The United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs collates assessments of the sewage flooding in Gaza by members of the international community.

Of 158 houses in the Um Al Nasser village that have been assessed, some 95 need minor repairs, three are in need of major repairs and six houses will have to be completely rehabilitated. The Palestinian Ministry of Health and the World Health Organisation are currently working on an assessment of the long-term health effects of the flooding.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations have been made to the Israeli Government to ensure that access is granted to those involved in the task of building new Gaza sewage plants. [132084]

Hilary Benn: The Palestinian Water Authority (PWA) and the World Bank met with the Government of Israel on 28 March. Following this, the Israeli Government agreed to provide free access to the area, to facilitate the import of necessary equipment, and to provide technicians. The UK has made no representations to the Israeli Government on this issue.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance the UK is offering towards international efforts to build new treatment plants to prevent future sewage floodings in Gaza. [132085]

Hilary Benn: The Palestinian Water Authority (PWA) and the World Bank have been leading a joint donor project to provide more sewerage facilities since 2004. This comprises three phases. Phase One will reduce the risk of imminent flooding into residential areas; Phase Two will create additional capacity through building a larger pumping station; and Phase Three involves building a new treatment plant.

The PWA already has funds available for Phase One, which it aims to complete in June 2007. The World Bank, France, Sweden, Belgium and the European Commission have contributed to Phases Two and Three of this project. The European Commission has contributed around €6 million, of which the UK pays a 17 per cent. share (just over €1 million). The UK is not contributing direct financial assistance to the project. DFID has been encouraging those donors directly involved to move forward as quickly as possible, and will continue to monitor the situation closely.

HIV/AIDS and TB

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of his Department's budget for HIV/AIDS was spent on tuberculosis/HIV collaborative activities in each year between 2003 and 2006. [111209]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has recently introduced a new methodology for monitoring AIDS and HIV expenditure. Bilateral expenditure figures based on this methodology are shown in the following table.

2003-04	205.2
2005-06	315.4

The level of detail available on our central systems does not allow us to systematically capture the amount of expenditure on HIV/TB collaborative activities. However, DFID is able to separately identify spending on communicable disease control, of which spending on TB-related activities is a part. Table 2 shows estimates of DFID's bilateral expenditure, excluding poverty reduction budget support (PRBS), on communicable disease control over the same period. This table only includes directly targeted support and excludes other expenditure which will have an impact on TB such as broader support to strengthen health systems.

2003-04	65.2

DFID recognises that the efforts against HIV and TB are inextricably linked. TB incidence rates have at least doubled in Sub-Saharan Africa in the last 15 years. 50 per cent. of TB deaths are of people living with HIV and AIDS (PLWHA) in Africa (7 per cent. in south East Asia). TB/HIV co-infection is now the central and most worrying feature of the epidemic. The two diseases must be considered together. The biggest challenge to integration in resource limited settings is human resources. TB diagnosis is also difficult in PLWHA, and TB and HIV drug interactions make treatment very complex. New TB diagnostic tools are needed.

DFID is providing support to help countries strengthen their health systems. In Malawi, we are helping with a £100 million emergency programme over six years, part of which aims to double the number of nurses and triple the number of doctors, and retain them through better pay and conditions, with a salary increase of 50 per cent. We are also providing support directly to strengthen national TB programmes: For example, in China, DFID has allocated £28 million over seven years towards reducing tuberculosis morbidity and mortality through an effective and sustainable national TB control programme focused on the poor. This has involved raising case detection and treatment through directly observed treatment short course (DOTS) based services.

In addition DFID funds a variety of multilateral organisations that contribute to programmes targeting both HIV/AIDS and TB. Most notably we have pledged £359 million to date to support the global fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM), as our principal support for the provision of TB drugs.

Iraq: Refugees

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what funding and resources he provided for services for refugees in Iraq in each of the last three years; [132392]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of Iraqi citizens who have left Iraq in each year since 2001; [132393]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of internally displaced people in Iraq. [132394]

Hilary Benn: UN agencies estimate that some 1.9 million Iraqis are currently internally displaced and around 2 million others have fled to neighbouring countries. Statistics broken down by year are unavailable.

We are very concerned about the increase in displacement and rising humanitarian needs resulting from ongoing sectarian violence. DFID continues to support the UN and other humanitarian agencies to assist vulnerable people in Iraq including refugees and Internally Displaced People (IDPs). So far this year, we have contributed £10 million to support humanitarian agencies working in Iraq and the region, such as the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), the UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR), The International Organisation for Migration (IOM) and the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UNOCHA). This takes our overall humanitarian assistance to Iraq to £125 million since 2003.

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to answer the letters of (a) 18 December 2006 and

6) 19 December 2006 from the hon. Member for Northavon, which were transferred to his Department from HM Treasury on 3 January, on the financing of AIDS treatment around the world. [133358]

Mr. Thomas: Our records show that these letters of 18 and 19 December 2006 from the hon. Member for Northavon were not received in DFID. DFID officials have now obtained copies of these letters and a reply has been issued.

Nepal: Overseas Aid

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has any plans to increase its funding for developmental projects in Nepal. [129536]

Mr. Thomas: Last year DFID allocated £30 million for our programme in Nepal. Following the People's Movement which ended a period of the King's autocratic rule and reinstated Parliament, we increased our programme to £37 million for the year. For the new financial year we are increasing it further, to £43 million.

I was able to announce this increase during my recent visit to Nepal. I made it clear that £13 million of the new resources should be allocated to the Nepal Peace Trust Fund, to directly assist with implementation of the peace process. Over and above these increases to our regular budget for Nepal, the UK Government have also agreed to provide at least £23.5 in debt relief until 2015 to help Nepal meet its debt service payments to the World Bank.

Uganda: Overseas Aid

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department is providing assistance to the Ugandan Government to facilitate the maintenance and expansion of safe areas in Northern Uganda. [132377]

Hilary Benn: The peace talks in Juba that have been taking place since July 2006 have resulted in huge improvements in the security situation in northern Uganda. In some areas people are now returning to their homes. In other areas, people are more cautious and still remain in camps. The Government of Uganda and their development partners have agreed that the process of return must be voluntary.

Through our funding to the UN Consolidated Appeal we are helping provide humanitarian assistance both to people still living in displaced camps and those returning home. In the return areas this help includes: the provision of food to bridge the period while crops are being grown; the re-habilitation of water points; support to health services and the provision of protection programmes for women and children.

With resources from the Africa Conflict Prevention Pool, we are also purchasing vehicles and communications equipment for the Uganda Police Force in the north. This is in support of a wider programme that is seeking to reintroduce and strengthen civilian policing both in the camps and the return areas. The absence of civilian police in many part of the north has been identified by communities as a major impediment to better protection, particularly of women and children.

Written Questions

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to reply to Question 111209, on his Department's budget for tuberculosis/HIV collaborative activities, tabled by the hon. Member for St. Ives on 22nd January 2007. [132965]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave today (UIN 111209).

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Public Petitions

23. John Robertson: To ask the Leader of the House what discussions he has had on changes to the House's procedures relating to public petitions. [132700]

Paddy Tipping: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations about public petitions and believes that this House has a valuable role to play in looking at such petitions. The Procedure Committee has been examining the subject and has been taking evidence. I understand the Committee is due to report in the near future.

Members' Allowances

26. Mr. Hands: To ask the Leader of the House what rules are in place to govern hon. Members' new communications allowances. [132703]

Paddy Tipping: Under the terms of the resolution of the House of 28 March, the Communications Allowance is subject to detailed rules and guidance determined by the Members Estimate Committee. A detailed booklet on the "Communications Allowance and the Use of House Stationery", issued by the Department of Finance and Administration and the Department of the Serjeant-at-Arms, was placed on the parliamentary intranet on 30 March. Hard copies of the booklet were posted to each Member last week. Relevant claim forms for the Communications Allowance were also posted on the intranet on 30 March and have been included with the booklet being distributed to Members.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Office. [132197]

Mr. Straw: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons operates under a strict hospitality policy which limits the amount of money that can be spent on alcohol for official purposes.

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how much his Office spent on hospitality in financial year 2006-07. [133262]

Mr. Straw: In 2006-07, the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons spent £5,823.23 on hospitality.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House if he will list the meetings between Ministers from his Office and outside interest groups which took place between 1st January and 31st March. [132438]

Mr. Straw: Ministers from the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons met with representatives of outside interest groups nine times during the period specified. I have set out details of those meetings in the following table. This includes, where appropriate, certain speaking engagements.

Date of Meeting	Outside Interest Group or Body Met
Thursday 15th February 2007	Ahmadiyya Muslim Association UK
Thursday 15th February 2007	Hindu Council UK
Tuesday 20th February 2007	Hansard Society
Wednesday 21st February 2007	New Local Government Network
Thursday 22nd February 2007	Public and Commercial Services Union
Thursday 8th March 2007	Trade Union General Secretaries
Thursday 15th March 2007	Patriotic Union of Kurdistan
Thursday 22nd March 2007	Muslim Council of Britain
Friday 23rd March 2007	Electronic Data System Ltd.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Archaeology

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with English Heritage on the creation of regional depositories of archaeological archives and material from excavations. [132576]

Mr. Lammy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not had any discussions with English Heritage on the creation of regional repositories of archaeological archives and material from excavations, although officials have had some discussion. The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council is the Government's lead advisory body on archives policy.

BBC: Public Appointments

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether Sir Michael Lyons' application for the post of chairman of the BBC Trust was received by the closing date of 31 January. [132971]

Tessa Jowell: I can confirm that Sir Michael Lyons's application for the post of chairman of the BBC Trust was received by the closing date of 31 January.

Departments: Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on hospitality by her Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133267]

Mr. Lammy: The Department's accounts for 2006-07 have not yet been finalised or audited. However, our records show that the Department spent £64,990 on hospitality in 2006-07 as follows:

Official functions	6,188
Hospitality—general	57,101
Hospitality—committees	961
Hospitality—speakers	739

Horserace Totalisator Board

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress her Department is making with the sale of the Tote; and what the timetable is for the sale. [132560]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 19 April 2007]: The Government have received and are currently considering an offer for the Tote from a consortium of racing interests and from the staff and management of the Tote itself.

Museums and Galleries: Government Assistance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much museums received in Government funding in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) each region and (c) each London borough in each of the last five years. [132139]

Mr. Lammy: The Department funds 22 sponsored museums and galleries in England:

Grant in aid for DCMS sponsored museums

	£ million
2002-03	268.35
2003-04	279.90
2004-05	284.85
2005-06	296.87
2006-07	320.14

The Department, through the renaissance in the regions programme, allocates funding to museums and galleries in each English region:

Grant in aid allocations

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	£ million 2006-07
East Midlands	0.33	0.61	1.00	1.24	1.89
East of England	1.04	0.81	1.76	1.57	1.98
London	1.32	0.89	2.11	1.80	2.51
North West	0.97	0.89	1.71	1.86	2.54
South East	1.32	1.16	2.13	2.08	2.88

Grant in aid allocations

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	£ million 2006-07
Yorkshire	0.98	0.84	1.33	1.58	2.02
North East	1.00	1.37	2.97	3.65	4.02
South West	0.88	2.04	3.91	5.54	5.81
West Midlands	0.94	1.97	4.21	5.77	6.10

Notes

1. Renaissance in the regions funding that cannot be directly attributed to a region is excluded from the table.
2. Certain funding allocations included in the table relate to two-year, or three-year periods.

Information on funding of museums within each London borough is not held centrally.

National Lottery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what proportion of Lottery money was spent in the areas of (a) health and (b) education in each of the last five years; [132554]

(2) what proportion of Lottery money she expects to be spent in the areas of (a) health and (b) education in each of the next two years. [132555]

Mr. Caborn: The health, education, environment and charitable purposes good cause is a broad one. Big lottery fund programmes and grants often cover two or more of these areas and we do not plan or report on the amount spent on each one separately.

The amounts raised by the national lottery for distribution by the big lottery fund and its predecessors in each of the last five completed financial years, and the amounts that may be raised in each of the next two years according to Department's current projections, are given in the following table. The figures include both income generated by the Lottery operator, Camelot, and income from investment of the National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) balance. Subject to the approval of Parliament, funds will be transferred from the NLDF to the Olympic lottery distribution fund after January 2009 and this will reduce the amount available for distribution for this cause.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has held to consider links between Liverpool Capital of Culture and the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [133521]

Mr. Lammy: Officials from this Department are engaged in ongoing discussions with both the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games and the Liverpool Culture Company to consider links between Liverpool Capital of Culture and the 2012 Games.

Parks Fund

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made by the National Lottery Heritage Fund team in assessing the Parks Fund application submitted by the hon. Member for Castle Point; and when she expects a decision will be made. [132558]

Mr. Lammy: The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) has received no formal application from the hon. Member for Castle Point. A pre-application form was submitted on 7 June 2006 after an initial meeting with the HLFs' regional manager for the east of England.

On 14 June 2006, HLF wrote advising that it would discuss possibilities for park development with the potential applicants.

Two subsequent meetings took place: on 5 October 2006 with the hon. Member for Castle Point, the chief executive of Castle Point borough council, HLF's regional committee chair and the regional manager, and on 4 December 2006 between HLF's development team and council officials, where the possible application was discussed.

To date no application has been received by HLF.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 201W, on Armed Forces: deployment, if he will place a copy of the review documents in the Library. [131724]

Mr. Ingram: In my answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 201W, I explained that the examination of administrative procedures for the collection and dissemination of data, and the improvements made to this, did not take the form of a formal review. As such there are no review documents available to be placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Life Insurance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what subsidy his Department provides to assist paying the premium for life insurance for the most dangerous specialist roles in the armed forces. [131082]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Ministry of Defence's Service Risks Insurance Premiums Refunds (SRIPs) scheme contributes towards the extra life insurance premiums incurred by personnel in certain high risk trades, such as aircrew, and those serving on operations both overseas and within the UK. The compensation available is 90 per cent. of the extra premium up to a total sum assured. The latter is increased every year in line with Service pay and is currently £157,000.

Chemical Weapons: Research

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department retains stocks of chemical weapon agents for prophylactic research purposes. [131200]

Mr. Ingram: Small stocks of toxic chemical agents are held for research, medical and protective purposes not prohibited by the Chemical Weapons Convention. Their storage is declared and subject to regular inspection.

Defence Equipment

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) average and (b) total cost to his Department was of each type of (i) personal clothing, (ii) personal role radio, (iii) personal armour and (iv) personal load carrying equipment used by the armed forces as standard issue equipment in each year since 1995; from which company each type of each piece of equipment was purchased in each year; and if he will make a statement. [132160]

Mr. Ingram: Since 1995, there have been significant improvements in each of these areas. We have introduced nearly 40 items of new and improved personal clothing, and we have developed a range of new body armour for troops on operations, which has transformed the level of protection available to our personnel.

The specific information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I am however able to provide the following details:

The approximate cost of a set of temperate combat clothing is £760 and the approximate cost of a set of desert operations combat clothing is £2,200. The majority of the items within this clothing range are supplied under a prime contract with Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd.

The approximate cost of body (personal) armour is £1,000 for a set of Osprey, £750 for Kestrel and £250 for Enhanced Combat Body Armour. The majority of the body armour components are supplied by NP Aerospace Ltd., Aegis Engineering Ltd., Seyntex NV and CQC Ltd.

The approximate cost of a set of personal load carriage equipment is £150, some of which is also supplied by Seyntex NV.

The Personal Role Radios (PRRs) are supplied by Selex Communications. They have provided 57,000 PRRs to the UK armed forces since they came into service in 2001. PRRs cost £363 for a single switch version, and £393 for a double switch version, and since 2001 a total of £22.4 million has been spent on them.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by his Department on buying, operating and supporting (a) all commercial software products and (b) software products produced by Microsoft in each of the last three years. [112599]

Mr. Ingram: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Iraq: Hospitals

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to assist hospitals in Iraq to secure access to adequate equipment and medications. [131979]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

DFID has given most of its assistance to the Iraqi health sector through financial contributions to international organisations that have particular expertise in health. For example, we have provided £70 million to the UN and World Bank trust funds for Iraq. At present, the trust funds are spending over $120 million to repair hospitals and train staff. There has been progress since 2003, with more than 1,000 health care facilities rehabilitated or equipped, and more than 6,000 health care workers trained.

We have recently contributed £7 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) to support protection and emergency assistance activities in Iraq. This includes provision of urgently needed medical supplies, such as war wounded kits to hospitals dealing with mass casualties, improving health facilities, including physical rehabilitation and training for staff, restoring and upgrading water and sanitation infrastructure and organising training for health professions and engineers.

Much of our work aims to support the Iraqi Government spend its considerable oil wealth more effectively for the benefit of the Iraqi people. We are building the capacity of central Government institutions to help ensure that finances are well managed and get to provincial authorities who can then buy drugs, fund hospitals and deliver services.

Iraq: Peace-Keeping Operations

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether a date has been set for replacing all soft-top Land Rovers with Mastiff vehicles in Iraq and Afghanistan. [132096]

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what plans he has to replace Snatch Land Rovers; what requirements he has specified for any replacement; and what the timescale is for the replacement process; [131981]

(2) what plans he has to replace Snatch Land Rovers; what requirements he has specified for a replacement vehicle; and what the timescale is for the replacement process. [130250]

Des Browne: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave on 29 January 2007, Official Report, column 29W, to the hon. Member for Leominster (Bill Wiggin) and to my written ministerial statement on 24 July 2006, Official Report, columns 74-76WS.

Parachute Regiment: Training

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on provision for Parachute Regiment training jumps to take place in the period up to 2012; and what the basis of the policy is. [129540]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 22 January 2007, Official Report, column 1555W, to the hon. Member for Kettering (Mr. Hollobone). Policy on Parachute Regiment training jumps will continue to be based on current practice. Existing parachute training procedures will continue, and will meet our ongoing requirements from within available resources.

In terms of parachute training facilities and future resources I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 1944W, to the hon. Member for Leominster (Bill Wiggin).

NORTHERN IRELAND

A12: Belfast

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vehicles were damaged by missiles thrown at vehicles on the A12 Belfast Westlink in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [132239]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI has provided the following information relating to vehicles which were damaged by missiles on the A12 Belfast Westlink.

	2006	2007[1]
Criminal damage (vehicle)	101	44
Attacks on buses	5	3
Attacks on emergency services vehicles	4	3
Vehicles damaged by youths causing annoyance[2]	74	16
Vehicles damaged in disturbances (minor)[3]	10	0

[2] This relates to a situation where an initial report of youths having damaged vehicles was made but which was not confirmed, i.e. the person reporting does not stop at the scene and does not make any further contact with police to confirm that damage has been caused. Where confirmation is available, the incident is listed as criminal damage.
[3] The above is similar to reports of vehicles damaged by youths causing annoyance, however it is felt that the incidents involved adult participation.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland were treated for alcohol-only misuse in the last 12 months. [133233]

Paul Goggins: This information is not available in the form requested.

However, information relating to alcohol-only misuse is available from the first ever Census of Drug and Alcohol Treatment Services conducted in March 2005 by The Department of Health, Social Services, and Public Safety (DHSSPS). It should be noted that a census represents a 'snap-shot' of a particular point in time and so cannot be used to derive numbers in treatment over the course of a year.

On 1 March 2005 there were 3,074 individuals receiving treatment in Northern Ireland for alcohol-only misuse in both statutory and non-statutory services.

Cancer

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the survival rate for each type of cancer was in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years; and what steps he is taking to improve the cancer survival rate. [133126]

Paul Goggins: On 9 November 2006 my Department published a cancer control programme for Northern Ireland. This plan sets out recommendations and actions for the further strengthening of cancer services and the setting of standards for the delivery of those services. I am confident that this programme of work has the potential to secure further improvements in cancer survival rates in Northern Ireland. In addition, the Northern Ireland Cancer Network has established a number of regional groups which review existing standards and guidelines for the treatment of specific cancers. These groups are currently developing regionally agreed standards of care and these too will contribute strongly to the improvement in cancer survival we all wish to see.

The latest five-year relative survival rates for major cancers are those for patients diagnosed in 1996-99. These are set out in the following table:

Cancer site	Sex	Five-year relative survival	95 per cent. confidence interval
Oesophagus	Male	12.7	(8.9, 17.2)
	Female	13.0	(8.4, 18.6)
Stomach	Male	16.6	(13.3, 20.2)
	Female	16.5	(12.6, 20.9)
Colon	Male	55.8	(51.9, 59.5)
	Female	54.0	(50.5, 57.4)
Rectum	Male	52.2	(47.1, 57.1)
	Female	51.1	(45.3, 56.5)
Lung	Male	9.5	(8.0, 11.0)
	Female	10.2	(8.4, 12.2)
Melanoma	Male	89.5	(82.4, 93.8)
	Female	96.3	(91.7, 98.3)
Breast	Female	81.5	(79.8, 83.1)
Cervix	Female	71.9	(65.9, 77.0)
Uterus	Female	75.1	(69.5, 79.9)
Ovary	Female	45.1	(40.8, 49.3)
Prostate	Male	62.9	(59.4, 66.3)
Kidney	Male	54.7	(47.6, 61.1)
	Female	49.5	(42.3, 56.3)
Bladder	Male	68.3	(62.3, 73.6)
	Female	51.9	(44.2, 59.0)
Brain	Male	12.6	(8.4, 17.8)
	Female	18.9	(12.9, 25.9)
Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma	Male	49.9	(44.3, 55.1)
	Female	50.9	(45.3, 56.2)
Leukaemia	Male	28.3	(22.2, 34.8)
	Female	31.4	(24.4, 38.6)

Notes:
1. The 95 per cent. confidence interval is the range of values within which there is a 95 per cent. probability of finding the true value for the survival rate.
2. Relative survival is the ratio of the observed survival divided by the survival that the patients would have experienced if they had the same probability of dying as the general population having the same age.
3. Figures supplied by the Northern Ireland Cancer Registry.

Children: Day Care

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many child care places there were in each Northern Ireland parliamentary constituency in each of the last six years. [133062]

Paul Goggins: Information on child care places is not collected according to parliamentary constituency in Northern Ireland. The information is, however, available according to the old health and social services trust areas, and is shown in the following table in respect of the number of registered places at 31 March, 2001 to 2006.

	Child care places available at 31 March[1]
Health and social services trust	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

Northern Ireland total	48,233	48,555	49,786	49,456	49,143	46,558

[1] The information detailed in this table relates to registered child care places in respect of day nurseries, child minders, play groups, out of school clubs and holiday schemes.

Departments: Billing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much discount was lost by each department in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years as a result of failure to pay invoices within the stipulated time period. [132280]

Mr. Hanson: Four Northern Ireland Government Departments (Environment, Enterprise Trade and Investment, Regional Development and Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister) and the Northern Ireland Office have not lost any discount due to late payments in each of the last three years. The remainder do not hold this information and it could be ascertained only at disproportionate costs.

Domestic Rates

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) informal and (b) formal capital value reviews have been carried out in each Valuation and Lands district since the introduction of the new domestic rating arrangements in Northern Ireland; and how many of those reviews in each district resulted in the capital value being (i) reduced and (ii) increased. [133064]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is contained in the following table:

Number of informal and formal reviews completed up to 15 April 2007

VLA district	Reviewed	Increased	Decreased	No change
Informal review cases completed (pre 31 March 2007)

Gun Sports

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) name and (b) contact details are of each registered (i) shooting club and (ii) black powder shooting club in the North Down/Ards area. [133127]

Paul Goggins: There are eight registered shooting clubs with addresses in the North Down and Ards areas, three of which have black powder authorization. I will write to the hon. Lady directly to provide her with the details of these clubs.

Hospitals: Hygiene

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the use of hand gels by (a) members of hospital staff and (b) visitors to hospitals in Northern Ireland for the purpose of infection control. [132429]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health Social Services and Public Safety has itself made no assessment of the effectiveness, in infection control terms, of the use of hand gels by hospital staff or visitors. The World Health Organisation (WHO) has established an evidence base for the value of the use of hand sanitizers and their role in infection control. WHO recommends the use of "an alcohol-based hand rub for routine hand antisepsis".

Hospital trusts are obliged under the Department's Controls Assurance Standards to ensure there is a managed environment, which minimises the risk of infection to patients, staff and visitors and that there is a hand hygiene policy in place which reflects good practice principles. They are free to choose from a range of infection control measures to bring this about. The Department's action plan for the prevention and control of health care-associated infections published in March 2006 recommended trusts run a high profile hand hygiene/clean care campaign aimed at health care staff, patients, the public, and visitors. £400,000 of funding was provided for that purpose in the financial year 2006-07.

Hostels

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people resident in Housing Executive hostels between April 2006 and the end of March 2007 were in employment, including those who left such accommodation during that period; how much revenue was generated in rent and charges from those residents; and how many of those residents left employment and received full housing benefit. [133318]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not readily available. Employment status has no bearing on the assessment of homelessness or the type of assistance provided.

During the period, the Housing Executive placed 1,202 households in all available temporary accommodation. Of those, 462 were placed in Housing Executive accommodation.

Of the 1,202 households, 1,051 (87 per cent.) received full housing benefit and 151 (13 per cent.) received partial housing benefit. A total of 159 received earned income (of which 97 received full housing benefit).

During the period, a total of £2.2 million was generated in rental and service charges for Housing Executive homeless hostels.

Mentally Ill: Young People

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of (a) male and (b) female persons under 18 years of age who are being detained in Northern Ireland for the purposes of mental health treatment are detained with adults. [133128]

Paul Goggins: The percentage of patients being detained for the purposes of mental health treatment in an adult mental health ward, who are under 18 years of age as at 31 March 2007 is (a) 1.5 per cent. for males (four patients) and (b) 0 per cent. for female persons.

Notes:

1. Figures are as at 31 March 2007.
2. Figures only include those who had not reached their 18th birthday by 31 March 2007.

HSS Trusts

Midwives: Downpatrick

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made towards the provision of a community midwifery unit in Downpatrick. [133336]

Paul Goggins: In March 2005 the Eastern Health and Social Services Board identified Down Lisburn Trust as the preferred provider to prepare an Outline Business Case for a Community Midwifery Unit which would be located in Downpatrick.

The Business Case was first submitted in November 2005 and the Department has engaged with both the Board and the former Trust to develop and refine the proposal. Discussions are now continuing with the new South Eastern Trust on a small number of outstanding issues. Once these issues are resolved the Department will be in a position to consider approval of the Business Case.

Northern Ireland Housing Executive: Rents

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much Northern Ireland Housing Executive unpaid rent was recovered in each district in the last 12 months. [132428]

Mr. Hanson: The following table details unpaid rent recovered in each district during 2006-07.

Obesity: Children

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children in each health board area in Northern Ireland were registered as obese in each of the last six years; and what steps he is taking to reduce such figures. [133067]

Paul Goggins: The following table illustrates the prevalence of obesity among Primary One (PI) pupils for the periods covering 1997-98 to 2005-06.

Percentage of P1 children who are obese

Northern Ireland—male and female	1997-98	1999-2000	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Northern Board	4.0	4.6	5.7	5.0	5.0	5.0
Southern Board	4.1	5.6	6.1	6.6	5.9	6.0
Eastern Board	3.2	4.0	4.8	5.7	5.1	5.0
Western Board	4.0	5.6	6.1	5.6	6.1	5.5
NI	3.8	4.8	5.6	5.7	5.5	5.2

Notes:

1. This information is extracted from the Child Health System which is maintained by the four NI health boards.
2. Obesity is defined using the International Obesity Task Force (IOTF) Classification of childhood obesity.
3. The data is not based on a sample survey but is based on the total number of P1 pupils fulfilling the valid age criteria who had their height and weight recorded.

Until the recent publication of the NI Health and Social Wellbeing Survey 2005-06 (NIHSWB) the Child Health System data had been the only source of childhood obesity information within NI. Validated figures, which are shown in the following table, are now available from the NIHSWB survey 2005-06 concerning estimates for overweight and obese children in Northern Ireland by health board.

Percentage of NI children who are obese (aged two to 10)—NIHSWB 2005-06

	Percentage
Northern Board	5
Southern Board	15
Eastern Board	9
NI	10

Note:
Based on International Obesity Task Force approach (IOTF)

The results from the survey vary markedly from the PI study partly because the data is based on low 'base' numbers of participants within each health board . It should be also noted that the differences between the boards are not statistically significant and that because these figures have been obtained from a sample survey, that they are estimates and are subject to some degree of sampling error.

At a regional level the report of the Fit Futures taskforce on tackling obesity in children and young people was published in March 2006. The report included over 70 recommendations designed to deliver the Public Service Agreement target to stop the increase in levels of obesity in children by 2010. Responsibility for this target is shared by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, the Department of Education and the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

A Governmental response to the report including a cross-departmental implementation plan has been developed and issued for consultation. Following this a final plan will be issued shortly.

Locally the four Health and Social Services Boards have been asked to develop local integrated plans to tackle the issue of childhood obesity. These plans should address specific priorities set out in the original Fit Futures report, including enhanced training for front line staff, additional support for children in care, training to improve cooking skills in low income families, and initiatives to tackle specific health and social inequities.

Pension Credit

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of pensioners in Northern Ireland (a) are eligible for pension tax credit and (b) are in receipt of pension tax credit; what steps are being taken to increase the take-up rate of pension tax credit in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [133109]

Mr. Hanson: It is not possible to provide estimates of pensioners in Northern Ireland who are eligible for pension credit.

The number of older people in receipt of pension credit in Northern Ireland is 116,500.

Benefit uptake

The Social Security Agency (SSA) promotes the range of benefits for pensioners through pension tele-centres in Belfast and Londonderry, the internet, and information which is available in our Jobs and Benefit Offices/Social Security offices. The agency also has a network of outreach officers who provide a home visiting service.

Benefit uptake is a key priority for the Social Security Agency which places an emphasis on vulnerable customers, particularly pensioners. Since 2005 the agency has undertaken a range of activities to increase benefit uptake including improvements to linkages between state pension and pension credit and a one-off housing benefit exercise to support those in receipt of pension credit to take-up their potential entitlement to this additional benefit (23,743 customers).

Interim results from this year's benefit uptake programme indicates that an additional £2.3 million in benefit has been paid to pensioners; of this, £0.75 million was specific to pension credit.

Approximately 20,000 pensioners have also been offered a free comprehensive assessment by the independent advice sector to ensure that they are receiving their full entitlement to all benefits.

The agency is currently developing its 2007-08 benefit uptake programme with the intention of targeting vulnerable customers, including pensioners, to ensure they are receiving their full entitlement to benefits.

Raymond McCord Jr

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the progress made in responding to the Police Ombudsman's report into the murder of Raymond McCord Junior. [133045]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable and the Historical Enquiries Team are making good progress in relation to implementing the recommendations of the Police Ombudsman's report into the murder of Raymond McCord Junior. The Northern Ireland Policing Board, which has responsibility for reviewing the PSNI response to the recommendations, has also been informed of this early progress.

Travelling People

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) authorised and (b) unauthorised Traveller accommodation sites there were in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [133065]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Authorised Traveller accommodation sites:

The information is not available in the format requested. The Housing (Northern Ireland) Order 2003 transferred the responsibility for the provision and management of Traveller sites from councils to the Housing Executive from 1 December 2003. The Housing Executive currently has ownership of a total of six serviced sites, a further two transit sites and two emergency sites in Northern Ireland. In addition arrangements for Housing Executive to provide services to Travellers on co-operated sites have also been agreed.

(b) Unauthorised Traveller accommodation sites:

The information is not available for the period requested. The Unauthorised Encampments Order 2005 was enacted 19 July 2006. Since then there have been 31 reports of unauthorised encampments in Northern Ireland.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent estimate he has made of the size of the Traveller population in Northern Ireland. [133123]

Mr. Hanson: The Travellers Needs Assessment survey completed in August 2002 identified 452 Traveller households. Of these 316 households responded to the survey, identifying a total of 1,228 individuals.

In the NI census 2001, 1,650 individuals identified themselves as Travellers—representing 0.1 per cent. of the total population. A further needs assessment is programmed to be carried out in October/November 2007.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Welfare: Legislation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures he has put in place to inform the public of the changes involved in animal welfare legislation. [132593]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Animal Welfare Act was launched on 4 April at the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animal's (RSPCA) Harmsworth Memorial Animal Hospital, where the BBC series 'Animal Hospital' is filmed.

Further media interviews were given by Ministers and regional radio interviews were undertaken by veterinarian Dr. Scott Miller on behalf of DEFRA on the morning of the launch.

The Department's publicity campaign included posters and leaflets. Posters were sent to pet shops and veterinary surgeries. Advertisements were also placed in a number of magazines in the run-up to the launch. All activity signposted the public to the DEFRA website which contains comprehensive information on the Act. Our external campaign partners, which include Nestle Purina and Masterfoods, provided links to the DEFRA website on their consumer websites. In addition, there were a series of training events on the Act, held around the country. These were attended by officials from local authorities, Animal Health and the RSPCA.

Avian Influenza

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the Food Standards Agency on the decision not to proceed with legal proceedings against Bernard Matthews in relation to the outbreak of H5N1 at the Holton Plant; what was discussed; and if he will make a statement. [132527]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA has regular discussions with the Food Standards Agency on a range of issues. However, the decision whether or not to prosecute Bernard Matthews was solely a matter for the FSA to investigate and its legal services to advise on. The FSA has carefully scrutinised and considered the evidence in this case and concluded there is insufficient evidence to provide a realistic prospect of conviction.

Beaches: Standards

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what monitoring his Department carries out to ensure that coastal bathing waters are clean. [132115]

Ian Pearson: Monitoring of coastal bathing waters is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the 1976 European Bathing Water Directive. The parameters to be monitored are listed in the annex of the directive, which can be found on the DEFRA website.

In 2006, a record 99.6 per cent. of coastal bathing waters in the UK met the mandatory standard.

Birds

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on the migrating British bird population of the hunting and shooting policies of EU member states. [131854]

Barry Gardiner: There have been no recent assessments of the effects of hunting and shooting policies in EU member states on populations of migratory birds in Britain. Outside of Britain, assigning bird mortality to different causes is not currently possible because of a lack of data.

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of recent trends in bird populations in the UK. [132114]

Barry Gardiner: Following an increase in the 1990s, the overall indicator of 113 breeding bird populations in the United Kingdom is nearly 10 per cent. higher than it was in 1970.

Populations of UK farmland birds are about 60 per cent. of their 1970 level but have remained fairly stable since the early 1990s. The farmland bird index for England, which is used to measure progress against DEFRA's Public Service Agreement target, gives a similar picture, suggesting that the decline in farmland bird populations has now been halted but not reversed.

Birds: Conservation

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with other EU states on their policies affecting the population of migrating birds; [131852]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on negotiations with EU member states on policies which affect the migration of birds across Europe. [131853]

Barry Gardiner: Council Directive 79/409/EEC on the Conservation of Wild Birds ("the Birds Directive") provides a common framework for the conservation of naturally occurring species of wild birds and their habitats throughout the European Union.

Discussions on policies which affect the populations of migratory birds across Europe are usually held with other European member states at ORNIS Committee meetings (the Committee for the adaptation to technical and scientific progress of the Birds Directive). The ORNIS Committee consists of officials from each European member state. My Department is the lead for the UK Government for matters pertaining to the Birds Directive and it carries out a wide range of discussions with other Government Departments and devolved Administrations on relevant issues.

The European Commission, in cooperation with member states, has produced a number of Community Management Plans for huntable species considered to have an unfavourable conservation status. The plans typically aim to address the most urgent issues to halt the decline of populations in the EU. The goal of the plans is to restore species back to favourable conservation status. It is the responsibility of the relevant authorities in each member state to put into effect the activities listed in the plan.

Carbon Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of carbon dioxide emissions were attributable to (a) electricity generation, (b) domestic aviation, (c) international aviation and (d) road transport in (i) 1990, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006. [131074]

Ian Pearson: The percentage contributions of electricity generation, domestic aviation, and road transport to UK carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions in 1990 and 2005 (the latest year for which figures are available) are shown in the following table. Under internationally agreed rules for reporting to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, emissions from international aviation are recorded as memorandum items in the national greenhouse gas inventories, but are not included in the national totals.

CO_2 emissions as a percentage of UK total

	Public electricity and heat production	Domestic aviation	Road transport
1990	34.5	0.2	18.5
2005	31.1	0.4	21.6

If international aviation were included in the total UK emissions, CO_2 from this source would contribute 2.6 per cent. in 1990 and 5.9 per cent. in 2005.

Common Fisheries Policy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what plans he has to raise the issue of (a) the treatment of the UK under the Common Fisheries Policy and (b) compliance with fishing quotas by other nations at the next Agriculture and Fisheries Council meeting; and if he will make a statement; [133018]

(2) what information he has received from the European Commission on (a) levels of over-fishing of bluefin tuna by French vessels and (b) the penalties imposed on France by the European Commission in respect of such over-fishing; and if he will make a statement. [133463]

Mr. Bradshaw: We understand that the level of bluefin tuna over-fishing declared by France in 2005 was 2,572 tons (an over-fish of 38 per cent.). Figures for 2006 catches have yet to be finalised, however current data shows over-fishing of 1,836 tons (27 per cent.). At present, no penalties have been proposed by the Commission.

The Government share the concerns that the hon. Member is raising. It would be inconsistent for the European Commission to apply the rules on payback to the UK for its declared over-fishing of mackerel and herring, but not to do so on the over-fishing of bluefin tuna declared by France.

I raised this issue at the Agricultural and Fisheries Council on 18 April. It will be raised again at the next Fisheries Council Meeting in May. I have also written to the Fisheries Commissioner explaining my dissatisfaction with the approach being taken. We await a response from the Commission.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the European Commission on UK fishing rights; and if he will make a statement. [133019]

Mr. Bradshaw: The European Commission published a paper in February 2007 looking at how member states allocate and manage access and rights to fishery resources. An Explanatory Memorandum on this topic has been considered by the European Scrutiny committee, and the UK Government will be taking an active role in this discussion as it progresses.

The issues addressed are already being considered as part of the UK's Quota Management Change Programme. Public consultation on this topic is planned for later in the year. Further discussions on the European Commission's paper will also be informed by the findings of the Programme.

Darwin Initiative: Latin America

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of projects funded by the Darwin Initiative Fund in Latin America. [132431]

Barry Gardiner: Since the launch of the Darwin Initiative in 1992, around 100 projects have been funded in Latin America. All of these projects were required to submit an annual report for each year of the project, and a final report upon completion. These reports are all assessed by independent expert reviewers to ensure that the projects are (and have been) effective in implementing what they set out to do.

We have also conducted five Mid-Term Reviews in Latin America. These involve an expert reviewer visiting projects to carry out an in-depth review. The review process serves to highlight areas where the projects could improve, as well as examples of good practice that could be used to help other current and future Darwin Initiative projects.

In December 2005, we conducted an evaluation of four closed Darwin Initiative projects in Peru. The report confirmed that the overall legacy and sustainability impacts from all the projects could be clearly demonstrated.

In December 2006, we conducted an evaluation of five closed Darwin Initiative projects in the Galapagos Islands, Ecuador. This review showed that all the projects met their original objectives and achieved positive outcomes and impacts. In particular success was achieved in three key areas; investing in people, mutual learning and technology transfer, networking and long-term relationship development.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the creation of a Department of Energy and the Environment; and if he will make a statement. [132109]

Ian Pearson: None.

Fish

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the estimated stocks of sea bass in British coastal waters were in each of the last 10 years; [132263]

(2) what measures are in place to preserve sea bass stocks; what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the monitoring of those measures; and if he will make a statement. [132264]

Mr. Bradshaw: Estimates of stocks of sea bass in each of the last 10 years are not available. However, scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea suggests that the bass stock appears to be fished sustainably. A recent study assessing bass stocks in British coastal waters by the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science suggests that the biomass of the adult population has approximately doubled between 1995 and 2004. This is supported by catches in the UK fishery, which have increased from 1,234 to 2,211 tonnes over the same period.

Current European Union legislation protects sea bass by specifying a minimum landing size (MLS) of 36 centimetres (cm). Below this size, bass cannot be landed and corresponding mesh sizes must be used for both fixed and trawl gear when bass is targeted. Some Sea Fisheries Committees (SFCs) have introduced a higher MLS of 37.5 cm which applies within the relevant district. The UK has also designated 37 specified areas in which bass fishing from a boat is prohibited. DEFRA is also currently considering the introduction in England of an increased MLS of 40 cm.

The Marine and Fisheries Agency, SFCs and, in some estuaries, the Environment Agency enforce EU and national regulations on bass. Clear infringements of the regulations are taken very seriously and prosecuted under law. All inspections are recorded and offences logged, and this information is used in prioritising future inspections.

Flood Control

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on (a) hard engineering flood defences and (b) soft engineering flood defences as a percentage of total flood defence spending in each of the last 10 years. [132320]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency does not differentiate between soft and hard engineering in assessing expenditure. The agency uses the most appropriate environmentally acceptable, financially viable and technically feasible solutions based on the conditions at the specific location.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of soft engineering methods for flood management; and if he will make a statement. [132321]

Ian Pearson: The Government encourage the flood risk management operating authorities, primarily the Environment Agency (EA), to consider various options when considering solutions to flood risk and to work with natural processes wherever possible. The optimum solution for a particular location will depend on the individual circumstances, for example, the use of beaches to absorb wave energy is a widely used "soft" technique.

DEFRA is participating in a pan-European research programme under which seven international consortia of researchers are investigating the effectiveness of various non-structural approaches to flood risk as part of the CRUE Eranet research co-ordination programme. These projects will report in 2008.

The EA has carried out a great deal of work on the effectiveness of soft engineering methods, especially on the key issue of sustainability. Beaches are dynamic and will respond naturally to changing conditions, including sea level rise, whereas a "hard" sea wall is a rigid structure which can often accelerate problems including erosion over a period of time. In addition to their sea defence function, soft engineering solutions will also often provide amenity, landscape and nature conservation benefits.

Furs: Domestic Animals

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what progress the Government have made in tackling the trade in fur from domestic animals since 1997; [132912]

(2) what further steps the Government are considering in tackling the trade in fur from domestic animals. [132913]

Mr. Bradshaw: Farming any animal solely or primarily for its fur was banned in England and Wales by the Fur Farming (Prohibition) Act 2000. There are no longer any registered fur farmers operating in the UK.

Additionally, in response to public concerns about the trade in cat and dog fur, the European Commission (EC) has proposed a new regulation to ban trade in these products. There have been working group meetings to discuss the EC's proposal, which Germany has chaired as current EU presidency.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Potatoes

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he make it his policy to suspend the proposed trials of genetically modified potatoes; [131076]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with his Dutch counterpart on trials of genetically modified potatoes. [131077]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA has clarified the background to this decision with the Dutch authorities. In the light of this, and our own analysis, we are clear that the Dutch court ruling does not have direct bearing on the decision we have already made to approve a GM potato trial in Cambridgeshire. We are also confident that it does not have a bearing on the decision we are due to take on a proposed trial site in east Yorkshire as part of the same research programme. We are confident that appropriate risk assessment procedures are being followed in relation to the trials in England, consistent with the specific requirements of our legislation.

Gyrodactylus Salaris

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress of (a) "Estimating transmission parameters of Gyrodactylus: a key requirement for contingency planning" and (b) Development of a risk evaluation system for the establishment of Gyrodactylus salaris in English and Welsh river systems research projects. [128907]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA is funding work on (a) and (b) through projects already under way at the University of Stirling and through work being carried out by scientists at the Cefas Laboratory in Weymouth. Good progress is being made on both projects. Work to construct a database characterising river sites throughout England and Wales (carried out in close co-operation with the Environment Agency) is well advanced. To date, information has been compiled on fish populations from over 8,000 sites, data on water quality from 120,000 sites and data on gyrodactylids from 350 sites. The next phase, beginning shortly, will be to develop a risk evaluation system for the establishment of Gyrodactylus salaris (Gs) based on data of high risk sites including sites with the potential to spread disease to wild populations.

Research into Gs on these specific matters and related projects is being co-ordinated with scientists in other departments and the devolved Administrations.

Land Drainage: Churches

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether he is able to intervene to assist churches facing increased charges for surface water drainage; [132254]

(2) if he will discuss with Ofwat the impact of Northumbria Water's decision to install water meters in some churches. [132255]

Ian Pearson: In 2003, Ofwat carried out a review of Surface Water Drainage charges for non-household customers. This recommended a move from charging based on rateable values towards a site-area method. Ofwat considers that charging by site-area is the fairest method: it ensures that individual customers pay for the load which they impose on the drainage system.

Every year each water company proposes a charging scheme which Ofwat must approve. Non-household customers should pay for their water on the basis of the company's charges scheme, or on the basis of a specific agreement between the customer and the company.

My right hon. friend the Secretary of State issued guidance in 2000 on matters that Ofwat must have regard to when exercising its power to approve charges schemes. This explains that it is inappropriate to charge all non-household customers as if they were businesses. If premises such as churches are charged on the same basis as the other non-household users, they can face disproportionately high costs. Such premises should be able to benefit from tariffs which reflect their relatively small demand on the water system.

Litter

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to improve the performance of local authorities in removing litter from rural roads. [131230]

Mr. Bradshaw: Local authorities (LAs) have a duty to clear litter from public streets and other highways, including rural roads, and also have a range of enforcement powers to ensure areas remain clean. DEFRA is already taking steps to ensure that LAs comply with this duty and make full and effective use of their amended powers under the Environmental Protection Act 1990.

DEFRA produced guidance for LAs covering the legislation on litter and refuse to coincide with the commencement of measures in the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005. This was distributed to all LAs and is available from DEFRA's website. It is complemented by a 'Knowledge Bank' on litter, developed in partnership with Environmental Campaigns (ENCAMS), which offers further practical information for LAs as well as case studies on litter management.

DEFRA also published a revised code of practice on litter and refuse in April 2006. This provides statutory, practical guidance on the litter duty, and the standards that must be met by bodies responsible for discharging that duty. The code places an emphasis on the consistent and appropriate management of land to keep it clear of litter. It also sets recovery times for restoring local environmental standards for litter, refuse and detritus as a last resort, should they fall to an unacceptable level.

In addition, all LAs submit data on the cleanliness of their areas to central Government on an annual basis through Best Value Performance Indicator 199a. Members of the public can also use an interactive website www.bvpi.gov.uk to check the performance of any authority. Data are also collected through the Local Environmental Quality Survey of England run by ENCAMS. Collection of data allows Government to monitor performance and offer additional support and guidance to LAs where it is needed.

Packaging

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of whether the targets set by supermarkets and food producers under the Courtauld Commitment have been met. [131732]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 16 April 2007]: 13 major retailers (representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector) signed up to the Courtauld Commitment in 2005. They agreed to work with the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) to design out packaging waste growth by 2008, deliver absolute reductions in packaging waste by 2010 and identify ways to tackle the problem of food waste.

Three major brands also signed the Commitment at the 'One Year On' event I chaired in November last year. At that event, WRAP reported that a great deal of preparatory progress had been made since the voluntary agreement was signed. However, more still needed to be done in order to achieve the required reductions in packaging.

Each signatory to the Commitment has been developing its own programme of work with WRAP to reduce packaging and packaging waste. A number of retailers have now made announcements setting their own specific performance targets on waste and other environmental issues.

WRAP is currently collating up-to-date information on achievements arising from the Commitment against its current business plan targets. These results will be included in WRAP's 2006-07 achievements report due later this year.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the report on handling waste from the decommissioning of nuclear establishments; and what the reasons are for the delay in its publication. [132806]

Ian Pearson: On 25 October 2006, the Secretary of State for DEFRA announced the Government response to the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management's (CoRWM) recommendations on the best options for the long-term management of the UK's higher activity radioactive waste. The announcement accepted CoRWM's recommendation on geological disposal and its recommendations for safe and secure interim storage.

The UK Government and devolved Administrations are now working to prepare a public consultation document on the Government's framework for the implementation of geological disposal. Our aim is to publish this in the summer, and it will include proposals for a voluntarist/partnership approach to site selection, and an outline geological disposal delivery programme.

The UK policy for managing solid low-level radioactive waste (LLW) was announced on 26 March 2007. The new policy puts providing public safety at the forefront of dealing with LLW. It sets out a more flexible and pragmatic approach to its management, stressing the need to minimise the amount of waste created and recognising the need to involve the public in developing and authorising LLW management plans.

Copies of our response to CoRWM and the UK policy for managing LLW can be found in the Libraries of the House.

Ritual Slaughter

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of meat prepared according to shechita that is sold without labelling to this effect; [131315]

(2) if his Department will consider introducing mandatory labelling of all meat prepared according to halal and kosher rules. [131316]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 18 April 2007]: DEFRA has made no estimation of the proportion of meat prepared according to shechita that is sold without labelling to this effect.

Compulsory labelling of meat would require action at the European level, and this is not an area where the Government expects to see changes in labelling law in the foreseeable future. However, there is nothing to stop such information being provided voluntarily.

State Veterinary Service

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) marketing and (b) changes to stationery from the change of name of the State Veterinary Service to Animal Health. [132297]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The information is as follows.

(a) There is no actual cost of marketing as the change to Animal Health has been aligned with the organisation's new corporate brochure which is produced annually and sent to stakeholders, as well as the production of the corporate plan and business plan which have to be produced annually. These have therefore been produced using the new agency name, and would have been produced anyway.

(b) Estimated stationery costs are: redesign of business cards, compliment slips and letter-headed paper—£1,600. IBM work to design and roll out online versions of fax and letterhead templates to staff, £2,500. These are quotes at the moment. Animal Health is awaiting final bills.

Waste Management: Greater London

Ms Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what statutory powers the proposed London Waste and Recycling Forum will have to carry out its strategic waste management functions London-wide. [132982]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon (Mr. Dismore) on 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 314W.

Whales: Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many whales (a) Norway, (b) Iceland and (c) Japan have caught since the last meeting of the International Whaling Commission. [131323]

Mr. Bradshaw: For the 2005-06 period, the number of whales taken by species and by country, is shown in the following table. This is based on information reported to the International Whaling Commission (IWC).

	Minke	Sei	Bryde's	Fin	Sperm
Japan	[1]1,078	[1]100	[1]50	[1]10	[1]5
Norway	639	—	—	—	—
Iceland	[1]39	—	—	—	—

[1] Under Special Permit.

For the 2006-07 period, the following quotas, either under objection to the moratorium or as part of a special ("scientific") permit, have been issued by the countries concerned.

2006-07

	Minke	Sei	Bryde's	Fin	Sperm	Humpback
Japan	[1]1,155	[1]100	[1]50	[1]10	[1]5	[1]10
Norway	1,052	—	—	—	—	—
Iceland	69	—	—	10	—	—
	1	—	—	—	—	—

[1] Under Special Permit.

However, for the first time, information on recent catches taken by commercial, aboriginal and scientific permit whaling will be reported in May, at this year's annual meeting of the IWC.

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action he is taking to maintain a majority in the International Whaling Commission in favour of the moratorium on commercial whaling. [132060]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 19 April 2007]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2186W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will prepare and place in the Library a progress report on the aims and timetable contained in the London Afghanistan Compact; and how long she estimates it would take to produce such a report. [132524]

Mr. McCartney: Officials are drafting a note on progress made against the Afghanistan Compact benchmarks. This will be completed by the Whitsun recess. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in the UK Government's efforts to reduce the production of heroin in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [133396]

Mr. McCartney: The United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime estimates that 70 per cent. of the heroin produced from Afghan opium is now manufactured within Afghanistan itself. The UK is spending £270 million over the next three years to help the Afghan Government tackle all aspects of the heroin trade through their National Drug Control Strategy (NDCS).

The NDCS identifies targeting traffickers at the top end of the trade as the best way to deal with the production and trafficking of opiates. With our assistance, the Afghan authorities have convicted over 350 drug traffickers in the last 18 months. Reports from the United Nations Development Programme show that between March 2005 and March 2006 the authorities seized 70 tonnes of opiates and destroyed 245 laboratories. The UK is also contributing to the Afghan government's efforts to stem the flow of chemicals used in the production of heroin into their country.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of drug cultivation levels in Afghanistan in 2007. [133473]

Mr. McCartney: Afghanistan may be facing another year of high poppy cultivation. The UN Office of Drugs and Crime's Winter Assessment Survey (WAS), released in March, is a snapshot that tries to identify early trends in cultivation. The WAS shows a mixed picture. It suggests that cultivation is down in the north and stable in the centre and west. These are areas where there is better security, governance and development. It also suggests that cultivation is heading up in the south and east, including in Helmand, Kandahar and Nangarhar. In the south, security challenges, insurgent activity and the lack of extension of rule of law continue to present major obstacles to poppy elimination.

Burma: Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the treatment of four girls aged between 14 and 16 years in Putao District, Kachin State by members of the Burma Army and the subsequent imprisonment of the girls; what representations she has made to the Burmese Government on this case; and if she will take steps to press the Burmese authorities (a) to release the girls, (b) to investigate the case and (c) to arrest and prosecute the perpetrators. [131129]

Mr. McCartney [holding answers 16 April 2007]: We are aware of reports in the Burmese media about the detention of four girls in Putao District and we are concerned about how their complaint has been treated by the authorities. I intend to raise this issue at a senior level with the Burmese authorities to demand a formal investigation into the alleged rapes at the earliest opportunity.

Central African Republic: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that the Union of Democratic Forces for Unity in the Central African Republic (CAR) have signed a peace agreement to disarm and to join the CAR National Army. [132587]

Mr. McCartney: The UK is concerned at the ongoing conflict in the Central African Republic (CAR), which suffers from both internal conflict and from the impact of instability in the region.

We welcome the signing of the peace agreement made on 2 February between President Bozize and various rebel groups, including the Union of Democratic Forces for Unity (UDFR), operating in the CAR, which provides for an immediate cessation of hostilities. We welcome reports of the potential release of some of the former UDFR leaders from prison and also the planned rehabilitation, disarming and possible integration of former UDFR rebels into the national army. We hope that this will promote the advance of national reconciliation.

Departments: Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much her Department spent on language training for its staff in each of the last five years. [132743]

Mr. Hoon: The total cost of language training charged to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) account was:

2002-03	3,101,000
2003-04	5,717,000
2004-05	4,265,000
2005-06	5,564,832

The figures for 2006-07 are not available yet.

The figures include training costs in the UK and overseas for FCO officers and their spouses/officially recognised partners.

The figures given cover pre-posting and developmental external language tuition, language centre expenses, exam fees, students travel and subsistence. The figures are an aggregate of costs paid to the FCO Services' language training division and costs paid direct from the FCO account for language training related expenses.

Diplomatic Service: Broadband

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK embassies and ambassador residences in European countries have access to wireless broadband. [132541]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 19 April 2007]: Two residences in European countries have officially recognised wireless networks; there are none in embassies or consular offices.

East Timor: Armed Conflict

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of recent conflict in East Timor; and what reports she has received from the UK embassy in Jakarta on the conflict. [132564]

Mr. McCartney: Following deployment of an International Stabilisation Force requested by the Government of East Timor, in response to the unrest in early 2006, the security situation improved and force numbers were reduced. However, renewed outbreaks of violence in February and March saw some fatalities, incidents of looting and attacks on vehicles. We urged all concerned to bring an end to the violence and to resolve the problems within the framework of the constitution and laws of East Timor. The situation has calmed since and the first round of presidential elections on 9 April passed off without any major security incident. We warmly welcome this and have urged that the campaigns for the second round of the presidential elections and the subsequent parliamentary elections should proceed equally peacefully. None the less the security situation in East Timor remains extremely fragile and could deteriorate at short notice. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office therefore continues to advise British nationals against all travel to East Timor at this time.

We remain in close contact with our embassy in Jakarta and with other diplomatic missions in East Timor.

EC Integration

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which occasions Ministers from her Department have met representatives of campaign bodies and think tanks advocating closer EU integration in the last 12 months. [133091]

Mr. Hoon: I and other Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers regularly meet representatives of think tanks and other organisations with a wide spectrum of views on EU issues, both in the UK and while on overseas visits.

Embassies: Manpower

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff were employed in British embassies in each of the last five years. [132744]

Mr. Hoon: The following chart sets out the total number of staff employed by the Government at Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Posts overseas on 1 April for each of the past five years:-

	Number of UK-based staff	Number of locally engaged staff
2007	2,807	10,739
2006	2,798	10,063
2005	2,719	10,811
2004	2,673	9,466
2003	[1]2,017	9,062

[1] We introduced a new and more accurate management information system in 2004. The figures for 2003 are less reliable; they are likely to be an underestimate.

In addition there are a small number of staff at some posts who are employed locally and are not paid through the FCO payroll. These numbers are not held centrally.

Ethiopia: Kidnapping

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made on behalf of the Ethiopian citizens who were taken captive against their will alongside staff from the British embassy and who remain in captivity. [132477]

Mr. McCartney: [holding answer 19 April 2007]: The Government remain concerned at the continued abduction of the Ethiopian citizens that were taken captive on 2 March. Embassy officials in Addis Ababa, other British and European nationals, that were abducted at the same time, were released on 13 March. Upon their release, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a press statement and called for the release of the Ethiopians. Our ambassador in Addis Ababa also issued a press statement on 27 March calling for their release. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, met with the Ethiopian ambassador on 21 March to discuss the issue and has also raised the issue in the media.

We will continue to make representations in support of the release of the abducted Ethiopians, including with the Eritreans, and will engage with those that might be able to help facilitate their release.

We shall continue to call for the release of the Ethiopians publicly and privately.

European Commission: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many vehicles are owned by the European Commission. [133112]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

European Union

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which agencies in the UK are recognised source points for providing information about the European Union. [133079]

Mr. Hoon: A wide range of organisations provide public information about a range of EU issues including central Government Departments, local government, other public bodies, the European Commission, the European Parliament, business groups and non-governmental organisations. The European Commission supports a network of providers, including some 30 Europe Direct Centres in the UK. These operate as drop in centres which provide the public with a range of literature and where staff are available to answer questions on the EU. The related Europe Direct Contact Centre operates a freephone telephone service which is available from anywhere in the EU. The number is 00800 67891011.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution her Department makes to decisions on the information and publicity material produced by the European Union which may be distributed in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [133092]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) maintains regular dialogue with the European Institutions about their policy and approach towards raising awareness and debate on EU issues. For example, the Government submitted a response to the European Commission consultation on their "White Paper on a European Communications Policy" in 2006. The FCO is also working with the UK Representation of the European Commission and the UK Office of the European Parliament on specific initiatives such as the development of Europe Direct Centres and the "Learning Together" initiative I launched in March to increase partnerships between UK schools and their counterparts in Europe. The FCO has not given any detailed input into information or publicity materials produced by the EU Institutions.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures have been planned to increase the profile of the European Union in the UK, with reference to (a) the 2009 European Parliament elections and (b) the debate on the European Constitution; and if she will make a statement. [133096]

Mr. Hoon: The Government remain committed to engaging with the UK public to generate greater awareness and a mature debate about EU issues. Our work to raise awareness and debate on the future of Europe and EU dossiers has included ministerial speeches and events, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website europe.gov.uk and a printed "Guide to the European Union" available in English, Welsh and audio formats. In respect of the European Parliament elections scheduled for 2009, the independent Electoral Commission is responsible for promoting public awareness and understanding of arrangements for voting at elections in the UK. Additionally, the Electoral Administration Act 2006 places a duty on local electoral officers to take appropriate steps to promote electoral participation in their area.

Fatah

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials have had with Farouk Kaddoumi, General Secretary of Fatah, during his visit to the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [133454]

Mr. McCartney: Ministers and officials have no plans to meet with Head of the Palestine Liberation Organisation Political Department and Secretary-General of Fatah, Farouk Kaddoumi, during his visit to the UK.

Iran: Baha'i Sect

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports she has received on the treatment of the Baha'i community in Iran. [133032]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to have concerns about the situation of religious minorities in Iran and treatment of the Baha'i community in particular. We often receive reports of discrimination against Baha'is in Iran from the National Assembly of the Baha'is of the United Kingdom.

Denial of access to higher education has been a long-term problem for Baha'i students, effectively banned from entry to universities because of their religion. Although 178 Baha'i students were admitted to various campuses after the removal of religious identification from the entrance exam papers last autumn, recent reports suggest that at least 70 were subsequently expelled as universities became aware of their religion. We have also received some reports about persecution of Baha'i school children, and are currently trying to find out more information about these serious claims. We will take further action as appropriate.

We continue to raise this issue bilaterally and through the EU, and have pressed the Iranian authorities on many occasions to take seriously their international human rights obligations, uphold the right to freedom of religion and belief as described in article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and address the intimidation and discrimination suffered by Iranian Baha'is. We also take action at the UN and in December 2006 we, along with all EU countries, co-sponsored a resolution on human rights in Iran, which expressed serious concern at

> "the escalation and increased frequency of discrimination and other human rights violations against members of the Baha'i Faith"

Iran: Exports

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the total (a) number and (b) value of (i) military and (ii) non-military British exports reaching Iran via other foreign states which contravene the existing sanctions against Iran. [132829]

Dr. Howells: No such estimates have been made. Licences are required for direct exports of military and dual-use items from the UK. Licences are also required for any person in the UK, or any UK person overseas, to participate in the supply of military items to Iran from any third country. Licences would not be issued if they contravened sanctions. Likewise, licences for all countries are carefully assessed against the risk of diversion to other countries under undesirable conditions.

Licensing data by destination is published in the Quarterly and Annual Reports on Strategic Export Controls (available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

The UK has had a national arms embargo in force on Iran since March 1993, and all applications for military items have been refused, except in a very limited number of circumstances that have been announced in the House. The EU will implement UN Security Council Resolution 1747 by imposing a standard arms embargo on Iran. This is scheduled to come into force when the Common Position is adopted today.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her policy is on the provision of assistance from British overseas posts to Iraqi nationals who have left Iraq after threats of violence because of their work as interpreters with the British Army. [132997]

Dr. Howells: All such requests for assistance from Iraqi citizens who served for the Government in Iraq are dealt with on a case by case basis, taking account of their particular circumstances.

Iraq: Weapons

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 1957W, on the weapons of mass destruction dossier (1) why she has no plans to publish Mr. John Williams' draft document, extracts from it, or to confirm details of the contents; why the draft document was not made available to the inquiry led by Lord Hutton; and whether her Department retains the document; [131333]

(2) whether the draft of the dossier on weapons of mass destruction produced by the Chairman of the Joint Intelligence Committee, Mr. John Scarlett, on 10 September 2002 (a) was based upon and (b) took into account the draft document produced by Mr. John Williams on 9 September 2002; [131334]

(3) whether reference was made to Iraq's ability to deploy weapons of mass destruction within 45 minutes in (a) an assessment by the Joint Intelligence Committee prior to 9 September 2002, (b) a draft of the dossier by the Joint Intelligence Committee prior to 9 September 2002, (c) the draft document produced by Mr. John Williams on 9 September 2002 and (d) the draft document produced by Mr. John Scarlett on 10 September 2002; [131335]

(4) who the author was of the executive summary of the dossier on weapons of mass destruction in September 2002; [131336]

(5) who the members were of the dossier on weapons of mass destruction drafting group in September 2002; at which meeting the dossier was signed off on behalf of the group; and which members of the group were present at that meeting. [131337]

Margaret Beckett [holding answers 16 April 2007]: Matters relating to the Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) dossier were examined in great detail by the inquiry led by Lord Hutton, Lord Butler's "Review of Intelligence on Weapons of Mass Destruction" and the Intelligence and Security Committee's report "Iraqi WMD—Intelligence and Assessments". These inquiries placed into the public domain as much information as it was possible to do without prejudicing national security.

Iraq-Kuwait Conflict: Compensation

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many people in the UK are affected by the UN Compensation Commission's request for part of the money paid to people detained in Iraq during the First Gulf War to be repaid; [132474]

(2) if she will make representations to the UN regarding people detained in Iraq during the First Gulf War being asked to repay part of the compensation awarded by the UN Compensation Commission to the effect that the overpayment be written off; [132475]

(3) whether she plans to provide support to those people detained in Iraq during the First Gulf War who are unable to repay part of the compensation awarded by the UN Compensation Commission because their financial circumstances preclude it. [132476]

Dr. Howells [holding answers 19 April 2007]: The UN Compensation Commission (UNCC) has identified 113 UK claimants who have received compensation overpayment. The Government have been asked to make "best efforts" to contact the claimants concerned and to request repayment of the sums involved.

The Governing Council of the UNCC has asked that "best efforts" be made by all concerned Governments to seek to recover relevant overpayments from affected claimants and for Governments to report back on progress before the next UNCC Governing Council in June.

The UK supported the general consensus in the Governing Council to adopt a "best efforts" approach to the recovery of overpayments.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what factors informed the decisions by the UN Compensation Commission on who (a) should and (b) should not receive compensation payments following detention during the First Gulf War. [133359]

Dr. Howells: The UN Compensation Commission (UNCC) was established in 1991 by UN Security Council Resolution 687 to process claims and pay compensation for death, injury, losses and damages suffered by individuals, corporations, Governments and international organisations as a direct result of Iraq's unlawful invasion and occupation of Kuwait.

There were six categories of claims which were assessed and resolved by panels of Commissioners who were independent experts in fields such as law, accountancy, loss adjustment, insurance and engineering.

The UNCC's claims processing procedures were prescribed by the Security Council and were further elaborated by the Governing Council in a number of its decisions which were implemented by the panels of Commissioners.

The panels submitted their recommendations on claims to the Governing Council for approval.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether double payment of elements of the awards made to people detained in Iraq during the First Gulf War forms the basis for the UN Compensation Commission's request for part of the money to be repaid. [133361]

Dr. Howells: The UN Compensation Commission (UNCC) has conducted a full investigation aimed at identifying duplicate claims and other claims raising overpayment issues. As a result, around 30,000 compensation awards have been formally corrected by the UNCC Governing Council. The total corrections represent around US$80 million. These corrections have arisen for a number of reasons, including some claims which were identified as having being paid twice. Of the total amount of corrections, around US$73.7 million remains to be recovered from claimants.

Following the corrections, governments of claimants in receipt of overpayments, and other submitting entities, have been asked by the UNCC Governing Council to "make best efforts" to seek to recover amounts from their affected claimants. The basis for the amount requested depends on the circumstances of each individual case.

Israel: EU Aid

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial support is being given by the EU to the non-governmental organisation the Israeli Committee Against Home Demolitions; what the purpose is of the financial support; what (a) representations were received from and (b) discussions were held with the Israeli Government prior to giving financial support; and if she will make a statement. [132402]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission has provided the Israeli Committee Against House Demolitions with 472,786 for a two year project which started in 2005. The project aims to act as a means of raising political consciousness in Israel about the peace process by bringing Israelis into direct contact with Palestinians and the Occupation through house rebuilding and other political activities. More details of the project can be found on the European Parliament's website at:

http://www.europarl.europa.eu/meetdocs/2004_2009/documents/dv/projectshrisrael_/projectshrisrael_en.pdf.

We are not aware of any representations or discussions between the EU and the Israeli Government regarding this project.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial support (a) the UK Government and (b) the EU is giving to Bimkom, a non-governmental organisation in Israel; what the purpose is of the financial support; what (i) representations were received from and (ii) discussions were held with the Israeli Government prior to giving financial support; and if she will make a statement. [132403]

Mr. McCartney: In 2005, we agreed to fund Bimkom's study into the effects of the barrier in the West Bank. In 2007, we agreed to grant Bimkom £80,300 in order to provide comprehensive information concerning the planning situation of Palestinian villages and land in area C which would then be used as a basis to prevent house demolitions and press for the development of appropriate plans for these villages with the aim of significantly improving the situation and living conditions of their residents. Prior to the decision to fund these projects, the Israeli Government did not make any representations regarding Bimkom. However, the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs did make representations about the barrier project in February.

According to the European Parliament's project listings, the European Commission is providing €295,799 for a two year project which started in 2006. More details of the project proposal can be found on the European Parliament's website at:

http://www.europarl.europa.eu/meetdocs/2004_2009/documents/dv/projectshrisrael_/projectshrisrael_en.pdf.

Kazakhstan: Corruption

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of corruption in Kazakhstan. [132715]

Mr. Hoon: The Kazakh Law "On Fighting Corruption" requires every state executive to submit annual declarations of income received and property owned within and outside the Republic of Kazakhstan. President Nazarbayev, in his 28 February address to the nation, focused on the need to do more. Allegations of systematic corruption in Kazakhstan remain rife and Kazakhstan features as 111th on the 2006 Transparency International index (a slight improvement from 125th three years ago). However, substantive evidence regarding specific examples is rare and it is therefore difficult to make an accurate assessment of the scale of corruption. The Government actively urge Kazakhstan to address these issues. Most recently, we sponsored a meeting, on 18 April, on the role of oil and gas contracts in sustainable development. The UK is also a leading supporter of Kazakhstan's work on the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative.

Marc Swanson

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1775W, on Marc Swanson, on what dates her officials in Brazil had contact with the local police; and what information was received on each occasion. [132467]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 19 April 2007]: Since November 2003 consular officials have been in regular contact with the various Brazilian departments that are involved in the investigation into Mr. Swanson's disappearance. I have asked officials in Consular Directorate in London to write to the hon. Member with a comprehensive chronology of the contacts our staff in Brazil have had with the local Brazilian Police. Copies of the letter will also be placed in the Library of the House.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 26 February from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mrs K. Mirza. [132482]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right. hon. Friend. A reply will be sent out shortly.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 2 February from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Rhoda Chigwedere. [132483]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent out on 12 April 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 26 February from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Ghulam Nabi. [132484]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent out on 12 April 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 1 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Ufuoma Marcello. [132485]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent out on 13 April 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 5 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. A. Zulfiqar. [132487]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent out on 12 April 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 5 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Farouq Ahmed. [132489]

Mr. McCartney: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent out on 12 April 2007.

Mercenaries: Regulation

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to follow up the 2002 Green Paper entitled Private Military Companies: Options for Regulation. [132939]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 93W.

North Korea: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations the United Kingdom has made to the United Nations Human Rights Council on (a) political and civil rights, (b) freedom of the press and (c) food provision in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. [132607]

Mr. McCartney: I raised the UK's ongoing concern at the human rights situation in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) in my address to the UN Human Rights Council in March.

At the same meeting, the EU presidency, on behalf of member states, made a statement underlining its concerns about widespread violations of human rights in the DPRK, including the lack of freedom of expression, assembly, association and movement as well as arbitrary detention, extra-judicial and public executions, routine use of torture, forced abortions and infanticide, political prison camps and extreme religious persecution.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials raised the issue of future food security with the UN Special Rapporteur for the DPRK Human Rights during the March session.

North Korea: Nuclear Power

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the Democratic People's Republic of Korea's compliance with the deadline agreed at the Six Party Talks in Beijing in February to close the Yongbyon nuclear reactor. [132588]

Mr. McCartney: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) did not shut down and seal the Yongbyon nuclear facility by the agreed deadline of 14 April. The North Koreans made clear that they would not start the process until North Korean accounts with Banco Asia Delta in Macau had been unfrozen and returned; which for technical reasons took longer than expected. South Korean media reports suggest that the DPRK has now begun work to dismantle the Yongbyon reactor, but we have not seen independent confirmation of this. The five other members of the Six Party Talks are working together to ensure that the DPRK complies with the commitments it has entered into.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress her Department has made on negotiations towards a Fissile Material Cut-Off Treaty; and what the key obstacles are to such negotiations. [132720]

Mr. McCartney: The UK continues to push for the early start of negotiations, without preconditions, on a Fissile Material Cut off Treaty (FMCT) in the Conference on Disarmament (CD). The UK's, and the wider EU's, support for such a Treaty is well known. In the Common Position negotiated in advance of the 2005 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference (7768/05), the EU appealed to the CD for the immediate commencement and early conclusion of a non-discriminatory, universally applicable Treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices. The UK welcomes the US initiative made in Geneva in May 2006 to table a draft treaty text and draft mandate for negotiations. We hope that all CD member states are able to accept the very broad mandate proposed and agree to open negotiations towards a treaty without delay.

Progress has been blocked by some nations linking the start of FMCT negotiations to progress on other unrelated CD agenda items.

Nuclear Test Ban

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to bring the comprehensive test ban treaty into force. [132719]

Dr. Howells: We continue to take every appropriate opportunity at ministerial and official level to encourage states who have not ratified the comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty to do so, particularly the 10 remaining annex two countries (those that formally participated in the treaty's negotiation and have nuclear power or research reactors), which must ratify before the treaty can enter into force. We have carried out demarchés, both as part of the EU and bilaterally, and will continue to assist where we can. We have used our overseas missions to assist both the provisional technical secretariat and the executive secretary of the comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty organisation in regional outreach work. We have also supported the special representative of the ratifiers of the treaty, ambassador Ramaker, with his programme of visits and will continue to do so.

Occupied Territories

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will assess the legality of (a) advertising in the UK real estate built in the Palestinian Occupied Territories in violation of Article 147 of the Fourth Geneva Convention and (b) the advertisement of new build real estate in Har Homa in the Occupied Territories (i) at the Real Estate Exhibition on 18 March and (ii) in editions of the Jewish Chronicle; and if she will make a statement. [132722]

Dr. Howells: The advertising of such property by private persons in the UK is not unlawful. I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Northfield (Richard Burden) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 39W.

Thailand: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of recent anti-regime protests in Bangkok. [132561]

Mr. McCartney: Various pro-democracy groups have held small demonstrations in Bangkok since the 19 September 2006 coup. All demonstrations have passed off peacefully. More demonstrations are expected to take place over the coming months and we will continue to monitor developments closely.

Uganda

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations her Department has made to the Ugandan Government on the humanitarian and security situation in northern Uganda. [132305]

Mr. McCartney: We regularly discuss the humanitarian and security situation in northern Uganda in our contacts with the Ugandan Government.

Most recently, our high commissioner in Kampala, along with other EU heads of mission, discussed the security situation in northern Uganda with Foreign Minister Kutesa on 11 April. The high commissioner also attended a meeting of the Joint Monitoring Committee on 30 March, where the humanitarian situation in the north was discussed.

We are encouraged that the Cessation of Hostilities Agreement was extended on 14 April and that the peace talks are set to resume on 26 April. We call on all parties to remain focused on finding a peaceful solution to this long running conflict.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that the Ugandan Army in Karamoja province have engaged in the extra-judicial killing of children. [132565]

Mr. McCartney: The allegations in the Save the Children report are very serious. The Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in Uganda is also looking into the allegations with the co-operation of the Ugandan Government. Once the OHCHR investigation is completed, we will pursue this issue with the Ugandan Government. Our high commissioner, with other members of the Partners for Democracy and Governance Group in Kampala, is planning to visit the region at the end of April.

We continue, more widely, to raise our concerns with the Ugandan Government about the forced disarmament programme in Karamoja. The high commissioner, with other EU heads of mission, raised this most recently with Foreign Minister Kutesa on 13 April. We continue to press for a peaceful and voluntary disarmament process across the Karamoja region that involves all stakeholders, respects human rights and protects the civilian population.

UN Disarmament Commission

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to promote the UN Disarmament Commission discussion framework. [132721]

Dr. Howells: The Government are fully committed to the UN Disarmament Commission (UNDC) discussion framework. We worked hard to ensure that in April 2006 the UNDC completed its first substantive session since 2003 and that consensus agreement was achieved on the Final Report. This included "recommendations for achieving the objectives of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation of nuclear weapons". Discussions at this year's session of the UNDC are currently under way in New York. The UK delegation hopes to build on last year's achievements this year and in 2008, when the UNDC's current three-year cycle will conclude.

United Nations Human Rights Council

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to report to the House the outcomes of the fourth meeting of the United Nations Human Rights Council. [132602]

Mr. McCartney: At its fourth regular session, 12-30 March, the UN Human Rights Council (HRC) received a report on the situation in Darfur; a consensus Council resolution created a mechanism to work to ensure the implementation of existing UN recommendations on human rights in Darfur. The Council discussed the violent repression of peaceful protestors on 11 March in Zimbabwe. It held interactive dialogues with the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and a range of Special Rapporteurs, and adopted resolutions on several issues. All adopted resolutions are available on the Council's website at:

www.ohchr.org/english/bodies/hrcouncil/4session/resolutions.htm.

I have arranged for copies to be placed in the Library of the House. Statements made by the UK delegation to the HRC, including my address to the Council on 13 March, are available on the website of the UK Mission to the UN in Geneva at:

www.fco.gov.uk/ukmisgeneva

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) also seeks to inform hon. Members of developments at the HRC through a range of means, including its quarterly human rights newsletter, its annual human rights report, dialogue with the Foreign Affairs Committee, and ad hoc meetings such as the joint All-Party Parliamentary Group/Amnesty/FCO panel discussion of the HRC in Parliament on 21 February this year.

Zambia: Economic Situation

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the economy of Zambia; what the unemployment rate is in that country; and who its major (a) African and (b) international trading partners are. [132216]

Mr. McCartney: The International Monetary Fund Article IV report of December 2005 recognised that the Zambian economy had achieved sustained robust growth since 2000 after decades of stagnation. Zambia's gross domestic product has increased from 5.2 per cent. in 2005 to an estimated 5.8 per cent. in 2006. The fastest growing sectors are mining, energy, particularly hydro-electricity generation, construction and tourism. Inflation fell to 8.2 per cent. at the end of 2006, the first time in 30 years that it has been in single figures. Interest rates have consequently fallen.

According to the latest living conditions monitoring survey undertaken by Zambia's Central Statistical Office in 2004, 9 per cent. of those aged 12 and over who are classified as economically active were unemployed. However, this conceals the fact that many of those who are 'employed' are engaged in casual agricultural work, self-employed or unpaid family work.

Within Africa Zambia's major trading partners are South Africa and the Democratic Republic of Congo. Internationally Zambia's main trading partners are in Asia (led by Japan and China), followed by Europe (Netherlands and UK) and the USA.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132208]

Angela E. Smith: Within the Department, the staff handbook gives guidance to staff on when it might be appropriate to offer hospitality and the financial limits that apply. The purchase of alcohol for hospitality reasons is expected to be rare and limited to small amounts.

Expenditure within the Department is conducted in accordance with the principles of Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Fire Services: Retirement

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average retirement age was of fire fighters in each of the last 15 years. [133388]

Angela E. Smith: Firefighters are employed by Fire and Rescue authorities who are responsible for Human Resource management. Information about retirement ages is not among the data collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Government Office for London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, columns 1144-5W, on the Government Office for London, if she will provide a breakdown of the staffing figures by (a) department or function and (b) Civil Service pay grade. [132501]

Angela E. Smith: The Government Office for London's staffing levels for March 2007, broken down by directorate and civil service pay grade, is as follows[1]:

[1] A comparable, detailed directorate breakdown is not available for previous periods. In April 2006 GOL had 303 staff in post.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken to ensure that the 2016 target for making all new homes carbon neutral will be reached. [132286]

Angela E. Smith: The proposals the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government published on 13 December 2006 set out our draft strategy for moving to zero carbon new homes by 2016. The consultation period on these proposals closed on 8 March 2007 and the final policy statement will be published later this year. My hon. Friend the hon. Member for Pontefract and Castleford (Yvette Cooper) has also established a small task force chaired jointly with Stewart Baseley from the Home Builders Federation to examine and address any barriers to implementation of the zero carbon homes standard.

We expect to publish the final proposals later this year.

Housing: Sales

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many house sales were completed in the UK in 2006. [131800]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 17 April 2007]: Data for the UK are not held centrally. A provisional estimate for Great Britain is that there were 1.4 million residential property sales in 2006. This is made up of 1.25 million sales in England and Wales as reported by the Land Registry and 150,000 residential property transactions in Scotland according to Registers of Scotland giving a total of 1.4 million for Great Britain.

Listed Buildings: Energy

Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of increased flexibility in rules governing listed buildings to allow them to become more energy efficient without seriously deviating from the character of the building. [133422]

Angela E. Smith: Ancient monuments and listed buildings are exempt from the Building Regulations energy efficiency requirements if compliance would unacceptably alter their character or appearance and I would not want to change this. However the Department works closely with English Heritage to encourage energy efficiency improvements whenever this is appropriate and contributes to the guidance they publish. Interim guides to compliance, where appropriate, were published in 2002 and updated in 2004 and a further comprehensive guide is, I understand, to be published shortly.

Unitary Councils

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the extension of unitary authorities to include additional adjoining areas; and if she will make a statement. [132250]

Mr. Woolas: In the White Paper, Strong and Prosperous Communities, we recognise that some councils face challenges by having too tightly drawn boundaries. These may be overcome by cross boundary working, multi area agreements and in some cases a boundary review might be the right option. Our Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, currently before the House, contains provisions for the Boundary Committee to undertake a boundary review at the request of the Secretary of State or a local authority, or on its own initiative.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pathways to Work

13. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the results of the Pathways to Work employment programme. [132674]

Mrs. McGuire: Latest figures show that Pathways has already helped over 26,500 customers move from an incapacity benefit into work.

In Pathways areas, the number of recorded job entries for people with health conditions or disabilities has increased by around two-thirds in the 12 months following roll-out.

Independent evaluation confirms our confidence that our Pathways to Work programme is a success.

Digital TV Job Search Services

14. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on new digital TV job search services. [132675]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As part of the Department's commitment to broadening access to job search services, Jobcentre Plus has been working with "Looking Local" to provide digital TV viewers access to more than 400,000 vacancies advertised by Jobcentres across the country.

This innovative service enables people seeking work to look for a job at a time and a place convenient to them, and is currently being used 250,000 times a month.

European Social Fund

15. Miss Begg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the contribution made by the European social fund to projects promoting employment. [132676]

Mrs. McGuire: The European Social Fund supports our policies to extend employment opportunity and develop a skilled work force. It has invested £5 billion in employment and skills provision in Great Britain since 2000.

Departmental Budget Impact

16. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact that the 2007 Budget will have on the work of his Department. [132677]

Mr. Hutton: The Budget contained a range of measures from benefit simplification to substantial changes to the Financial Assistance Scheme which were debated in this House last week.

Child Support Agency

17. Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the recent performance of the Child Support Agency. [132678]

Mr. Plaskitt: The performance of the Child Support Agency has been steadily improving under the Operational Improvement Plan. After just the first year of the plan, early results are already showing improvements in key areas.

I am confident the performance figures for the last quarter, due to be published later this week, will continue to demonstrate the ongoing improvements in the Agency's performance.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when his Department expects the Child Support Agency's successor body to be fully operational. [132673]

Mr. Plaskitt: Subject to parliamentary approval, during 2008-09.

Pensioner Statistics

18. Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total value is of all pensions and benefits available to a married pensioner with no savings living in a council house. [132680]

James Purnell: The total value of benefits available to married pensioners depends on their circumstances, in particular their national insurance records, income and capital.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the likely impact of the provisions of the Budget 2007 on the Financial Assistance Scheme. [132679]

James Purnell: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer I gave for question number 5 to the hon. Member for Ludlow (Mr. Dunne) today.

Social Security Benefits: Credit

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to improve access to affordable credit for those in receipt of benefit. [132663]

Mr. Plaskitt: DWP is delivering the £36 million Growth Fund, which has increased the capacity of credit unions and community development financial institutions to make affordable loans to financially excluded people, many of whom are in receipt of benefit, and who might otherwise turn to "doorstep lenders", and loan sharks charging exorbitant rates of interest.

Up to 31 March the 100+ credit unions and community development finance institutions delivering the affordable loan service across England, Scotland and Wales had made more than 18,000 loans, with a total value in excess of £7.6 million, to people on low income. Around 80 per cent. of Growth Fund loans are made to people in receipt of working age benefits.

DWP are also delivering the Now Let's Talk Money campaign, which will make people on low incomes aware of the services the Government have made available to them, services such as free face-to-face money advice and affordable credit.

Social Security Benefits: Lie Detectors

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what recent discussions he has had with disability organisations on the implications of the use of lie detection software for benefit claimants affected by mental health conditions; and if he will make a statement; [132959]

(2) To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the implications of the use of lie detection software for benefit claimants who do not have English as a first language; and if he will make a statement; [132962]

(3) if he will monitor and evaluate the impact on vulnerable benefit claimants of the piloting of lie detection software; and if he will make a statement. [132963]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have had several discussions with disability and other organisations about the plans to test voice risk analysis software as part of wider efforts to improve customer service and reduce fraud. The Department will be considering the impact of this technology on all customers including those who do not have English as a first language and those who are particularly vulnerable.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what training will be required of operators of lie detection software in benefit authorities. [132960]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Voice risk analysis software analyses changes in voice frequency and helps to identify risk. It is not a lie detector. We intend to pilot this software in the London borough of Harrow, and in income support/jobseeker's allowance claims to test whether it can be used to improve customer service and reduce fraud.

The amount of training operators of voice risk analysis require varies according to their existing skills and knowledge. However, four days of training supported by a period of mentoring is typical.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to use evidence from lie detection software (a) to initiate investigation into the validity of benefit claims, (b) to suspend commencement or payment of benefits and (c) to bring charges for benefit fraud; and if he will make a statement. [132961]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Voice risk analysis software analyses changes in voice frequency and helps to identify risk. It is not a lie detector.

We intend to pilot this software in the London borough of Harrow on housing benefit and council tax benefit claims and in IS/JSA claims, to test whether it can be used to improve customer service and reduce benefit fraud. The technology should help indicate which claims can be processed quickly and which may need additional investigation, but it will not replace existing procedures.

Social Security Benefits: Telephone Services

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many staff were employed to answer Social Fund hotline calls in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; [124738]

(2) how much was spent on administering the Social Fund hotline in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; [124870]

(3) what the average length of time taken to process an application to the Social Fund via the Social Fund hotline was for the last year for which figures are available; [124871]

(4) what the average length of call was to the Social Fund hotline in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; [124899]

(5) whether calls to the Social Fund hotline are (a) recorded and (b) monitored; [124903]

(6) how many calls to the Social Fund hotline were (a) answered and (b) unanswered in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [124959]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 23 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about Social Fund telephony. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus does not have a Social Fund Hotline. To date, 11 Social Fund Delivery Centres have rolled out nationally. We do not hold information on the cost of administering the Social Fund calls within these centres as these costs will form part of the programme to centralise benefit processing by March 2008. Calls to Social Fund lines are not currently recorded or monitored. Each Jobcentre Plus Region undertakes its own applications and different telephone numbers are currently in place. I am unable to give you a figure for the number of staff taking Social Fund calls in the delivery centres as staff numbers fluctuate in response to the demands on the service.

We do not have statistics on the average length of each call, however, the introduction of a telephony based crisis loan application system, where the customer applies directly via dedicated telephone numbers, usually allows a loan application to be made within 20 minutes and performance in this area is improving. It is now taking, on average, 1.5 days to process a crisis loan against a target of 2 days.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education: Assessments

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent representations he has received on improvements to the Eleven Plus system; and if he will make a statement. [132322]

Jim Knight: From time-to-time the Government receive representations both in favour of and against academic selection at eleven plus.

The Government do not support selection by high academic ability and do not wish to see it extended. Where schools require children to sit selective tests it is for admission authorities to decide upon and administer the testing process.

Educational Institutions: Access

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of (a) pupil referral units and (b) special needs units in each local authority conform to Building Bulletin 98 and Building Bulletin 99 regulations. [132391]

Jim Knight: Pupil Referral Units (PRUs) and Special Educational Needs (SEN) units are not required to conform to "Building Bulletin 98: Briefing Framework for Secondary Schools" or "Building Bulletin 99: Briefing Framework for Primary Schools". Special Educational Needs units are, however, recognised in these bulletins as requiring supplementary area to the recommended gross internal floor area for secondary and primary schools. There is separate guidance for Pupil Referral Units and Special Educational Needs units. The Department does not hold the information requested.

Further Education: Student Numbers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils entered further education after completing GCSEs in (a) England and Wales, (b) each region and (c) each London borough in each of the last five years. [132138]

Jim Knight: The figures in this answer are for all 16-year-olds, there is no information solely on those that have completed their GCSE qualifications.

(a) The following table gives the number and percentage of 16-year-olds in England participating in full-time education at a sixth-form college, further education college, at school or in a higher education institute. The latest year for which data are available is end 2005.

The Department does not hold figures for Wales.

(b) The attached table (b) gives the number and percentage of 16-year-olds in the regions of England participating in full-time education at a sixth-form college, further education college, or school. The latest year for which data are available is end 2004.

(c) The following table (c) gives the number and percentage of 16-year-olds resident in each outer London authority participating in full-time education at a sixth form college, further education college or school. The latest year for which data are available is end 2004.

Participation estimates for inner London LEAs are not given due to the high level of cross-boundary flows of independent school students between LEAs.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average expenditure per pupil was in (a) primary and (b) secondary education in (i) each region and (ii) each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [132645]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the House Library.

School Leaving: Employment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in each of the regions who left school in 2006 (a) have secured full-time employment, (b) have secured part-time employment, (c) are on a training scheme and (d) are unemployed. [132445]

Jim Knight: The following table gives the number and percentage of 16-year-olds by region, who have finished compulsory education who are (a) in employment, (b) on a Government-supported training scheme, and (c) not settled.

Activity of 16-year-olds, by region, November 2006

Activity of 16-year-olds, by region, November 2006

	Number			Percentage
	(a) Full-time employment	(b) Government-supported training	(c) Not settled	(a) Full-time employment	(b) Government-supported training	(c) Not settled

England	37,290	35,050	46,130	8.6	5.8	6.7

The figures relate to the activity of schools leavers on 1 November 2006, and are for all 16-year-olds resident in that region who have finished compulsory education.

Those in part-time employment and unemployed cannot be separated out. They are in the 'not settled' group which includes: all unemployed, those in part-time employment or training, those who are not available to the labour market, refugees and asylum seekers not yet granted residency and those in custodial sentence.

School Sports Partnerships

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what level of funding will be available to school sport partnerships beyond 2008; [132611]

(2) what advice the Youth Sports Trust will provide to schools about school sport partnerships beyond 2008. [132612]

Jim Knight [holding answer 19 April 2007]: The Department for Education and Skills's Comprehensive Spending Review settlement is currently being reviewed by the Secretary of State.

The ambition is that by 2010, all young people will be offered at least four hours of sport every week. This will comprise at least two hours of PE and sport during the school day and at least an additional two to three hours of sport beyond the school day (delivered by a range of school, community and club providers). The Youth Sport trust will continue to support school sport partnerships—which include every maintained school in England to achieve this.

Schools: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department has taken to improve the performance of schools in the London Borough of Sutton since 1997. [132647]

Jim Knight: Schools in the London borough of Sutton have achieved a substantial rise in standards across all Key Stages since 1997 and performance levels are well above the national average. The proportion of 11-year-olds reaching the target level 4+ as measured by the National Curriculum tests for 2006 has risen by 13 percentage points to 83 per cent. in English and by 13 percentage points to 79 per cent. in mathematics. The proportion of pupils achieving five A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalents has improved by 15.8 percentage points to 70.5 per cent. in 2006. The proportion of pupils achieving five A*-C grades including GCSE English and mathematics has also improved by 15.4 percentage points to 62.7 per cent. in 2006.

Since 1997 four schools only in Sutton have been in special measures and there are currently no schools in an Ofsted category.

The Government's London Challenge programme and the National Strategies have worked with Sutton to improve school performance. In addition to support through the Standards Fund for literacy and numeracy consultants to work directly with schools to improve teaching and learning in the core subjects and targeted National Strategies support for teaching materials and teachers' continuing professional development, Sutton has received:

Direct support for two schools through the Keys to Success programme; providing access to expert advice from a London Challenge Adviser to help prioritise areas for improvement and put together bespoke improvement packages.

Access to an expert adviser for four schools as part of the London Challenge underperformance collaborative to improve borderline students' performance at GCSE.

Inclusion of one school in the English and Maths Challenge initiative to improve standards in English and mathematics in target secondary schools.

Taking part in a London Challenge ICT project to help schools develop their ICT strategies further based on their priorities for school improvement.

Around 1,350 teachers have registered as working towards Chartered London Teacher status in Sutton Schools.

Sutton schools have also benefited from:

KS2-3 transition projects.

Student Pledge—opportunities for London students to gain a variety of rich experiences out of school.

The Training and Development Agency has worked with Sutton to support the roll out of extended schools in their area. Sutton has received £2.2 million over the period 2005-08 to take forward this work which will support pupils achieve their full potential by providing access through schools to services such as study support, parenting support programmes, child care, and links to multi agency support.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what alterations were made to the secondary curriculum programmes of study and level descriptions produced by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) secondary curriculum review between their approval by the QCA board on 14 December 2006 and their publication. [132408]

Jim Knight [holding answer 19 April 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 April 2007.

Teachers: Pensions

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many stakeholders were consulted during the formal consultation with stakeholder representatives on the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme between November 2005 and February 2006; [131041]

(2) how the stakeholders consulted during the formal consultation on Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme were selected; [131042]

(3) what steps were taken to ensure that stakeholders with a relevant interest were consulted during formal consultations on the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme; and how many scheme members were consulted; [131043]

(4) what conclusions the Department has drawn from the responses given by members of the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme to formal consultation on changes to the scheme; [131044]

(5) what estimates he has made of the cost of consulting members of the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme on the proposed changes to the scheme, broken down by main budget heading; [131045]

(6) what estimate he has made of the cost of implementing the flexibilities permitted by A-Day regulations in relation to the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme; [131046]

(7) if his Department will undertake further consultations of the membership of the Teacher's Additional Voluntary Contribution Pension Scheme following changes introduced by A-Day regulations. [131047]

Jim Knight: The consultation on amendments to the Teachers' Additional Voluntary Contribution (TAVC) arrangements was conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Superannuation Act 1972. Consultees included teacher and lecturer unions, representatives of employer organisations and a wide range of other interested parties, including the managers of other public service pension schemes. The official consultation list contained 86 different organisations at the time of the A-Day changes and the consultation was also placed on the TeacherNet website with an invitation to any individual to respond. From the responses received, the Department concluded that the revised arrangements for the Teachers' Additional Voluntary Contribution Scheme are currently appropriate for the teaching/lecturing workforce, although, as a matter of course, any further possible changes that could appropriately be introduced are noted for inclusion in a subsequent set of amending regulations.

No estimate of the cost of any Teachers' Pension Scheme consultation has been made. Nor have our TAVC providers, Prudential, estimated the costs to them of the implementation of A-Day flexibilities, although they will have incurred some administrative costs. Prudential has not sought to recoup any of these costs from members through any change to the annual management charge that is applied to TAVC contracts. The only exception, because of the significant amount of extra work involved, has been to apply an administration fee to cover costs to process transfers-out of accumulated funds independently from the main scheme for those who have had service after A-Day, although this has affected relatively few members.

In addition to the A-Day amending regulations, the Teachers' Additional Voluntary Contribution Scheme has recently been further amended as part of a major review of the teachers' pension package. Both sets of regulations were subject to wide consultation and received overwhelming support from those who responded. All mandatory changes to the IPS required by A-Day legislation have been implemented and there are no plans to undertake another specific A-Day consultation. However a regulatory consolidation exercise is under way which will result in a further consultation taking place within the next 12 months or so. It is not possible to say at this stage whether further permissive changes arising from A-Day legislation will be included within that consultation.

Written Questions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects to answer Question (a) 126831 and (b) 126832, on GCSEs, tabled on 7 March by the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton. [132236]

Jim Knight: A reply was issued to the hon. Member's questions 126831 on 17 April 2007, Official Report, columns 548-49W and to 126832 on 17 April 2007, Official Report, columns 549-52W.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial support is provided by the European Union to UK representative business groups; and if he will make a statement. [133073]

Mr. McCartney: There is no specific allocation in the EU budget for supporting national representative business groups, and we are not aware that the EU has provided any significant financial support to such organisations. It is possible that individual UK business organisations may have benefited from EU grants to support specific activities but such details could be established only at disproportionate cost.

Counterfeit Manufacturing: Internet

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding is available to trading standards officers to help combat internet piracy. [130831]

Mr. McCartney: The funding and resourcing of trading standards is determined by their respective local authority. This will cover the enforcement of a wide range of legislation some of which aims to combat internet piracy.

Additional funding of £4.86 million (£4.191 million in England, £0.423 million in Scotland and £0.246 million in Wales) has been made available in 2007-8 for trading standards officers to accompany the commencement of s107a and s198a of the Copyrights Designs and Patents Act. These new powers relate to counterfeiting and piracy enforcement both physical and on the internet.

In addition, funding of £895,000 a year for two years in 2006-07 and 2007-08 is available to pilot specialist scambuster teams to work across local authority boundaries within a region targeting the worse rogue trading practices and scams which are often beyond the capacity of an individual local authority to deal with. Pilots are running in the north east, central England and across south east, east and London. The pilots will target different rogue trading practices depending on intelligence received and regional priorities, this may include those using the internet to defraud business and consumers.

A further £1.2 million is available over two years in 2006-07 and 2007-08 to Trading Standards to fund a regional intelligence capability to help use intelligence to inform enforcement activity.

Economic Partnership Agreements

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking in negotiations with EU countries on the scope of matters introduced in economic partnership agreements with southern countries which do not have the support of those countries. [130100]

Mr. McCartney: The UK believes that well-designed EPAs can promote long-term development, economic growth and poverty reduction in the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries. We recognise the importance of these agreements and have taken a strong, proactive approach in discussions within the European Union, drawing on the principles set out in the joint DTI/DFID Position Paper of March 2005, including ensuring that ACP countries have flexibility and choice over the content of the agreements.

The recent informal EU—ACP development minister meeting was productive and cause for optimism. ACP countries made firm their commitment to complete EPAs this year. DTI in conjunction with DFID will continue to support the ACP in every way possible to make sure that well designed EPAs are finalised this year. I am increasingly confident that this is within our grasp.

Energy

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which organisations and individuals have been consulted in the preparation of the forthcoming Energy White Paper; and if he will list the documents, including websites, which have been used in the preparation of the White Paper. [132440]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are taking forward development of the policy proposals set out in the Energy Review Report in preparation for the 2007 Energy White Paper, which will be published in May.

A wide range of information and evidence, formal and informal discussions with interested parties, as well as a number of public consultations, have been a key part of informing the energy review process. The issues on which we have consulted, summaries of engagement activities and formal consultation responses can be found on the DTI website at:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/review/page31995.html.

Alongside the White Paper we will be publishing a number of the reports and documents that helped inform our proposals.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the changes in planning law which are being proposed in respect of energy schemes arising from the Energy Review 2006. [132441]

Malcolm Wicks: We expect to publish the Energy White Paper in May which will cover our proposals on the planning arrangements for energy infrastructure.

Estate Agents: Complaints

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many complaints about the conduct of estate agents were received by the Office of Fair Trading in 2006; and how many investigations were conducted as a result; [131784]

(2) how many Office of Fair Trading investigations following complaints against estate agents in 2006 resulted in fines being payable; and what the total amount of fines levied was. [131785]

Mr. McCartney: In 2006, the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) received 210 complaints about the conduct of estate agents. As a result of the complaints received, 117 investigations were carried out into estate agent activities by the OFT in 2006.

The OFT did not prosecute any estate agents for offences under the Estate Agents Act in 2006. This is because there are very few criminal offences associated with the Act. The most serious acts of misconduct by estate agents are instead dealt with by banning the individual concerned from being able to engage in estate agency work. This is the most effective means of protecting consumers.

In 2006, the OFT issued three warning orders and five prohibition orders under the Estate Agents Act 1979. In addition, it obtained four undertakings from estate agents under part 8 of the Enterprise Act 2002, and it also issued 63 advisory or warning letters.

The use of informal actions, such as advisory or warning letters, alongside the formal powers reflects the need for responsible and proportionate enforcement. Formal action against estate agents involves banning them, or threatening to ban them, from estate agency work. Formal action can therefore have significant repercussions in that it can take away an individual's livelihood. Parliament has therefore necessarily made the burden of evidential proof substantial and such action would only be taken in the limited number of cases where the most serious instances of misconduct are not only identified, but clearly established, and where the agent's fitness to continue in estate agency work is seriously called into question.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many notices of warning under the Estate Agents Act 1979 were issued by the Office of Fair Trading in 2006; [131801]

(2) how many notices of prohibition under the Estate Agents Act 1979 were issued by the Office of Fair Trading in 2006. [131802]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 17 April 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave her today to question numbers 131784 and 131785.

Fuel Poverty

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what indexes he uses to measure the impact of Government policy on fuel poverty. [131104]

Malcolm Wicks: A household is said to be in fuel poverty if it needs to spend more than 10 per cent. of its income on fuel to maintain a satisfactory heating regime (usually 21°C for the main living area and 18°C for other occupied rooms). Figures for the number of households in fuel poverty in England are produced from analysis of the English House Condition Survey and published annually alongside figures from the Devolved Administrations in the UK Fuel Poverty Annual Progress Report.

In addition to the total number of households in fuel poverty, the English House Condition Survey is used to give detailed breakdowns of households in fuel poverty. The individual data records from the survey are also used for further analysis to assess the effectiveness of current policy and the impact of possible future policy options.

Government also actively reviews the assistance provided by the warm front scheme, the main programme designed to tackle fuel poverty in England, to ensure it is as effective as possible in reducing fuel poverty. A number of steps were taken to increase the impact of the scheme in 2005 including an increase in grant maxima and a wider provision of gas central heating. All actions are laid out in the Fuel Poverty Action Plan, published in 2004.

Medical Research Council

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) to what extent preferences shown by members of the public may influence the research priorities set by the Medical Research Council; [132219]

(2) what (a) process and (b) decision-making criteria will be used to set research funding priorities for the Medical Research Council in each of the next three years; and what the timetable is for the setting of those priorities in each year. [132222]

Malcolm Wicks: The MRC will set its research priorities for the three years from 2008-09 to 2010-11 building upon its extensive consultation with stakeholders, including the research community, other Research Councils, Government Departments, the national health service (NHS), industry and the public. The detailed research priorities will be developed by the MRC's research boards and, where appropriate, involving the Office of Strategic Coordination of Health Research (OSCHR), and will be finalised once the MRC's allocation from the Science Budget is known.

The decision-making criteria include scientific opportunity, the impact of research on improving human health, the tractability of the area, the potential for exploitation, and opportunities for research training.

The timetable covers:

When the science budget allocation to the MRC from CSR 2007 is made, the MRC will prepare a strategic plan for the four years 2008-09 to 2011-12. This is likely to be published towards the end of 2007 or early in 2008.

Priorities will continue to be reviewed during the next three years as described. Future MRC delivery plans will be published in April/May of each year. Any new priorities that arise in-between times will be announced on the MRC website.

The MRC has a range of longstanding mechanisms to sustain dialogue with the general public, to capture and use public opinion and attitudes in developing research priorities, corporate and communications objectives. These include a requirement of a lay representation on the steering committees, public and patient involvement in numerous committees, workshops and panels. The MRC also holds annual public meetings. In addition, the MRC has a programme of public consultations, often in collaboration with other research councils under the RCUK banner, which allow MRC to gauge public attitudes to, awareness and expectations of the research areas and some examples include the use of animals in research; research using human embryos; ageing research; and the use of personal health information for research.

The MRC set up in 2000 a consumer liaison group for developing public and patient involvement, which became the Advisory Group on Public Involvement in 2003. The MRC is currently developing a public panel that would assist the setting up a network of lay experts.

Mining: Compensation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps have been taken to ensure that the arrangements governing the payment of compensation payments to former miners minimises the cost of processing overheads. [133381]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department continually strives to achieve efficiency savings in the cost of running the schemes. For example, we have recently had some success in our appeal of the respiratory disease fast-track solicitors cost. This ruling will result in an estimated £99 million saving.

The fast-track process for respiratory disease claims should reduce claims processing costs by £150 million and shorten the scheme by two years.

A programme of efficiency improvements at the Department's claims handlers, Capita, saved 12m during 2005 and is estimated to have saved an additional 6m since.

The National Audit Office is also carrying out a value for money review of the Department's administration of the coal health compensation schemes. The report is anticipated during the summer.

Packaging

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to minimise the generation of packaging for consumer goods including food. [133515]

Malcolm Wicks: The Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended) require that packaging volume and weight must be the minimum adequate amount to maintain necessary levels of safety, hygiene and acceptance for the packed product and for the consumer. As regards to discussions with producers of packaging, I refer to the reply given by my noble Friend the Minister for Energy in another place on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column WA117.

Post Offices: ICT

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the Horizon computer system used by the Post Office; and if he will make a statement. [132756]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend has received no recent formal representations about Post Office Ltd.'s Horizon computer system but the Department does occasionally receive correspondence about technical problems with the Horizon system at individual offices. Operational responsibility for Horizon rests with Post Office Ltd.

Public Holidays

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make St. George's Day a bank holiday in England. [132753]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The present pattern of bank holidays in the United Kingdom is well established and accepted, and the Government have no plans to change the arrangements.

Public Holidays: EC Action

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with his European Union counterparts concerning harmonising the number of bank holidays taken each year in member states; and if he will make a statement. [132755]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Public holidays throughout the European Union reflect the different histories and traditions of the countries concerned and vary from country to country.

The European Union average is 11 days and in some member states, for example Germany, entitlement to time off for a bank holiday is lost, if it falls at a weekend. In the United Kingdom if it falls at a weekend we have an alternative day off.

The present pattern of bank and public holidays is well established and accepted, and the Government have no current plans to change the arrangements or to discuss harmonisation with the member states.

However because some employers currently include the eight bank holidays as part of workers' statutory 20-day annual leave entitlement, we intend to make time off for bank holidays additional to this entitlement.

Regional Development Agencies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for South Holland and the Deepings of 11 January 2007, Official Report, column 738W, on regional development agencies, what the addresses are of each of the regional development agencies' overseas offices. [130582]

Renewable Energy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to reduce the burden of administration for micro-energy producers who wish to sell energy to the National Grid; and if he will make a statement. [132076]

Malcolm Wicks: The Climate Change and Sustainability Act 2006 gives the Government the power to modify supply licences to ensure that energy suppliers offer to acquire electricity generated by microgenerators. These powers come into being in August 2007 and the Government intend to make use of these powers, subject to appropriate consultation, if the energy suppliers do not appear to be moving in this direction.

In the 2007 Budget, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor asked OFGEM to examine how homes that generate more electricity than they consume can benefit more from exporting electricity back to the network.

Research Councils: Finance

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the announcements in the Budget about science funding, what funds are to be made available to the research councils for research funding in each of the next four years. [132771]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Research Councils allocation from the science budget for 2007-08 totals £2.8 billion. This is set out in the allocations booklet "Science Budget allocations 2005-06 to 2007-08" and can be found at:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file14994.pdf

On 21 March the Budget 2007 announced the CSR07 settlement for the Science budget for the three years 2008-09 to 2010-11. Decisions on the individual allocations to Research Councils and other science budget programmes for these years have not yet been made.

Seals: EC Action

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with European Union colleagues on a ban on the importation of (a) harp and (b) hooded seal products into the EU; and if he will make a statement. [131100]

Mr. McCartney: I have jointly written with my hon. Friend, the Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare, to Commissioner Dimas, the EU Commissioner for the Environment urging him to extend the current EU-wide ban on listed products of Harp and Hooded seal pups to seals of all ages. We have also written to our Trade and Agricultural Ministerial counterparts in EU member states requesting their support. This has been followed up by Embassy officials. Support so far has been encouraging with very few member states opposing our request.

Small Businesses: Greater London

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to improve the competitiveness of small retail businesses in London; and if he will make a statement. [127846]

Margaret Hodge: Responsibility for improving the competitiveness of small businesses in London has been largely devolved to the London Development Agency.

The LDA through funding from the DTI pursues regional economic development and regeneration to reduce economic imbalances and improve competitiveness as well as providing publicly funded business support through Business Link. Small retailers are eligible for the same range of support measures as other small businesses.

The DTI Retail Unit also works with the sector to raise its productivity and improve its competitiveness by facilitating better regulation, incentivising innovation and encouraging good practice in areas such as skills, employment, international trade and environmental sustainability.

Stem Cells: Research

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the evidential basis was for the statement made by Sir David King at a public seminar organised by the Science and Technology Committee that extracting stem cells from human-animal hybrid embryos would enable scientists to learn more about diseases such as Alzheimer's; and if he will make a statement. [130836]

Malcolm Wicks: Because of their ability to differentiate into different cells and tissues, it is generally recognised by the scientific community that stem cells hold potential for the development of new cellular based treatments for diseases and injuries such as spinal cord injuries, Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's, diabetes and heart tissue damaged after a heart attack.

The Government's position is that if we are to find treatments and cures for currently unbeatable diseases, it is important that we do not unnecessarily restrict research avenues that might enable us to learn more about the development of stem cells. Such research must be carried out within a suitable regulatory framework that results from an open debate with the public and the research community and commands broad public support. We welcome the Science and Technology Committee's contribution to this conversation.

As Sir David King is an independent chief scientific advisor, the hon. Member for Southend, West may wish to write to him to seek further information regarding his discussion at the seminar.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which hospitals in London are considering reconfiguration of accident and emergency departments. [132790]

Andy Burnham: Any proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally.

There is an established and clear process for managing formal public consultations on proposals for major service change so that the public and other stakeholders can help to inform the local debate.

Care Homes

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish (a) her Department's response to the consultation on the draft national framework for continuing care and (b) the final national framework for continuing care. [131945]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: On 14 March I announced my intention to publish new national guidance around eligibility for NHS continuing care in June. This will respond to issues raised during the consultation and set out the new national framework.

Chester-Le-Street Community Hospital

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she decided to visit the Chester-le-Street Community hospital on 9 March 2007; when her Department informed the hospital of her visit; and what the cost of the visit was. [127561]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State decided to visit Chester-le-Street Community hospital on 8 March 2007.

County Durham PCT suggested that the Secretary of State visit Chester-le-Street hospital on 7 March. This followed a request from the Department of Health, and in turn NHS North East.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

Deep Vein Thrombosis

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of deep vein thrombosis were recorded in each health authority in England in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many there were in each of the last five years. [131175]

Caroline Flint: The information is in the following table.

[2] The figures are based on any diagnosis rather than main or principle diagnosis. They do not include cases treated by their general practitioner or as an out-patient.

The number of deaths with a mention of either pulmonary embolism or deep vein thrombosis[1] in England are:

Dental Services: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) net primary dental service allocation and (b) allocation for possible patient charge income was for Eastbourne Downs Primary Care Trust in 2006-07. [130973]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A table listing the Primary Dental Service Resource Allocations for 2006-07 for all primary care trusts (PCTs) in England as 31 July 2006 is available in the Library. This set out the net allocations awarded to PCTs and the assumed gross budgets based on illustrative assumptions about levels of patient charge income for each PCT. Strategic health authorities agreed with their PCTs locally how these allocations would be redistributed within the new PCT areas that took effect from 1 October 2006.

Dental Services: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the provision of NHS dentistry in Hertfordshire. [128044]

Ms Rosie Winterton: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not made any assessment of the dental services in Hertfordshire. It is the responsibility of the primary care trusts to commission services to meet the needs of the population that they serve, this includes the provision of dental services.

Departments: Paper

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to ensure her Department's economical use of paper. [128006]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's overall policy is to reduce volume and wastage of paper used and therefore reduce expenditure.

The Department enters into European Union approved procurement procedures in order to attain the best value for money for paper products that conform to the requirement to purchase paper from renewable sources. It is purchased centrally to maximise savings achieved.

Our reprographics supplier is instructed only to use paper from renewable sources that meet our requirement and price and that all outputs are produced double-sided as standard.

The Department has also introduced an electronic filing system that negates the need for keeping paper copies and is reducing the number of available storage cabinets in our offices.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings took place between Ministers in her Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131032]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by her Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130146]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not available.

Departments: Railways

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of travel by train by staff on official business in her Department in each year since 1997. [128043]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The available information up to 2003-04 is shown in the following table. In April 2004, the Department introduced a new accounting system. Under the new accounting system information on train travel costs cannot be separated from other travel and subsistence costs without incurring disproportionate costs.

Dermatology

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of secondary care referral reductions on the future training of doctors aiming to become consultant dermatologists. [128726]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No such assessment has been carried out by the Department as this is for local determination.

Doctors: Training

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been paid to the Work Psychology Partnership in connection with the medical training application service. [128713]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is a contract in place between the Department and Work Psychology Partnership for the sum of £92,950 excluding VAT. Work Psychology Partnership are contracted to provide advice and tools to support the recruitment and selection into specialty training programmes, for which the Medical Training Application Service facilitates applications.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on the Medical Training Application Service (MTAS); and how much has been allocated to MTAS for 2007-08. [128715]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The cost of the Medical Training Application Service (including set up costs) is £1.9 million in 2006-07. The budgets for 2007-08 have not yet been agreed.

Elderly: Nutrition

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to ensure that patients in hospital over the age of 65 years receive an appropriate diet; and if she will make a statement. [118254]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: An appropriate diet requires good food with the right nutritional content, properly prepared and available when patients need it.

The National Health Service Plan stipulated that dieticians should advise and check on nutritional values in hospital food. Nutritional information is available for all recipes in the national dish selector, and this can be used to assess local nutritional levels. Ingredients specifications for the recipes have been developed by the Purchasing and Supply Agency to ensure that wholesome, high quality and value-for-money ingredients are used.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) Strategic Plan for 2005-10 includes a commitment to support other Government Departments to set targets to improve the nutritional quality of meals served in major institutions. Work is under way to develop nutrient and food based guidance for institutions that will support cross-Government action on diet and food procurement. The first set of guidance, including an example menu, for those providing food to older people in residential care who do not have specific diet-related medical needs, was published by the FSA in October 2006.

The quality of hospital food is measured annually via patient environment action team (PEAT) assessments. These showed an increase from 17 per cent., good in 2002 to over 34 per cent., excellent in 2005-06. (There was no excellent category in 2002, when a three-point scale was used).

Older people in hospital may prefer to eat little and often, and this was provided for in the NHS Plan. For the last year in which statistics were collected (2004), 89 per cent. of hospitals had introduced ward kitchen services to provide light snacks, 80 per cent. were providing snack boxes for patients who missed a meal and 84 per cent. provided extra snacks during the day.

It is known that older people in hospital are vulnerable to malnutrition. To identify and deal with patients at risk, we have introduced protected mealtimes and have renewed the emphasis on nutritional screening. These two areas of work are being actively pursued by the National Patient Safety Agency.

I announced a national action plan on 14 March 2007 to tackle the issue of older people and nutrition more generally. The action plan followed a nutrition summit on the same day, attended by leading charities, clinicians, nutrition experts and care home representatives. It will be further worked up in close consultation with frontline workers.

Fibromyalgia

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has commissioned into the causes and treatment of fibromyalgia; and if she will make a statement. [132073]

Caroline Flint: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's expenditure on health research has been allocated to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual projects supported in the NHS, including a significant number concerned with fibromyalgia, can be found on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is not currently funding research specifically into fibromyalgia although some basic research currently being undertaken will help develop our understanding of the condition.

Good Hope Hospital

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses were employed at Good Hope hospital in each of the last 10 years. [107633]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is set out in the following table.

GPs: Training

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when general practitioner trainers will receive payments for the 2006-07 financial year for continuing professional development; and if she will make a statement. [128687]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In its 34th report the doctors' and dentists' review body recommended a £750 supplement for general practitioner trainers to boost their continuing professional development. It is for strategic health authorities to meet this commitment.

Health Professions: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) dentists, (b) opticians and (c) general practitioners there were in Bexley in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [127649]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested can be found in the following tables.

Table 1 shows data on the number of dentists as at 31 March 1997 and 2006 based on the old contractual arrangements.

Table 1: general dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS): numbers of national health service dentists in Bexley Care Trust and Bexleyheath and Crayford parliamentary constituency

	1997	2006
Bexley Care Trust	92	102
Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency	34	9

Notes:
1. The postcode of the dental practice was used to allocate dentists to specific geographic areas. Constituency and primary care trust (PCT) areas have been defined using the Office for National Statistics All Fields Postcode Directory.
2. Dentists consist of principals, assistant and trainees. Information on national health service dentistry in the community dental service, in hospitals and in prisons are excluded.
3. The data in this report are based on NHS dentists on PCT lists. These details were passed on to the BSA who paid dentists based on activity undertaken. A dentist can provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses or has agreed with the PCT. In some cases an NHS dentist may appear on a PCT list but not perform any NHS work in that period. Most NHS dentists do some private work. The data do not take into account the proportion of NHS work undertaken.
4. Figures for the numbers of dentists at specified dates may vary depending on the date the figures are compiled. This is because the NHS Business Services Authority (BSA) may be notified of joiners or leavers to or from the up to several months, or more, after the move has taken place.
5. Constituency and PCT data include all dentists practising in that area. Some dentists may have an open GDS or PDS contract in more than one constituency and therefore they have been counted more than once.
6. The boundaries used are as at 31 March 2006.

Heart Diseases: Medical Equipment

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) why the cost of stent devices used in endovascular repair of aortic aneurysm is met by primary care trusts; and if she will make a statement; [122631]

(2) what recent representations she has received on the inclusion of the stent device used in endovascular repair of aortic aneurysm on the list of exclusions from payment by results funding. [122640]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In consultation with the national health service and industry, the list of drug and device exclusions from the payment by results has been increased. This ensures that care which includes the use of expensive drugs and/or devices is adequately rewarded. This is part of an annual cycle, which aims to ensure the tariff takes account of the introduction of new drugs and devices.

The payment by results team have had representations about the funding of endovascular repair of aortic aneurysms under tariff. These include queries direct from clinicians, and through a questionnaire issued last year to seek feedback from the NHS on the funding of specialised services. Aortic stents are excluded from payment by results in order to help address these concerns. The Department has had no representations that the exclusion of aortic stents is inappropriate.

Hospitals: Infections

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital-acquired infections were diagnosed in each year between 1997 and 2006, broken down by type of infection in each strategic health authority. [130956]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available. The best available information is from the mandatory surveillance system, which provides data on the number of reports of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections (bacteraemias) from April 2001 to 31 March 2006, the number of reports of Clostridium difficile for patients aged 65 and over from January 2004 to September 2006 are shown in the table and the number of glycopeptide resistant enterococci (GRE) blood stream infections from 1 October 2003 to 30 September 2005.

Data has been extracted from "HCAI: Quarterly Reporting Results for Clostridium difficile Infections and MRSA Bacteraemia", as published in January 2007. Data for glycopeptides resistant enterococci blood stream infections was extracted from the mandatory surveillance of the healthcare associated infection report 2006 published in July 2006.

[2] One trust missing data for two quarters.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 1012W, on hospitals: infectious disease, if she will publish the evidential basis for her statement that recent information suggests no difference between in-house and contract cleaning with respect to hospital-acquired infections; when she first asked for studies into the possible links between hospitals with different cleaning arrangements and (a) MRSA and (d) clostridium difficile; when officials in her Department first received the results of these studies; and if she will place copies of the results of these studies in the Library. [130411]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Preliminary statistical analysis suggests that, other things being equal, hospitals with contract cleaning do not have statistically significantly different rates of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) bacteraemia (bloodstream infection) to those with in-house cleaning. This is the result of on-going analysis by the Department into the relationship between MRSA rates and a variety of hospital characteristics, the results of which will be finalised and published later this year. Preliminary analysis also suggests that there is also no significant relationship between type of cleaning service and clostridium difficile rates.

This work was not formally commissioned but statistical analysis has been ongoing since 2004 and Ministers have been kept informed of emerging results since that time. This work forms part of ongoing work in the Department aimed at better understanding variations in health care associated infections and their implications for policy.

Male Health

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to ensure the accuracy of self-reporting of health conditions of (a) UK Irish men and (b) white British men living in England. [117517]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is committed to tackling gender inequalities within the health and social care sector by recognising the specific health needs of men and women. The Department commissioned the Men's Health Forum to work with five primary care trusts (PCTs) to develop a tool to assist PCTs in providing gender sensitive services, which was launched in November 2006.

The Department is also seeking to raise the quality of ethnicity data in healthcare. In July 2005, we published guidance on ethnicity monitoring of national health service patients and social care users, confirming the use of Office for National Statistics codes for ethnic group, which include white British and white Irish. The guidance states that trusts should not, for data collection purposes, group white British and white Irish codes into one, as this will prevent trusts from monitoring the particular health inequalities experienced by Irish men and women.

Maternity Services: Gravesham

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future provision of ante-natal services available to patients in Gravesham. [130996]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This a matter for the local national health service. However in Gravesham, as elsewhere in the country, we would expect NHS organisations to follow the maternity standard of the children's national service framework and the guidelines on antenatal care published in 2003 by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). In terms of antenatal education, the guidelines confirm that there are many different ways of providing classes and antenatal education. Variations can occur in the number of classes offered, their content, whether they are offered individually or in groups, and when during the course of the pregnancy they are offered.

NHS Direct

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors her Department took into account when deciding to withdraw funding from BestTreatments, the health information resource for patients which has been available online on the NHS Direct website; and if she will make a statement. [111917]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department of Health is committed to providing patients and the public with the information they need to make informed decisions about their health, but needs to target resources where they will be most effective. The reasons for the decision were that the contract for "Best Treatments" had expired and the service no longer represented value for money.

The Department will ensure that patients have access to the information that they need by developing new on-line and telephone based resources, through partnerships with libraries, through our new information prescriptions and by accrediting third party producers of information. In this way, the Department will help people to find the excellent information that is already available rather than duplicate production and assure people that the information they access is reliable and relevant to them.

NHS: Intimidation

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints of harassment or bullying have been made by employees of the NHS; and what steps have been taken (a) to deal with and (b) to eradicate it. [119840]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Healthcare Commission's National Health Service Staff Survey was published on 30 March. The survey records staff experiences of violence and bullying. The results can be found on the Healthcare Commission's website:

www.healthcarecommission.org.uk/newsandevents/pressreleases.cfm/cit_id/5334/FAArea1/customWidgets.content_view_1/usecache/false

The NHS Security Management Service (NHS SMS) is part of the Counter Fraud and Security Management Service (CFSMS), a division of the NHS Business Service Authority (a Special Health Authority), and has overall responsibility for all policy and operational matters related to the management of security in the NHS including bullying and violence against staff.

Guidance on reporting and dealing with non-physical assaults against NHS staff and professionals was issued to health bodies in November 2004. From 1 April 2004, a national syllabus for conflict resolution training (CRT) has been made available for all frontline staff and professionals working in the NHS. The aim is to equip staff with the necessary skills to be able to identify and de-escalate potentially violent situations from occurring in the first place. Returns from health bodies for the financial year 2005-06 indicate that around 250,000 frontline staff have been trained in conflict resolution skills, to date.

Research on the conflict resolution training programme delivered to NHS frontline staff produced extremely encouraging results which have been published in February 2007. The results from the two-year study indicated that CRT had a positive impact on respondents' perceptions of safety, their experiences of abuse and their perceived abilities to deal with abuse at work. The full report on the findings is available at www.cfsms.nhs.uk.

On Wednesday 1 November, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health, announced an increase of 12 per cent. in the number of people prosecuted for assaults against NHS staff, from 759 in 2004-05 to 850 in 2005-06. This shows a marked increase on the reported 51 criminal sanctions for the 2002-03 period.

Figures for the number of reported assaults against NHS staff were also released on 1 November 2006. The statistics show there were 58,695 physical assaults against NHS staff reported in England, 1,690 fewer than 2004-05—and one for every 23 staff members, down from 22 in 2004-05.

NHS: Public Appointments

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether residency in the catchment area is a criterion used in the appointment of members of NHS trust boards; and what guidelines she has issued to strategic health authorities on appointments to NHS trust boards. [120933]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The appointment of chairs and non-executive directors of national health service trusts has been delegated by the Secretary of State for Health to the Appointments Commission. She has directed the Commission to appoint people, where possible, who live in the area served by the NHS trust.

Nurses: Pay

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the percentage increase in nurses' pay was in each year since 1997. [125276]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 6 March 2007]: The following table shows pay recommendations of the review body for nursing and other health professions for qualified nurses, the pay uplift awarded in year and the change in average qualified nurses' earnings per head. Average earnings growth differs from the basic pay uplift as a result of net pay drift and investment in pay reform.

	Main nursing and other health professional review body recommendation	Pay uplift awarded	Percentage Change in average qualified nurses earnings per head

[2] 2006-07 and 2007-08 earnings growth figures are projections and are subject to change.
Note:
For 1997-98 the information was not collected.

Physiotherapy: Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many trainee physiotherapists she expects to qualify in each of the next three years. [128332]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Prostate Cancer

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many clinical nurse specialists are working with prostate cancer patients in the NHS. [128513]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Specialist cancer nurses are not separately identified in the census from the rest of the nursing workforce.

Sickle Cell Diseases

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people were diagnosed with sickle cell disease and related disorders in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; [133527]

(2) how many people have been diagnosed with sickle cell disease and related disorders in each region in England; and how much was spent on their care per capita in each of the last five years. [133530]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect this information.

Special Advisers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 872W, on special advisers, whether (a) she and (b) officials in her Department have received notices of external employment from her special advisers in the last 12 months. [130412]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have nothing further to add to the answer given on 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 872W.

Treatment Notices

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether any patient surveys have been undertaken on the usefulness to NHS patients of notices sent to them on forthcoming treatments. [109477]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We are not aware of any recent national surveys. The national patient survey programme, which asks patients about their experience of national health service care, does not request this information.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many intervention orders have been applied as part of an antisocial behaviour order in (a) Bristol local authority and (b) each Respect Action area since this power came into effect on 1 October 2006. [132154]

Mr. McNulty: Data on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued at all courts are currently available covering the period up to 31 December 2005. Data for subsequent periods will be published in due course. However, as I made clear in a written ministerial statement on 7 December 2006, Official Report, column 30WS, this data do not cover intervention orders. A new national system for collecting data on ASBOs centrally is scheduled for implementation from 1 July, and will incorporate new reporting requirements, including data on intervention orders which will be available at Criminal Justice System area level.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers or publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic was of each. [130007]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not hold the information, at the requested level of detail, in a readily accessible form. An answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Neither does the Department retain records of how much its contractors spend with particular media outlets, for example the Central Office of Information, who manage most of the Department's publicity campaigns.

Departments: Counselling

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of counselling, assessment, referral, advice and throughcare services are delivered by (a) external drug agencies, (b) prison officers and (c) health care staff. [132416]

Mr. Sutcliffe: External drug agencies deliver 77 per cent. worth of the total value of counselling, assessment, referral, advice and throughcare services (CARATs) and 23 per cent. is delivered by prison staff. Health care staff do not deliver CARATs services.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1222W, on domestic violence, if he will provide Table 2 referred to in the answer. [133239]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I apologise for the omission of the table concerned. This was due to an administrative oversight. The following table shows the number of convictions for domestic violence cases.

Table 2: Proceedings for domestic violence for 2005 and 2006

Fingerprints: ICT

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the cost of the mobile fingerprint scanner pilot project codenamed Lantern. [132954]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Lantern pilot runs for 12 months (up to December 2007) and the cost of providing the technology, upgrading the IDENT1 search capability (capability that can be re-used throughout the full IDENT1 contract life), training and service for the 10 pilot forces is £2.6 million.

ICT: Home Office

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total cost was of updating his Department's Large Major Enquiry System 2 computer system to Version 11. [132955]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Version 11 Upgrade to HOLMES 2, which included the refresh of the free text retrieval package, cost £585,836. PITO paid £302,486 and the forces contributed £283,350 via a centrally managed uplift fund. This included £165,855 for CasWeb which is part of HOLMES 2.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to minimise the migration to the UK of unskilled workers. [132003]

Mr. Byrne: The Government's Five Year Strategy on Asylum and Immigration, published in February 2005, stated that existing low-skilled migration schemes for non-EEA nationals would be phased out in the light of the availability of workers from the enlarged European Union. The quota for Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme (SAWS) was cut from 25,000 in 2004 to 16,250 in the following three years. The quota for the Sectors Based Scheme (SBS) was cut from 20,000 in 2003-04 to 15,000 in 2004-05 and to 3,500 in the following years with the termination of the SBS quota for the hospitality sector altogether in July 2005.

The Government have subsequently announced that the SAWS will be phased out in 2010 and, in the meantime, both the SAWS and the SBS will move to being restricted to Bulgarian and Romanian nationals while quota restrictions on those countries nationals' access to low skilled work in the United Kingdom are in force.

The Government have stated that if there is a need to admit non-EEA nationals to meet labour shortages at low skill levels in particular sectors in the future, quota-based schemes will be established under Tier 3 of the Points Based System for this purpose. It will for the Migration Advisory Committee to identify whether there is a case for doing so for any particular sector. Following the recent expansion of the EU and the continuing restrictions on low skilled labour from Romania and Bulgaria, a Tier 3 scheme is unlikely to be needed in the short-term.

Migrant Workers

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to promote the migration to the UK of skilled workers. [132002]

Mr. Byrne: There are a number of existing schemes to facilitate the entry of skilled workers to the UK labour market, the primary ones being the highly skilled migrant programme and the work permit system.

A new points-based system, which will apply to all work and study routes, will be phased in from early 2008.

Tier 1 of the system, which caters for highly skilled migrants such as scientists and entrepreneurs, will be launched at the beginning of 2008;

Tier 2, targeting skilled workers with a job offer and Tier 5, for youth mobility and temporary workers, will come on line in the third quarter of 2008; and

Tier 4, for students, will follow at the beginning of 2009.

A system of sponsorship by employers and educational institutions to ensure compliance with the immigration rules is also being introduced as part of the new system at the beginning of next year.

The points-based system will enable the Government to manage migration to the UK more effectively, tackle abuse and attract the most talented workers into the UK economy.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many staff in his Department are working on establishing and maintaining the new system of restrictions on workers from Romania and Bulgaria; [106188]

(2) what estimate has been made of the cost to his Department of establishing and maintaining the new system of restrictions on workers from Romania and Bulgaria. [106189]

Mr. Byrne: Firstly I wish to apologise for the delay in responding.

There is a dedicated Home Office unit, based in Sheffield, responsible for establishing and maintaining the new scheme to maintain limits on access to the labour market by nationals of Bulgaria and Romania, and issuing documentation to those who meet the necessary criteria. They were assisted in the initial establishment of their work by colleagues from around the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) as preparations were made to reflect the accession of the two countries in all aspects of IND's work.

The costs of establishing the scheme are estimated to be approximately £1.6 million, broken down as follows:

	£ million
Scheme set-up costs	1.11
Informing employers	0.24
Informing Bulgarian and Romanian nationals	0.23

Estimated costs for running this scheme for 2007 are £1.45 million. This is in addition to the £1.6 million for establishing the scheme detailed above.

National Appropriate Adult Network: Finance

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much funding was given to (a) the National Appropriate Adult Network and (b) the Independent Custody Visitors Association, in each of the last three financial years; [130436]

(2) what the projected funding allocation for (a) the National Appropriate Adult Network and (b) the Independent Custody Visitors Association is for each of the next two financial years. [130437]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The following funding has been provided by the Home Office for the financial years 2004-05 to 2006-07.

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
(a) National Appropriate Adult Network	50,000	100,000	75,000
(b) Independent Custody Visiting Association	187,500	57,996	150,000

I understand that NAAN receives regular income from their membership (statutory or voluntary/commercial appropriate adult schemes) and have also successfully obtained grant funding from grant-making bodies such as the Rowntree Foundation. ICVA also receives income from membership fees (police authorities) and has generated additional revenue through the provision of services with the Scottish Executive, the NIO and overseas.

The Home Office has recently been working with NAAN, ICVA and the Association of Police Authorities to review the existing provisions of services and the roles and functions of both organisations.

Funding for 2007-08 and 2008-09 is not yet finalised.

Northallerton Young Offender Institution

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison staff at HM Young Offenders Institution Northallerton have been dismissed or disciplined in each year from 2001-02 to 2006-07 following successful claims for compensation by prisoners. [132615]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 19 April 2007]: In the public sector Prison Service, information relating to prisoner litigation claims has only been recorded centrally since 2004-05. According to these centrally held records, no prison staff at HM Young Offenders Institute Northallerton have been dismissed or disciplined following successful claims for compensation by prisoners.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims for compensation were made by prisoners at HM Young Offenders Institution Northallerton from 2001 to 2006; how many have been successful; and what action was taken by the prison authorities in each case to prevent similar claims in the future. [132616]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 19 April 2007]: Figures available centrally indicate that between 2004-05 and 2006-07, Northallerton received four litigation claims from prisoners. During the same period three of those claims were settled out of court. Figures prior to 2004-05 were not recorded centrally.

Each case is dealt with on its own merits and any remedial action that is identified to minimise further successful claims is, where appropriate, implemented.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why his Department agreed a £575,000 compensation settlement to an inmate of HM Young Offender Institution Northallerton; and if he will make a statement. [132748]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 19 April 2007]: The Prison Service settled the case following a full analysis of all the evidence, based on strong legal advice from the Home Office appointed solicitor and barrister. The value of the settlement was determined by the available medical evidence and the Judicial Studies Board guidelines on general damages. The claim was settled in order to minimise costs to the taxpayer because if the claim had proceeded to court it would have resulted in considerably more expense to the public purse.

Knife Crime

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of knife crime were reported in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England and Wales in each year since 1997. [131275]

Mr. Coaker: From the information collected on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify those offences which are knife related. Such offences are not specifically defined by statute and details of the individual circumstances of offences do not feature in the recorded crime statistics.

Figures are collected for homicides involving the use of sharp instruments but they do not separately identify knife-related offences. As from April 2007, police forces will provide data on knife-enabled grievous bodily harm and robbery offences.

Pentonville Prison

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who the Commissioning Authority is for (a) the investigation into staff corruption at HM Prison Pentonville and (b) the Tasker inquiry; and if he will make a statement. [132975]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no single over-arching investigation into corruption at HMP Pentonville. The Governor of Pentonville has however commissioned a number of investigations into allegations of staff corruption at the prison.

The Area Manager for London is the commissioning authority for the Tasker report.

Police: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what policing costs associated with the wedding of Elizabeth Hurley and Arun Nayar were met by (a) Gloucestershire police and (b) the organisers of the event. [132517]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable of Gloucestershire Constabulary.

Police: Translation Services

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on translation services for foreign suspects by each police force in each year between 1997 and 2006. [132827]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to a question from the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1636W.

Prisoners Release

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders given life sentences since 2000 have already been released. [132067]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Answering the question would involve a significant manual checking of records and the earlier request for this information was integral to informing the need for a data quality review in the Department. Since then the data quality review has begun and, as part of that review we are developing a new database that will enable us to collect the data requested centrally. But, at this time, to answer the question would involve a disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drug rehabilitation programmes are provided within prison establishments; and how many of these have dedicated accommodation. [132418]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are currently 116 intensive drug rehabilitation programmes running across the prison estate. Information on the number of establishments with dedicated accommodation is not held centrally.

Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his Department's decision to phase out the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme in 2010. [132082]

Mr. Byrne: The Government's Five Year Strategy on Asylum and Immigration, published in February 2005, stated that existing low-skilled migration schemes for non-EEA nationals would be phased out in the light of the availability of workers from the enlarged European Union.

The Government have subsequently announced that the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme will be phased out in 2010 and, in the meantime, will move to it being restricted to Bulgarian and Romanian nationals while quota restrictions on those countries nationals' access to low skilled work in the United Kingdom are in force.

The Government have stated that if there is a need to admit non-EEA nationals to meet labour shortages at low skill levels in particular sectors in the future, quota-based schemes will be established under Tier 3 of the Points Based System for this purpose. It will be for the Migration Advisory Committee to identify whether there is a case for doing so for any particular sector. Following the recent expansion of the EU and the continuing restrictions on low skilled labour from Romania and Bulgaria, a Tier 3 scheme is unlikely to be needed in the short-term.

Thehbian Salin

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Mr. Thehbian Salin as referred to in the question tabled by the hon. Member for Penrith and the Border on 6 October 2006 has been deported. [127232]

Mr. Byrne: It is not our policy to comment on individual cases.

Tolls: Cameras

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether proposals to integrate cameras from (a) congestion charging and (b) road pricing schemes into the automated number plate recognition scheme have been considered. [129504]

Mr. McNulty: The police use of automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) technology is an intelligence-led tool aimed primarily at tackling serious and organised crime and terrorism. It is entirely separate from proposals being developed by the Department for Transport for local road pricing schemes.

The Metropolitan police have approached Transport for London about the feasibility of using London congestion charging cameras for safeguarding the security of the general public. The terrorist threat we face is real and serious and it is only right that we consider anything which may be of use to us in the fight against terrorism, but no decisions have been made on this matter.

Wandsworth Prison

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects the Tasker Inquiry into the conduct of the previous governor at HM Prison Wandsworth to be completed; and to whom the report will be submitted for consideration. [133020]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Tasker report is now due to be completed by the end of April, and will be submitted to the Area Manager for London for consideration. I have asked to see a summary of the report which will not be published.

Written Questions

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to question number 122841, on Oakhill Secure Training Centre, tabled by the hon. Member for North East Milton Keynes on 20 February. [131176]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 16 April 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 470W.

TREASURY

Census: Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many applications for Freedom of Information Act access to extracts from the 1921 Census were received by the Office for National Statistics (a) between 1 January 2005 and 31 December 2006 and (b) between 1 January and 31 March 2007; and how many of those applications were successful in each period. [131972]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many Freedom of Information Act applications were received by ONS for extracts from the 1921 Census between (a) 1st January 2005 and 31st December 2006 and (b) 1st January 2007 and 31st March 2007; and how many of these applications were successful. (131972)

The Office for National Statistics received 23 and 21 requests for access to 1921 Census returns for these periods, respectively.

In all cases the information requested was withheld under the exemptions available for personal census information.

Child Care Tax Credit

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) each region and (c) each London borough have received childcare credits in each year since their introduction. [132642]

Dawn Primarolo: For information on the number of in-work families receiving the child care element of the working tax credit, broken down by region and local authority, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Eltham (Clive Efford) on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 276W.

Estimates for 2003-04 are only available at regional level as the only data available are for a sample of cases. Any estimates would therefore be unreliable at local authority level.

Childbirth

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government Actuary's Department expects the number of live births to be in (a) England and (b) the UK in each of the next 10 years. [131959]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding what projection has been made of the number of live births in (a) England and (b) the United Kingdom for each of the next ten years. (131959)

The most recent projection of the number of births was produced as part of the 2004-based national population projections published in October 2005. The information requested is available at:

http://www.gad.gov.uk/Population/2004/england/weng04cc.xls for England and http://www.gad.gov.uk/Population/2004/uk/wuk04cc.xls for the United Kingdom.

The next (2006-based) national population projections are scheduled for publication in October 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many live births took place in England in each year since 1997. [131968]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many live births have taken place in England in each year since 1997. (131968)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2005. The table below shows the number of live births that occurred in England each year from 1997 to 2005.

Live births that occurred in England, 1997 to 2005

	Live births
1997	609,513
1998	603,293
1999	590,524
2000	573,832
2001	564,871
2002	566,691
2003	590,900
2004	608,347
2005	614,237

Notes:
1. Data show live births occurring each year that were registered in England. The Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 requires births to be registered in the sub-district in which the baby was born.
2. Data on live births by area of usual residence of mother are routinely published each year in Birth Statistics, Series FM1. Data on live births by area of occurrence are also published but only for maternities taking place in hospitals and not those taking place at home or elsewhere. Hence the figures shown here, based on area of registration, will not exactly match published data.

Childbirth: Registration

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the number of fraudulent applications for birth certificates in each of the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [132086]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Registrar General, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As Registrar General for England and Wales I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question requesting an estimate of the number of fraudulent applications for birth certificates in each of the last four years. (132086)

Current legislation allows individuals, if they are able to provide sufficient information of a particular birth, to obtain a certified copy of that event from either the General Register Office (GRO) or from the local register office. There is therefore no need for an individual to act fraudulently to obtain a birth certificate. However a birth record is not evidence of identity and certificates printed since 1993 contain a warning to that effect.

Very small numbers of births are found to be improperly registered either because no birth event has taken place or the person registering the birth is falsely claiming to be a parent. We are aware of no more than 50 instances of one kind or the other in the past 4 years.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132191]

John Healey: The Treasury's internal guidance on hospitality at public expense only applies to functions with external guests present and normally takes the form of lunch or dinner. Casual drinks do not qualify for reimbursement.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department has a visitors' book or other such log of all visitors. [133432]

John Healey: No.

Economic Growth

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average rate of productivity growth in (a) the private manufacturing sector and (b) the private services sector in the UK was in each year since May 1997. [133220]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 23 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what the average rate of productivity growth in (a) the private manufacturing sector and (b) the private services sector in the UK has been since May. I am replying in her absence. (133220)

The UK does not currently publish Productivity estimates with a public/private split. Details for the whole of Manufacturing and Services can be found on the National Statistics website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk/productivity.

In response to user demand, as an article in the March 2007 edition of the Economic and Labour Market Review, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) has introduced two new experimental series measuring productivity in the market sector. These can be found on the National Statistics website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk/cci/article.asp?id=1742.

The ONS is also developing productivity estimates for key public services, in particular health, education, adult social care and the administration of social security. The latest information can be found at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/specific/PublicSector/output/default.asp.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of vehicles in band G for vehicle excise duty (VED) which (a) will be affected by the increase in duty announced in the Budget and (b) are registered each year; and what estimate he has made of the number of vehicles which he expects to be paying band G VED in (i) 2008, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11. [130622]

John Healey: The band G rate of CO_2 emissions graduated vehicle excise duty was introduced in Budget 2006 for cars registered from 23 March 2006 onwards and was increased in Budget 2007 to provide a signal to motorists of the environmental impacts of their potential choice.

It is estimated that approximately 227,000 vehicles will be affected by the Budget 2007 increase in the band G rate of CO_2 emissions graduated vehicle excise duty. This represents the current stock of vehicles in 2006-07.

The most recent projection is that the number of vehicles within band G would be approximately 310,000 in 2007-08, 460,000 in 2008-09, 605,000 in 2009-10, and 740,000 in 2010-11. The number of vehicles in band G will be lower as result Budget 2007 changes, by approximately 18,000 in 2007-08 and 2008-09 and by approximately 23,000 in 2009-10 and 2010-11, than if no change had been made. The growth in the number of low carbon vehicles is projected to increase.

Gift Aid

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much and what percentage change he expects in the value of charitable giving using the Gift Aid system in the 2007-08 tax year; and if he will make a statement. [132341]

Dawn Primarolo: For Budget forecasting purposes it was assumed that Gift Aid donations would increase by 5.6 per cent. in 2007-08. This corresponds to an increase in total Gift Aid income for charities of approximately £0.4 billion.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) amount and (b) percentage of income charities (i) will receive from tax reclaimed through the Gift Aid system in the 2007-08 tax year if the current level of charitable donations stays the same and (ii) received through Gift Aid in each of the last five tax years; and if he will make a statement. [132342]

Dawn Primarolo: Amounts of repayments to charities of basic rate income tax on Gift Aid donations are published for years up to 2005-06 at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/table10-1.xls

The table will be updated to include the year 2006-07 at the end of April 2007. No estimate has been made of the amount and percentage of income charities will receive from tax reclaimed through the Gift Aid system in the 2007-08 tax year. However, for Budget forecasting purposes it was assumed that Gift Aid donations would increase by 5.6 per cent. in 2007-08.

These amounts are estimated to represent between 1 per cent. and 2 per cent. of total charity income during the last five years.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on the effect of reducing basic rate income tax on the amount of gift aid received by charitable organisations; and if he will make a statement. [132343]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have received several representations regarding the consultation as announced by the Chancellor in the Budget and how that consultation could be best targeted in order to drive up the take up of Gift Aid. A number of meetings have either been held or are planned between officials and sector representative bodies, including the Charity Finance Director's Group, Charity Tax Reform Group and the Institute of Fundraising.

Import Duties

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much in import duties was levied on imports to the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion of the total was paid to the EU. [132804]

John Healey: The amounts of duties levied on imports to the United Kingdom and the proportions paid to the EU in each of the last 10 years are as follows;

	Import duties levied (£ million)	Percentage paid to EU
1997	2,274.0	90
1998	2,119.0	90
1999	1,994.0	90
2000	2,103.6	90
2001	2,109.9	[1]90 & 75
2002	2,044.2	75
2003	1,905.7	75

	Import duties levied (£ million)	Percentage paid to EU
2004	2,064.3	75
2006	2,312.1	75

[1] The percentage that member states were obliged to pay to the EU decreased from 90 per cent. to 75 per cent. during 2001. Of the total import duties levied in that year, £344.2 million attracted the 90 per cent. rate and £1,766.7 million the 75 per cent. rate.

Import Duties: Lighting

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tariffs and duties are levied on low energy light bulbs imported into the UK from Asia. [132875]

Dawn Primarolo: The standard customs duty rate levied on low energy light bulbs imported into the UK is 2.7 per cent. In addition, there is value added tax of 17.5 per cent. Imports of these light bulbs originating in certain Asian countries may qualify for a preferential rate of duty of 0 per cent. The list of potential qualifying countries are:

Brunei - Darussalam
Cambodia Indonesia Laos
Bangladesh
Bhutan Pakistan
India
Maldives
Malaysia Philippines Vietnam
Thailand
Nepal
Sri Lanka.

However, an anti-dumping duty of 66.1 per cent. has been imposed on one type of low energy light bulb when the country of origin is China. The particular product is an electronic compact fluorescent discharge lamp functioning on alternating current (including electronic compact fluorescent discharge lamps functioning on both alternating and direct current) with one or more glass tubes, with all lighting elements and electronic components fixed to the lamp foot, or integrated in the lamp foot. Anti-dumping duty is an import duty imposed in addition to normal customs duty and applies across the EU.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of a 1 per cent. change in the basic rate of income tax in each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [131840]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested can be found in the following table.

	Cost/yield (£ billion)
2007-08	3.7
2008-09	4.5
2009-10	4.7
2010-11	4.9

Figures provided are on an accruals basis.

The estimates are based on the 2004-05 survey of personal incomes projected forward against an indexed baseline which includes the reforms to simplify the income tax and National Insurance system announced at Budget 2007.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioral response to the tax change which could be significant given the scale of the change.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of the removal of the 10 pence tax rate on the incomes of people aged (a) between 60 and 65 years and (b) 65 years and older. [132170]

Dawn Primarolo: The removal of the 10 pence tax rate was part of a package of reform announced in Budget 2007, which also included reducing the basic rate of income tax from 22p to 20p, increasing aged personal allowances, aligning the Upper Earnings Limit with (an increased) higher rate threshold and increases to the working tax credit and child tax credit.

As a result of this package, we estimate that on average households including someone aged 60 to 64 will be over £27 a year better off in 2009-10, while households with someone aged 65 or more will be on average £72 a year better off (in 2007-08 prices).

Income Tax: Tax Thresholds

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the number of income tax payers who would be removed from taxation as a result of raising the income tax threshold to (a) £7,500, (b) £8,000, (c) £8,500, (d) £9,000, (e) £9,500 and (f) £10,000 in each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement; [131841]

(2) if he will estimate the revenue implications of increasing the personal tax free allowance to (a) £7,500, (b) £8,000, (c) £8,500, (d) £9,000, (e) £9,500 and (f) £10,000 in each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [131842]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested can be found in the following tables .

Taxpayers removed from income tax

Number: (£ million)

	Personal allowance
	7,500	8,000	8,500	9,000	9,500	10,000
2007-08	2.6	3.3	4.1	4.9	5.7	6.4
2008-09	2.3	2.9	3.4	3.9	4.6	5.4
2009-10	2.1	2.7	3.1	3.6	4.2	5.0
2010-11	2.0	2.5	3.0	3.4	3.9	4.6

Cost of increasing the personal allowance

(£ billion)

	Personal Allowance
	7,500	8,000	8,500	9,000	9,500	10,000
2007-08	13.9	17.0	20.1	23.1	26.0	28.8
2008-09	12.6	15.5	18.3	21.0	24.0	26.9
2009-10	11.9	14.8	17.6	20.4	23.3	26.3
2010-11	11.1	14.0	17.0	19.8	22.6	25.7

Personal allowances for people aged 65 and over have been aligned with the ordinary personal allowance when exceeded.

The estimates are based on the 2004-05 survey of personal incomes projected forward against an indexed baseline which includes the reforms to simplify the income tax and National Insurance system announced at Budget 2007.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioral response to the tax change which could be significant given the scale of the change.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the reduction in revenue from raising the 40 per cent. tax rate threshold for income tax to £50,000 of taxable income in a full tax year. [132814]

Dawn Primarolo: Raising the higher rate threshold to £50,000 for 2007-08 would cost £5.3 billion.

This estimate is based on the 2004-05 survey of personal Incomes projected forward in line with Budget 2007 assumptions.

The figure excludes any estimate of behavioural response which could be significant given the scale of the change.

Inheritance Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost of raising the inheritance tax threshold to £500,000 in each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [131838]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 18 April 2007, Official Report, column 692W.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the reduction in revenue from raising the inheritance tax threshold to £1 million in a full tax year. [132812]

Dawn Primarolo: Raising the inheritance tax nil rate band to £1,000,000 from 2008-09 would incur a full year cost of around £3.1 billion.

Local Government Finance: Scotland

John Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice HM Revenue and Customs gave to Sir Peter Burt's Local Government Finance Review Committee on the implementation of a local income tax for the 32 local authorities in Scotland. [133522]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham (Mr. Hands) on 9 October 2006, column 285-286W.

Low Incomes

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the proportion of income of each of the four lowest earning deciles which is made up of (a) benefits and tax credits and (b) earnings from work. [132125]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what estimate he has made of the proportion of income of each of the four lowest earning deciles which is made up of (a) benefits and tax credits and (b) earnings from work. (132125).

Estimates of income received by households from different sources are provided in the ONS analysis 'The effects of taxes and benefits on household income'. The latest analysis for 2004/05 was published on the National Statistics website on 12th May 2006 at http://www.statistics.gov.uk/taxesbenefits. The analysis for 2005/06 will be published on 17th May. This annual publication is based on data from the Expenditure and Food Survey, which is a sample survey covering approximately 7,000 households in the UK.

The attached table shows income from work and income from benefits, as a proportion of gross income, by income decile group. The income decile groups are determined by ranking households according to their equivalised disposable income. Equivalised incomes are standardised to adjust for the different sizes and compositions of households, and equivalised disposable income (rather than just earned income, or any other definition of income) is the most widely used measure of living standards, and the commonly used basis for income distribution statistics. While this equivalisation reduces the extent to which household size in particular varies across the income distribution, there is still considerable variation in respect of other household characteristics, for example the age of the household reference person (households where the household reference person is old are more concentrated towards the bottom of the distribution).

Income from work includes income from employment, imputed income from benefits in kind (mainly company cars), and income from self-employment. Cash benefits include things like income support, pension credit, child benefit, incapacity benefit, the state retirement pension, and tax credits.

Average incomes from work[1] and benefits[2] as a proportion of gross income[3], by household income decile—United Kingdom, 2004-05

As a percentage of gross income[3]

	Decile groups of households ranked by equivalised disposable income										All households
	Bottom	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th	Top
Income from work[1]	24	33	46	56	68	72	79	84	89	89	76
Income from cash benefits[2]	65	57	42	31	21	16	10	6	3	2	14

[1] Income from work includes income from employment, imputed income from benefits in kind, and income from self-employment.
[2] Income from cash benefits includes only those tax credit payments which are classified as a benefit, rather than a negative tax. See background notes.
[3] Gross income additionally includes income from occupational pensions, investment income, and other miscellaneous income.

Manufacturing Industries

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what fiscal incentives exist to stimulate the supply of land suitable for start-ups and small and medium sized enterprises in the manufacturing sector. [131811]

John Healey: The Government have announced a package of reforms and proposals to stimulate land supply, including a wide range of complementary fiscal measures.

As announced in Budget 2007, from 11 April this year the business premises renovation allowance (BPRA) will provide 100 per cent. capital allowances for the renovation of commercial properties in the assisted areas that have stood empty for more than one year.

Budget also published a consultation on the reform of land remediation relief (LRR), with a view to extending the scope of this 150 per cent. capital allowance for the cost of cleaning brownfield land to a wider range of contaminated and derelict sites. The aim of these reforms is to support new development by improving economic viability of bringing contaminated and long-term derelict sites back into use. These measures are targeted at stimulating land supply for manufacturers and other businesses in low demand and hard to remediate areas respectively.

Following representations from the Federation of Small Businesses and recommendations from both Kate Barker and Sir Michael Lyons the Government also propose to reform the reliefs to empty property rates. This measure will increase incentives to reuse, redevelop or sell unused land and property, with significant benefits to companies that are expanding or entering the market in the form of reduced rents or prices.

Allied to these reforms the Government have announced their intention to review the tax treatment of penalty payments made by tenants who need to prematurely terminate a lease contract. This is an important issue for all business tenants but in particular for small and medium sized companies where flexible property use is important for growth but has to date been faced with weak incentives from the tax system.

Minimum Wage

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people newly entitled to working tax credits as a consequence of the announcements made in the 2007 Budget earn the national minimum wage. [132121]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on which to base such an estimate are not available.

Personal Income

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what change there has been as a result of tax and benefit changes in average levels of income for (a) lone parents in work, (b) single earner couples with children and (c) two earner couples with children since 1997. [133197]

Dawn Primarolo: As a result of changes to the tax and benefit system between 1997-98 and April 2009, lone parents in work are, on average £2,650 a year better off, with net income of £22,600, single earner couples with children are, on average £1,925 a year better off, with net income of £34,150, and two earner couples with children are £770 a year better off, with net income of £42,200.

These results are in 2007-08 prices, using the Expenditure and Food Survey.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the net effect of tax and benefit changes since 1997 on (a) a lone parent, (b) married couples with a single wage earner in work and (c) two wage earner couples both in work with (i) one child and (ii) two children. [132541]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 19 April 2007]: The table illustrates the net effect of tax and benefit changes introduced since 1997, including changes announced in Budget 2007, on (a) a lone parent, (b) a single earner married couple and (c) a dual earner married couple.

Examples are given for each household with (i) one child and (ii) two children.

Example uses estimate of full-time male and female median earnings In 2007-08 (for the dual earner couple, these earnings are shared equally). All estimates are in 2007-08 prices.

Impact of changes to the tax and benefit system on net income before housing costs, 1997-98 to 2009-10, in 2007-08 prices (£ per year)

	Lone parent	Single earner couple	Dual earner couple
1 child	740	740	635
2 children	1,600	1,600	1,500

Population

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK population was in each of the last three years; and what estimate he has made of the number of people who emigrated from the UK in each year. [132807]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 23 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question concerning what the UK population was in each of the last three years and what estimate has been made of the number of people who emigrated from the UK in each year. I am replying in her absence. (132807)

The latest available population estimates for the UK are the mid-2005 population estimates. The mid-2003, 2004 and 2005 estimates are shown below in Table 1. The latest available Total International Migration estimates for outflows are the mid-2005 estimates. The mid- 2003, 2004 and 2005 estimates are shown below in Table 2.

Table 1: Total UK population, mid-2003 to mid-2005

	Total population

Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of (a) pensioners and (b) taxpayers submitting tax returns have only an income tax liability; and if he will make a statement. [131837]

Dawn Primarolo: Individuals who submit income tax self assessment returns may have a liability to income tax and/or capital gains tax or no tax liability at all. Estimates for the 2004-05 tax year (the latest full year available) are provided in the following table

	Number of returns (million)	Returns with an income tax liability only (million)	Proportion of cases with an income tax liability only (percentage)
All individuals	8.1	6.6	81
Pensioners	1.36	1.1	83

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the assumptions outlined in Chapter 4 of Long Term Public Finance Report 2006, what estimates he has made for the lifetime (a) tax revenues paid by, (b) income and (c) consumption of Government services, broken down by type, of (i) a representative man and (ii) a representative woman born in (A) 2000, (B) 1990, (C) 1980, (D) 1970, (E) 1960, (F) 1950, (G) 1940, (H) 1930, (I) 1920 and (J) 1910. [132568]

Dawn Primarolo: The spending and revenue projections given in the Long-term Public Finance Report are purely forward looking. The report does not include the type of historical analysis of lifetime tax revenues, income or consumption of Government services that would be required to make the estimations outlined in the question.

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the percentage change in the volume of taxation was in each of the last 10 years. [132803]

Dawn Primarolo: Historic tax receipts data are published monthly in table C1 of the Public Finances Databank, the latest version of which can be found at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spending_statistics/pubsec_finance/psf_statistics.cfm

The series which most closely reflects the volume of taxation is 'Net taxes and National Insurance Contributions'.

Taxation: Biofuels

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the tax subsidies which are paid to encourage the growing of bio-fuels; and if he will make a statement. [132774]

John Healey: Fiscal support for the uptake of biofuels is provided within fuel duty and duty differentials have been in place for biodiesel since 2002 and bioethanol since 2005. Budget 2007 announced the extension of the 20 pence per litre duty incentive until 2009-10, offering further certainty to the industry.

To encourage the development of biofuels the Government are introducing from 2008 a renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO), which will require transport fuel suppliers to ensure a set percentage of their sales are from a renewable source.

Duty differentials and the RTFO are stimulating investment in processing capacity. While this does not necessarily mean that feedstocks will be sourced from within the UK, it will provide additional local demand for UK agricultural production. The UK is aiming to move away from direct subsidies for agricultural production, as set out in the 2005 DEFRA-HMT publication "A Vision for the Common Agricultural Policy".

Taxation: Charities

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the tax benefits given to an organisation would be affected if it were recognised as a charity by (a) the Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator, but not the Charity Commission and (b) the Charity Commission, but not the Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator. [132933]

Dawn Primarolo: A UK charity will be entitled to tax reliefs if it qualifies for charitable status under the law of England and Wales. In the majority of cases this test will be satisfied by a charity recognised in either England and Wales or Scotland. If a different approach to a charity's status were to be taken by either regulator then the point of reference for tax purposes (and tax purposes only) would be the provisions made in the Charities Act 2006 and established case law. These provisions, at sections 80(4) and 80(6), make it clear that taxation is a reserved matter and that for tax purposes the definition of a charity in England and Wales will apply across the UK.

Taxation: Electoral Register

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 284W, on taxation: electoral register, whether (a) tax self-assessment forms, (b) form DOM1 and (c) other tax forms ask claimants whether they are resident electors in the UK. [132303]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs does not ask for information on whether individuals are registered to vote in the UK on (a) tax self-assessment forms, (b) form DOM1 or (c) other tax forms.

Taxation: Environment Protection

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the revenue derived from environmental taxation was used to fund government initiatives on climate change in each year since 2001. [132951]

John Healey: The revenue from environmental taxes is not hypothecated to spending on climate change. However, as the following table shows, central and local government spending on environmental protection, including measures to adapt to and mitigate climate change, has exceeded the revenue derived from environmental taxes in each and every year since 2001.

£ million

Financial year	Environmental tax revenues[1]	Total spending on environmental protection[2]
2001-02	1,057	5,395
2002-03	1,617	5,916
2003-04	1,778	6,119
2004-05	1,770	6,877
2005-06	1,883	8,548

Taxation: Foreigners

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number of permanent foreign residents in the UK who do not pay UK taxes; [131815]

(2) what estimate he has made of the loss of revenue caused by the non-payment of UK taxes by permanent foreign residents in each of the last five years; [131816]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of Russian citizens living permanently in the UK who do not pay UK taxes. [132015]

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of permanent foreign residents in the UK who do not pay UK taxes. [132658]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Taxation: Overseas Residence

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have non-domiciliary tax status; how many people have (a) claimed and (b) been refused such status in the last 10 years; what the total amount of tax paid by non-domiciled taxpayers was in each of the last 10 years; and what estimate he has made of the tax forgone in 2006-07 as a result of the granting of non-domiciliary tax status. [129125]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 22 March 2007]: No overall figure for the number of individuals with non-domiciliary tax status, the number of people claiming non-domiciliary tax status or the number of people refused such status is available.

And no estimates have been made of the tax foregone in 2006-07 as a result of granting non-domicile tax status. Information is not held on overseas income and gains that do not give rise to a tax liability in the UK.

Teenage Pregnancy

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many births there were to mothers aged (a) 19, (b) 18, (c) 17, (d) 16, (e) 15, (f) 14 and (g) 13 years old in (i) each Northern Ireland health board, (ii) Wales, (iii) Scotland and (iv) England in each of the last 10 years. [132150]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 April 2007:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many births there were to mothers aged (a) 19, (b) 18, (c) 17, (d) 16, (e) 15, (f) 14 and (g) 13 years old in (i) each Northern Ireland health board, (ii) Wales, (iii) Scotland and (iv) England in each of the last 10 years. (132150)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2005. The attached table provides the figures requested for the years 1996 to 2005.

[2] Data for Northern Ireland exclude births to mothers not usually resident in Northern Ireland at the time of birth. Similarly, data for England and Wales exclude births to mothers not usually resident in England and Wales. Data for Scotland include births to mothers not usually resident in Scotland. For this reason the number of births shown here will not exactly sum to total UK births at ages 13 to 19.
[3] Births registered in Northern Ireland have been allocated to Health and Social Services Boards according to the usual residence of the mother. Births registered in England and Wales are assigned to England or Wales according to usual residence of the mother.
[4] For Northern Ireland and Scotland, figures relate to the number of live births registered in each calendar year. For England and Wales, figures relate to the number of live births occurring in each calendar year.

VAT: Sunscreens

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent consideration he has given to the removal of VAT from sun care products; and what estimate he has made of the long term effects of such a measure on NHS costs. [132581]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the VAT agreements with our European partners, signed by successive Governments, we can retain our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT entirely from sun care products. The same European VAT agreements do allow for a reduced rate of VAT of not less than 5 per cent to be applied to sun care items that are 'pharmaceutical products', and the case for such a VAT reduction for sun care products was carefully considered as part of the Budget process.

To date we have been sparing in our use of reduced rates of VAT and have only introduced them where we are convinced they offer the best targeted and most cost-effective support for our objectives, when considered against alternative policy instruments. We consider that the most effective approach is the promotion of the broad range of precautions necessary for sun protection, not just sun care products, for example through Government support for the 'Sunsmart' advice and awareness raising campaign.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason able-bodied people under the age of 25 years without children are not able to claim any tax credits regardless of their income levels. [132934]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 16 April to my hon. Friend the Member for Dundee West (Mr. McGovern), Official Report, column. 422W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to publish the (a) 2005-06 child and working tax credits finalised annual awards statistics and the (b) 2005-06 child and working tax credits finalised annual awards, supplement on payments statistics. [133419]

Dawn Primarolo: The HMRC publications referred to will be published on 22 May 2007.

Working Tax Credit

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what increases in take-up of working tax credit he expects in each of the next three years. [132038]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 18 April 2007]: The Government do not make forward projections for take-up rates.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people are receiving working tax credit who do not have any children. [132049]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 18 April 2007]: Provisional estimates for the number of in-work families with working tax credit awards that do not have any children, as at December 2006, are published in "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. December 2006". This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to change his policy on the eligibility for working tax credits of those aged under 25 years who are without children and not disabled. [132243]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government currently have no plans to change the eligibility criteria for working tax credits.

Working Tax Credit: Prisoners

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people serving custodial sentences in the UK received working tax credits in each of the last three years; and what the cost was of such payments. [133247]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not available. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1741W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aerials: Planning Permission

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received regarding planning law as it affects telecommunications masts. [132788]

Meg Munn: Since 1 January 2007 I have answered four parliamentary questions relating to planning and telecommunications and received 21 letters from MPs on this subject. I have not had any external meetings to discuss this issue in the corresponding time period.

In addition, my officials have dealt with a number of queries on this issue from members of the public and have attended a meeting of the Electronic Communications Working Group at which representatives of the telecommunications industry were present. The meeting was one in an ongoing series of meetings to discuss issues of mutual interest.

Care Homes: Conditions of Employment

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps have been taken to enforce Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) protection for residential home staff transferred from local government to private employment; and if she will make a statement. [132248]

Mr. Woolas: Subject to certain qualifying conditions, the "Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006" apply when a business or undertaking, or part of one, is transferred to a new employer; or when a 'service provision change' takes place (for example, where a contractor takes on a contract to provide a service for a client from another contractor).

These two circumstances are jointly categorised as 'relevant transfers'. Once a relevant transfer has occurred if any employee considers that their contractual rights have been infringed they may be able to seek redress through the civil courts or the employment tribunals.

Council Tax: Second Homes

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward proposals to amend the system of council tax to allow for the levying of a local supplement on council tax for second homes in areas where they represent a significant proportion of housing. [132927]

Mr. Woolas: We have already given local authorities flexibility to reduce the council tax discount offered on second homes to 10 per cent. In 2005-06 that raised an additional £92 million to spend on local priorities. We have no plans to make further changes.

Fire Services: Radio

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her latest estimate is of the level of coverage by percentage landmass and signal strength provided by the Firelink digital radio system (a) in each fire service and (b) by region; and if she will place in the Library a map detailing such information. [133679]

Angela E. Smith: Once the Firelink service is fully rolled out the contract will provide coverage averaging 98 per cent. in England, 95 per cent. in Wales and 88 per cent. in Scotland, which is less populated and more mountainous. The following tables list the contracted coverage by fire and rescue service area and by region. These modelled forecasts will be validated through tests in each fire and rescue service prior to Firelink becoming operational.

A map of Great Britain highlighting the extent of guaranteed coverage from Firelink per FRS boundary has also been supplied and will be placed in the Library as requested.

Government Office for London

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget was of the Government office for London in each year between 1997 and 2006; and how many civil servants were employed by that office in each year. [132828]

Mr. Woolas: The Government office for London's running cost expenditure is as follows:

Holocaust Memorial Day

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on Holocaust Memorial Day in each year since its institution; and if she will make a statement. [132400]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Holocaust Memorial Day was first held in January 2001 and has since been held on 27 January every year. Up to 2005, the responsibility for delivering Holocaust Memorial Day lay with the Home Office, working in conjunction with the Department for Education and Skills and a wide range of individuals and organisations involved in Holocaust remembrance and education and other related issues. The approximate spending for 2002-04 was £280,000.

In 2005 the responsibility for organising the Holocaust Memorial Day was passed over to the Holocaust Memorial Day Trust (HMDT). The HMDT receives a £500,000 annual grant from Communities and Local Government. This grant enables the HMDT to deliver the Holocaust Memorial Day commemoration event, on behalf of the Government, and also a year long programme with local communities on the lessons learnt from the Holocaust and its continuing relevance today.

Local Authorities: Complaints

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many complaints the local government ombudsman with responsibility for the North of England received in each of the last five years against local authorities, broken down by local authority; and if she will make a statement. [132841]

Mr. Woolas: This information has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Administration of Justice: Freemasonry

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what provisions exist for (a) magistrates, (b) judges and (c) members of tribunals to declare freemasonry membership on appointment. [133302]

Ms Harman: Applicants for the lay magistracy are required to declare whether or not they are freemasons. Those recommended for appointment, or appointed by, the Lord Chancellor to a judicial office in the courts and tribunals for the first time are also required to declare whether or not they are freemasons.

Care Homes: Human Rights

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will bring forward measures to extend the protections of the Human Rights Act 1998 to residents of care homes who are (a) publicly and (b) privately or self-funded. [130802]

Vera Baird: Under the Human Rights Act 1998 it is unlawful for a public authority to act incompatibly with the Convention rights. For these purposes a "public authority" includes any person or body who is exercising functions of a public nature. Local authorities have a statutory duty to make arrangements for the provision of care and accommodation to those in need of it by reason of age, illness or disability. Individuals who are assessed to be in need of care may be placed in a care home run by the local authority itself, but many are placed in homes run by private providers. Those who are placed in care homes by local authorities (including homes that are privately run) can enforce their rights against the local authority because the authority is clearly a "public authority" for the purposes of the Human Rights Act.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs is planning to intervene in a case which will be heard by the House of Lords on 30 April 2007 to clarify whether a private care home provider is also a "public authority" for the purposes of the Human Rights Act when it provides accommodation and care to residents who have been placed there by a local authority. If that is found to be the case, then residents who are placed by local authorities in private care homes will be able directly to enforce their rights against a private care home provider.

The Government have no plans to extend the coverage of the Human Rights Act to self-funded residents of care homes, since the Act does not apply to relationships which do not engage public functions.

Civil Proceedings: Equal Pay

Mr. Byers: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will take steps (a) to ensure that agreements entered into between solicitors and their clients in equal pay cases do not undermine the securing of a mediated settlement and (b) to stop solicitors imposing a financial penalty on their clients in non-contentious cases. [132821]

Bridget Prentice: The regulation of agreements between solicitors and their clients is a matter for the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA). The SRA has strict rules about the information that solicitors should give to their clients about costs and all other charges; and about setting out the options for settling their disputes. Solicitors are also under a duty to act in the best interests of their clients.

Concerns about the conduct of solicitors in equal pay cases, or any other type of case, should be brought to the SRA's attention.

Coroners

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what public rights of access there are to written material used in the proceedings of coroners' inquests; and if she will make a statement. [133531]

Ms Harman: All inquests are held in public unless the coroner considers that it would be in the interest of national security to exclude the public. The press often attend inquests and report details but there is no public right of access to written material used in inquests.

Law: Students

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions her Department has had with the Law Society on the funding of legal studies students. [133484]

Bridget Prentice: While there have been no specific discussions between the Law Society and my Department on this topic, I am aware that there are a number of different methods of funding for legal studies students.

These include bursaries from the Law Society, bank loans or career development loans and sponsorship from solicitors' firms.

Legal Aid

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of solicitors firms which were unable to complete the new unified contract for legal aid as of 1 April 2007. [132786]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) extended the deadline for signature to 2 April 2007. As of 3 April, approximately 2,390 of 2,532 unified contracts had been signed and returned to the LSC by civil providers. This represents 97 per cent. of not-for-profit organisations and 94 per cent. of solicitors. Overall, 5 per cent. of providers did not sign. There are also likely to be many more sub-contractors who are not required to sign the unified contract, but who provide legal aid services.

That a small proportion of providers declined to sign is not unusual, as it is normal for there to be some degree of turnover when new contracts are introduced. The LSC will shortly be providing details of a new civil bid round as part of the Community Legal Service Strategy for improving access to joined up services.

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of solicitors who will cease taking on legal aid work in each of the next three years. [132970]

Vera Baird: A consultation recently closed for criminal legal aid, which included consideration of whether a minimum contract size should be introduced. No decision has yet been taken, but should a minimum contract size be implemented, it will have the effect of reducing the number of firms undertaking criminal legal aid work.

During the most recent contracting round, at the beginning of April 2007, 94 per cent. of solicitors providing civil legal aid services signed and returned their contracts indicating their wish to continue taking on legal aid work.

Welfare Tax Credits: Fraud

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many county court judgments were made against recipients of tax credits in respect of their claims for credits in each of the last 24 months. [133418]

Ms Harman: Information on the number of county court judgments made against recipients of tax credits in respect of their claims for credits in each of the last 24 months is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Digital Broadcasting

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport by what methods those eligible for the targeted assistance scheme for the digital switchover have been identified in (a) the UK and (b) Cheadle constituency. [132495]

Mr. Woodward: Targeted assistance will be available to all households with one person aged 75 or over or with a severe disability or registered partially-blind or registered partially-sighted. The Digital Switchover (Disclosure of Information) Bill is currently going through Parliament. If this becomes law, the operator of the Digital Switchover Help Scheme will use Department for Work and Pensions and local authority databases to identify those eligible.

Food: Advertising

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is on a voluntary ban on advertising unhealthy foods near schools. [133652]

Mr. Woodward: At present there are no rules governing the advertisement of food and soft drink products near schools. However, the Government would always encourage individual companies to show responsibility in choosing where to place adverts.

The industry self regulated non-broadcast advertising rules, relating to the advertising of food and soft drink products to children, were recently strengthened by the Committee for Advertising Practice (CAP) we welcome this commitment by the industry to protect the health of our children. The Government are also committed to monitoring the impact of these and other measures, across all media, in changing the nature and balance of food promotion to children.

Gambling Act 2005

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what process has been put in place to enable Ministers to (a) exercise political oversight and (b) monitor the progress of the implementation plan for the Gambling Act 2005; [132795]

(2) on what dates since the start of 2007 she has received reports on the progress of the implementation plan for the Gambling Act 2005. [132796]

Tessa Jowell: My Department has put in place a robust programme management and reporting structure to support implementation of the Gambling Act 2005.

In addition to formal progress reports, the most recent of which was provided in March 2007, Ministers hold regular meetings with officials on key implementation matters.

Ministers also hold quarterly meetings with the Chair and Chief Executive of the Gambling Commission as well as frequent meetings with representatives of industry, local government, and other key stakeholders. Officials also chair a number of stakeholder groups including quarterly meetings of the Community Liaison Group and Industry Liaison Group, as well as a monthly communications group to address application rates and other issues arising during the transitional period.

It remains the Government's intention to bring the Gambling Act fully into force by 1 September 2007.

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assumptions her Department has made on the number of applications for operator licences under the Gambling Act 2005 that will be made by the end of April 2007 deadline by existing operators in order to secure continuation rights; and how many such applications the Gambling Commission has received, broken down by category of licence. [132797]

Tessa Jowell: The Gambling Commission's estimated number of existing operators who, in order to secure continuation rights, are encouraged to apply for an operating licence to the Gambling Commission by 27 April is approximately 2,400. At 20 April 885 operating licence applications had been made, which equates to about 37 per cent. of that estimate. However, the number of operators does not necessarily equate to the number of applications that will be received.

All operators are entitled to make applications after 27 April and the Gambling Commission will process them in time for 1 September.

The breakdown of non-remote operating licence applications received to 20 April by sector is:

Non remote operator category	Applications received by 20 April 2007
Casinos	25
Bingo	28
General betting	485
Pool betting	0
Betting intermediary	1
Adult gaming centres	124
Family entertainment centres	25
Gaming machines	19
Gambling software	1
Lottery managers	2
Society lotteries	7
Total non-remote	717

The breakdown of remote operating licence applications received to 20 April by sector is:

Remote operator category	Applications received by 20 April 2007
Bingo	0
General betting	7
Pool betting	2

Licensed Premises

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many licensed premises are still to receive a paper licence in (a) Guildford, (b) Surrey and (c) England; and if she will make a statement. [131991]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally. Feedback from stakeholders suggests only a small number of licences remain to be issued.

Licensed Premises: Recycling

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the (a) cost and (b) environmental effect of using plastic glasses in licensed premises; and if she will make a statement. [132762]

Mr. Woodward: The Department has made no assessment of the costs or environmental impact of using plastic drinking vessels. It is for individual licensed premises to decide whether to use alternatives to glassware.

The use of plastic containers and toughened glass can help promote the licensing objectives of public safety and the prevention of crime and disorder. However, as the Secretary of State's guidance to licensing authorities makes clear, such conditions should only be imposed where necessary and should take into account factors such as the location, style of the venue and the activities carried on there.

Licensing Laws

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the conclusions of the Licensing Review Panel; and if she will make a statement. [131990]

Mr. Woodward: We are continuing to assess all of the panel's detailed conclusions and recommendations and will provide a response in due course. Before reaching a final decision on any changes to the fees regime and related issues, we will undertake a full public consultation so all stakeholders have the opportunity to inform future policy.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what mechanisms exist under the Licensing Act 2003 to review the licence of licence holders charged with offences who do not declare that they hold a licence at the time of the legal proceedings. [133052]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Under the 2003 Act, it is the responsibility of a personal licence holder when charged with a relevant offence to inform the court he holds a personal licence and to produce it to the court. If he fails to do so, without reasonable excuse, the defendant commits an offence under the Act and on conviction, he would be liable to a fine of up to £500. This offence is also a "relevant offence" under Schedule 4 to the Act and therefore, on conviction, the court would be able to consider either suspension or forfeiture of the personal licence.

Olympic Games: Security

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what her latest estimate is for the cost of policing during the Olympic Games in 2012; [130129]

(2) how much of the additional £600 million of security costs for the 2012 Olympics she announced in her statement to the House on 15 March 2007 is to be allocated to (a) on-site security, (b) wider security and (c) policing costs during the Games themselves; [130130]

(3) if she will break down the additional £600 million of security costs for the 2012 Olympics announced in her Statement to the House on 15 March 2007; [130131]

(4) what her latest estimate is of the cost of policing during the Olympic Games in 2012. [132551]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the statement I made to the House on 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, on progress towards the Olympic Games and the Paralympics in 2012. This included reference to an allocation of £600 million, within the overall budget, for wider security, on top of the Olympic Delivery Authority budget for site security. This figure also excludes the cost of security inside the venues during the Games, which is the responsibility of the London Organising Committee.

The Home Office and Olympic Security Co-ordinator are developing and costing the security planning and operation for London 2012. This will be published when appropriate.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the total estimated cost to the Metropolitan Police is of controlling any increase in crime during the Olympic Games in 2012. [131209]

Tessa Jowell: The Home Office and Olympic Security Co-ordinator are developing and costing the security and planning operation for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games in 2012, including the costs for the Metropolitan Police. This will be published when appropriate.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many people are employed to gather data and update the Television Licensing database; [132976]

(2) what the total cost is of equipping a single television detector van; [133002]

(3) what percentage of receipts from the television licence fee was spent on the detection of licence evaders in the last period for which figures are available. [133011]

Mr. Woodward: The BBC has statutory responsibility for the administration of the television licensing system and TV Licensing carries out the day to day administration under contract to the Corporation. I have therefore asked the BBC's Head of Revenue Management to consider the questions raised by the hon. Member and to write direct to him. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Detainees

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what resources were allocated by his Department to Conduct After Capture training in each of the last six years; and what personnel were allocated to providing this training over the same period, broken down by grade; [133120]

(2) he will make a statement on the Conduct After Capture training provided by the armed forces; and how many of those hostages recently released from Iranian custody received Conduct After Capture training; [133121]

(3) which parts of the Armed Forces receive Conduct After Capture training; and how many members of the armed forces received such training in each of the last six years. [133122]

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) instructions and (b) training are given to armed forces personnel in preparation for the possibility that they may find themselves held against their will by a foreign power or hostile organisation. [132409]

Des Browne [holding answer 19 April 2007]: UK military personnel receive different levels of training into Survival, Evasion, Resistance and Extraction (SERE) techniques depending on their mission. Personnel who are at greater risk of capture receive enhanced training. I am withholding details on the specific nature of the training because this would, or would be likely, to prejudice the capacity, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

I announced on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26, that Lieutenant General Sir Rob Fulton Royal Marines will lead an inquiry into the recent incident in which Iran illegally detained 15 UK service personnel. This inquiry will examine SERE training alongside the other operational aspects of the incident. It would therefore be inappropriate for me to comment further until this inquiry is complete.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 13 February 2007, Official Report, column 203W, on armed forces: housing, which personnel are included in the group 'other'. [132595]

Derek Twigg: The breakdown of 'other' occupancy of single living accommodation is as follows:

	Percentage
Defence Equipment and Support	49
Centre TLB	45
Commander Joint Operations	6

A breakdown of 'other' occupancy of service families accommodation is not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Mass Media

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has made to United Kingdom media on the (a) advisability and (b) propriety of their offering financial inducements to serving military personnel to give interviews about their experiences on operations. [132020]

Des Browne [holding answer 18 April 2007]: None.

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) for what reason the service personnel held captive in Iran were given permission to receive payment in return for statements to the media about their experiences; [132042]

(2) who made the decision to allow the service personnel held captive in Iran to sell their stories to media organisations. [132043]

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) which (a) Ministers, (b) military officers and (c) civilian officials (i) were consulted about and (ii) took the decision to permit serving military personnel who had been captured by Iran to sell their stories to the media; [132018]

(2) what assessment he made before the decision was taken to allow serving military personnel to sell their stories to the media, of the effects of the making of such payments on (a) the morale of (i) injured service personnel, (ii) bereaved service families and (iii) other serving military personnel who have not received comparable sums and (b) the public perception of the armed services. [132021]

Des Browne [holding answer 18 April 2007]: I refer my hon. Friend and the hon. Member to the statement I made on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26.

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) support and (b) guidance is offered to military personnel when granted permission to enter into financial arrangements with media organisations. [132044]

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the criteria have been since 1997 for deciding whether to grant permission for serving military personnel (a) to have accounts published and (b) to sell media interviews about their experiences on operations; and how many instances there have been since 1997 of second-hand accounts of such experiences being sold to the media by relatives of military personnel who were still serving. [132019]

Des Browne [holding answer 18 April 2007]: Provisions governing service personnel who wish to communicate with the media are contained in Queen's Regulations for the Armed Forces and a Defence Council Instruction published in October 2004. These, along with the support and guidance offered to military personnel in such circumstances, are currently under review, as I explained in my statement on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26.

Until this review is complete, and any necessary changes to these provisions have been made, no service personnel are allowed to talk to the media about their experiences in return for payment.

It is not possible for the MOD to determine the number of instances of relatives selling second-hand accounts to the media.

Departments: Official Engagements

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) his official engagements and (b) those of each other Minister in his Department were for Thursday 12th April. [132292]

Des Browne [holding answer 18 April 2007]: On Thursday 12 April 2007 I was in Quebec to attend a meeting of Defence Ministers to discuss the NATO-led mission in Afghanistan. The Minister for Defence Equipment and Support, Lord Drayson, was in London and attended a dinner of the Air Force Board that evening. The Minister for the Armed Forces and the Under-Secretary of State were each on leave.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list each of his official engagements for 5 April to 9 April. [133367]

Des Browne: On 5 April, I was in office in the Ministry of Defence all morning and conducted a number of media interviews at lunchtime before returning to my constituency. I had no official engagements from Good Friday (6 April) until Easter Monday (9 April) but received regular updates on operational issues, as usual. I made a routine telephone call to the Australian Defence Minister on the evening of 9 April to discuss a range of operational issues. The only official engagement by my ministerial colleagues was one by the Under-Secretary of State and Minister for Veterans, who visited the Royal College of Defence Medicine at Selly Oak Hospital in Birmingham on the afternoon of 5 April to visit service personnel.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132205]

Derek Twigg: Expenditure on alcohol at public expense is governed by the general principles of financial propriety set out in Government Accounting and the MOD's own regulations for the provision of official entertainment promulgated in Joint Service Publication 462 (Financial Management Policy Management Manual). The provision of alcohol must, at all times, be in moderation and constitute an admissible charge to the Defence Budget.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what equipment was seized by Iran during the capture of the 15 Royal Navy personnel; and whether any or all of the equipment has been returned. [132835]

Des Browne: The equipment seized by Iranians during the capture of the 15 Royal Naval personnel consisted of: two Rigid Hull Inflatable Boats, seven carbines, four rifles, 10 pistols and ammunition, communications and navigation systems, body armour, helmets, goggles and camera equipment. None of this equipment has been returned by the Iranian authorities.

Detainees: Iran

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) where the Iranian force that detained 15 UK sailors and marines came from; and what transport they used; [132816]

(2) when the 15 UK sailors and marines recently detained in Iran first saw the Iranian force coming to detain them; [132817]

(3) whether the 15 UK sailors and marines considered making a swift withdrawal in their boat when they saw the Iranian force approaching; [132818]

(4) how many Iranian troops detained the 15 UK sailors and marines in the recent incident. [132876]

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) which non-military personnel were on the Lynx helicopter which oversaw the boarding of the freighter in Iraqi waters on 23 March 2007; how many hours' flying were left on the Lynx helicopter as from 23 March to its next major service; and for what reason HMS Cornwall did not have a second Lynx helicopter; [132447]

(2) what arms were carried by each of the 15 service personnel prior to their capture by the Iranian authorities on 23 March 2007; and how much ammunition each member of personnel carried during their time on the freighter boarded in Iraqi waters; [132448]

(3) which vessels Commodore Lambert had under his command, and what the draught was for each vessel; [132449]

(4) whether boardings were carried out using (a) a joint multinational force and (b) the Royal Navy alone during Commodore Lambert's period of command; [132450]

(5) what choice of Command Post was available to Commodore Lambert; [132451]

(6) whether any order was given on 23 March 2007 from (a) HMS Cornwall and (b) any senior personnel for the boarding party to return to their boats from the freighter after the sighting of the Iranian speed-boats; [132453]

(7) how long it took from the first sighting of the two Iranian speed-boats on 23 March 2007 for those boats to be alongside the two British boats. [132454]

Des Browne: I refer the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) and the hon. Member for Congleton (Ann Winterton) to the statement I made on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26, in which I stated that there would be an inquiry, lead by Lieutenant General Sir Rob Fulton Royal Marines (Retd), into this incident. It would therefore be inappropriate for me to comment further until this inquiry is complete.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Leading Seaman Turney was interviewed by a BBC film crew at any time prior to going on the boarding mission on 23 March 2007. [132452]

Des Browne: Leading Seaman Turney was interviewed by a BBC crew on the evening of 22 March 2007, as were several other members of the ship's crew. The BBC were already onboard HMS Cornwall for a planned visit.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what review of naval procurement and mothballing plans is to take place following the recent seizure of British military personnel by Iran. [133161]

Des Browne: We keep the readiness states of our operational warships under constant review. We are pressing ahead with the largest warship building programme this country has seen for decades. This includes the new Type 45 Destroyers, Astute class nuclear attack submarines and the future aircraft carriers.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many locally employed people are working as (a) interpreters and (b) drivers for the British Forces deployed in Southern Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [132734]

Des Browne: There are currently 186 interpreters and two drivers employed locally by British forces deployed in Southern Iraq.

Iran: Territorial Waters

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes were introduced following the seizure of the British marine patrol vessel by Iran in 2004. [130865]

Des Browne [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Changes introduced following the seizure of the British marine patrol vessel by Iran in 2004 on the Shatt Al Arab waterway included a review of the role of the Royal Naval Training Team and their operational command structure, vessels were equipped with heavier weapons and improved communications systems and enhancements were made to Royal Marine/Naval Pre-Deployment Training.

Navy: Persian Gulf

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many naval ships are deployed in the Persian Gulf under the authority of UN Security Council resolution 1723. [133152]

Des Browne: As at 20 April 2007, the following naval ships are operating in the Persian Gulf in direct support of the coalition effort authorised by UNSCR 1723.

HMS Cornwall
USS Underwood
USS Chinook
USS Typhoon
USS Scirocco
USCGC Aquidneck

Rules of Engagement

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what action UK forces are allowed to take to avoid and respond to arrest or attack when participating in UN missions. [132815]

Des Browne: UK service personnel have an inherent right to lawful self-defence, whether they are deployed on national or UN missions.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132204]

The Deputy Prime Minister: All expenditure in the Department is conducted in accordance with the principles of "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety", copies of which are available in the Library for the reference of Members.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the meetings between himself and outside interest groups which took place between 1 January and 31 March. [132435]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of individuals and groups in the course of their official duties. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Disadvantaged: Financial Services

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if her Department will take steps to introduce microfinance schemes for individuals in deprived areas to improve rates of social inclusion. [124728]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave him on 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1161W.

Policy Review

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the costs have been of (a) commissioning and designing, (b) printing and (c) distributing each (i) report, (ii) publication and (iii) presentation produced by the Government's policy review. [133420]

Hilary Armstrong: This information is not available in the format requested.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the (a) value and (b) purpose has been of each payment to external companies or organisations under the Government's policy review. [133431]

Hilary Armstrong: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2198W.

The results of the policy review process have been published in a series of papers under the title "Building on Progress", identifying long-term trends and new challenges and examining how existing policies need to be developed to continue to meet the country's priorities.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children in Care: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children under the age of five years were taken into care in Lancashire in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [132023]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 18 April 2007]: The number of children under the age of five years who were taken into care in Lancashire was 105 in both years ending 30 March 2005 and 2006.

Children in Care: Runaway Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many children looked after by a local authority were missing in 2006 for (a) more than a week and (b) more than a month; and how many such children went missing in that year and did not return at all; [121261]

(2) on how many occasions during 2006 a looked after child was missing from care overnight. [121262]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 19 February 2007]: The number of children looked after by a local authority who were missing in 2006 for more than a week was 620. Of those, 370 went missing for more than a month. Of the 370, 100 had not returned by 31 March 2006. In compiling theses figures, children who went missing more than once were only counted once. If they went missing more than once the duration of the missing episodes were considered independently (the days were not cumulated).

The number of occasions during 2006 when a looked after child was missing from care for at least 24 hours is shown in the following table.

Number of occasions in the year ending 31 March 2006 when looked after children went missing from care for at least 24 hours—England

Number and percentage

Number of occasions child went missing	Number of children who went missing	Percentage
All occasions	970	100
1	710	73
2	140	15
3	50	5
4	30	3
5	20	2
6	10	1
8	10	1
10 or more	10	1

Notes:
1. To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, data at national level are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000, to the nearest 10 otherwise. Figures between 1 and 5 inclusive have been suppressed and replaced by a hyphen "-".
2. Percentages have been rounded to the nearest whole number but have been suppressed where the numerator was 5 or less or the denominator was 10 or less, in accordance with National Statistics protocols.

National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the costs per child to each local authority in England of fulfilling commitments under the National Service Framework which would previously have been met by Sure Start funding. [133050]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The National Service Framework for children, young people and maternity services sets standards for children's health and social services and the interface of those services with education. Sure Start local programmes had discretion on how to allocate funds to meet local needs. Some chose to add to the resources for health services in their areas by employing midwives and health visitors. The roll-out of children's centres since 2003 across England reflects the change from this pilot initiative, testing out new ways of working, to an integrated common approach to delivering mainstream children's services. Local authorities and their partners in Children's Trusts are working together to plan and deliver their children's centres services, reconfiguring services where necessary. The Department cannot give a detailed estimate of the costs of funding commitments under the National Service Framework, as these are funded from a variety of sources to provide children's health and social care services. Between 2002-03 and 2005-06 the Department has spent an estimated £1.9 billion on Sure Start local programmes and children's centres. There are now 1,258 children's centres up and running reaching over 1 million children under the age of five.

Children's Centres

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children's centres (a) opened and (b) closed in each year for which figures are available. [132981]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is as follows:

(a) There are currently 1,258 Sure Start children's centres open. The breakdown by calendar year is as follows:

	Number of Sure Start children's centres opened
2003	59
2004	131
2005	254
2006	606
2007 (up to 19 April 2007)	208

(b) We have not received any reports of closures.

Divorce

Mr. Ostein: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make it his policy to require divorcing couples to undertake mandatory mediation during disputes over access to children; and if he will enshrine in law the principle of shared parenting. [132746]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Government do not believe that it would be in the best interests of children to require separating parents to undertake mediation in all cases, nor do the Government plan to enshrine in law the principle of shared parenting.

The Government are committed to the principle that mediation is beneficial, where it is in the child's best interests and there are no concerns for the safety of any member of the family. Provisions in the Children and Adoption Act 2006 will empower the court to direct parties, where appropriate, to attend a meeting to receive information about mediation.

To enshrine shared parenting in legislation could, in effect, introduce a legal presumption of contact. This would shift the focus of family law away from the paramount interests of the child and prioritise the rights of parents above the interests of the child. The assumption that both parents have equal status and value as parents is already enshrined in current law. The Family Courts are already able to make shared residence orders, where such orders are in the best interests of the child, based on the circumstances of the case.

Fulford School

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what resources are paid by central Government to the enhanced resource centre for Autism and Aspergers at Fulford School in the City of York; what assessment has been made of the results produced by this resource centre; and what plans there are to increase such resource centre provision at other schools in England. [132754]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 23 April 2007]: No resources are paid by central Government to the enhanced resource centre at Fulford School. It is for local authorities (LAs) to organise and maintain their special educational needs (SEN) provision from the resources which are available to them and to keep their SEN arrangements under review.

The Department has not made an assessment of the resource centre at Fulford School. Ofsted's last inspection of the school in December 2003, before the resource centre opened two years ago, noted that > "specialist local authority staff provide high quality individual tuition for students with different needs, including autism and specific learning difficulties".

Since the resource centre opened, City of York LA has conducted a review which found that the centre was making high quality provision which is greatly appreciated by parents.

Decisions on opening resourced provision are taken locally. The Department's team of SEN advisers reported in October 2006 that "many [local authorities] reported on the development of specialist resourced provision within mainstream schools. Most new provision was designed to meet the needs of pupils with Autistic Spectrum Disorders or Behavioural, Emotional and Social Difficulties".

The Ofsted report 'Inclusion: does it matter where pupils are taught? (2006)' stated that "there was little difference in the quality of provision and outcomes for pupils [with SEN] across primary, secondary and special schools. However, 'mainstream schools with additionally resourced provision were particularly successful in achieving high outcomes for pupils academically, socially and personally".

Through guidance, the Government promote a range of provision, including resourced provision, for children with SEN in general and those with autistic spectrum disorders (ASDs) in particular. The ASDs 'Good Practice Guidance' (DfES/DH, 2002) advised local authorities to aim for "a spectrum of provision for the spectrum of need". The Department is currently considering responses to a consultation on draft guidance on 'Planning and Developing Special Educational Provision' which includes advice on developing a range of provision. The guidance will be published later this year.

Grandparents: Parental Responsibility

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he has taken to co-ordinate Government policy to support grandparents who act as parents to their grandchildren. [133014]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Government published the Green Paper 'Care Matters' last autumn which contained a number of proposals and consultation questions related to the care of children by family and friends, including grandparents.

The consultation responses were published on 17 April and it is clear that remaining with family rather than going into care is a very high priority for many children and young people who replied. Respondents also highlighted a range of ways in which support to family and friends carers could be provided. The policy issues have also been considered by the independent working group on future of the care population which was one of four working groups set up following the publication of 'Care Matters'. We shall be taking all these views into account in taking forward the planned 'Care Matters' White Paper.

Higher Education: Finance

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the announcements in the Budget about science funding, what funds are to be made available to the Higher Education Funding Council for England for research funding in each of the next four years. [132770]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The Budget settlement gives an average annual real terms increase of 2.4 per cent. for our total ring-fenced research funding. We are now considering the detailed allocation of funding towards the goal set out in the 10 Year Science and Innovation Investment Framework of maintaining a sustainable and dynamic research base.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what definition the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority uses of drawing on the specified breadth of the subject when teaching the key concepts and processes in the secondary curriculum review. [133455]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority defines

"drawing on the specified breadth of the subject when teaching the key concepts and processes in the secondary curriculum review" as requiring that all parts of the statutory Range and Content sections of the programmes of study must be included in the teaching programme.

Sure Start Programme: Cornwall

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the per capita spending by his Department was on Sure Start programmes in Cornwall in each year since 1997. [133051]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 20 April 2007]: There are currently seven Sure Start local programmes in Cornwall. The programmes opened on a rolling basis between 2000 and 2003 and aimed to reach over 4,800 children. In their first two to three years, programmes were building up their services and did not generally operate at peak levels until the third or fourth year. The average expenditure per child for every year for which the grant was paid or allocated is in the following table. From 2006-07, the earliest programme's grants start to taper to a level consistent with delivering the children's centres offer. We expect that local authorities will be in a position to make savings through economies of scale, for example on administration, finance and evaluation, now that the grant for the programmes is paid directly to them.

2000-01	418
2001-02	901
2002-03[1]	747
2003-04	939

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Carbon Emissions

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his Department began to measure its carbon emissions; what the volume of those emissions was in the last period for which figures are available; when his Department started to offset those emissions; what the cost is expected to be of offsetting his Department's emissions; and if he will make a statement. [116400]

Ian Pearson: The Department's most recent estimate of carbon dioxide emissions (CO_2) from buildings and business travel is as follows:

Buildings	[1]46,009
Business travel	[2]9,155

[1] This figure is for DEFRA and executive agencies.
[2] Carbon dioxide emissions from road vehicles in DEFRA and executive agencies plus carbon dioxide emissions from DEFRA and CEFAS for air travel, taking account of radiative forcing, in line with the Government carbon offsetting fund.

Carbon dioxide emissions from buildings have been recorded since April 1999. DEFRA and executive agencies have recorded carbon dioxide emissions from vehicles since April 2002. DEFRA and the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS) have recorded air travel from April 2005 and rail travel from April 2001.

DEFRA and CEFAS offset air travel (from April 2005), DEFRA offset rail travel (from June 2006) and DEFRA will offset vehicle travel from June 2007. Carbon dioxide emissions from buildings are not offset, but DEFRA is committed to achieving carbon neutrality on its office estate by 2012.

The cost of offsetting carbon dioxide emissions from business travel for 2005-06 is approximately £27,000. DEFRA is a participant in the Government carbon offsetting fund (GCOF) which offsets carbon dioxide emissions attributable to air travel and other sources across some 40 Departments and agencies. The GCOF will deliver between 255,000 and 305,000 certified emission reductions by April 2009.

Departments: Travel

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost was of each helicopter flight he has taken within the UK on official business in the last three months. [133313]

Barry Gardiner: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not taken any helicopter flights within the UK on official business in the last three months.

Fisheries

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultations with (a) the North Sea Fisheries Advisory Council and (b) the Kent and Essex Sea Fisheries Committee he had on skates and rays before attending the December 2006 EU Council of Fisheries ministers. [130812]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The North Sea Regional Advisory Council (RAC) was consulted directly by the European Commission on their proposals for the Total Allowable Catch (TAC) and quota arrangements for 2007 when they were released on 6 December. This included the proposal on the bycatch limit for skates and rays. I am not aware that the RAC raised any concerns about this provision at the time.

Because of the late arrival of the proposals, it was not possible for my Department to consult all interested parties. A number of discussions took place with the National Federation of Fishermen's Organisations (NFFO) and the English producer organisations (POs)—who are represented on the Kent and Essex Sea Fisheries Committee—as well as their counterparts in other parts of the UK. On the basis of these discussions, we identified that the original Commission proposal for a 5 per cent. bycatch limit was too low and likely to lead to increased discarding. The Commission accepted this argument to some extent, and we succeeded in having the figure increased to 25 per cent. We also succeeded in reducing the scale of their proposed cut in the TAC to 20 per cent. (from 45 per cent.).

Ground Water

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to ensure that water service customers may claim a historical rebate of greater than one year for surface drainage services that they have not received. [132631]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat is the economic regulator of the water industry and is responsible for setting price limits.

It requires companies to offer rebates for surface water drainage to customers who do not benefit in any way from this service, starting from the charging year in which they first apply for the rebate. Companies are also required to explain on customers' bills that surface water drainage rebates are available. All 10 water and sewerage companies in England and Wales do this. Many companies also include information leaflets with their bills explaining the rebate.

Ofwat does not expect companies to provide rebates retrospectively for periods before the current charging year. If companies were to do this, they would expect to backdate corresponding increases in charges for customers who are connected for surface water drainage. Ofwat does not consider this to be either practicable or desirable.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the Government of Burma on the treatment of political opponents. [131999]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no bilateral discussions with the Burmese Government.

She remains deeply concerned about the treatment of the Burmese regime's political opponents. Over a thousand political opponents are held in prison and others are subject to harassment and exile for their political beliefs.

As a result, I have on my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's behalf:

raised the treatment of political prisoners with the Burmese ambassador on 15 June 2006 and in my letter to the Burmese Foreign Minister of 5 July 2006; raised human rights abuses in Burma during a meeting of the Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN) ambassadors in London last September, and with UN Under-Secretary General, Ibrahim Gambari, in November 2006; and also highlighted our concerns about the appalling treatment of political opponents in separate statements on 2 June 2006, concerning the harsh sentences given to Shan democracy leaders; 2 October 2006, concerning the arbitrary detention of six Burmese democracy activists; 19 October 2006, concerning the death in custody of Ko Thet Win Aung and 15 February concerning the deplorable decision to extend the house arrest of U Tin Oo, the Vice Chairman of the National League for Democracy.

Most recently, I raised the human rights situation in Burma in my address to the Human Rights Council in Geneva on 13 March and at the EU-Association of Southeast Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting in Nuremberg on 15 March, in the presence of the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister.

I will be again raising Burma when I attend the 8th Asia-Europe Foreign Ministers Meeting, in Hungary on 28-29 May.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent on hospitality by her Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133256]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not maintain central records of total annual expenditure on hospitality across the FCO and UK missions overseas. To collate this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Government Hospitality, FCO Services, spent approximately £810 000 in total in financial year 2006-07. Government Hospitality funds and arranges formal ministerial hospitality for all Government Departments; although the FCO is the largest single user of the service (and budget) it accounts for only around 30 per cent. of the total annual spend.

Iran: Territorial Waters

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the date was of each complaint made by the UK Government to international bodies against the Government of Iran for seizing United Kingdom service personnel in 2004; to which international body each was made; what the outcome was of each complaint; and if she will make a statement. [133817]

Mr. McCartney: We raise the 2004 Iranian seizure of service personnel through our bilateral contacts with Iran, along with Iraq. We have not raised the incident with any international bodies.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made since October 2006 by the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility in Iraq; and what discussions the Government have had with (a) the United States and (b) Iraqi counterparts on the withdrawal of British troops from Iraq. [132536]

Margaret Beckett: The Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility (JCTSR) assesses the extent to which provinces meet the conditions required for transition to Provincial Iraqi Control, and based on this, recommends to the Iraqi Ministerial Council on National Security when provinces are ready. Since October 2006, the JCTSR has recommended that Najaf and Maysan provinces be transitioned.

Decisions on UK force levels in Iraq are naturally the subject of regular consultation both with the Government of Iraq and with the United States and our other allies.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recommendations the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility in Iraq has made on those provinces and provincial capitals ready for the transfer of security responsibilities; and if she will make a statement. [132539]

Margaret Beckett: The Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility has so far recommended Muthanna, Dhi Qar, Najaf and Maysan for transition. All four provinces are now under lead Iraqi security control. As my right hon. Friend the Defence Secretary said on 18 April, the transfer of Maysan province to Provincial Iraqi Control is an important milestone. It demonstrates the progress being made by the Iraqi security forces, in co-operation with Coalition forces, as they continue to assume greater responsibility for their country's security.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact of the departure of Muqtada al-Sadr's political group from the Iraqi parliament on the political situation in Iraq. [132758]

Mr. McCartney: Muqtada al-Sadr's group have not left the Iraqi parliament. Muqtada al-Sadr recently called on Sadrist Ministers in the Iraqi Government to withdraw from their positions. Prime Minister Maliki has welcomed the move as an opportunity to appoint Ministers based on their ability rather than on a sectarian basis and has appointed interim Ministers to the Ministries concerned.

Nigeria: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what international observers were present for recent gubernatorial elections in Nigeria; and what observers she expects to be present for the presidential elections in Nigeria. [132600]

Mr. McCartney: The elections held in Nigeria on 14 April to choose State Governors and Members of the State Houses of Assembly were attended by observers from the EU, the Economic Community of West African States, the Commonwealth, the National Democratic Institute and IFES, a United States-based organisation. The same observer missions were present for the presidential elections held on 21 April. The International Republican Institute also deployed observers on 21 April.

For the elections on both 14 and 21 April the EU Election Observation Mission, led by Max van den Berg, Member of the European Parliament, deployed about 150 observers in total, covering 33 of the 36 States. On both election days our High Commission in Abuja, offices of the Department for International Development in Nigeria and other diplomatic missions also deployed observers, to complement the work of the visiting international observers. My hon. Friend the Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullin) was also present for the presidential elections, with our High Commission, as Special Representative of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of intimidation and undemocratic practices in gubernational elections in Nigeria; and if she will make a statement. [132601]

Mr. McCartney: There have been numerous reports of violence and intimidation during the elections held in Nigeria on 14 April to choose State Governors and Members of the State Houses of Assembly. It is estimated that at least fifty people were killed in election-related violence between 13 and 15 April.

As well as the unacceptable violence and intimidation, there were serious flaws in the administration of the elections. Problems reported by EU observers include poor organisation, lack of transparency, widespread procedural irregularities, significant evidence of fraud, voter disenfranchisement and lack of equal conditions for contestants. In a statement released on 23 April the EU Election Observation Mission in Nigeria said that both the State elections on 14 April and the Federal elections on 21 April had fallen short of basic international and regional standards for democratic elections.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made a public statement about the State and Federal elections on 23 April. The statement is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at: www.fco.gov.uk and we will place a copy in the Library of the House.

Sudan: Asylum

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what monitoring her Department undertakes of the treatment of repatriated asylum seekers in Sudan; and what her latest assessment is of their treatment. [132302]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not routinely monitor individual repatriated failed asylum seekers. It would generally be inappropriate and impractical for the UK to monitor individual citizens of another country once they return there.

This should not be interpreted as disinterest. The FCO follows the human rights situation through our network of posts around the world, including in the countries to which we return failed asylum seekers. Information on the human rights situation is always taken fully into account as a factor in the formulation of Home Office policies on asylum, and hence in the decision about whether it is safe to return an individual.

Asylum and human rights claims by nationals of Sudan are, like those of claimants from all countries, considered on their individual merits in accordance with the UK's obligations under the 1951 UN Refugee Convention and the European Convention on Human Rights. Each application is considered against the background of the latest country information available from a wide range of reliable sources including international organisations, non-governmental organisations, the FCO and the media.

The country information on Sudan is available to decision-makers in regularly updated country reports which are available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/country_reports.html.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions her Department has had on the situation in Darfur with the Government of (a) Chad, (b) the Central African Republic and (c) Uganda. [132300]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is pressing all sides involved in the Darfur conflict to engage in a renewed political process and stop supporting each other's rebels.

The UK Ambassador-at-Large for the Sudanese Peace Process raised these issues when he visited Chad on 20 February. Our High Commissioner in Yaounde (non-resident Ambassador to the Central African Republic) also discussed regional instability with the Government of the Central African Republic when he visited in January. Given the importance of this issue, we will continue to press both the Governments of Chad and Sudan on this matter. We regularly discuss the conflict with our partners in the Security Council and with regional Governments such as Uganda.

We are also urging the African Union and UN to make rapid progress on the political track, which they agreed to take forward at the Addis Ababa and Abuja summits last November.

HEALTH

Waiting Times

13. Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in this Parliament in reducing hospital waiting times. [133186]

Andy Burnham: Excellent progress has been made. Since May 2005, the number of patients waiting longer than six months for treatment has fallen from around 50,000 to less than 400. The average in-patient wait has fallen from 8.3 weeks to 6.6 weeks.

20. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the current maximum waiting times are for hip surgery in (a) Leicestershire, (b) Warwickshire and (c) England. [133195]

Andy Burnham: The maximum wait for all in-patient/day case surgery, including hip operations, has fallen from 26 weeks to 20 weeks from 1 April 2007. By the end of 2008 patients requiring hip surgery will wait a maximum of 18 weeks from general practitioner referral to the start of treatment.

Waiting time data are collected at a specialty level. The latest available data for trauma and orthopaedics, which include hip surgery, in Leicestershire, Warwickshire and England are shown in the table.

Healthcare-acquired Infections

14. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take further steps to improve the public awareness of how to prevent healthcare-acquired infections. [133187]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We already provide information for the public on healthcare associated infections and the "Health Act 2006 Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Health Care Associated Infections" requires Trusts to provide suitable patient information. Additional new materials to help Trusts improve local public awareness are due this summer.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to reduce the incidence of hospital-acquired infection in Gloucestershire. [133179]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Gloucestershire Primary Care Trust is working in partnership with Gloucestershire Hospitals National Health Service Foundation Trust on infection control. The foundation trust has produced a detailed action plan which was assessed by my Department's meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus Improvement Programme Review Team on 6 March 2007, and the local NHS continues to monitor the situation.

Health Visitors

15. Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the availability of health visitors; and if she will make a statement. [133188]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest published census showed the headcount number of health visitors in England has increased by over 400 or 3 per cent. since 1997 to over 12,800 in 2005.

Community Hospitals and Services

16. Andrew Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department is planning to spend on community hospitals and services in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [133189]

Andy Burnham: We are committed to community hospitals where they represent the best solutions for local communities. To support this we have set up a five year £750 million programme to promote the development of community hospitals and services. To date we have allocated around £100 million to 14 different schemes.

Audiology

17. James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of waiting times to receive a digital hearing aid. [133190]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect waiting times data for hearing aid fitting. We recognise that there are significant challenges with regard to waiting times to receive a digital hearing aid. As part of the process of addressing this challenge, we published "Improving Access to Audiology Services in England" in March 2007.

Patients' Telephone Services

18. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the progress of work with suppliers to consider further ways of reducing incoming call charges for hospital patients. [133191]

Andy Burnham: Discussions have taken place with the two service providers, originally investigated by the Office of Communications, to identify possible ways of reducing their incoming call charge.

As reported by the Patient Power Review Group, in February, there is no easy, quick fix solution to this problem but the Department is working hard to resolve this issue.

Smoke-free Legislation

19. Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made towards implementing the smoke-free legislation in England. [133193]

Caroline Flint: With all sets of smoke-free regulations on the statute book, the Department's Smokefree England campaign is in full swing.

Funding and training has been provided to local authorities. Guidance packs are now being sent to businesses across England and a free phone information line and website is operating.

The Department will also run a public information advertising campaign in the lead-up to 1 July.

Health Mutuals

21. Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what ways health mutuals work in co-operation with the NHS. [133196]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A range of mutual organisations are involved in delivering national health service services, including NHS foundation trusts and some social enterprises. Health mutuals can offer positive benefits for patients, local communities and employees.

Alcoholism

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding has been allocated to treat alcoholism in 2007-08. [133681]

Caroline Flint: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine what proportion of their general allocation is spent on treating alcoholism. An additional £15 million is included within PCTs' general allocation from 2007-08 onwards to help PCTs to improve their local arrangements for commissioning and delivering specialist alcohol interventions.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women are required to wait more than three years between breast cancer screenings in (a) each London primary care trust and (b) England. [133816]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The average intervals between screenings for breast cancer by primary care trust is not collected centrally. However, national health service cancer screening programmes requested data from the NHS breast screening programme on the percentage of local screening units achieving the 36 month national standard between screens for quarter four 2005-06 (January to March 2006).

In England, 68 per cent. of women were re-screened within the 36-month national standard and the average wait between screens was 36 months, while the following table shows the average wait between screens (average round length) and the percentage of screenings within the 36-month national standard for the London breast screening units.

Breast screening unit	Average round length (months)	Percentage of screenings within 36 months of previous screening
South East London—GCA 1	35	70
South East London—GCA 2	35	69
North London—EBA	35	66
South West London—HWA	38	44
Barking Havering—FBH	40	28
West of London—ECX	36	46
Central and East London—FLO	35	78
Whipps Cross—FWC	42	7

The NHS cancer plan, published in 2000, stated that we would extend invitations for breast screening to women aged 65 to 70 and introduce two-view mammography at all screening rounds. Thanks to the efforts of the staff in the screening programme, these targets have now been achieved in all local breast screening units. The expansion is already showing an effect, with nearly 12,000 cancers diagnosed by the programme in 2004-05, an increase of 40 per cent. on 2001 when the expansion began.

However, the changes together represent a 40 per cent. increase in the workload of the programme. We are aware that this has had an impact on some services maintaining the three-year interval for screening and we are taking steps to bring all screening intervals back to three years.

We take the issue of the 36-month standard between screens very seriously. That is why Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, wrote to the chief executives of all 10 strategic health authorities in England on 9 February 2007 highlighting the importance of maintaining the 36-month interval.

Chiropody: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision of NHS chiropody services there is in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [130948]

Caroline Flint: This is a local matter. It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders to determine how best to use their resources to meet both national and local priorities. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the local health community including the provision of chiropody services.

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of chlamydia screening is being undertaken using nucleic acid amplification testing. [130751]

Caroline Flint: This information is not collected centrally.

The Government have recognised that the need to switch to the superior nucleic acid amplification test for chlamydia testing and screening should be treated as a priority. £7 million pump-priming money was invested in 2004-05 to ensure that all major laboratories in each region of England use the most effective technology.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many chlamydia tests have been undertaken in each region of England; and what percentage each figure represents of the target; [130753]

(2) how many people aged 16 to 24 have been screened for chlamydia, and what percentage this figure represents of the target. [130756]

Caroline Flint: Information on the number of people screened in 2005-06 between the ages of 16-24 in the national chlamydia screening programme (NCSP) is given in the table (this is the same figure as tests undertaken). The information covers 26 programme areas and represented 25 per cent. of the previous primary care trust configuration. We expect to have 85 programme areas when we see national coverage during this year.

Region	Mid 2005 ONS population	Screening volume year 3 (to March 2006)
North East	352,300	4,373
North West	923,600	19,789
Yorkshire and Humber	701,300	13,333
East Midlands	566,700	6,528
West Midlands	712,200	9,557
East of England	665,600	6,255
London	1,014,000	17,360
South East	1,012,800	19,877
South West	621,700	6,341

In addition, data for the number of people diagnosed with chlamydia in 2005 in genito-urinary clinics for each region were published in 'Diagnosis of selected STIs by region, sex and age group, United Kingdom: 1996–2005'. A copy is available in the Library. The document is also freely available at the following website:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hiv_and_sti/epidemiology/datatables2005.htm

There was no national target covering the number of chlamydia screens in 2005-06.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans she has to increase the number of young people screened for chlamydia; [130754]

(2) what estimate her Department has made of the number of unscreened people between 16 and 24 who are infected with chlamydia. [130755]

Caroline Flint: The national screening chlamydia programme (NSCP) is an important part of the Government's sexual health strategy. Screening volumes have already increased from just over 18,000 in year one (2003-04) to nearly 104,000 in year three (2005-06). No estimate has been made of the number of 16 to 24-year-olds who have not been screened but are infected with chlamydia but positivity rates in year three for both males and females is very similar (10.1 per cent. and 10.2 per cent. respectively). Screening was undertaken in 26 programme areas.

We expect to see all primary care trusts commence screening during 2007. For the first time a local delivery plan target has been introduced for 2007-08. Strategic health authorities have submitted plans to screen at least 15 per cent. of their population aged 15-24 by March 2008.

In addition, the Department has contracted Boots to pilot the potential of retail pharmacies as chlamydia screening venues. Screening started on 14 November 2005 in all of the Boots stores in London. This two-year pilot is being independently evaluated by TNS Healthcare. To date, nearly 18,000 people have been tested between the ages of 16-24.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) staff and (b) civil servants work in her Department's commercial directorate. [131766]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the table.

Commercial directorate

	Number
Civil servants	5.7
Secondees	21.0
Fixed term contractors	229.8

Notes:
Figures as at 28 February 2007

Departments: Market Research

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's total expenditure on communications research was in each year since 1997-98; and how much of this cost was accounted for by producing (a) reports on the public perceptions of the NHS, (b) reports from plain English workshops, (c) stakeholder surveys, (d) national media evaluations, (e) regional media evaluations and (f) other research. [131927]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A list of expenditure on communications research in each year since 1997-98 could be provided only at disproportionate costs, as there are no central records for communications research expenditure prior to April 2004.

In April 2004, the Communications Research Team was established. The following table is their expenditure broken down by the areas requested. This should be regarded as an indicative guide to the Department's spend only:

Communications research	Spend by type (£)
2007
Public perceptions of the NHS tracker survey	32,900
Public and NHS staff workshops	53,100
Departmental stakeholder survey	0

We are committed to consulting and involving the public, national health service staff and our stakeholders to help inform both policy formulation and the delivery of better quality public service. Responsive public services are an important pert of the Modernising Government initiative.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what strategy she has put in place for (a) the use of renewable energy and (b) meeting energy targets in her Department's buildings; and if she will make a statement. [125404]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has been purchasing green electricity since 2001-02. Since 2004-05 100 per cent. of the electricity for our London administrative estate has been purchased from renewable sources. This is a substantially better performance than the Government target required, which was that 10 per cent. of electricity should be from renewable sources.

We are committed to maximising our energy efficiency, and we have been working with the Carbon Trust and others to identify potential savings. We have recently been commended in the 2005-06 Sustainable Development in Government (SDiG) report (published 7 March 2007) for having reduced our absolute carbon emissions by 15.4 per cent. since 1999-2000. Along with other Government Departments, we are working towards the target that the whole Government estate should be carbon neutral by 2012.

This information relates to the Department's main London estate. The Department also occupies a building in Leeds, where the major occupier is Department of Work and Pensions, and another building in London where the major occupier is HM Revenue and Customs. They are subject to the same Government-wide targets. Where we do not have direct control over utilities we nevertheless do whatever we can, such as encouraging our staff to save energy, to reduce the overall CO_2 emissions from these buildings.

Diagnosis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 667W, whether phase two diagnostic schemes have now been finalised in strategic health authorities other than London and the West Midlands; and when she expects the first procedures to be undertaken by phase two diagnostic schemes. [131896]

Andy Burnham: Of the seven regional phase 2 diagnostic schemes, four schemes have reached financial close: London, West Midlands, North West and South West.

The first diagnostic services commenced in London in April 2007, and the remaining schemes will follow on a phased basis through 2007.

Elderly: Nutrition

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the diets of hospital patients over the age of 65 years; and if she will make a statement. [118255]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A number of representations have been made regarding either hospital food, or the nutrition of older people. In particular, there has been a recent short debate in the House of Lords, to ask Her Majesty's Government what plans they have to prevent malnutrition in hospitals, as highlighted in the Age Concern report, "Hungry to be heard", and an Early Day Motion on the same subject.

The Department is actively working on an action plan seeking the involvement of stakeholders in this subject, and recently held a Nutrition Summit, at which Age Concern was represented.

Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust: Pollution Control

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust has spent on buying carbon dioxide permits under the EU Emissions Trading Scheme since the inception of the scheme. [130799]

Caroline Flint: Essex Rivers Healthcare National Health Service Trust does not fall within the provisions of the Greenhouse Gas Emissions Trading Scheme Regulations 2005 and as a result has no financial obligations arising from the scheme.

General Practitioners: Gravesham

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the closure of GP practices in Gravesham. [130997]

Caroline Flint: This is a matter for the local national health service. However, the NHS South East Coast Strategic Health Authority reports that West Kent Primary Care Trust has no plans to close general practitioners practices in the Gravesham area.

Health Services: Private Sector

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what meetings (a) officials and (b) Ministers have had to discuss the outsourcing of primary care trust functions with (i) the private sector, (ii) the not for profit sector, (iii) Mr. Simon Stevens and (iv) Mr. Paul Corrigan; [131765]

(2) what meetings she had with staff from the commercial directorate on each day between 20 June 2006 and 10 July 2006; which staff she met; and what the subject was of each meeting. [131767]

Andy Burnham: Ministers regularly meet with officials to discuss policy and its delivery.

The procurement team working within the commercial directorate of the Department has held meetings with bidders who wished to be considered for inclusion on the framework for procuring external support for commissioners. These have been in accordance with procurement law. The majority of meetings were with the private sector although the not for profit sector was represented in the bidder pool. Mr. Simon Stevens, of United Health Europe, attended meetings on 9 August 2006 and 1 November 2006. There were no meetings with Mr. Paul Corrigan.

Health Trainers

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many of the health trainers announced in the Choosing Health White Paper have been appointed. [131329]

Caroline Flint: There are currently 1,100 health trainers recruited to the programme. It is anticipated there will be 1,500 health trainers in spearhead areas by the end of first quarter 2007-08.

Health: Investors in People

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in incorporating a healthy business assessment in the Investors in People standard as proposed in her Department's White Paper "Choosing Health". [127832]

Caroline Flint: Following the publication of "Choosing Health", the Department commissioned Investors in People UK to develop a new framework dedicated to improving health and well-being in the workplace, firmly underpinned by evidence.

A pilot of the latest version of the Investors in People's health and well-being at work framework is now under way, with over 100 organisations undertaking live assessments against the standard.

Heart Disease and Stroke Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Department's report of 5 December on the clinical case for reconfiguration in the context of heart disease and stroke services (1) how many hospitals in each of the strategic health authorities will provide the highest level of emergency diagnostic and treatment services for heart attack and stroke patients; and what assessment she has made of the effect of the proposed reconfiguration of accident and emergency departments on the future resources of ambulance trusts; [109384]

(2) how many hospitals she expects to provide a (a) 24 hour emergency angioplasty service, (b) 24 hour thrombolysing service for patients with cerebral vascular embolism and (c) 24 hour diagnostic scanning and other services to support these procedures; [109385]

(3) what would be the (a) fewest locations it would be safe to provide and (b) most accident and emergency departments her Department considers to be feasible with full 24 hour per day emergency diagnostic and treatment facilities for heart attack and stroke patients. [109396]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is currently in the middle of a study involving 11 hospitals (10 primary angioplasty centres) to test the feasibility of extending primary angioplasty as the treatment of choice for heart attack in England. The study is looking at different models of service and different geographies. An independent evaluation is assessing workforce implications, costs and the patient experience of primary angioplasty. It will be for local commissioners to decide on their service configuration taking into account the lessons from this study. An interim report on the study is due in 2007 with the final report due in early 2008.

The Department has also commenced work on an 18-month programme to develop a national strategy for strokes. We will be examining different models of care for different geographical areas and it will be for local commissioners to decide upon.

The reconfiguration of accident and emergency departments is for the national health services locally to decide upon, following full consultation with local people. We would expect the development of any proposals for reconfiguration to include an assessment of the impact on the health economy as a whole, including the impact on ambulance trusts.

Homeopathy

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will take steps to ensure that patients requesting homeopathic treatment are able to attend one of the NHS homeopathic hospitals in England; [127995]

(2) what steps she is taking to ensure that primary care trusts make patients aware that homeopathic treatment is an option on the NHS; [127996]

(3) if she will make a statement on the availability of homeopathy in NHS hospitals. [127997]

Caroline Flint: The homeopathic hospitals in this country fall under the jurisdiction of the national health service in the area in which they are based. Any decision on the services any of these hospitals provide are the responsibility of those NHS health care organisations.

The Department commissioned the Prince's Foundation for Integrated Health to publish a guide to complementary medicine for patients which gives them the information they would need to make an informed choice about the treatment they would wish to have. This publication is available online at www.FIH.org.uk. Information is also available on the NHS Direct website, www.nhsdirect.nhs.uk, on the possibility of homeopathy being available from one of the five NHS homeopathic hospitals in the United Kingdom as well as some general practitioner practices providing access to homeopathic treatment.

The Government consider that decision-making on individual clinical interventions, whether conventional, or complementary/alternative treatments, have to be a matter for local NHS service providers and practitioners as they are best placed to know their community's needs. In making such decisions, they have to take into account evidence for the safety, clinical and cost-effectiveness of any treatments, the availability of suitably qualified practitioners, and the needs of the individual patient. Clinical responsibility rests with the NHS professional who makes the decision to refer and who must therefore be able to justify any treatment they recommend. If they are unconvinced about the suitability of a particular treatment, they cannot be made to refer.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients prescribed homeopathic treatment will be able to access it from (a) one of the four NHS homeopathic hospitals and (b) local NHS homeopathic clinics; and what commitments the Government has made to the continued provision of homeopathy through NHS homeopathic hospitals. [131760]

Caroline Flint: The homeopathic hospitals in the United Kingdom fall under the jurisdiction of the national health service in the area in which they are based. Any decisions on the services any of these hospitals provide are the responsibility of those NHS healthcare organisations.

Hospices: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Department's press release of 9 April 2007 entitled National Funding for Local Hospices, what proportion of the £40 million allocated for hospice funding will be available in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [131907]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In September 2006, as part of the Dignity in Care programme, we announced £50 million to be made available over 2006-07 and 2007-08 to enable adult hospices to bid to make physical improvements to their buildings. Hospices were invited to apply for a share of £40 million of this funding to improve their facilities and provide greater dignity for people at or nearing the end of life.

On 9 April 2007 we announced that a total of 191 schemes in 146 hospices had been approved for funding to a total of £40 million. These grants will enable a wide range of improvements for patients and their families, such as more single rooms which offer greater privacy and dignity, additional facilities to allow families to stay overnight with their relatives and more therapeutic and social spaces.

All grants are subject to the individual hospices' receipt of formal confirmation and acceptance of terms and conditions. Once terms are accepted, the funds will be issued over the duration of the projects. We expect the majority of the funding to be issued during 2007-08.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Department's press release of 9 April 2007 entitled National Funding for Local Hospices, which bids for a share of £40 million were unsuccessful; and what the value of the bid was in each such case. [131914]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is in the following table.

Hospices with rejected bid schemes

Name of hospice/ organisation	Name of rejected project title	Amount requested (£)
Arthur Rank House	Arthur Rank House—refurbishment of inpatient facilities	247,485

Treetops Hospice	Ripple Appeal	300,000

Note:
In September 2006, as part of the Dignity in Care Campaign, we announced that £50 million would be made available to enhance the physical environment for older people cared for in hospices. An application process was launched for £40 million, administered on behalf of the Department by Help the Hospices. At our request, Help the Hospices established an independent steering group comprising key figures from the hospice and palliative care movement, clinicians, architects and engineers.
This group assessed each application against pre-defined criteria and provided advice to the Department on which applications should be supported.
Of 227 bids, 191 schemes in 146 hospices were approved for funding. There were 36 unsuccessful bids and seven hospices without a single bid accepted.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on public funding for hospices. [133192]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The level of funding a hospice receives is a matter for local negotiation between the local primary care trust (PCT), who are responsible for commissioning and funding palliative care services locally, and the hospice.

The Government have delivered on their commitment to make an additional £50 million per annum available for specialist palliative care for adults. This money is now recurrent in PCT baseline allocations. Voluntary sector children's hospices are receiving funding of £27 million between 2006-07 and 2008-09. In addition, an independent review of the long-term sustainability of children's palliative care (including children's hospices) is being undertaken and its findings will be reported to Ministers shortly.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished in-year admissions there were in the NHS in each year since 1990-91. [131894]

Andy Burnham: The information on the number of finished in-year admissions is shown in the following table.

Data year	Finished in-year admission episodes
1990-91	8,268,853
1991-92	8,451,840
1992-93	9,018,746
1993-94	9,457,746
1994-95	9,642,471
1995-96	10,117,212
1996-97	10,128,826
1997-98	10,454,374
1998-99	10,888,972
1999-2000	11,025,943

Hospitals: ICT

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Care Records Service computer systems have been installed in hospitals. [132468]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 19 April 2007]: There are currently 311 hospital-based computer systems deployed through the national programme for information technology that are connected to and use the spine. The spine is the colloquial name given to the national database of key information about patients' health and care. It forms the core of the national health service care records service (NHS CRS). It also supports other key elements of the national programme for information technology, such as choose and book, the electronic prescriptions service, and general practitioner (GP) to GP record transfer, each of them using the spine's messaging capabilities as part of their own services.

A further 158 systems already deployed through the programme will in due course be enabled to link to the spine following further future releases of the relevant software.

Independent Treatment Centres

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the phase two independent sector treatment centres being negotiated, broken down by strategic health authority; what stage of negotiation has been reached in each case; how many operations each centre is expected to perform per year; and how many staff each centre is expected to employ. [129884]

Andy Burnham: The information requested has been placed in the Library. The figures and scheme specifications provided are based on current expected total volumes over the contract period. Independent sector treatment centres contracts stipulate the expected case mix and volume of healthcare to be completed during the five year period of the contract. Actual volumes may change depending on the case mixes that are referred.

For schemes at preferred bidder stage, the commercial terms between the Department and the preferred bidder are still under negotiation, and are subject to change.

Kanamycin and Neomycin

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what medical uses are permitted of (a) kanamycin and (b) neomycin; and how much of each medicine was used in England in each of the last five years. [128103]

Caroline Flint: There are no licensed products containing kanamycin in the United Kingdom and there are no records of kanamycin having been prescribed in the national health service in the last five years.

Neomycin has a number of indications and is licensed both on its own and in combination with steroids and other anti-infectives as follows:

in combination with betamethasone (a steroid) for:

the short-term treatment of steroid responsive inflammatory conditions of the eye when prophylactic antibiotic treatment is also required, after excluding the presence of viral and fungal disease;

otitis externa or other steroid responsive conditions of the ear where prophylactic antibiotic treatment is also required; steroid-responsive inflammatory conditions of the nose where prophylactic antibiotic treatment is also required; for the treatment of the following conditions where secondary bacterial infection is present, suspected, or likely to occur:

eczema in adults and children (aged 2 years and over), including atopic and discoid eczemas;

prurigo nodularis;

psoriasis (excluding widespread plaque psoriasis);

neurodermatoses including lichen simplex and lichen planus;

seborrhoeic dermatitis;

contact sensitivity reactions;

insect bite reactions;

anal and genital intertrigo.

in combination with bacitracin (an anti-bacterial) for:

superficial bacterial infection of the skin, such as impetigo, varicose ulcers, pressure sores, trophic ulcers and burns.

in combination with dexamethasone (a steroid) and polymyxin B (an anti-bacterial) for:

the short-term treatment of steroid responsive conditions of the eye when prophylactic antibiotic treatment is also required, after excluding the presence of fungal and viral disease.

in combination with chlorhexidine gluconate as a nasal cream for:

the eradication of nasal infection with, and carriage of, staphylococci.

with triamcinolone acetonide (a steroid), gramicidin and nystatin (anti-infectives) for:

the treatment of corticosteroid sensitive dermatoses complicated by infections due to micro-organisms sensitive to the anti-infectives.

in tablet form for:

pre-operative sterilisation of the bowel. It may also be useful in the treatment of impending hepatic coma, including portal systemic encephalopathy.

Usage of neomycin in England is shown in the following table.

	Prescription items dispensed in the community (Thousand)	Net ingredient cost for the community (£000)	Estimated cost of hospital prescriptions (£000)
2001	364.6	565.7	359.8
2002	347.1	539.3	376.5
2003	363.9	566.3	375.4
2004	348.1	562.5	400.0
2005	361.7	611.7	327.9

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to reply to the hon. Member for Billericay's letter dated 8 March concerning Mr. O'Reilly. [133759]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I regret the letter was not received by the Department. If the hon. Member would forward a copy I will arrange for it to be dealt with urgently.

Mental Health Services: Children

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's estimated funding is for child and adolescent mental health services in each of the next five years; and what objectives she has set for the use of such funding. [130305]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In December 2005 the Department announced that £88.214 million will be allocated to local authorities in 2007-08 via the child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) grant. This grant is to be used by local authorities to improve CAMHS, in accordance with local needs and priorities, as set out in local CAMHS development strategies. In 2006-07, £50 million was made available to strategic health authorities for CAMHS as part of a larger bundle of revenue funding for the national health service. The annual CAMHS mapping exercise shows that overall expenditure on specialist CAMHS increased from £431million in 2004-05 to a projected £513 million in 2005-06, an increase of 19 per cent.

Funding for CAMHS beyond 2007-08 is being considered as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR). It is anticipated that details of the CSR settlement will be announced in autumn 2007.

Multiple Sclerosis: Charities

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effects of fees for annual inspections from the Healthcare Commission on charitable not-for-profit multiple sclerosis therapy centres. [121448]

Andy Burnham: Annual fees to cover the cost of providing assessment and registration services are approved by the Secretary of State for Health, after consideration of proposals submitted by the Healthcare Commission. Assessment of the effects of fees is therefore for the Commission in the first instance.

The Healthcare Commission consulted on its 2007-08 independent healthcare sector fee proposals between 20 December 2006 and 20 February 2007. I understand from the Chairman of the Commission that during the consultation period it received numerous representations from providers asking that fees should be reduced for hospices and voluntarily funded establishments using type 3 hyperbaric oxygen chambers.

The Healthcare Commission revised its proposals after considering the comments it received. For 2007-08, annual fees for multiple sclerosis therapy centres have been reduced from £1,566 to £1,225, a reduction of 22 per cent. This is the first time that regulatory fees under the Care Standards Act 2000 have been reduced. Fees for first time registrations have increased from £907 to £990.

NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, columns 442-43W, on NHS Direct, what the average cost per call to NHS Direct was in the most recent period for which figures are available in the same format as that provided in the answer to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton) of 8 September 2003, Official Report, column 236W, on NHS Direct. [131885]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the chief executive of the new NHS Direct NHS Trust.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Healthcare Commission expects to publish its interim report on the review of independent sector treatment centres. [133204]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 23 April 2007]: I understand the Healthcare Commission (HC) has decided not to publish an interim report on the quality of clinical care provided by the independent sector treatment centres (ISTCs) because of problems with the quality and coverage of the initial ISTC data. They took the view that publishing an interim report would present only a partial and confusing picture of the findings of the review. As a result of the improvement in the data quality and completeness of the ISTC submissions, the HC felt that the review would be best serviced by focusing efforts on producing the final report, not an interim publication.

NHS: Complaints

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) second and (b) third stage complaints have been processed through the NHS complaints procedure in each of the last five years. [128720]

Andy Burnham: Since July 2004 to date, the Healthcare Commission has responsibility for independent review (the second stage of the national health service complaints process) of complaints which have not been satisfactorily resolved by the provider at the first stage. Prior to July 2004, the NHS itself was responsible for reviewing complaints at the second stage, through independent review panels. Therefore the sets of data have been collected by two separate organisations, produced in different ways and consequently are not directly comparable. The Healthcare Commission has provided the following information on cases received for review, and numbers completed:

	Received	Completed
31 July 2004-31 March 2005	5,867	839
1 April 2005-31 March 2006	7,644	7,366
1 April 2006 to date	7,505	9,421
Total	21,016	17,626

The following information relates to cases processed at second stage by the NHS prior to July 2004, on cases requesting independent review, and cases referred to independent review panels within each year:

	Requests	Referred to independent review panel
2001-02	3,339	606
2002-03	3,600	450
2003-04	3,739	416
1 April 2004-30 July 2004	997	324

Note

Not all requests would have been referred to an independent panel, but they would all have undergone some degree of second stage process in order to determine whether consideration by an independent review panel would be appropriate.

Complaints that are not resolved at stage two may be referred to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman (PHSO), the third stage of the complaints procedure. Therefore information on numbers of NHS complaints processed at the third stage is held by the PHSO and is not collected by the Department of Health nor held centrally. The information can be obtained by request to the PHSO direct at www.ombudsman.org.uk

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on NHS financial performance in the year 2006-07. [133180]

Andy Burnham: On the basis of results reported at quarter 3 2006-07, we believe that the national health service is on course to at least deliver a balanced financial position at the end of the 2006-07 and continues to perform well against key service targets.

This strengthened financial position is a clear sign that the NHS is delivering against the strict financial targets we have set, and be in a position to start 2007-08 in robust financial health.

NHS: IT

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what audit has been undertaken of the deliverability of the volume of clinical bookings it is planned to make on the new NHS IT system. [132074]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Proof of solution testing before the system went live in 2004 demonstrated that the choose and book system would be able to perform satisfactorily when dealing with the design target for bookings during the peak hour, that is some 8,400 bookings per hour, which is equivalent to 15.8 million bookings per year. This test was repeated in 2005.

In addition, as part of the 2004 tests a scalability test was conducted to demonstrate that the system could scale beyond the peak hour rate (8,400). The system was tested up to 280 per cent. of the peak hour level (up to 23,000 bookings per hour).

The capacity and performance of the system is kept under regular review to ensure that it remains fit for purpose, including any expansion of the system to deal with additional bookings.

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in developing a common assessment framework, as referred to in paragraph 5.26 of her Department's White Paper "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say". [131915]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has convened a policy collaborative, which includes representation from a range of stakeholders across health and social care, to advise on the development of policy proposals for a common assessment framework for adults. The policy collaborative has met three times since it was launched in October 2006.

Obesity

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) adults and (b) children were diagnosed as (i) overweight and (ii) obese in each year since 1997; and what estimate she has made of the number of (A) adults and (B) children who were (i) overweight and (ii) obese in each year since 1997. [131861]

Caroline Flint: The main source of data on the prevalence of overweight and obesity among children and adults is the Health Survey for England (HSE). The information is not available in the format requested. The information on the estimated number of overweight and obese adults and children in England is unavailable, as the HSE reports on percentages rather than the numbers.

Obesity: Health Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many primary care trusts (a) have set up and (b) are in the process of setting up weight management clinics; [131650]

(2) how many GP practices have established weight management services within their clinics. [131651]

Caroline Flint: There are 13 national health service operated obesity clinics for children and adults located across England. Information on the number of primary care trusts (PCTs) who are in the process of setting up weight management clinics and the number of general practitioner practices that have established weight management services within their clinics is not held centrally.

It is up to PCTs as local commissioners and providers of services to determine the most appropriate methods to deliver health care to their populations, based on clinical need and effectiveness, as well as local circumstances, drawing on the available evidence.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of her Department's funding is spent on obesity mangement services. [131652]

Caroline Flint: Managing obesity is a complex issue with no simple solution as it is both a cause and consequence of many physiological and psychological health problems. In addition, it requires partnership working at a national and local level, primary care trusts and local authorities are the key delivery organisations in preventing and managing obesity. It is up to these organisations, as local commissioners and providers of services, to determine the most appropriate methods to deliver health care to their populations, including interventions on obesity. Decisions are based on clinical need and effectiveness, as well as local circumstances, drawing on the available evidence. As these services are commissioned locally and are likely to range from clinical interventions to community based services, it is difficult to make any assessment of overall spending in this area, as we do not have detailed breakdown of funding.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps her Department is taking to ensure compliance with National Institute of Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on obesity; [131653]

(2) what resources will be made available in order to meet the National Institute of Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on obesity in 2007-08. [131670]

Caroline Flint: NICE (National Institute of Health and Clinical Excellence) guidance is explicitly included in Standards for Better Health, which sets out the Government's high level expectations for the health service. The developmental standards on clinical and cost effectiveness and public health require that national health service organisations should be making progress towards implementation of NICE clinical guidelines and public health including the guidance on obesity. It is anticipated that assessment by the Healthcare Commission of progress in implementing NICE obesity guidance will be made as part of the 2007-08 annual health check.

Primary care trusts, as local commissioners and providers of services, determine the most appropriate methods to deliver health care to their populations, based on clinical need and effectiveness, as well as local circumstances, drawing on the available evidence.

Out-patients: Gravesend Hospital

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her estimate is of the change in the number of patients missing appointments since clinics were transferred from Gravesend Hospital to Darent Valley Hospital. [130995]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) who drafted the original Official Journal of the European Union notice on primary care trust commissioning published on 29 June 2006; [131763]

(2) what involvement Mr. Paul Corrigan had in drafting the original Official Journal of the European Union notice on primary care trusts commissioning published on (a) 29 June 2006 and (b) subsequent versions; [131764]

(3) which (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers, (c) officials and (d) non-departmental staff (i) saw and (ii) signed off the original Official Journal of the European Union notice on primary care trusts commissioning published on 29 June 2006 before it was published. [131768]

Andy Burnham: The Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU) notice was published on 17 June 2006 and was drafted by the Department of Health's Commercial Directorate. The Prime Minister's special adviser for health was not involved in the drafting of the notice or subsequent versions.

Where a procurement neither constitutes a major policy announcement, nor carries major financial risk to the Secretary of State, a Director General has delegated authority to act, and can sign off an OJEU notice. Under this authority, and following normal process, the Director General of the Commercial Directorate signed off the OJEU notice published on 17 June.

Prisons: Drugs

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 552W, on Prisons: Drugs, over what time scale the funding announced on 28 September 2004 is planned to be spent. [130435]

Caroline Flint: In 2004 the Department announced funding for the clinical element of integrated drug treatment system (IDTS) of £20 million in 2006-07 rising to £40 million in 2007-08. This was reduced to £12 million in 2006-07 following the wider review of the Department spending. For 2007-08 the Department's funding will rise to £12.7 million.

Alongside this, the Home Office funded the psycho-social elements of IDTS, investing £5 million in 2006-07. This contribution is expected to rise to around £6 million for 2007-08.

Pseudoephedrine

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the advice she has received on making over the counter medicines containing pseudoephedrine available on prescription only. [126845]

Caroline Flint: There has been increasing concern from the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) that pseudoephedrine and ephedrine can be extracted from over the counter (OTC) remedies relatively easily and used in the manufacture of methylamphetamine. Methylamphetamine was reclassified on 18 January 2007 by the Home Office as a Class A controlled drug, based on the recommendation of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD).

Although the prevalence of misuse of methylamphetamine is believed to be currently low in the United Kingdom, ACPO are receiving increasing levels of intelligence about the prevalence of methylamphetamine. If methylamphetamine did secure a hold in the UK, the consequences would undoubtedly be very serious. The international experience shows that misuse can spread rapidly when certain conditions prevail and the advice of UK enforcement authorities is that most of these conditions now prevail in the UK.

In January 2007 the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM) considered the evidence of a risk to public health from OTC availability of the precursors to methylamphetamine, pseudoephedrine and ephedrine. The evidence to date centres on advice from ACPO and SOCA that the availability of methylamphetamine is increasing, evidenced in part by the increase in the number of illicit laboratories manufacturing methylamphetamine found by the police in the UK. The police have identified in specific cases that multiple packs of particular pharmacy pseudoephedrine containing products had been purchased and used in the illicit manufacture of methylamphetamine. They have also identified that, in part, these packs were obtained from numerous pharmacies to obtain adequate quantities for manufacturing.

The CHM recommended that changing the legal status of pseudoephedrine and ephedrine together with restricting the pack size was necessary to protect public health in the UK and that a consultation exercise should be conducted on these proposals. Ministers accepted this advice and a full public consultation exercise commenced on 7 March 2007 and can be accessed via the MHRA's website at:

www.mhra.gov.uk

Smoking

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans her Department has to publicise the change in the age at which tobacco can legally be purchased; [130924]

(2) what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for the Home Department on measures to ensure that the increase in the age for the legal purchase of tobacco is not accompanied by abuse, intimidation or violence as a result of refusal of sale; and if she will make a statement. [130994]

Caroline Flint: The change in the minimum age for selling tobacco from 16 to 18 will come into force on 1 October 2007. Communication plans are in development and the Department is in discussion with key stakeholders. The Department will focus on publicising the change in age to the two most affected groups: retailers and teenagers.

The Department and Home Office have discussed the issue at official level. It is not expected that the rise in the age of sale will result in serious intimidation or violence against shopkeepers. This has not been the experience in other countries for example like Ireland where the minimum age for tobacco sale has been changed recently. Trading Standards guidance for retailers will include advice on handling intimidation by customers refused sale because they cannot prove that they meet the minimum age.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations she has received on the implementation of the smoking ban in working men's clubs; and if she will make a statement. [131988]

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the effect on the viability of working men's clubs of the introduction of the smoking ban. [132582]

Caroline Flint: Working men's clubs and other such clubs have been consulted at all stages of consideration of the Health Act 2006 and its implementation. We continue to work closely with organisations representing working men's clubs in the run up to the implementation of the smoke free provisions of the Health Act 2006 on 1 July 2007.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken to inform owners of restaurants, hotels and public houses of the smoking ban which comes into place on 1 July. [133471]

Caroline Flint: Through the Smokefree England campaign, the Department is delivering a major communications campaign to support businesses to be prepared for the implementation of smokefree legislation on Sunday, 1 July 2007. Recent surveys by the Department show extremely high levels of awareness among the hospitality industry and customers.

Information on the new law is available from the freephone Smokefree England information line on 0800 169 169 7 and on the Smokefree England website at www.smokefreeengland.co.uk. The website has received nearly 250,000 visits to date.

The Department has developed a range of guides on the new law. A guidance pack, including a guide, no-smoking signs and other support materials is being sent to all businesses in England that employ staff during April. Guidance documents can be downloaded from the Smokefree England website, and will be available in a range of different languages and formats, including a downloadable MP3 audio version.

A Ministerial Reference Group comprising key stakeholders was created last year to facilitate dialogue between business groups including representatives from the hospitality industry, local government and the Department, and has met regularly. The Department also continues to work closely with organisations that represent the hospitality industry to increase awareness of the new legislation among their constituents.

Local councils are also working to build compliance in their communities. Local businesses are advised to contact their local council for advice and support in implementing smoke free legislation.

Written Questions

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she expects to reply to question 109396, on accident and emergency services for heart disease and stroke patients, tabled by the hon. Member for St. Ives on 11 December 2006; [132903]

(2) when she expects to reply to question 109385, on heart disease and stroke patients, tabled by the hon. Member for St Ives on 11 December 2006. [132966]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 April 2007]: A reply has been given today.

York Capio Centre

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2007, Official Report, columns 2052-54W, on the York Capio Centre, why the Minister cannot release information about (a) the number of procedures contracted and carried out for NHS patients at this centre and (b) the relative cost to the primary care trust of purchasing procedures from this centre and York NHS Hospital Trust; and if she will make a statement. [127288]

Andy Burnham: The Clifton Park National Health Service Treatment Centre is expected to deliver approximately 10,000 procedures over the five year contract period. At the end of January 1,817 procedures had been delivered for NHS patients. Primary care trusts pay for the services provided at NHS tariff or at costs equivalent to the NHS costs for such services.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Democratic Republic of Congo

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what effect he expects recent political violence in Democratic Republic of the Congo to have on the repatriation of failed asylum seekers to that country. [132303]

Mr. Byrne: Asylum and human rights claims made by those from the Democratic Republic of Congo continue to be considered on their individual merits in accordance with our international obligations and taking full account of the latest available information about the conditions in the country as they impact on the individual claimant.

Asylum: Sudan

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers from Darfur (a) applied for asylum and (b) were returned to Sudan in each of the last four years. [132515]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not available in the format requested. The Border and Immigration Agency does not electronically record the region from which asylum applicants originate. That information would be available only by examination of individual case files at disproportionate cost.

Information on the nationality of asylum applications and removals is published quarterly and annually. Information on the number of asylum applicants removed from the UK, broken down by nationality, is produced regularly in the annual Asylum Bulletin. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office research, development and statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Crime: Alcoholic Drinks

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of alcohol consumption on crime; and what data he collects on this. [133680]

Mr. Coaker: There are two main sources of information on alcohol-related crime: the British crime survey and the offending, crime and justice survey.

The BCS provides information on the proportion of violent incidents in England and Wales where the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol. According to the latest BCS (2005-06) the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol in 44 per cent. of violent incidents, which is approximately the same as the figure for the previous year (48 per cent.). The estimated number of violent incidents where the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol was 1,029,000 based on the BCS interviews in 2005-06.

The OCJS asks questions about people's participation in alcohol-related crime and disorder. The 2005 OCJS found that being drunk once a month or more was a risk factor for offending among 10 to 25-year-olds. Further analysis of the 2003 survey revealed that, among 18 to 24-year-olds, those respondents identified as 'binge drinkers' (defined as those who drank alcohol and felt very drunk at least once a month in the last 12 months) were more likely to offend than other regular drinkers and non-drinkers. Young male binge drinkers were twice as likely to commit a violent offence than other young male regular drinkers. Binge drinkers were also more likely to commit criminal or disorderly behaviour (such as getting into a fight or damaging something) during or after drinking than other regular drinkers.

The 2004 OCJS found that among those aged between 10 and 17 years old, those who drank once a week or more committed more offences than those who drank less frequently or not at all. Again, a higher proportion of those who drank alcohol once a week or more reported committing criminal damage and theft offences during or after drinking than those who drank less frequently.

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was allocated to tackling (a) gun crime and (b) knife crime in each round of funding from the connected fund programme since its introduction; and to which groups that funding was given. [131216]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Since being established in May 2004, the connected fund has allocated approximately £1.2 million over five rounds, funding 300 projects in England and Wales. The projects funded focus on tackling gun crime, knife crime and gangs. Many of the projects cover a wide range of issues with the aim of helping young people at risk of becoming involved in violent crime, and it is not possible to identify an exact figure spent specifically on gun crime or knife crime from the fund.

Full details of projects funded can be found on the Connected website:

Domestic Violence

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many copies of the Domestic Violence: an MPs Guide (a) leaflet and (b) supplementary booklet were printed; what the cost was of each; and how they were distributed to hon. and right hon. Members. [128075]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The development of the guide came about as an action from the inter-ministerial group on domestic violence. Its intention is to provide MPs with information on what they can do if they are approached by a constituent affected by domestic violence.

We initially placed 23 mock-up copies of the guide in the Libraries of both Houses of Parliament on 6 March. A further 30 mock-up copies were distributed at an event attended by MPs on 6 March. We have printed a further 1,000 guides, 23 of which will replace the mock-up in both Libraries.

To reach a wider audience and ensure greater distribution of this resource, PDF versions of both the leaflet and a supplementary booklet are available on the Home Office's Crime Reduction website. The supplementary booklet will not been printed.

The cost of producing the leaflet and supplementary booklet was approximately £1,500. The production costs for 1,000 copies were £380.69, and the design service costs, based on 30 hours work at £36.40 per hour, were £1,092.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 1 March 2007, Official Report, column 1507W, on domestic violence, in how many and what percentage of domestic violence incidents dealt with by the police (a) the presence and (b) the residence of a child present was recorded at the incident. [133240]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not collected centrally by the Home Office.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of incidences of domestic violence reported to each police force involved (a) male and (b) female victims in each of the last five years. [133309]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1222W. This gave figures from the British Crime Survey for incidents of domestic violence in England and Wales. The BCS does not have these data at police force area level and so the information requested is not available.

Fines: EC Law

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department has taken to implement the EU Council framework decision 2005/214/JHA on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to financial penalties. [132950]

Joan Ryan: We are working towards implementation of the framework decision but it is not yet possible to indicate when we will do so because primary legislation will be required for implementation in England and Wales.

Human Trafficking: Children

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which agency is responsible for the welfare of victims of child trafficking once they have been identified. [132751]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Local authority children's services have a duty to safeguard and promote the welfare of all children including those that are thought to have been trafficked. Following an assessment of their circumstances and under section 20 of the Children Act 1989, a local authority has a duty to provide accommodation for any child within its area if it considers that the child is in need of care. Using the powers vested in them by the Children Act 1989 where there is a risk to the life of the child or a likelihood of serious harm, the local authority or police are required to act quickly to secure the immediate safety of the child.

Immigration: Telephone Services

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many calls were received by his Department's immigration matters helplines from hon. Members' offices in each year since 2001. [133017]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Border and Immigration Agency MPs' hotline received 119,695 telephone calls from Members of Parliament, the House of Lords and members of the devolved assemblies during the period 1 June 2003 to 31 March 2007, which is the only period where statistical information is available.

Police: Internet

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) non-emergency and (b) hate crime incidents were recorded and submitted through the police.uk website in the most recent year for which figures are available. [128849]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 March 2007]: All forces have their own websites that were linked to the police portal. The portal had a national crime and hate crime incident reporting facility as well as other capabilities including message broadcasting. However, the portal was not well used by the public and few forces used its other capabilities. The links have therefore been suspended and the Association of Chief Police Officers and the National Policing Improvement Agency are working together to find an alternative solution that recognises forces internal capability. In the period January 2006 to February 2007 52,321 non-emergency and 2,827 hate crime incidents were submitted.

Prisons: Smuggling

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many HM Prison Service employees are being monitored as suspected of trafficking contraband; and if he will make a statement. [132972]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Staff corruption investigations are undertaken by prisons or at area manager level and information of this type is not collected centrally. It could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Tobacco

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the black market currency value of (a) a single cigarette, (b) a standard packet of 20 cigarettes and (c) 50 grams of hand-rolling tobacco in each prison establishment where a total no smoking ban has been introduced; and if he will make a statement. [132973]

Mr. Sutcliffe: None. Strategies are in place to manage the security risks posed by contraband and other articles which can be used as currency in a prison setting. Discipline issues have been taken into account in drawing up arrangements to implement anti-smoking legislation in prisons.

Schools: Crime

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences against the person carried out on school property were reported to police in each year since 1997; and how many of these offences involved as the victim (a) a teacher, (b) a pupil, (c) other staff and (d) a parent, broken down by local authority area. [133268]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available from the recorded crime statistics. Offences occurring on school property cannot be separately identified and no data is collected on the status of victims.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) theft and (b) criminal damage from (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools were reported to police in each year since 1997; and how many and what percentage of those cases resulted in the arrest of a school pupil, broken down by local authority area. [133270]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available from the recorded crime statistics. Offences occurring on school property cannot be separately identified and information is not collected on the status of those arrested.

Vladimir Ismaili

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why the Albanian Vladimir Ismaili was granted bail after his recent conviction for human trafficking following a joint investigation by Manchester and Warwickshire police; and whether he has been recaptured. [132752]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The decision of whether to bail or remand a defendant into custody is at the discretion of the court which must follow the clearly set out procedures in the Bail Act 1976. It would not be appropriate for the Government to pass comment on the actions of the court in this particular case.

Mr. Ismaili was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment in his absence on 22 December 2006 for false imprisonment, two counts of trafficking within the UK for sexual exploitation, causing or inciting prostitution for gain and blackmail, and is still at large. A warrant for his arrest has been issued by the court.

Youth Justice Board

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 976W, on the Youth Justice Board, if he will provide a list of the Youth Justice Board's research studies and the corporate targets and outcome measures to which each relates. [131415]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Youth Justice Board has published a list of its research studies and the corporate targets to which each relates in the Youth Justice Board Research Strategy 2006-08. I have arranged for a copy to be placed in the Library of both Houses. The report is also available on the YJB website at http://www.yjb.gov.uk.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

House of Commons Commission: Manpower

Mr. Maples: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many people are employed by the Commission; and how many of those employees earn over £60,000 per annum. [132980]

Nick Harvey: As at 31 March 2007, the Commission employed 1,657 staff of which 85 were paid at an annual rate of over £60,000.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Developing Countries: Health Professions

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures his Department has in place to assist developing countries in retaining their health workers. [132858]

Mr. Thomas: In last year's International White Paper, DFID committed to help developing countries solve their staffing crises by supporting training.

providing staff incentives to work in underserved countries and increasing support for community health workers.

In Malawi, DFID has provided £100 million over six years to fund an innovative emergency human resource programme to support the training, recruitment and retention of health workers. This programme will double the number of Malawian nurses and treble the number of Malawian doctors.

The UK has drawn up a code of conduct for the international recruitment of healthcare professionals. This actively prevents the NHS from recruiting health workers from low and middle-income countries unless there is a Government-Government agreement in place to manage the process.

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what work is being undertaken by his Department to assist developing countries in tackling mother to child transmission of HIV/AIDS. [132859]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is intensifying action on tackling mother to child transmission of HIV at country level. In Zimbabwe, DFID has initiated a £25 million project specifically to address maternal and newborn health and HIV. In Malawi, where DFID is the major donor in the health sector, with an investment of £100 million over the period 2004-10, a rapid scale-up in preventing mother to child transmission (PMTCT) services is taking place. During 2005, 5,000 of 7,000 HIV positive pregnant women received a complete course of antiretroviral prophylaxis. In Zambia, we support UNICEF's expansion of PMTCT.

In 2006 DFID supported research in the Republic of Congo and Uganda which demonstrated that pregnant women with HIV are between four to five times more likely to die as a result of pregnancy and childbirth than non-infected women. DFID is tackling stigma and discrimination that prevents women accessing PMTCT by funding education and mass-media campaigns in Angola, Ethiopia, Malawi, Nigeria, South Africa and Zimbabwe.

In addition to core funding to UNICEF, DFID has provided over $1.5 million to an 'Accelerating Action for Children Affected by HIV and AIDS' programme. This gives focus to the "4 Ps—Protection, Prevention, PMTCT and Paediatric AIDS". DFID is also participating in a US-led HIV and AIDS paediatric public-private partnership which seeks to develop formulations of HIV drugs suitable for children in developing countries together with the pharmaceutical industry.

HIV Infection: Drugs

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to remove trade barriers that prevent the production and distribution of generic medicines for HIV/AIDS. [132857]

Mr. Thomas: We are working closely with our colleagues across Government to facilitate access to generic medicines.

For World Trade Organisation members, trade in medicines is governed by the agreement on trade-related aspects of intellectual property rights (TRIPS). We are pleased that TRIPS has been permanently amended to allow for generic versions of patented medicines to be produced and exported under compulsory licence. EU producers are able to use this system, which was implemented by legislation agreed under the UK's presidency of the EU.

DFID is working with a number of international organisations, including the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, to help developing countries to build capacity so that they are able to make use of the TRIPS flexibilities provisions related to the production and distribution of generic medicines, including those for HIV/AIDS.

World Bank

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the Government's position regarding Paul Wolfowitz's presidency of the World Bank. [132937]

Hilary Benn: At the spring meetings of the World Bank on 15 April, I and my fellow Governors agreed the following section of the development committee communiqué, dealing with the allegations against President Wolfowitz:

"We have to ensure that the Bank can effectively carry out its mandate and maintain its credibility and reputation, as well as the motivation of its staff. The current situation is of great concern to all of us. We endorse the board's actions in looking into this matter, and we asked it to complete its work. We expect the Bank to adhere to a high standard of internal governance."

We expect the World Bank executive directors to meet again this week to discuss the next steps.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Ambulance Services: Standards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average journey time was for ambulances stationed at each hospital in Northern Ireland to respond to emergency calls in their catchment area in the last period for which figures are available; and on how many occasions this average was exceeded by more than 50 per cent. [132891]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not held centrally and will take some time to collate. I will write to the hon. Gentleman as soon as the information becomes available and place a copy in the Library.

Desmond Clayton

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 190W, on Desmond Clayton, whether his Department (a) gave and (b) approved any job reference for Mr. Clayton after the termination of his employment at the Northern Ireland Police Fund. [133472]

Paul Goggins: The Department neither gave nor approved any job reference for Mr. Clayton after the termination of his employment at the Northern Ireland Police Fund.

Football: World Cup

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on the inclusion of Northern Ireland in a bid to host the 2018 football World Cup. [133063]

Maria Eagle: I have had no discussions with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport as the Government study, published in February 2007, was to assess the feasibility of holding a future World Cup in England.

Further Education: Student Wastage

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the drop-out rates of each further and higher education institution in Northern Ireland were in each of the last three years; what assessment he has made of the impact of the payment of tuition fees on drop-out rates; and what funding has been allocated by his Department to reducing drop-out rates. [133061]

Maria Eagle: Non-continuation rates for each of the Northern Ireland further education institutions for the last three years are shown in the following table:

College	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Armagh College	8	7	12
Belfast Institute	14	17	20
Castlereagh College	16	11	18
Causeway Institute	24	23	20
East Antrim Institute	7	9	15
East Down Institute	8	11	17
East Tyrone College	16	17	17

North West Institute	12	14	16
Omagh College	7	10	15
Upper Bann Institute	19	18	15
Total	13	13	16

Source:
FESR

The latest available data on non-continuation rates for full-time first degree entrants for each of the higher education institutions is shown in the following table:

University	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04
Queen's University, Belfast	6.6	6.9	8.1
St. Mary's University College	4.0	6.8	6.4
Stranmillis University College	2.4	1.9	3.9
University of Ulster	12.6	12.8	14.7
Total	6.4	7.1	8.3

No assessment has yet been made of the impact of the payment of (variable) tuition fees on drop-out rates. It is likely that this has had minimal impact as students in the system prior to September 2006 are unaffected by the new arrangements. Furthermore, from academic year 2006-07, a new student finance package has also been introduced to ensure that new entrants from lower income backgrounds are not disadvantaged by the new arrangements. A review of the new arrangements, including participation rates, is planned for 2008-09.

The Department for Employment and Learning allocates a total of £4.6 million annually to the further education colleges and higher education institutions in the form of support funds. These funds are specifically earmarked for the purpose of providing assistance for students who may be discouraged from participating in further or higher education due to financial hardship. These funds provide a greater safety net and help to reduce drop-out rates among students experiencing financial difficulties after starting their course.

The Department also pays the universities a widening participation premium for students from disadvantaged backgrounds. Funding of £1.25 million is provided to cover the costs incurred in recruiting and retaining students from disadvantaged backgrounds who are more likely to drop out.

Graffiti

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer of 6 April 2007, Official Report, column 196W, on graffiti, for what reasons the Department of the Environment does not hold information on the cost of removing graffiti. [133230]

David Cairns: Under Article 18 of the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) (Northern Ireland) Order 1985 it is for district councils to decide whether or not to remove graffiti. They do not, therefore, have a duty to remove it and there is no requirement on the Department of the Environment to collect data on graffiti removal costs. The information may be held by individual district councils.

Higher Education: Pay

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in resolving the pay dispute in higher education in Northern Ireland. [133335]

Maria Eagle: There is no pay dispute in higher education, although the further education lecturers' pay claim was not recommended for approval by the public sector pay committee. College employers and lecturers' trade unions have now been asked to re-engage in order to prepare revised pay proposals, in line with pay policy guidelines. The Department will continue to liaise with the further education sector on the scope for devising amended pay proposals within the limits set by pay policy.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on the implications of the increase in the estimated cost of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games for the allocation of funding to lottery good causes in (a) North Down and (b) Northern Ireland. [133070]

Maria Eagle: The allocation and distribution of Lottery funds is a reserved matter with responsibility lying with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. The decision on the Lottery will be subject to affirmative resolutions in both Houses.

Paedophilia

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what meetings have taken place in 2007 between the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and senior representatives of the Roman Catholic church about child sexual abuse; and what information about child sexual abuse was provided at these meetings in relation to (a) each diocese fully within Northern Ireland and (b) each diocese that straddles the border with the Republic of Ireland. [132890]

Paul Goggins: To date, there have been no joint meetings in 2007 between the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and senior representatives of the Roman Catholic church about child sexual abuse.

Physical Education

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many hours of physical education per week were provided to school children in schools in each education and library board area in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; and what steps he is taking to increase the time provided. [133069]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not collect the information requested. The education and training inspectorate monitors the provision of PE, and other aspects of the curriculum, as part of routine inspection in schools. While the Department does not specify the amount of time schools should spend on any particular subject, schools are encouraged to provide at least two hours of physical activity per week. It is for schools to determine how much time is devoted to PE, which is a compulsory part of the revised curriculum for all pupils from foundation to key stage 4.

Physical Education: Teachers

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time physical education teachers there were in each education and library board area in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years. [133066]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education does not hold this information. However, I have been advised by the chief executives of the five education and library boards and the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools, who employ teachers that the south eastern, western and Belfast ELBs and CCMS do not hold this information and that staffing is a matter for individual boards of governors.

The Southern ELB has advised that it holds current information only. It has 67 physical education teachers, 43 of whom teach on a full-time basis, while the remaining 24 also teach other subjects.

The north eastern ELB has also advised that it holds current information only. It has 87 full-time and four part-time physical education teachers.

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Payments

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the total unpaid rent to the Northern Ireland Housing Executive in each district in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [132427]

Mr. Hanson: The Northern Ireland Housing Executive's total rent and rates arrears is £11,407,571 out of a total rent bill of £265 million. The rent and rates arrears have accumulated over previous years.

The following table details the amount of rent and arrears owed by current Housing Executive tenants split by district office at 31 March 2007.

Public Libraries: Bangor

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made with the renovation work to Bangor library's Hamilton road premises; how much the work was originally forecast to cost; whether the work is on budget and on schedule; when he expects the refurbished library to open; and if he will make a statement. [133113]

Maria Eagle: Work to refurbish and extend the Bangor library commenced on 2 April 2007 and is expected to take approximately 18 months to complete. The project has been approved at a cost of some £2.3 million and to date it is on budget and on schedule.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made by his Department in identifying a suitable permanent facility for Bangor library whilst renovation work is carried out at its Hamilton road premises. [133114]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure is the sponsor department for the Northern Ireland public library service but responsibility for delivering the service, including securing appropriate library accommodation for this area, rests with the south eastern education and library board (SEELB).

Since October 2006, the SEELB has been seeking to identify suitable alternative temporary premises and renovation work started during the week commencing 16 April 2007 on two units in the Flagship Shopping Centre to make them suitable for library use. Bangor library will open in these temporary premises by 21 May 2007 and will remain there until the completion of the new library in approximately 18 months. Until 21 May, a library service will be provided from a mobile library outside the Hamilton road library.

Queen's University Belfast: Medicine

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many graduate students (a) applied for and (b) enrolled in medical degrees at Queen's university, Belfast in each of the last five years. [133317]

Paul Goggins: The number of graduate entrants students applying for and enrolled in the school of medicine at Queen's university Belfast, is set out in the following table. The number of applicants in the period 2002-04 is not available.

Special Educational Needs

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many primary school children in Northern Ireland were given initial assessments by educational psychologists to determine special educational needs in each of the last five years, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [126321]

Maria Eagle: The number of primary school children who were given initial assessments by educational psychologists to determine special educational needs in each of the last five years is set out in the following tables. The figures refer to the first direct contact an educational psychologist had with a primary school pupil at any stage of the code of practice on the identification and assessment of special educational needs. This information is not available by parliamentary constituency as education and library board areas do not correspond to constituency areas. A response has therefore been provided by ELB area.

Specialist Schools

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many special schools have been built in Northern Ireland since 1986. [132425]

Maria Eagle: Since 1986, 21 special schools have been built in Northern Ireland. In addition, 11 special schools have had capital funding approved for the replacement of existing school buildings and these are either still in the planning stages or under construction.

Suicide

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what service will be provided to other areas of Northern Ireland for suicide prevention during the extended pilot period for the suicide prevention telephone helpline scheme. [133333]

Paul Goggins: In conjunction with the development of the telephone helpline pilot scheme, a substantial community support funding package has been rolled out to help communities with the development of initiatives that will help achieve a reduction in the levels of suicide and self-harm. Of the £1.9 million available to support the implementation the suicide prevention strategy in 2006-07, approximately £900,000 was allocated as part of this package. A sizeable portion of this funding was invested in those groups and organisations that specifically target people who are at a high risk of suicide, and who provide support for families bereaved by suicide.

In line with the increased funding of £3 million available for the implementation of the strategy in financial year 2007-08, the suicide strategy implementation body recently recommended to the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety that the community support package funding should be doubled to £1.8 million. Allocations are currently under consideration.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

British Nuclear Group: Research

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether British Nuclear Group sites apart from Sellafield have retained body parts for scientific purposes; and whether consent to do so has always been sought. [133205]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend announced on 18 April that he had asked Mr. Michael Redfern QC to carry out an investigation into certain post mortem examinations and further analysis carried out at Sellafield. If it comes to light that anyone working at British Nuclear sites apart from Sellafield was affected, I would expect that information to be part of Mr. Redfern's considerations.

Business: Ethics

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what plans his Department has to improve corporate social responsibility; [132899]

(2) what steps he plans to take forward the Government's corporate social responsibility strategy. [132901]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Government encourage high standards of corporate behaviour and as such support the development and take up of corporate social responsibility. We do so by raising awareness and promoting best practice; setting decent minimum standards;

providing an enabling policy environment;

encouraging adherence to international standards of business behaviour.

CSR is a cross-Government agenda and the Government will continue to pursue this policy through:

supporting relevant international standards and initiatives.

For example, a tri-partite body of officials from DTI, DfID and FCO to promote the OECD Guidelines for multinational enterprises, the UN global compact which brings companies together with UN agencies, trade unions and civil society.

offering advice and guidance to business, for example, through Envirowise, WRAP and the Carbon Trust.

raising awareness and promoting best practice, for example through support for the business in the community annual awards for excellence and the CSR academy.

encouraging transparency for example through the business review requirements of the Companies Act 2006.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many organisations joined the corporate social responsibility academy in each calendar year since it was established. [132900]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The CSR Academy was not a membership organisation. It was set up to improve the take up and development of the skills and competences for CSR practice through:

the development and promotion of a framework of core skills needed to integrate CSR practices into organisations of any size.

the academy website which contained a training and development map that was used as a tool to signpost users to CSR training and development opportunities.

Between 2004 and 2006

Over 5,000 companies registered to use the framework.

Around 300 large companies and over 900 SMEs attended masterclasses and regional events.

Companies: Savings

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to ensure that money paid by employees into Christmas and holiday savings schemes administered by their employers is protected in the event that the company goes into administration. [126222]

Mr. McCartney: As we have recently announced, the Christmas savings scheme industry (also known as the hamper industry) will be introducing safeguards for pre-payments made by customers through independently controlled, ring-fenced trust accounts. The trust accounts will be controlled by independent trustees, not by the companies, with money credited to customers in the event of the company going into insolvency.

Employees taking part in Christmas savings schemes administered by employers who have signed up to these proposals will receive the same protection as any other customer. Although the scheme is voluntary, we would expect new players to this industry to comply with these standards.

Departmental Reorganisation

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the future shape of his Department. [133865]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend regularly talks to the Chancellor of the Exchequer about a variety of issues.

Energy: Meters

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what consultation he has undertaken with (a) the Energy Retail Association, (b) companies in the energy sector and (c) manufacturers of energy metering devices on proposals to make smart meters available to every home. [132760]

Malcolm Wicks: Metering in both the domestic and business gas and electricity markets, including smart metering, was the subject of a recent public consultation as part of the energy review. The Department has also had further discussion with a range of interested parties, including the Energy Retail Association, energy suppliers and metering manufacturers. The Government will announce proposals on how to go forward on metering in the forthcoming energy White Paper.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the total cost of installing smart meters in every home in the United Kingdom. [132761]

Malcolm Wicks: In 2006, the industry regulator, the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) estimated that the total cost of installing and maintaining one-way smart meters could be up to £5-8 billion. The Government will set out their views on metering, including smart meters, in the energy White Paper.

Equal Opportunities: EC Countries

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will bring forward proposals to ensure the equal treatment of workers across the European Union. [133281]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The European Union has agreed a number of measures for the equal treatment of workers across the EU. Proposing any further measures is a matter for the European Commission, having consulted with the European social partners. Such measures must be agreed by both the European Council of Ministers and the European Parliament.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to increase funds for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme for (a) households and (b) (i) public, (ii) not for profit, and (iii) commercial organisations. [125423]

Malcolm Wicks: In October 2006, we reallocated funds from within the Low Carbon Buildings Programme to increase funds available to householders from £6.5 million to £12.7 million. In the Budget 2007, a further £6 million was made available for the household stream, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

In addition to this, £15.8 million has been made available for public, not for profit, and commercial organisations.

The Low Carbon Buildings Programme phase 2 has set aside £50 million for public and not for profit organisations.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to raise the level of funding caps for applications to the Low Carbon Buildings Programme for (a) households and (b) public, not for profit, and commercial organisations. [125424]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available for the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

In addition to this, £15.8 million has been made available for public, not for profit and commercial organisations.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to establish a waiting list for applications for grants from the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [125425]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Budget 2007, it was announced that an additional £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream will be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be reshaped. Proposals will be brought forward in May.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the likely demand for household grants under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [126901]

Malcolm Wicks: Since the Low Carbon Buildings Programme was launched in April 2006, we have allocated £7.2 million to 4,550 household applicants.

In the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

We aim to continue funding until June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many households were allocated grants under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme on 1 March 2007; and what advice he is giving households who were unsuccessful in their applications to the programme. [126902]

Malcolm Wicks: We allocated Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants to 189 household applicants in March 2007.

In the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

We aim to continue funding until June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Manufacturing Industries

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what incentives his Department provides to businesses seeking industrial premises for manufacturing; [131813]

(2) what assistance his Department makes available to regional development agencies and local authorities to provide adequate land and accommodation for small business start-ups in the manufacturing sector; [131814]

Margaret Hodge: This Department, along with five other Government Departments, provides funding to the regional development agencies through the single-pot funding mechanism. This allows the agencies to tailor their support according to regional needs as determined by their economic strategies. Some of this is spent on land and accommodation and some on small business start-ups.

In addition, European funding is available to the English regions, including local authorities, through the European regional development fund and this can be used to provide support to manufacturing.

This Department does not provide any funding to local authorities.

Natural Gas: Planning Permission

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to reduce the length of time taken to commission the construction of gas infrastructure projects following initial planning application prior to the implementation of the measures expected in the planning White Paper. [133474]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Preseli, Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) on 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1057W.

In addition, I should say that the time taken to commission gas infrastructure projects can be affected by a range of commercial or technical factors, or delays in the determination of planning applications. Commercial and technical issues are for developers themselves to resolve, although the DTI works to ensure that no unnecessary regulatory barriers to development delay the timely construction of facilities.

In order to avoid any unnecessary delays in determining planning applications, the DTI has held information seminars, in conjunction with the Health and Safety Executive and British Geological Survey for local councillors and planning officers in relevant regions. They have covered the general context for such projects, as well as safety aspects and the factors that can influence the siting of developments.

Packaging

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with manufacturers of consumer goods including food in respect of the levels of packaging provided. [133516]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 949W.

Post Offices

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made with his Department's consultation on the future of the post office network. [133919]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department received over 2,500 responses to the public consultation which formally closed on 8 March. We are giving full consideration to the comments submitted and hope to be in a position to announce final decisions in May.

Radioactive Wastes

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to consult on new radioactive waste arisings should the approval be given for new build of nuclear power plants. [132442]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department plans to launch a consultation in May on the future role of nuclear power. This will include consideration of a full range of issues around potential new build including the impact of new build on waste management and decommissioning.

The Government plan to launch a further consultation in the summer as part of the managing radioactive waste safely programme, which will consider all the issues relevant to implementation of geological disposal. This consultation will discuss the potential changes to the current waste inventory that would arise as a result of any new build.

Small Business Service

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the Small Business Service has taken to place more emphasis on cross-governmental working since the Government's cross-cutting review of Government services for small business in 2002. [117364]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 January 2007]: The Small Business Service works across Government to support small businesses and encourage enterprise. Following the cross-cutting review of Government services for small business the Small Business Service:

established senior-level cross-Whitehall officials' groups dealing with a range of priority areas e.g.: business support simplification, regulation, frontline and on-line small businesses services; identified Ministers to act as champions in every Government Department. So for instance, this month I have written to colleagues seeking their support in promoting November's enterprise week.

Telecommunications: Consumers

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what steps Ofcom has taken since March 2005 to prevent telecommunications companies transferring customers from one provider to another without their knowledge; [133839]

(2) how many complaints about telecommunications companies transferring customers from one provider to another without their knowledge were received by Ofcom in 2006; [133840]

(3) what steps the Government is taking to prevent telecommunications companies from transferring customers from one provider to another without their knowledge. [133842]

Margaret Hodge: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

A358

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the number of vehicles (a) the new A358 dualled northbound exit junction from the M5 will carry and (b) the existing A358 between the M5 and A303 carries each day (i) on average and (ii) at peak times of the year. [133206]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is as follows:

(a) The estimate of the average daily traffic flow in the design year (2032) used for assessment purposes in the current option study on the northbound link from the M5 to the A358 is 4,000 vehicles (low growth forecast) and 5,900 vehicles (high growth forecast).

(b) (i)(ii) The observed average daily two-way traffic flow on the A358 was 27,750 vehicles at Henlade and 22,050 at Capland in 2004 with average flows at peak times of the year of 28,300 and 23,000 vehicles respectively. This is the latest year for which full data is currently available.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the impact of building at the site of the new A358 dualled northbound exit junction from the M5 on (a) (i) the level of noise and (ii) the level of pollution experienced by local residents and (b) local house prices. [133207]

Dr. Ladyman: A stage 2 environmental assessment of the A303/A358 South Petherton to M5 Taunton improvement has been undertaken. This includes consideration of noise and air pollution impacts in the vicinity of the proposed northbound exit junction from the M5.

(a) (i) A number of properties at Blackbrook are predicted to experience an increase in noise of between 1 and 2 dB(A). The average increase in noise levels at Blackbrook is predicted to be approximately 1 dB(A) which is not considered to be significant as it cannot be noticed by the human ear.

(a) (ii) In the scheme opening year, assumed for assessment purposes to be 2017, all pollutant concentrations are predicted to be well below their respective air quality objectives and lower than the 2004 base year levels due to newer, less polluting vehicles on the roads and lower background pollution concentrations from road transport and energy generation.

(b) An assessment of the impact on house prices has not yet been undertaken.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the budget is for the new A358 dualled northbound exit junction from the M5, including the construction of a bridge; and what percentage of that budget has been allocated. [133208]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is currently investigating options for the dualling of the A358 between the A303 and the M5 at Taunton. A budget has not been approved for the implementation of the scheme.

The A358/A303 is designated as a route of regional importance and is therefore subject to the regional funding allocation process.

Aircraft

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what average cabin floor space is allocated to (a) first, (b) business and (c) economy class aircraft passengers. [132132]

Gillian Merron: This is a matter for individual airlines. Generally, first class and business class cabin configurations provide passengers with a greater amount of seat space than economy class cabins. Scheduled economy seats may afford more legroom than charter flights. For economy/charter passengers additional seat space is usually only available at seat rows leading to emergency exits.

The Department has no information about averages across airlines. There are non-government websites which aim to collate this information for passengers.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132192]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport's expenditure on hospitality is conducted in accordance with the principals of "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety".

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other Departments since May 2005. [133807]

Gillian Merron: None.

Departments: Voluntary Organisations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which voluntary organisations his Department consulted in 2006; and how many times they were consulted. [133675]

Gillian Merron: The Department consulted voluntary organisations routinely in 2006, both through numerous public consultations and through targeted direct approaches to specific or groups of organisations, including those in the voluntary sector. It is not possible to quantify the scale or number of those engagements across the breadth of the Department's remit.

Fares: Derbyshire

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from (a) Derbyshire county council and (b) Derbyshire bus operators on the use of the toolkit to determine the cost of concessionary fare schemes; and if he will make a statement. [133157]

Gillian Merron: The toolkit is part of guidance issued by the Department to travel concession authorities to help them calculate concessionary fare reimbursement. It was put together following consultation with the concessionary fares working group, which consists of representatives from local authorities and the bus industry. Derbyshire county council was represented on the group.

As of 23 April 2007, two bus operators have lodged appeals to the Secretary of State for Transport against the Derbyshire county-wide concessionary travel scheme for 2007-08, disputing the level of reimbursement offered by the authority. No representations have been received from Derbyshire county council. However, during the appeals process, the bus operators and the authority will be given opportunities to provide evidence and to respond to each other's submissions. Determinations of the appeals will be made in due course.

Invalid Vehicles

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to publish his recommendations following the review of class two and class three powered wheelchairs and powered scooters (invalid carriages) published in July 2005; and if he will make a statement. [132655]

Gillian Merron: This research, published by the Department in February 2006, looked at a range of issues, many of which are complex and require careful consideration. An announcement will be made later in the year on the way forward.

Motor Vehicles: Accidents

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in what proportion of the 5 per cent. of motor vehicle accidents resulting in injury where exceeding the speed limit was an identified factor (a) the involvement of stolen vehicles, (b) the involvement of the vehicle in the execution of a crime, (c) the involvement of emergency vehicles, (d) the driver being under the influence of drink or drugs and (e) other factors contributed to the accident. [133246]

Dr. Ladyman: The proportion of reported personal injury road accidents which had 'exceeding the speed limit' as a contributory factor, that also had (a) stolen vehicles, (b) vehicle in the course of crime, (c) emergency vehicles on a call, (d) influenced by alcohol or drugs or (e) other major factors as contributory factors is given in the following table.

Other contributory factors reported in personal injury road accidents which had 'exceeding the speed limit' as a contributory factor, GB 2005

Contributory factor	Number	Percentage
Stolen vehicle	233	3.2
Vehicle in course of crime	112	1.5
Emergency vehicle on a call	30	0.4
Impaired by alcohol	1,090	14.9
Impaired by drugs (illicit or medicinal)	131	1.8
Other factors
Loss of control	2,361	32.3
Careless, reckless or in a hurry	2,261	30.9
Travelling too fast for conditions	1,616	22.1
Failed to look properly	1,561	21.3
Aggressive driving	1,191	16.3
Failed to judge other person's path or speed	1,151	15.7
Poor turn or manoeuvre	842	11.5
Slippery road (due to weather)	798	10.9
Any other factor[1]	1,394	19.1
Total number of accidents involving 'exceeding the speed limit'	7,314	100.0

[1] Contributory factors which independently accounted for less than 10 per cent. of accidents which had 'exceeding the speed limit' as a contributory factor.

It is important to note that the driver who had 'exceeding the speed limit' as a contributory factor in an accident may not be the same driver who had 'stolen vehicle' (or one of the other contributory factors) as a contributory factor.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1381W, on motor vehicles: registration, what steps are being taken to ensure that foreign registered vehicles used in the UK for more than six months in any 12 months are being registered and licensed. [133775]

Dr. Ladyman: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency is running a pilot scheme to help educate those using foreign registered vehicles in this country about the rules surrounding their use. Those who break these rules risk direct enforcement action involving the wheel clamping and impounding of the vehicle. The pilot has been introduced on a limited basis and at this stage involves vehicles registered in a small number of European member states only. The results will be shared with the EU commission and other member states with the aim of introducing an EU-wide enforcement system.

Pedicabs

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the safety and roadworthiness of pedicabs; and if he will make a statement. [132725]

Gillian Merron: The Department has not made any specific assessment of the safety and roadworthiness of pedicabs. However, as road vehicles, pedicabs must comply with road traffic law including road vehicle lighting regulations, and with the Highway Code.

Bicycles and tricycles with a saddle height of not less than 635 millimetres and every cycle with four or more wheels must comply with the requirements of the Pedal Cycles (Construction and Use) regulations 1983.

Railway Track

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many applications under Section 17 of the Railways Act 1993 for a track access agreement have been made by regional new rail companies; and how many have been (a) rejected and (b) accepted. [133160]

Mr. Tom Harris: Applications for track access agreements under section 17 of the Railways Act 1993 are dealt with by the Office of Rail Regulation. Two prospective new railway companies have made applications under section 17. Grand Central Railway Company Limited has made two applications; one was rejected and one was approved. Wrexham Shropshire and Marylebone Railway Company has made two applications: one was withdrawn and one is currently under consideration.

Railways: Bicycles

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the additional 1,000 railway carriages recently announced will be constructed to carry bicycles. [133169]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to comment on the design of the additional rolling stock. Regrettably, there will always be constraints on the ability to accommodate non-folding bicycles at peak times, with the competing pressures on space from increasing passenger numbers.

Road Traffic Offences: Foreigners

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what account his Department has taken of the enforcement of civil traffic penalties against foreign registered vehicles in (a) plans for a national road user charging scheme and (b) the forthcoming road transport Bill; [132940]

(2) what account has been taken within his Department's road pricing feasibility studies of the enforcement of civil penalties against the keepers of foreign registered vehicles. [132944]

Dr. Ladyman: No decisions have been taken on a national road pricing scheme. The 2004 feasibility study considered enforcement issues but not specifically in relation to foreign registered vehicles. The need to provide an effective civil enforcement system is being addressed by the Department and those local authorities developing local road pricing schemes. The first priority though is to design schemes that are as easy as possible to use and understand—and which will ensure high levels of compliance by domestic and foreign vehicles. We will be publishing a draft Bill for consultation later in the spring and will welcome a debate on its provisions then.

Rolling Stock

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the additional 1,000 new railway carriages recently announced will be allocated to operating companies; and if he will make a statement. [133170]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to say where precisely the additional rolling stock will be used. The deployment of new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the high level output specification and the long term rail strategy this summer, in accordance with the periodic review timetable set out in the Office of Rail Regulation's advice to Ministers published in February 2007.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the extra 1,000 train carriages announced on 14 March 2007 are expected to be in use. [133300]

Mr. Tom Harris: I anticipate that orders for additional carriages will be placed between now and 2010, with a view to delivery between 2009 and 2013. The precise phasing of the orders will reflect where crowding relief is most urgently needed; Network Rail's timetable for any platform-lengthening or increase in power supply which is required to accommodate longer trains; and the capacity of the suppliers of rolling stock.

West Coast Mainline: Rolling Stock

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the 1,000 new carriages that will come into use between 2009 and 2014 will be assigned to the West Coast main line. [133481]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to say where precisely the additional rolling stock will be used. The deployment of the new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the high level output specification and the long term rail strategy this summer, in accordance with the periodic review timetable set out in the Office of Rail Regulation's advice to Ministers published in February 2007.

WALES

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent on hospitality by his Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133261]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office spent £14,279.62 on hospitality in 2006-07.

Olympic Games: Greater London

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has made within Government in the last 12 months about securing benefits to Wales from the 2012 Olympics. [133619]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with Cabinet colleagues about matters affecting Wales including the 2012 Olympics.

Wales has an important contribution to make, both to the Olympic and Paralympic Games and the Cultural Olympiad. Both will present superb opportunities to raise Wales' international profile as a visitor destination and to promote new economic development opportunities and trading partnerships at home and abroad.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the savings to his Department from detected benefit fraud were in each year since 1997, broken down by benefit. [116593]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available by individual benefit and comparable information is only available since 1999-2000. The available information is set out in the following tables. The figures in the tables represent the amount of fraud actually detected by the Department's officials, and reflect the monetary value of adjustment (MVA).

The MVA is the difference between the weekly amount of benefit that would have been paid or would have continued to be paid, and the benefit actually paid following the decision maker's decision on the information gathered. It includes both increases and decreases. The MVA scheme was introduced from 1 April 1999.

Instrument of payment fraud

Due to the increase in the number of customers who are paid by direct payment (around 98 per cent. of our customers are now paid in this way, compared to around 34 per cent. in 1999), there has been a very large reduction in the amount of instrument of payment fraud, as shown in the following table:

	Instrument of Payment MVA (£)
1999-2000	20,470,863
2000-01	15,302,840
2001-02	9,322,117
2002-03	9,217,555
2003-04	7,916,299
2004-05	4,474,984
2005-06	2,824,939

General matching service

DWP can data match information from across a number of sources, to check:

Whether customers continue to be entitled for benefit; or

That customers' benefit is being paid correctly.

Data matching enables the Department to find inconsistencies in information and therefore identify where people are committing fraud (in addition to identifying customer and official error). For example, if someone was paying national insurance contributions on earned income at a time when their benefit claim showed that they had no earnings, clearly something is wrong.

The MVA in respect of the Department's general matching service is as follows, and shows the increased success of various data matching exercises in detecting fraud:

	General Matching Service MVA (£)
1999-2000	951,885
2000-01	1,034,865
2001-02	1,340,080
2002-03	1,672,893
2003-04	1,577,042
2004-05	1,056,966
2005-06	1,324,906

Other benefit fraud

Benefit fraud MVA not including MVA from instrument of payment fraud and general matching service fraud is as shown in the following table.

	Benefit fraud MVA (£)
1999-2000	6,561,497
2000-01	5,771,922
2001-02	5,720,786
2002-03	5,167,365
2003-04	5,095,564
2004-05	5,190,263
2005-06	5,104,595

Big Brother Project

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the Department's projected allocation to the Big Brother project is for the next five years; [129999]

(2) how much the Department has spent on the Big Brother project for single unemployed parents since the project's inception. [130000]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested is not available centrally as the Department does not make allocations to that level of detail and can therefore be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Children: Maintenance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what targets the Government have in relation to parents with care in receipt of benefits receiving no maintenance; and if he will make a statement. [122891]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 24 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what targets the Government has in relation to parents with care in receipt of benefits receiving no maintenance; and if he will make a statement. [122891]

Parents with care in receipt of benefit represent a large proportion of the Agency's caseload. As such, all the Agency's targets relate to them. However, the Agency has two targets that specifically cover parents with care in receipt of benefits:

The DWP Public Service Agreement (PSA) Target "to increase the proportion of parents with care on income support or income-based Jobseeker's allowance who receive maintenance for their children to 65% in march 2008".

The maintenance outcome target as published in the Child Support Agency Business Plan 2006/07—"By March 2007, in 65 per cent. of cases across both the new and old schemes in which a liability to pay maintenance exists, the non-resident parent has either made a payment via the collection service or a Maintenance Direct arrangement is in place. In addition, further ensuring that at least this level of performance is achieved for those new scheme cases in which the parent with care is on Income Support of income-based Jobseeker's Allowance".

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Community Care Grants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many applications for community care grants have taken (a) under one week, (b) between one and two weeks, (c) between two and three weeks, (d) between four and five weeks and (e) over five weeks to process since January 2006; [125586]

(2) how many applications for budgeting loans have taken (a) under one week, (b) between one and two weeks, (c) between two and three weeks, (d) between four and five weeks and (e) over five weeks to process since January 2006. [125685]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 24 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking how many applications for Community Care Grants and Budgeting Loans have taken (a) under one week, (b) between one and two weeks, (c) between two and three weeks, (d) between four and five weeks, and (e) over five weeks to process since January 2006. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The clearance time for an individual application is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received to the date the decision is taken (on whether to make a Community Care Grant award or a Budgeting Loan offer), plus, if a Budgeting Loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply.

The information requested is in the table.

Number of applications cleared from January 2006 to January 2007 inclusive in Great Britain

Working days to clear	Community care grants	Budgeting loans
Less than 5	184,200	1,449,300
5 to 10 inclusive	257,200	311,300
11 to 15 inclusive	106,500	47,600
16 to 20 inclusive	49,200	10,000
21 to 25 inclusive	20,500	2,400
More than 25	21,400	2,900

Departments: Sick Leave

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many working days were lost (a) in his Department and (b) in agencies reporting to his Department due to sickness and injury in 2006. [126081]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is contained in the following table. It was obtained from the computer systems managers use to record absences.

Separate information on sickness absence and absences recorded as injury for November and December, is temporarily unavailable. This is due to a change in the Department's computer system.

Absences relating to injury are recorded against a category of 'Injury and Poisoning'. This includes, for example, the toxic effects of alcohol or drugs, any surgical procedures, and road traffic accidents. It is not possible separately to identify cases relating to injuries.

The Appeals Service transferred out of the DWP on 31 March 2006 and their absence information is included until this date.

	Working days lost
Business	Sickness	Injury/poisoning
Jobcentre Plus	589,561	75,322
Pension Service	93,387	18,237
Child Support Agency	104,758	17,611
Corporate Centre	73,633	13,234
Disability and Carers Service	47,741	9,846
Appeals Service	1,627	173

Disability and Carers Service: Pay

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what bonus system is in place for Disability and Carers Service staff. [127534]

Mrs. McGuire: Information concerning Disability and Carers' Service staff is a matter for their Chief Executive, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Vivien Hopkins, dated 24 April 2007:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what bonus system is in place for Disability and Carers Service staff.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service. In his absence, I am replying.

DWP operates an individual performance bonus scheme for employees in all of its Businesses including the Disability and Carers Service. Non-consolidated bonus payments are awarded to employees on the basis of their individual performance, which is assessed as part of the Departmental Performance and Development system. Individual performance bonuses are paid after the completion of the performance year.

In addition to this, DWP have also paid team bonuses to selected units within the Department. No team bonus schemes have run since 2004/2005.

Teams and individuals may also be entitled to modest Special Bonus payments in recognition of particular pieces of exceptional work. These payments can be made at any time at the discretion of the local manager either as cash amounts or in the form of a high street voucher.

I trust this is helpful.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the forms issued by his Department for disability living allowance claims were last amended; and what the reasons were for these amendments. [127445]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of disability living allowance is a matter for the chief executive of the disability and carers service, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Terry Moran, dated 24 April 2007:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when the forms issued by his Department for disability living allowance claims were last amended; and what the reasons were for these amendments.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service. The Disability Living Allowance claim forms, DLA1 Child, DLA1A Child, DLA434 Child, DLA434 Adult, DLA300, were last amended in February 2007. They were available with effect from 19 February 2007.

The amendments were made as part of the ongoing maintenance of claim forms. The changes involved were relatively minor and included asking for the nationality of the parent/guardian; updating the Inland Revenue website address; leaflet titles and the method of payment wording; adding the opening times for "Contact a Family"; a statement to make it clear that GPs are not part of the decision making process; and improving the information to customers claiming under special rules and for customers in hospital or other accommodation. This list is not exhaustive.

Additionally the DLA1 Adult and the DLA1A Adult claim forms were last amended in December 2005 when the civil partnership came into force. There was a minor update to these forms in June 2006 to clarify the information for customers who are claiming under the special rules.

The DLA Adult claim forms have been given a new look and will be introduced at the end of April 2007. These new look claim forms have received a Crystal Mark.

I hope this is helpful.

Helplines

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) average speed of response to calls and (b) proportion of failed calls was for each helpline operated by or on behalf of his Department in each year since 1997. [116584]

Mrs. McGuire: The information that is available is shown in the table. Information is not available for any DWP helpline prior to 2000-01.

Certain helplines do not collate or have information available on average speed of answering calls. The data provided for these helplines (x per cent. of calls answered in y seconds) is the closest comparable indicator.

Failed calls are those that are not presented to the contact centre due to technical reasons, such as system failures.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his assessment is of the principal causes of the trend in the real value of total public spending on incapacity benefits since 1995-96; and if he will make a statement. [122621]

Mrs. McGuire: Real-terms expenditure on working age incapacity benefits has fallen by around 10 per cent. since 1995-96.

A key reason for the decline in expenditure over this period is the continued reduction (since April 1995) in the number of claimants who receive protected and higher amounts of contributory invalidity benefit, the predecessor to incapacity benefit. This is an ongoing and gradual process, occurring as people have flowed off the benefit, for example through retirement.

In 1995-96, 85 per cent. of expenditure on incapacity benefits was on the protected ex-invalidity benefit. This proportion had fallen to around 50 per cent. in 2001-02 and was around a third in 2005-06.

IT Projects

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on (a) information technology projects generally and (b) web-facing projects in each year since 2001, broken down by (i) expenditure on consultants and (ii) other costs. [102135]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions undertakes a large number of projects which deliver business change and policy initiatives. IT changes are an enabling component of many projects. The number of projects in train at any one time will vary and the duration of the project lifecycle is often more than one calendar year.

The following table provides information by financial year of expenditure on IT projects and web-facing projects since 2001 and includes only those projects where the IT element is such that non-delivery of the IT would significantly damage the project's ability to deliver its intended results.

The information required is not readily available for some projects that were implemented a number of years ago or is not available in the format required. This may be the total spend and/or the spending on consultants. The cost of obtaining such information would not be reasonable.

£ million

	IT projects		Web-facing projects
	Spending	Consultants spending	Spending	Consultants spending
2001-02	225.38	23.41	2.60	0.00

2005-06	433.26	127.16	15.18	3.70

Note:
The "spending" represents the investment costs of the project, the "consultants spending" represents the amount of investment spending on consultants.

Jobcentre Plus: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what average time Jobcentre Plus took to process applications for (a) community care grants and (b) budgeting loans in the last 12 months. [125582]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 24 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking about the average time that Jobcentre Plus took to process applications for Community Care Grants and Budgeting Loans, in the last 12 months. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The time it takes to process both Community Care Grant and Budgeting Loan applications, is measured by counting the average length of time taken to clear all claims processed within a set period (usually monthly). The measure is referred to as the Average Actual Clearance Time.

The clearance time for an individual application is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received to the date the decision is taken (on whether to make a Community Care Grant award or a Budgeting Loan offer), plus, if a Budgeting Loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply. The minimum clearance time recorded for an individual Community Care Grant or Budgeting Loan application is one day, even if the application is cleared immediately.

The expected service level for Community Care Grants is nine days and for Budgeting Loans it is six days.

The information requested is in the tables.

Jobseekers Allowance: Lone Parents

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost would be of implementing the jobseeker's allowance regime for all lone parents whose youngest child is aged 12 and over. [129576]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The total estimated cost of implementing a jobseeker's allowance (JSA) regime for lone parents with children aged 12 and over is between £6 million and £10 million. The final figure would be dependent on whether lone parents leave JSA at the same speed as current female JSA claimants, current income support lone parent claimants, or somewhere in between.

New Deal Schemes

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants there were on the New Deal for Disabled People in each month since January 1998; how many participants had participated on at least one previous occasion; and how many gained employment as a result of their participation in the New Deal for Disabled People. [125801]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 6 March 2007]: The new deal for disabled people programme started in July 2001. Since then 21,000 people have participated on the programme on more than one occasion and 124,300 people have gained a job.

The number of participants on new deal for disabled people in each month since the start of the programme is in the table.

Tattooing: Plastic Surgery

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on public funding for private companies and charities to offer claimants tattoo removal. [128709]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No representations have been received on public funding for private companies and charities to offer claimants tattoo removal.

Welfare State

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent representations he has received on the conclusions of the Freud report on the welfare systems in (a) Australia, (b) New Zealand, (c) the US and (d) the rest of the world. [128711]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No representations have been received on David Freud's conclusions about the welfare systems of these countries or the rest of the world. The Government will be responding to David Freud's review in the summer, and will invite people to make representations as part of that process.

Welfare-to-work Strategy

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will (a) put in place a mechanism for independent scrutiny of the Government's long-term review of its welfare to work strategy; and (b) if he will ensure that provision is made for third parties to contribute to the review. [116898]

Mr. Jim Murphy: David Freud's report, "Reducing dependency, increasing opportunity: options for the future of welfare to work", was published on 5 March. The Government welcome the report and will respond to its recommendations in due course. As part of this process, we will set out how third parties can make representations.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Employment Schemes

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support his Department plans to give to the National Care Farming Initiative. [132569]

Barry Gardiner: Natural England, and its predecessor bodies, have provided financial support to the National Care Farming Initiative in the past and further support will continue in terms of information and advice. Future funding will be considered when budgets are clarified in the middle of May.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms in each district authority in Cumbria are eligible for single payment scheme payments; how many received SPS payments in the 2006-07 financial year; and what percentage of farmers this represents in each case. [132101]

Barry Gardiner: Detailed analysis by constituency, area or category of the payments made under the single payment scheme is not available.

As of 18 April 2007, a total of 98,395 of farmers in England have received either a full or partial payment under the 2006 single payment scheme year, and 10,605 farmers, equating to 9.7 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population, have not received any payment. The total cash value of all outstanding payments is £415.16 million. The Rural Payment Agency's target is to pay 96.14 per cent. of the total value of the fund by 30 June 2007.

There are 30 2005 claims that are outstanding and have not received full payment, totalling £261,054.88.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure that single farm payments are made in their entirety and on time. [132276]

Barry Gardiner: The difficulties experienced in completing payments under the 2005 single payment scheme have inevitably impacted on the payment timetable for the 2006 scheme year. The Rural Payments Agency has made it clear that the target of paying 96.14 per cent. of claims by value by 30 June 2007 is challenging.

RPA is developing a comprehensive set of actions to recover from the problems of SPS 2005 and has already made several improvements to the way in which it operates. These changes will take into account the recommendations of the EFRA Select Committee, National Audit Office and other inquiries.

As of 18 April 2007, RPA had paid £1.12 billion in full or partial SPS 2006 payments to 98,395 claimants. The Department and RPA continue to work closely to ensure that the remaining claims and top-up payments where a partial payment has been made, are paid as soon as possible.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of farmers in England are awaiting single payment scheme payments from financial year 2006-07; how many farms this represents; what the total cash value is of these outstanding payments; and when these payments are expected to be made. [132278]

Barry Gardiner: As of 18 April 2007, a total of 98,395 of farmers in England have received either a full or partial payment under the 2006 single payment scheme year, and 10,605 farmers, equating to 9.7 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population, have not received any payment. The total cash value of all outstanding payments is £415.16 million. The Rural Payments Agency target is to pay 96.14 per cent. of the total value of the fund by 30 June 2007.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers received Single Farm Payments of more than (a) £40,000 and (b) £50,000 in 2006. [132295]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 20 April 2007]: 1,429 farmers received single payment scheme payments of more than £40,000 and less than £50,000 in 2006.

2,434 farmers received SPS payments of more than £50,000 in 2006.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms are eligible for single farm payments; how many single farm payments were made in 2006; and what the average value was of those payments. [132296]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The 119,374 claimants who received entitlements in 2005 are therefore eligible to claim under the single payment scheme (SPS): 116,914 payments were made in 2006 with an average value of £13,165.98.

Air Pollution: Contracts

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which companies providing carbon offsetting arrangements his officials examined in making a choice for his Department's offsetting arrangements. [119406]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA ran a tendering process for the Government carbon offsetting fund contract and received 16 expressions of interest from:

AEA Technology plc

Agrinergy Ltd

Arup Project Management
Carbon Aided Ltd
Carbon Ventures Ltd
Carbonium
Climate Focus BV
Climate Wedge Ltd
CO2e Ltd
Ecofys UK Ltd
EcoSecurities Ltd
EEA Fund Management Ltd
Hyder Consulting (UK) Ltd
Sinclair Knight Merz (SKM)
South Pole Carbon Asset Management Ltd
The Carbon Neutral Company

EEA Fund Management was selected as the winning bidder after delivering the highest score following all rounds of the evaluation process.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which (a) UK county and (b) other countries the turkey poults supplied to the Bernard Matthews' plant at Holton, Suffolk originated; and what the health status of each supplying plant was with regard to the H5N1 virus. [133891]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 159,000 day-old turkey poults came from Bernard Matthews' own hatchery in Norfolk, between 30 November and 14 December 2006. The eggs had been supplied by Bernard Matthews' breeding flocks in Norfolk and Suffolk. We have no evidence of H5N1 infection at these sites.

Common Agricultural Policy: Food

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the effect of the Common Agricultural Policy on the amount spent by an average family in the UK on food in one year. [132810]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 20 April 2007]: We can calculate an estimate of the UK consumer cost of the Common Agricultural Policy by comparing the difference between UK and world prices for agricultural products and applying that difference to the volume of UK consumption. On that basis the cost of higher spending on food to a notional family of four in 2004 was approximately £260. Our provisional estimate for 2005 is approximately £220.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132202]

Barry Gardiner: The Department has clear guidance on hospitality in both its finance manual and staff handbook. Both these guides follow the principles laid down in Government accounting and the Treasury handbook on regularity and propriety.

The two key principles operated by the Department are: that hospitality may be provided only if it is in the public interest and necessary for the conduct of business; and the amount spend shall be appropriate for the occasion and not such to attract adverse comment.

Directors General are responsible for monitoring expenditure on hospitality and are required to ensure that any such expenditure meets the above principles

Departments: Paper

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms are in place to ensure his Department's economical use of paper. [128008]

Barry Gardiner: From information held centrally, the amount of printing paper purchased between April 2005 and March 2006 was 829 tonnes, and for copier paper 235.8 tonnes. The Department is taking the following steps to ensure its use of paper is economical:

a move away from paper-based records management towards electronic records thereby reducing the volume of paper-based information held locally. In time, this will reduce the volume of paper stored in archives;

DEFRA has revised recently its procedures for records management so that more of DEFRA's records can be created captured and stored electronically rather than printing to paper; double sided printing as standard if documents need to be printed at all;

printer rationalisation and reduction as part of DEFRA's IT and facilities management strategies; online communications or events for its external communications;

expanding the scope of e-publishing for key publications;

moving towards binless offices as part of DEFRA's facilities management strategy.

All Departments are required to meet cross-Government sustainable operations targets, launched last year. The targets for reducing their waste arisings are 5 per cent. and 25 per cent. by 2010 and 2020 respectively, relative to 2004-05 levels; and for increasing their recycling figures to 40 per cent. and 75 per cent. of their waste arisings by 2010 and 2020, respectively.

Departments: Surveys

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department undertakes employee exit surveys. [130581]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA sends out an exit questionnaire to each employee leaving the Department and also offers exit interviews to staff.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what reduction in UK carbon emissions is predicted to result from (a) phase 1 and (b) phase 2 of the EU emissions trading scheme, expressed (i) in tonnes and (ii) as a percentage of the total at the start of the scheme; [131411]

(2) what percentage reduction in UK carbon emissions has resulted to date from participation in the EU emissions trading scheme; [131412]

(3) whether UK carbon emission reductions resulting from the EU Emissions Trading Scheme are being independently reviewed and audited; [131413]

(4) what reduction in UK carbon emissions was projected to result from phase One of the EU emissions trading scheme at its outset; and what reductions have been quantified to date. [131414]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The approved UK national allocation plan (NAP) for phase I (2005-07) of the EU emissions trading scheme is set to deliver carbon dioxide emissions savings of around 65 million tonnes (roughly 8 per cent.) below the projected business as usual emissions of the installations covered by the scheme during phase I. The rationale behind emission trading is to ensure that the emission reductions take place where the cost of the reduction is lowest thus lowering the overall costs of tackling climate change. The emissions reductions referred to above may not therefore all take place in the UK.

Comparing 2003 and 2005 emissions in the UK from installations in the EU ETS shows a reduction of around 10 million tonnes of carbon dioxide ($MtCO_2$) which equates to 4 per cent. However, a number of new installations commenced operation and entered the scheme in 2004 and 2005, emitting a total of around five $MtCO_2$ in 2005. Therefore, the net total reduction in emissions from UK installations (incumbent and new) in the EU ETS was approximately five $MtCO_2$ between 2003 and 2005.

The UK NAP for phase II (2008-12) is set to deliver an annual reduction of 29.3 million tonnes of CO_2 against projected business as usual emissions for 2010. The allocation level has been set at 13 per cent. below emissions from these installations in 2005.

Farmers: Manpower

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers there are in (a) England, (b) Northern Ireland, (c) Scotland and (d) Wales. [132159]

Barry Gardiner: The number of registered holdings in England at June 2006 was 200,381. Figures for the other UK countries fall under the jurisdiction of the devolved authorities.

June Agricultural Survey

Inland Waterways: Rochdale

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 763W, on inland waterways: repairs and maintenance, how much the Trub Farm, Rochdale canal, received in alternative money; and what the source of funding was. [133306]

Barry Gardiner: Works to install a bridge and associated road at Trub Farm on the Rochdale Canal were carried out as part of British Waterways' 2006-07 works programme at a cost of £586,000. The alternative source of funding related to British Waterways made provision for the cost of the work in its 2005-06 accounts as it was contractually committed to this work. The project was therefore removed from its 2006-07 cost schedule and was unaffected by the 2006-07 cuts.

Milk: Prices

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Competition Commission on the share of the retail price of milk that is passed on to farmers by supermarkets. [131978]

Barry Gardiner: The Competition Commission announced in January that it intended to look further at the impact of supermarket buyer power on dairy farmers during the next stage of its inquiry into the groceries market. DEFRA has had no recent discussions with the CC on this matter. We have, however, provided it with information on the dairy sector and have made clear our willingness to meet, should they wish to do so.

Peat Bogs

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what studies his Department has undertaken into the degrading of peat bogs by the releasing of carbon in the form of dissolved organic carbon. [132318]

Barry Gardiner: The degradation of peat bogs can lead to a loss of soil carbon in various forms, including as dissolved organic carbon. Research into peat bog degradation and restoration in the UK has been, and is currently being, funded by a range of organisations such as water companies, conservation groups and the Government. DEFRA has recently undertaken reviews of the available literature on both the degradation of organic soils (including peat bogs) and management options for restoring degraded bogs.

We are now developing a programme of research on soil carbon to improve our understanding of the main mechanisms by which carbon is lost, the impacts of land use and land management, and practical methods for mitigating losses. This will form part of the forthcoming soil strategy for England.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken (a) to preserve and (b) to reactivate drained peat bog land as carbon sinks; what his policy is on the long-term role of peat bogs as carbon sinks in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [132319]

Barry Gardiner: The need to preserve peat bogs for their biodiversity value, and as stores of carbon, is being addressed on a range of fronts.

Agri-environment schemes provide for good management of around 230,000 hectares of peat bogs. A progress review of environmental stewardship (ES) is due to begin shortly. Increasing the contribution of ES to climate change mitigation, including the role of peat restoration, will be examined as part of this.

We are also working towards our current public service agreement target to ensure that 95 per cent. of the area in England designated as sites of special scientific interest is in favourable or recovering condition by 2010. A considerable proportion of peat bogs are designated as SSSIs and currently around two thirds of this area meets the target. Improving the condition of the remainder is a priority.

The England biodiversity strategy also contributes towards the protection of peat bogs, as does the UK air quality strategy which sets objectives to protect vegetation and ecosystems. The forthcoming soil strategy for England will draw together all these strands and DEFRA will consider, as part of this strategy, what further activity is required to protect existing carbon stocks.

Our long-term policy is to promote management which (i) minimises further losses of carbon from peat soils, and (ii) allows peat bogs to act as a carbon sink. The potential for significantly off-setting carbon emissions may be somewhat limited because of the time it takes for peat to form.

There are significant areas of peat bog in Scotland (which has over 70 per cent. of the UK peat resource), Wales and Northern Ireland. The devolved Administrations have policy responsibility in their territories, and DEFRA will continue to work closely with them.

Power Stations: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the effect on the UK's carbon dioxide emissions if the existing nuclear generating fleet was replaced by (a) coal-powered fire stations and (b) gas-fired power stations. [132111]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The full lifecycle release of carbon dioxide emissions from nuclear power is similar to wind power, and much less than fossil fuel plant such as coal and gas. The calculation of avoided carbon dioxide emissions if the existing nuclear generating fleet were replaced by (a) coal-powered fire stations is an increase of 44 million tonnes of carbon dioxide per year and (b) gas-powered fire stations is an increase of 22 million tonnes of carbon dioxide per year.

Rural Development Programme

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether non-agricultural or environmental rural businesses will be able to access funding from the rural development programme for England; [132102]

(2) how he expects the rural development programme for England (a) to help small rural and agricultural businesses to be more competitive and (b) to enhance employment and business opportunities in rural areas; [132103]

(3) how much new money English rural and agricultural businesses will be able to access through the rural development programme for England; [132104]

(4) how small farming, agricultural and rural businesses will be able to access the rural development programme for England; and from what date funding will be available; [132107]

(5) what assistance will be offered to small farming, agricultural and rural businesses to enable them to access the rural development programme for England. [132108]

Barry Gardiner: Rural businesses across all sectors will be able to access funding under Axes 1, 3 and 4 of the rural development programme for England. These provide support for measures to improve competitiveness, enhance the economy and improve quality of life in rural areas, and to implement community-lead regeneration activity.

We have set out in the draft rural development programme document, available on the DEFRA website, our key priorities for helping English rural and agricultural businesses to be more competitive and to enhance employment and business opportunities in rural areas. These include:

(i) promoting and encouraging greater collaboration and cooperation

(ii) improving agricultural and forestry industry uptake of technology and entrepreneurial skills

(iii) filling gaps in existing training and advice provision

(iv) promoting the adoption and dissemination of innovative business processes and practices

(v) supporting innovative rural-based business development and enterprise, including diversification and sustainable tourism

(vi) improving skills in the wider rural work force

(vii) tackling social disadvantage through steps to support fair access to services

(viii) supporting areas of economic underperformance and individuals experiencing disadvantage.

We will be making available approximately £600 million over the seven years of the programme in support of these priorities.

We have devolved responsibility for delivery of these priorities to the regional development agencies in England. The RDAs are currently working with partners to finalise the picture of the needs and priorities for their regions and sub-regional areas. Rural business people can contact their local RDA to discuss how any potential project meets the regional objectives of the programme.

Funding will be available once the EU Commission has approved the programme, which we expect to submit later in the spring. The approval process may take around six months.

Each of the RDAs has been operating an expressions of interest approach since October 2006, so that potential beneficiaries from rural development funding can discuss their ideas at the earliest possible stage. They will be making available further information about how to access funding when there is greater certainty about when the programme will begin, following approval by the EU Commission.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the rural development programme for England will financially incentivise environmental stewardship. [132105]

Barry Gardiner: The rural development programme for England 2007-13 will provide about £3.3 billion to land managers for agri-environment and other land management schemes. Around £2.9 billion of this will be used to fund Environmental Stewardship. The incentive for entering an Environmental Stewardship agreement depends on the complexity of the environmental management undertaken. The payment range extends from £30 per hectare to £700 per hectare in multi-annual agreements.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations his Department has received from the Lake District national planning authority on the rural development programme for England. [132106]

Barry Gardiner: A wide range of stakeholders have been consulted on the development of the new programme. The English National Park Authorities' Association responded to the consultation on the priorities for the next programme that we ran last year.

Rural Payments Agency: Pay

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was (a) spent on and (b) allocated to bonuses for staff in the Rural Payments Agency in the financial year (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2005-06 and (iii) 2004-05; what the (A) highest and (B) lowest bonus paid in each year was; and what percentage of the total sum in each year was related to staff who have responsibility for rural payments (1) in the north-west and (2) in Eddisbury constituency. [131779]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA) paid bonuses to staff at grade 6 and below and to members of the senior civil service between 2004-05 and 2006-07.

	Bonuses paid in:
	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Amount spent on bonuses for staff in the RPA	323,567	249,025	243,072
Amount allocated to bonuses for staff in the RPA	387,720	301,705	289,689
The highest bonus paid in each year	18,641	21,062	10,500
The lowest bonus paid in each year	500	75	500

In 2004-05 the RPA paid a flat rate non-consolidated bonus payment of £500 for staff with 'Exceeded' box marks following the end of year individual performance review. This was pro-rated for part time staff. This arrangement was negotiated with the trade union side and implemented as part of the 2004 pay settlement.

In 2005-06 the RPA awarded a flat rate bonus of £550 to staff with 'Exceeded' box marks. This was awarded in two parts. Part one—a half step progression in the pay scale. Part two—the remaining value of the bonus was paid as a non-consolidated lump sum up to the value of £550. This arrangement was negotiated with TUS and implemented as part of the 2005 pay settlement.

In 2006-07 the RPA awarded a flat rate non-consolidated bonus of £500 to staff with 'Exceeded' box marks. This was pro-rated for part time staff. This arrangement was negotiated with TUS and implemented as part of the 2006 pay settlement.

A detailed analysis for staff responsible for payments in the north- west and in Eddisbury constituency is not available.

Sugar

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average price was of a pound of sugar produced (a) in the UK and (b) overseas in 2006; and what volume of sugar produced in the UK was exported in that year. [132809]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The volume of exports of sugar[1] from sugar beet was 865 thousand tonnes in 2006.

The information on sugar prices is not available in the form requested. However, the average producer price of refined granulated sugar in the UK in 2006 was 74.4 pence per kilogram.

From statistics on overseas trade the average price of exported sugar derived from the value and volume of exports of sugar[1] from sugar beet was 24.3 pence per kilogram in 2006. The average price of imported sugar derived from the value and volume of imports of sugar[1] was 40.1 pence per kilogram in 2006.

[1] Sugar is in various states—volumes have been adjusted where necessary onto a refined basis

Waste Management

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department have work objectives that make reference to composting; and what the pay band is of each staff member. [132271]

Barry Gardiner: Please find in the table, the information held on the DEFRA e-HR system on how many staff in the department have work objectives that make reference to composting. Please note that this is not comprehensive (in particular it does not include staff in the Senior Civil Service, nor DEFRA agencies). To produce more comprehensive details would be at disproportionate cost.

TRANSPORT

A358

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the number of vehicles he expects the new dual carriageway on the A358 between the M5 and the A303 to carry each day (a) on average and (b) at peak times of the year. [133209]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is as follows:

(a) The estimate of traffic in the design year (2032) used for assessment purposes in the current option study on the new dual carriageway varies along the routes between 33,800 and 39,700 vehicles (low traffic growth forecast) and between 41,900 and 49,600 vehicles (high traffic growth forecast).

(b) These figures are daily two-way traffic flows averaged over the year; peak period flows have not been modelled for the current stage of development.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) timetable and (b) budget is for the construction of the new dual carriageway on the A358 between the M5 and the A303. [133210]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is currently investigating options for the dualling of the A358 between the A303 and the M5 at Taunton. Neither a timetable nor budget have yet been approved for the implementation of this scheme.

British Transport Police: Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much funding the British Transport police received from (a) his Department, (b) the rail industry, broken down by service provider, and (c) Transport for London in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [132346]

(2) how much funding he expects the British Transport police to receive in 2007-08 from (a) his Department, (b) the rail industry, broken down by service provider, and (c) Transport for London; and if he will make a statement. [132347]

Mr. Tom Harris: Information held by the Department and relevant to the question is as follows:

£ million

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Rail Industry	97	104	127	146	171	188
Transport for London	26	27	33	44	51	54

DFT Other (including loans)	—	—	13	16.6	—	—
Total	128.4	136.4	180.2	219.1	232	249.5

A detailed breakdown by operator is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, e-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Channel Tunnel Railway Line

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to increase the speed of Eurostar trains between the Channel Tunnel and London; and if he will make a statement. [133758]

Mr. Tom Harris: The operation of the Eurostar trains is a matter for Eurostar and London and Continental Railways as operator of the railway on which they run, and not for the Secretary of State. There are no current plans to increase the speed of Eurostar trains.

Section 2 of the Channel Tunnel rail link, now known as high speed 1, will open on 14 November 2007. As a result journey times to the Channel Tunnel from London will reduce by some 23 to 25 minutes.

It needs to be borne in mind that higher speeds require additional power and the right balance needs to be struck between keeping journey times short and carbon emissions down.

The speed of the trains on high speed 1 is governed by the design speed of the railway based on track geometry, and the maximum speed of the trains themselves. The maximum speed of the current Eurostar train sets is around 335 kph based on the 2003 record run on section 1. The scheduled line speed between Ebbsfleet and the Channel Tunnel is 275 kph, although trains can travel at up to 300 kph if necessary.

Pedicabs

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received since June 2006 on the application of traffic regulations to pedicabs. [132726]

Gillian Merron: Since June 2006, the Secretary of State has received representations from the Minister for Housing and Planning, the hon. Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck), Peter Hendy, Commissioner of Transport for London and Martin Low, director of transportation at Westminster city council.

Railways: Accidents

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the progress of the rail accident investigation into the Oxenholme derailment. [133590]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Rail Accident Investigation Branch is continuing with its investigation into the derailment and expects to publish a second interim report once its investigation into the condition of the points is complete.

Railways: Air Pollution

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate has been made of the potential change in carbon dioxide emissions of operating longer trains. [133479]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department has not made such an estimate. However, the Department recognises the carbon advantages that longer trains offer compared to other modes in meeting underlying demand. Based on average occupancy levels, trains produce around half the carbon emissions of cars per passenger kilometre.

Railways: Bicycles

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what requirement exists for train operating companies (a) to carry and (b) to provide space for carrying bicycles on their trains; and if he will make a statement. [133452]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department has formally adopted as its own policy the Strategic Rail Authority cycling policy document published in November 2004. It expects all train operating companies to accommodate the carriage of non folding bicycles whenever possible, while recognising that in peak periods there may be circumstances where it is in the best interests of the majority of passengers not to do so.

We believe that TOCs are best placed to know where and when such pressure on capacity exists and should be free to impose restrictions accordingly. TOCs should also specify the services that they define as peak. The carriage of folding bikes is recommended at all times.

The Department has asked Cycling England, its advisory body on cycling, to report on how further improvements to integrate bike and rail journeys might be made.

Railways: Stockport

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the proposed service frequency is for Stockport in the invitation to tender issued by DfT Rail for New Cross Country; and if he will make a statement. [133889]

Mr. Tom Harris: The specification for the New Cross Country franchise requires Stockport to be served by a minimum of one train per hour in each direction. Bidders are free to stop more trains at Stockport if they believe that there is a call to do so and they can reach and agreement with Network Rail.

Railways: Traffic Congestion

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate has been made of the potential reduction in motor vehicle journeys due to the extra capacity on the rail network. [133478]

Mr. Tom Harris: No estimate has been made of the reduction in motor vehicle journeys due to the extra capacity that will be provided on the rail network.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the 1,000 new carriages in the high level output specification to which he referred in his speech to the rail conference on 14 March 2007 are in addition to any previously existing orders or anticipated orders which provide additional capacity rather than replacing other existing stock; how he expects any additional capacity to be funded; by whom he expects it to be funded; and if he will make a statement. [132504]

Mr. Tom Harris: The 1,000 new carriages will be in addition to any pre-existing orders. It is too early to predict how many of the existing fleet of approximately 11,400 rail carriages will be replaced by 2014. I can, however, reiterate the Government intention to commit to contracting with train operators for 1,000 additional carriages by 2014 to meet the rising demand for rail travel. This will form part of the capacity procured through the rail high level output specification to be published in July and will be in addition to any carriage replacements. The HLOS will be accompanied by a statement of funds available.

Rolling Stock: Virgin Trains

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the 1,000 new train carriages announced on 14 March 2007 will include the 106 carriages needed to reduce congestion on Virgin's Pendolino trains. [133299]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to say where precisely the additional rolling stock will be used. The deployment of the new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the high level output specification and the long-term rail strategy this summer, in accordance with the periodic review timetable set out in the Office of Rail Regulation's advice to Ministers published in February 2007.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Fruit

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what quantity of (a) fruit and (b) vegetables was purchased by the Refreshment Department in each of the last three years; what the cost of these purchases was in each year; and if the Commission will estimate what percentage of each of these items was imported. [131066]

Nick Harvey: Accounts have not yet been finalised for the full year ending March 2007, but during the 11 months to February 2007, the Refreshment Department spent an estimated (a) £103,000 on the purchase of fresh fruit and (b) £290,000 on the purchase of fresh vegetables. Many fruit and vegetables are purchased by individual piece or bunch, not by weight or any other consistent measure, and so it is not possible to give an overall estimate of the quantity of fruit and vegetables purchased. If the hon. Member wishes to know the estimated quantity of specific items purchased during this period, he should write to the director of catering services, who will be pleased to let him have such details.

Detailed purchase information is not currently available for the year 2005-06 due to technical issues that are being investigated by the software supplier. The director of catering services will write to the hon. Member with the purchase expenditure for fruit and vegetables when the requested information becomes available. No information is available for previous years.

No record is kept of the country of origin of fruit and vegetables purchased and so it is not possible to estimate the percentage of imported produce.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many comfort boxes sent to UK military personnel in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq have been robbed (i) in transit and (ii) on arrival in theatre since the beginning of the current engagement. [132765]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 20 April 2007]: As these incidents occurred at various times and places, the Royal Military Police have been asked to gather all the reports together. Once the details have been collated, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what security measures he is taking to prevent comfort boxes sent to UK military personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan from being robbed. [132766]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Comfort boxes are secured in a standard transport container, using a security seal, by the unit concerned. Containers are then transported to a UK port, shipped by sea to the relevant port for the theatre and off-loaded prior to being transported using road transport to the location in-theatre where they are handed back to the unit, at which point the seals are checked again. From this point, containers are transported by road to the unit's base location.

The Royal Military Police are currently gathering information on any thefts that have occurred during transit. Once the details have been collated and any possible improvements to container security in transit have been identified, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Casualties

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 854W, on the armed forces: casualties, whether the full board of inquiry report has been made available to the next of kin; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [133167]

Mr. Ingram: The remainder of the board of inquiry report into the death of Private Jason Smith, redacted in accordance with Data Protection and Freedom of Information Act considerations, has been made available to his next of kin, through their solicitor.

The redacted board of inquiry report will be added to the Ministry of Defence publication scheme and a copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Inquests

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his statement of 17 April, on service personnel killed on operations: changes to arrangements for repatriation, what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the resources available to the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner to carry out military inquests. [132983]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The MOD engaged fully with the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner's office and Wiltshire county council during the planning stages to change the repatriation airhead from RAF Brize Norton to RAF Lynham. The Wiltshire and Swindon coroner plans to transfer as many inquests as he can to the jurisdiction of the "home" coroner.

Armed Forces: Northern Ireland

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to mark the 40th anniversary of the deployment of troops to Northern Ireland in 1969; and what representations he has received on the matter. [133149]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence does not intend to formally mark the 40th anniversary of the deployment of troops, although we are currently looking at appropriate ways of marking the end of Operation Banner which concludes on 31 July 2007. I hope to be in a position to announce the Department's plans to the House soon. The Department has received four representations from hon. Members on this topic and a number of inquiries from members of the public.

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how he made the calculation that the impact of the Budget on the lowest paid members of the armed forces who are single is that they will be worse off by the equivalent of £1 per week. [131081]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The calculation is based on the impact of the income tax rates and allowances for 2007-08 given in the Budget report, together with the reforms to personal tax which come into effect on 1 April 2008.

Those with children may benefit from changes to the child element of child tax credit and the working tax credit threshold.

Other relevant recent changes to armed forces remuneration include the pay rise for all service personnel which came into effect on 1 April 2007, when the annual salary of the lowest paid fully trained service personnel increased from £14,323 to £15,677—an increase in gross pay of £26 per week; and the new operational bonus introduced in October, which amounts to £12.31 per day, tax free, for all those deployed in Afghanistan, Iraq, or the Balkans.

Ballistic Missile Defence: USA

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the risks and benefits to the UK of allowing the US to install a ballistic missile defence system on British territory. [130966]

Des Browne: The UK already makes a valuable contribution to the US ballistic missile defence system through the programme to upgrade RAF Fylingdales. In 2002 the Ministry of Defence published a public discussion paper on missile defence, copies of which are available in the Library of the House and on the MOD website:

www.mod.uk.

Defence and Communications Services Agency

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the cost has been of the project to rationalise communication systems in the Defence and Communications Services Agency; how many (a) consultants and (b) contractors have been employed in its implementation; at what cost; and if he will make a statement; [133001]

(2) what assessment he has made of the implementation of the Defence and Communication Services Agency's information technology project; whether he plans to establish an independent review of the programme; and if he will make a statement; [133009]

(3) what the role of the ATLAS consortium was in the information technology rationalisation link; what the cost was of the Defence Information Infrastructure final solutions programme; and how many contractors were employed in its implementation. [133010]

Derek Twigg: Defence information infrastructure (Future) (DII(F)) is a £4 billion programme over 10 years, which will provide a single, coherent information infrastructure across defence. Its implementation, on an incremental basis, will underpin MOD's change programme and modernising Government agenda.

The ATLAS Consortium (comprising EDS Defence Ltd as the principal contractor, with Fujitsu, General Dynamics, EADS and Logica CMG as key sub-contractors) was awarded the DII(F) contract on 21 March 2005 for a period of 10 years following full and open competition. The contract is subject to incremental commitment and implementation and at contract award the Department committed to the first increment only for the provision of a fully networked and managed IT service to around 70,000 user access devices and 200,000 users around the world. The contract was amended on 29 December 2006 to incorporate a second planned increment (2a) which will provide for nearly 44,000 additional user access devices and 58,000 user accounts in support of the defence change programme and other identified business priorities. This amendment was made in the light of an assessment of ATLAS' performance in supplying increment 1 up to that point in its delivery schedule. The number of employees within the consortium is a matter for them but it is of the order of 2000, on average.

The number of consultants employed by MOD on the DII(F) project has varied and will continue to vary across the life of the project. As a result, the precise information requested together with the associated expenditure can be provided only at disproportionate cost, when looked at over the total life of the programme from its inception. The total budget for consultants approved to date under the DII programme is £57.5 million (rounded) since the inception of the programme, including work during the concept and assessment phases, leading up to the main competition and subsequently for later increments. As at 18 April 2007 the number directly employed on the project was 164.

Throughout its life, the DII(F) project has been subject to regular review under the Office of Government Commerce gateway review procedure. Those reviews confirmed that the project is proceeding satisfactorily. As a result, I see no need for a further strategic review of the project at this time; the case for it remains valid and the contracted increments are proceeding within budgetary provision.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many private consultants were employed in each of the last 24 months by the Defence and Communication Services Agency; at what cost; and if he will make a statement; [133006]

(2) how much was spent by the Defence and Communication Services Agency on external management consultants in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [133008]

Mr. Ingram: It is not possible to provide the number of consultants employed as we do not "employ" consultants on an individual basis—we contract with private consultancy companies for a service to provide clearly defined deliverables on agreed packages of work within specified timescales. The procurement of such consultancy assistance from the private sector is called "external assistance". However, the following table details the cost of engaging external assistance by the Defence Communication Services Agency—now DEandS Information Systems and Services—over the past five years.

	£ million
2002-03	20.538
2003-04	27.478
2004-05	33.922
2005-06	34.702
2006-07	[1]24.767

[1] This reflects the last forecast of outturn for financial year 2006-07 as at October 2006. Final figures not expected before early May 2007.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on hospitality by his Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133250]

Derek Twigg: As in previous years, we will publish this information in the MOD's annual report and accounts. I cannot therefore give a figure at this stage as the accounts are currently subject to audit by the National Audit Office. Copies of the annual report will be placed in the House Library on publication and made available on the departmental website at www.mod.uk. I expect this to be before the summer recess.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement; [131546]

(2) how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131551]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence records the number of people who leave the Department early but the records do not always show whether an individual has left under an early release scheme or whether the departure was for voluntary or compulsory reasons. The following table reflects the data held for the period requested and where we know it, whether they have left voluntarily or involuntarily. "Unconfirmed" is used where we do not know whether the departure was on voluntary or involuntary terms:

	Voluntary	Involuntary	Unconfirmed	Grand total
1997-98	600	655	475	1,730
1998-99	120	640	410	1,175
1999-2000	245	720	720	1,685
2000-01	220	430	710	1,365
2001-02	120	430	435	990
2002-03	170	435	195	800
2003-04	195	640	925	1,755
2004-05	265	330	450	1,045
2005-06	950	320	455	1,725
2006-07	650	330	595	1,575

All numbers are rounded to the nearest 5 and may not sum to the total figure precisely.

To provide the specific information on the sum that individuals were paid against each price band would require a Departmental-wide trawl. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been achieved since October 2006 on military reform in the Iraqi provinces of (a) Al Basrah, (b) Al Muthanna, (c) Dhi Qar and (d) Maysan; and if he will make a statement. [132523]

Des Browne: 10 Division of the Iraqi Army, which covers all four provinces, has made significant progress. This was recently highlighted in Maysan when security responsibility for the province was transferred to the Iraqis. This transition occurred in Al Muthanna and Dhi Qar provinces in July and September 2006 respectively.

In October 2006, 10 Division's capability was demonstrated when it took the lead in the later phases of Operation Sinbad in Basra, operating without overt coalition assistance. Elements of 10 Division are also supporting the Baghdad security plan. Coalition forces continue to provide training and mentoring and much remains to be done in the areas of logistics and leadership.

Operational control of 10 Division was transferred to the new Iraqi military headquarters in Baghdad in January 2007. This transfer of command and control is a critical step toward handing over responsibility for delivering security in southern Iraq.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the reasons for the number of personnel listed as having sustained disease or non-battle injury during November 2006 as part of Operation Herrick and Operation Telic; and if he will make a statement. [132849]

Des Browne: The temporary increase in levels of disease or non-battle injuries in both Operations Telic and Herrick was a result of the roulements in both theatres. An increase in those being treated for diarrhoea and vomiting type illnesses is common at such times, largely as a result of the climatic, food and environment changes experienced by those deploying into operational theatres. While such symptoms are unlikely to result in a patient being admitted to a hospital in the UK, individuals are admitted to hospital in theatre as returning them to barracks may lead to the spread of disease.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) the net cost has been of the British military operations in Iraq in each year from 2002-03 and (b) the predicted cost is of continued British military presence in Iraq, broken down by month. [133408]

Des Browne: The costs of operations are calculated on a net additional basis and audited figures are published each year in the MOD's annual report and accounts. The total of the annual audited figures for the costs of operations in Iraq for the years 2002-03 to 2005-06 was £4,026 million. A total estimated cost of £1,002 million for 2006-07 was included in the spring supplementary estimates published in February. Final figures will be published in the MOD's annual report and accounts for 2006-07.

It is not possible to provide estimates for future years as planning assumptions are constantly changing with the varying tempo and requirements of the operation.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on information exchange with the US in the last 12 months with regard to achieving sovereign capability on the joint strike fighter; and if he will make a statement. [132906]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1440W, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 1 March 2007, Official Report, column 1455W, on rendition, whether the bilateral arrangements mentioned apply to state aircraft acting in a civilian capacity. [133763]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The Department's bilateral arrangements cover routine flights by military aircraft from the relevant countries transiting UK airspace and landing in the UK. They also apply to other state aircraft landing at UK military airfields on routine business. These arrangements do not provide any form of immunity from customs and immigration procedures, national or international law, or regulations covering safe use of UK airspace. Action would be taken by the appropriate authority with MOD support should illegal activity be detected.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

British Grand Prix

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had on the future of Formula One Grand Prix racing at Silverstone. [133159]

Mr. Caborn: The Government support and desire a British Grand Prix at Silverstone but our role remains one of dialogue and facilitation.

I have attended a number of meetings to discuss the future of Formula One Grand Prix racing at Silverstone. The most recent meeting was on 20 March with the British Racing Drivers Club (BRDC) to discuss their plans for redevelopment of the Silverstone circuit.

Gaming Machines: Standards

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the testing regime for ensuring that gaming machines comply with the technical standards required under the Gambling Act 2005 has been finalised. [133162]

Mr. Caborn: The testing regime for ensuring that gaming machines comply with the technical standards required under the Gambling Act 2005 has not been fully finalised. The Gambling Commission is working closely with the industry to discuss the testing regime and the timetable for those tests, including any necessary transitional arrangements to cover machines already in the market. The aim is for the overall testing strategy to be finalised in good time before the provisions of the Act become effective from 1 September 2007.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether contractors have been selected to undertake on behalf of the Gambling Commission the tests required to ensure that gaming machines comply with the technical standards required under the Gambling Act 2005. [133163]

Mr. Caborn: The Gambling Commission has invited test houses to apply for approval to carry out tests required to ensure that gaming machines and remote gambling systems comply with the technical standards required under the Gambling Act. All prospective test houses will be required to undergo a Commission assessment on the suitability, integrity and independence of their business. They will also need to demonstrate accreditation to BS/EN ISO 17025, plus any additional features (skills, capabilities, capacity) that may be required to test to the Commission's technical standards. All test houses which meet the requirements will be granted approval, and operators will be able to choose which approved test house to use. The Commission has received three applications to date.

Horserace Totalisator Board

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what recent discussions her Department has had with personnel from HM Treasury on the future of the Tote; [133566]

(2) if she will make a statement on the progress of the sale of the Tote. [133567]

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what discussions she has had with the Treasury concerning the potential sale of the Tote; [133738]

(2) what plans she has for the sale of the Tote. [133750]

Mr. Caborn: The Government have received and are considering a bid for the Tote from a consortium of racing interests and the staff and management of the Tote itself. The Government will announce shortly how they intend to proceed.

National Lottery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average (a) value of lottery receipts from sales made, (b) number of applications for lottery awards from and (c) number of lottery awards made in (i) England, (ii) the Eastern Region and (c) Castle Point was in each of the last five years. [133448]

Mr. Caborn: The national lottery operator, Camelot, does not collect ticket sales information on a constituency basis and does not routinely collect ticket sales data on a postcode basis. The most up-to-date sales data by postcode area are available in the Libraries of both Houses and provide information up to 2004. Information about the number of applications for lottery grants is not held centrally and the information requested could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

The number and value of lottery awards made in England, in the Eastern Region and in the Castle Point parliamentary constituency in each of the last five completed financial years is given in the following table. This information is derived from the Department's lottery grants database, which uses information supplied by the lottery distributors and can be searched at:

www.lottery.culture.gov.uk

Olympic Games: Greater London

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department plans to take to ensure that Colchester shares in the (a) economic, (b) social and (c) sporting benefits arising from the 2012 Olympic games. [133376]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are committed to ensuring that people across the UK, including Colchester can benefit from, and participate in, the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games. We are working closely with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games (LOCOG) and the Nations and Regions Group (NRG), chaired by Charles Allen, which brings together representatives from every nation and region. Each nation and region is finalising its own plan to maximise the impact of the games in their area, as well as the wider opportunities to deliver a sustainable legacy from the games. The East of England released its regional plan on 28 March 2007. In developing the plan, consultation has taken place over the last two years. It can be found on the East of England Regional Development Agency website:

<http://www.eeda.org.uk/27.asp>

Further detailed information regarding the region's plan can be provided by the relevant NRG Coordinator, Katie Huane (East of England Development Agency, The Business Centre, Station Road, Histon, Cambridge, CB4 9LQ).

In addition, Broxbourne in Hertfordshire will host the 2012 canoeing and kayaking and Weald country park near Brentwood in Essex will also host the Olympic mountain biking competitions. Together these events will add significant strength to the region's potential to benefit from the games.

Sport England: Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Sport England spent on administration and running costs in each region in each of the last eight years. [133434]

Mr. Caborn: The information requested for the last eight years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The table shows the regional administration costs, excluding salary costs, for the last six years.

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	Total

Sport England: Manpower

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people Sport England employed in each region in each of the last eight years. [133433]

Mr. Caborn: The information on staff employed in each Sport England region is not held in the format requested and could be provided for the eight year period only at disproportionate cost. The total number of staff employed in the regions over the last four years are:

	Total number of Sport England employees	Number of regional Sport England employees	Number of support centre employees
2004	311	173	138
2005	292	160	132
2006	239	140	99
2007[1]	276	174	102

East Midlands	18
London	21
North East	19
North West	20
South East	20
South West	21
West Midlands	21
Yorkshire	17

Sport England: Publicity

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Sport England spent on advertising in each of the last eight years. [133329]

Mr. Caborn: Information on money spent on advertising could be provided for the eight year period only at disproportionate cost. Money spent on recruitment advertising and Everyday Sport over the last six years is:

	Advertising	Everyday Sport
2001-02	477,083	—
2002-03	159,000	—
2003-04	72,000	—

2006-07	470,000	859,307

Sport England: Finance

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of Sport England's budget was spent on (a) sporting events, (b) capital spending on sports facilities and (c) support for individual sports men and women in each of the last eight years. [133435]

Mr. Caborn: Data for the past eight years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The table shows the percentage of Sport England's budget spent on (a) sports events, (b) capital spending on sports facilities and (c) support for individual sports men and women over in each of the last six years.

Sports: Schools

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will instigate a national debate to promote sport and fitness in schools. [133654]

Mr. Caborn: The Government implemented the National School Sport Strategy in 2002. This is underpinned by a joint DCMS/DfES PSA target, to increase the percentage of five to 16-year-olds participating in at least two hours high quality PE and school sport each week to 85 per cent. by 2008.

The 2005-06 annual school sport survey showed that 80 per cent. of pupils in school sport partnership schools are participating in at least two hours in a typical week, which surpassed the target of 75 per cent. We are therefore making excellent progress towards the PSA target of 85 per cent. by 2008. The long-term ambition is to offer all children at least four hours of sport a week by 2010, comprising two hours at school and a further two to three hours delivered by a range of school, community and club providers.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many oral questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133797]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A total of 14 oral questions, tabled to this Department since May 2005, have been transferred to other Government Departments.

Financial Services: Marketing

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what safeguards are in place to ensure that businesses offering individual voluntary arrangements do not use misleading marketing; and if he will make a statement. [134172]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Only an authorised insolvency practitioner is able to administer an individual voluntary arrangement. Insolvency practitioners are required to comply with professional standards agreed by the bodies that regulate them. All of the authorising bodies apply common ethical codes and professional standards to the insolvency practitioners and the way in which they obtain their work falls within the regulatory regime.

In addition the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has made it clear that insolvency practitioners who act in relation to individual voluntary arrangements require a Consumer Credit License and are therefore subject to OFT regulation.

Earlier this year the OFT warned 26 IVA providers that their advertisements and/or websites were potentially misleading and the OFT continues to monitor that situation.

Natural Gas: Prices

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the percentage of the price of gas from the cost of companies buying gas is maintained through price fluctuations. [133379]

Malcolm Wicks: This is a commercial matter for the gas supply companies. As I mentioned in an earlier answer on 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1602W, Ofgem, as the independent sectoral regulator, keeps the level of competition in the gas market under review, and has the powers it needs to deal with any failure of competition.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1601W, on natural gas: prices, what steps the Government have taken to encourage gas companies to consider their most valuable customers; and what the results were of such encouragement. [133380]

Malcolm Wicks: Subject to any regulatory controls, it is for gas suppliers, not Government, to determine who their most valuable customers are.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will instruct the regulator to analyse and to report to him on the time taken between raw material gas prices falling and any reductions in domestic retail gas prices; and if he will place such a report in the Library. [133647]

Malcolm Wicks: No. Ofgem, as the independent sectoral regulator, produced a fact-sheet last month called 'Household Energy Bills Explained', which explains why there is a time lag between the falls in the wholesale price and domestic prices see:

http://www.ofgem.gov/uk/Media/FactSheets/Documents1/Update%20-%20Household%20energy%20bills%20explained.pdf.

As I mentioned in an earlier answer on 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1602W, Ofgem keeps the level of competition in the gas market under review, and has the powers it needs to deal with any failure of competition.

Redfern: Inquiry

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Redfern Inquiry will have access to the National Archives files on radiation exposure experiments from 1950. [133214]

Malcolm Wicks: If Mr. Redfern wishes to have access to the National Archives files on radiation exposure experiments, I am sure that he will make appropriate representations to see them.

Small Business Service

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the reorganisation of the Small Business Service. [133864]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 24 April 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to my written statement of 26 October 2006, Official Report, columns 95-97WS.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Absconding Prisoners

9. Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, what plans he has to introduce greater deterrents for prisoners who abscond from custody in Northern Ireland. [132691]

Paul Goggins: Details of prisoners who escape from prison custody are brought to the attention of the relevant authorities with a view to prosecution. In cases where prisoners have absconded while on temporary release, prosecution is also possible.

In addition, the governor is able to punish the prisoner with a range of measures including cellular confinement. The prisoner also has the number of days he was unlawfully at large added to his original release date.

Alzheimer's Treatment

12. Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, if he will make a statement on the provision of Alzheimer's treatment by the NHS in Northern Ireland. [132694]

Paul Goggins: A range of treatment and care is provided for people with Alzheimer's disease, across the primary, community, specialist and secondary care sectors.

The treatment and management of Alzheimer's disease includes life-style measures and therapeutic interventions, which aim to promote active physical and mental health and help maintain an individual's capacity for independence. Appropriate drug interventions are also provided, including medicines designed to improve cognitive function.

Northern Ireland Office

13. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, what effect he expects the transfer of responsibilities to the devolved Assembly to have on the future size of the Northern Ireland Office; and what estimate he has made of the likely change in administrative costs. [132695]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office—as distinct from the 11 Northern Ireland Civil Service Departments—will be relatively unaffected by the restoration of devolution on 8 May, although there will be a reduction in the NIO ministerial team.

The eventual devolution of policing and justice functions will, of course, have a much greater impact on the size of the NIO. When that happens, the respective administrative funding streams attached to those functions will devolve with them.

Cancer

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were diagnosed with cancer in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years, broken down by type of cancer. [133107]

Paul Goggins: The following table details information on the incidence of cancers by type of cancer in Northern Ireland for each of the last six years for which data were available.

Notes:
1. Incidence refers to the number of new cases of a cancer diagnosed in Northern Ireland for a particular period.
2. Incidence of cancer are identified using version 10 of the international classification of diseases and related health problems (ICD10).
3. The "Other" category includes other haematological cancers, cancer of the gallbladder, other biliary tract and other digestive system, cancer of other connective systems, cancer of the vulva, vagina and penis, cancer of the eye and lymph nodes and cancers with an ill defined or unknown primary site.

This information has been provided by the Northern Ireland Cancer Registry and is the most up to date currently available.

Doctors: Training

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the evidential basis was for the decision on the relative proportion of speciality training and fixed term speciality training posts in Northern Ireland; and by whom the decision was made. [133705]

Paul Goggins: The decision on the proportion of speciality training and fixed terms speciality training posts in NI was based on work force planning projections. The decision was made by my Department in conjunction with the Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost has been of (a) modernising medical careers in Northern Ireland and (b) the Medical Training Application Service in Northern Ireland. [133706]

Paul Goggins: The total cost attributed to Modernising Medical Careers is £1.7 million.

The total spend to date for the introduction of Modernising Medical Careers is £1.565 million. The Northern Ireland contribution to the Medical Training Application Service is £165,000.

Domestic Wastes

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) total and (b) average amount of domestic waste was produced per household in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [133926]

David Cairns: The latest complete and validated data for municipal waste is for the financial year 2005-06. This indicates that:

(a) The total amount of household waste arisings in Northern Ireland for 2005-06 was 937,331 tonnes.

(b) The average amount of waste collected per household in 2005-06 was 1.36 tonnes, equating to 26.2 kg per household per week.

EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which programmes have been funded in Northern Ireland from the PEACE budget of the European Regional Development Fund in the last 12 months. [133550]

Mr. Hanson: A list of projects awarded funding since April 2006 under the European Regional Development Fund measures of the PEACE II Programme has been placed in the Library of the House. In addition to this, 46 individuals have been awarded funding. Due to data protection considerations these names have not been included.

Fly Tipping

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had in the last 12 months with Ministers from the government of the Republic of Ireland on illegal dumping in Northern Ireland of waste from the Republic of Ireland. [133925]

David Cairns: I discussed the matter of illegal cross-border waste movements at a meeting with Dick Roche, Minister for the Environment, Heritage and Local Government in Ireland on 2 October 2006. Issues discussed, including enhanced co-operation between the relevant authorities on illegal waste movements, are being carried forward by officials in both jurisdictions.

Health Services

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are planned to be taken to ensure that sufficient medical staff are available to provide a high standard of patient care in Northern Ireland during the first week of August 2007. [133793]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency is implementing a rigorous recruitment process that will be completed by the end of May. The best quality applicants will be appointed and will be in post by 1 August 2007.

International Fund for Ireland

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which projects have been funded in Northern Ireland by the International Fund for Ireland in the last 12 months. [133548]

Mr. Hanson: The International Fund for Ireland is administered by an independent board appointed jointly by the British and Irish Governments and all matters pertaining to the projects supported by the fund are a matter for that board. I will forward the request to the chairman of the International Fund for Ireland and ask him to respond directly and I will place a copy of the reply in the House of Commons Library.

The fund's annual reports list the projects funded. The 2006 report has been published and a copy has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Local Government

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, what powers and responsibilities he intends to devolve to councils in Northern Ireland. [132683]

David Cairns: Details are set out in statements made on 22 November 2005, Official Report, columns 106-111WS and on 21 March 2006, Official Report, columns 17-19WS.

Ministerial Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days he spent in Northern Ireland on official business in each of the last 12 months; and on how many occasions he stayed overnight. [133621]

Mr. Hain: From April 2006 to March 2007 inclusive, I have spent 123 days in Northern Ireland. It is not appropriate to disclose details of where I spend my nights as this is considered personal information with security implications.

In addition to the time spent in Northern Ireland, I undertake NIO business in Parliament and in the Northern Ireland Office, London. As a member of the Cabinet I have additional duties including attending Cabinet meetings on Thursday mornings.

Northern Ireland Authority for Energy Regulation: Public Appointments

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Commissioner for Public Appointments in Northern Ireland approved the procedure for the recent appointment of a board member of the Northern Ireland Authority for Energy Regulation. [133592]

Maria Eagle: The recent appointment by the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to the board of the Northern Ireland Authority for Energy Regulation (since 1 April 2007 the Northern Ireland Authority for Utility Regulation) was carried out with the approval of the Commissioner for Public Appointments for NI (OCPANI), under the OCPANI monitored kitemark scheme.

Pedestrian Crossings: Bangor

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many complaints his Department has received about the lack of pedestrian crossing provision on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court; [133111]

(2) what assessment he has made of the health and safety implications of the lack of pedestrian crossing provision on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court; [133115]

(3) if he will allocate funding to provide pedestrian crossing on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court; [133116]

(4) what the (a) date, (b) time, (c) duration and (d) nature was of each survey carried out on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near Montgomery Court, in order to assess the need for a pedestrian crossing in the provision at this location; [133389]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 24 April 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland 4 Parliamentary Questions regarding:

how many complaints his Department has received about the lack of pedestrian crossing provision on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court. (133111)

what assessment he has made of the health and safety implications of the lack of pedestrian crossing provision on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court. (133115)

if he will allocate funding to provide pedestrian crossing on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near to Montgomery Court. (133116)

what the (a) date, (b) time, (c) duration and (d) nature was of surveys carried out on the High Donaghadee Road in Bangor, near Montgomery Court, in order to assess the need or a pedestrian crossing in the provision of this location. (133389)

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

I should explain that Roads Service's policy in relation to pedestrian crossings is to provide such facilities where there is an identifiable need and where the conditions at any potential site make it difficult for pedestrians and cyclists to cross the road. An integral part of the process is an assessment of the 'demand' and 'difficulty' of crossing the road at the location concerned. The initial part of our assessment process uses the number of pedestrians (the initial demand factor) and the volume of traffic (the initial difficulty factor) to give an indication of the potential 'conflict' at a site. The assessment of the need for a crossing is then supplemented using a scorecard, which assigns scores to various other 'demand' and 'difficulty' factors, including collision history at the site. This policy is designed to assess the need and to prioritise locations where pedestrians encounter difficulties in crossing the road due to the high volumes of vehicular traffic. This is applied consistently and impartially when assessing all requests in Northern Ireland, so that available funding can be directed at those with the greatest need.

With regard to the number of complaints received in relation to the lack of crossing facilities on the High Donaghadee Road between the roundabout with the East Circular road and the junction with the Ballycrochan Road, I can advise that since September 2005, five individuals have corresponded with Roads Service over this issue. In total these five people have written on nine occasions, with one resident including a petition of approximately 150 signatures. Roads Service has no record of complaints about the lack of pedestrian crossing facilities at this location prior to 2005.

In relation to health and safety implications, I am advised that survey observations, obtained as part of the process for determining the need for a controlled pedestrian crossing facility, concluded that there were a very small number of pedestrians wishing to cross the road at this location and as such, it was considered that there was little conflict between pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

In light of the survey findings, I am afraid that it is not possible to make funding available for a controlled pedestrian crossing facility at this location at this time. However, in such circumstances Roads Service may consider other measures to assist pedestrians, such as footway build-outs and central refuge islands, which shorten the crossing width and improve visibility thereby reducing the crossing difficulty. Central refuges can be particularly useful to vulnerable pedestrians such as elderly people.

I am pleased to advise you that Roads Service is presently designing such a scheme for this location. However, I have to stress that this proposal is at a very early stage and will require a degree of public consultation prior to the detailed layout being finalised. Hopefully we will be able to complete this work within the current financial year.

Finally, with regard to your enquiry for details of the surveys, I can advise that they were carried out on the High Donaghadee Road, between Ballymaconnell Road South and Ballycrochan Road, on 7 September 2005 between 8 and 10 am, on 3 October 2005 between 2 and 4 pm and on 5 October 2005 between 4 and 6 pm. Surveys were also carried out on the High Donaghadee Road, between Ashford Drive and Kilmaine Road, on 9 November 2005 between 4 and 6 pm and on 10 November 2005 between 8 and 10 am. These surveys involved the counting of vehicles passing along the High Donaghadee Road and the numbers of pedestrians crossing within 50m either side of the centre of the survey zone.

Public Libraries: Bangor

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment has been made by his Department of the adequacy of the public library provision in Bangor; and if he will make a statement. [133108]

Maria Eagle: Responsibility for delivering the Northern Ireland public library service, including securing appropriate library accommodation for this area, rests with the South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB).

DCAL has approved funding for a major extension and refurbishment of the existing Bangor library. The enhanced library will provide accommodation of over 2,000m^2 making it one of the largest public libraries in Northern Ireland.

The SEELB had to decant from Bangor library at the end of March 2007 to facilitate the commencement of this work. Arrangements are being made for the library to open in temporary premises in two units in the Flagship shopping centre from 21 May 2007 for the duration of the contract. Until 21 May, a library service will be provided from a mobile library outside the Hamilton road library. Information on these temporary arrangements has been made widely available by the SEELB.

Religious Persons

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions in the last 12 months (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department have met leaders of (i) the Presbyterian Church, (ii) the Roman Catholic Church, (iii) the Church of Ireland, (iv) the Methodist Church, (v) the Baptist Union of Ireland, (vi) the Free Presbyterian Church, (vii) the Elim Pentecostal Church, (viii) the Reformed Presbyterian Church (ix) the Congregational Union of Ireland, (x) the Evangelican Alliance (xi) Evangelical Continuation in Northern Ireland and (xi) the Caleb Foundation. [132889]

Mr. Hain: I have met church leaders on numerous occasions as have my Ministers in my Department. Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties. It is not normal practice to disclose the detail of such meetings.

Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted on charges relating to having sexual intercourse with an underage person in each district command unit of the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; what percentage of these cases resulted in a custodial sentence; and what the average length of the prison term was. [132151]

Mr. Hanson: Data relating to the number of prosecutions and convictions for sexual intercourse with an underage person are not collected. It is only possible to provide information for those offences which, by their definition, identify a child as the victim of buggery and unlawful carnal knowledge.

Table 1 gives the number of prosecutions and convictions for buggery and unlawful carnal knowledge offences by District Command Unit for the calendar years 2003 to 2005.

Due to small numbers of prosecutions and convictions in each District Command Unit, the average length of those sentenced to immediate custody has not been provided for individual District Command Units. Tables 2 to 4 document the total number prosecuted and convicted, the number and percentage sentenced to immediate custody and the average sentence length in months for these offences in each of the three years.

Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Sexual Offences: Sentencing

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, whether he plans to introduce changes to the law on the sentencing of sex offenders in Northern Ireland. [132690]

Mr. Hanson: Later this year I intend to consult on a set of draft legislative proposals for a radical change to the structure of sentencing in Northern Ireland. These proposals include the introduction of indeterminate and extended public protection sentences that would in future put an end to automatic 50 per cent. remission for dangerous violent and sexual offenders. These sentences would mean that those committing the most serious offences could if necessary be detained indefinitely, while those committing other specified offences could be detained to the end of their prison sentence.

Separately I also intend to publish draft legislation to reform the law on sexual offences, with tough new penalties proposed for abusive sexual behaviour which violates the criminal code.

HOME DEPARTMENT

101 Programme

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed within the 101 programme; what the total cost is of their annual salaries; and what the annual cost is of the salary of the head of the programme. [130050]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 March 2007]: There are currently eight (full-time equivalent) people employed within the 101 programme with an additional 6.5 (full-time equivalent) specialist consultants to provide specific telecommunications, information technology and business analysis expertise.

The total cost of the annual salaries for the eight employees for 2007-08 including all on costs (national insurance and pension contributions) is expected to be approximately £450,000. The total cost of the additional 6.5 specialist consultants including all fees is expected to be approximately £760,000.

It is not the policy of the Home Office to disclose the details of a specific individual's salary but the cost of the salary of the programme director for 2007-08 is 0.5 (full-time equivalent) of Home Office grade six pay band, which is currently expected to cost between £27,199 and £35,313 plus on costs (national insurance and pension contributions).

Autism

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the partnership between Dyfed Powys Police, North Wales Police and Autism Cymru to develop an assessment of the needs of people with autistic spectrum disorders; and what plans he has to introduce a similar scheme in England. [133387]

Mr. McNulty: A local assessment of the scheme has been carried out by North Wales Police in partnership with Autism Cymru. The findings have proved to be beneficial to both the Police and Communities in Wrexham and Flintshire. A report of the findings has now been received by the National Policing Improvement Agency, who will evaluate them with a view to sharing good practice with Police colleagues throughout the Police Service of England and Wales.

Burglaries: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded burglaries there were in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of those recorded burglaries led to a conviction in each year, broken down by borough. [133509]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested. Recorded burglary statistics relate to offences and convictions data relates to offenders. In addition, recorded crime data are published on a financial year basis and conviction data are published on a calendar year basis. For these reasons, the two data sources are therefore not directly comparable.

Figures for the number of offences recorded and the number of convictions are provided in the tables. Recorded crime data at borough level are only available from 2000-01.

Table 1: Recorded offences of burglary by London borough, 2000-01 and 2001-02

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] The above data comprises burglary in a dwelling, aggravated burglary in a dwelling, burglary other than in a dwelling and aggravated burglary in a building other than a dwelling.

Community Support Officers

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what assessment he has made of the impact of community safety police teams. [132874]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office evaluation of the National Reassurance Policing Programme published in 2006 provides strong evidence that a neighbourhood policing approach—which uses locally-based neighbourhood policing teams to target local community safety priorities—can reduce crime and perceptions of antisocial behaviour, and improve public confidence in the police, feelings of safety, community engagement and police patrol visibility.

The Home Office is monitoring and evaluating the neighbourhood policing programme across England and Wales, rather than the performance of individual teams, through a strategic research programme, the results of which will be published in due course.

The Home Office also continues to assess police performance, including the impact of neighbourhood policing, through the Police Performance Assessment Framework (PPAF), while inspections by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary also provide a qualitative assessment of neighbourhood policing delivery.

Crime: Surveys

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his Department expects to reach a conclusion on the appropriateness of extending the British Crime Survey to include those who are aged under 16 years old; and if he will make a statement. [133676]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Extending the British Crime Survey to include those aged under 16 years old was one of the recommendations of the independent review of crime statistics led by Professor Adrian Smith that reported in November 2006. Smith recommended the Home Office should draw on the advice of experts in making such changes and there should be careful piloting so that the effect of such a change could be properly assessed before the extension is incorporated into the main BCS sample. We intend to commission work in the near future from experts in sampling and conducting surveys to provide advice on how this work could be taken forward. We expect to reach a conclusion on this work in the autumn of 2007.

Criminal Justice Bill

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to be in a position to introduce to Parliament the Criminal Justice Bill announced in the Queen's Speech 2006. [133594]

John Reid: As my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons indicated in response to a question from the hon. Member for Somerton and Frome (Mr. Heath) at business questions on 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 442, the criminal justice Bill will be brought forward in due course.

Departments: Publications

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department spent on unpublished research in (a) 2005 and (b) each of the previous five years. [129084]

John Reid: The information requested is not held centrally and could not be collected without incurring disproportionate cost.

Human Trafficking

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how often the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking has met in the last 12 months; and how often it plans to meet in the next 12 months. [132887]

Mr. Coaker: In the last 12 months the group has met four times and will continue to be arranged on a quarterly basis.

Identity Cards

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when he expects to submit a final cost estimate for the identity cards scheme to HM Treasury; [133293]

(2) when his Department first submitted a cost estimate of the identity cards scheme to HM Treasury; and what that cost estimate was. [133294]

Joan Ryan: My Department has and will continue to maintain close contact with HM Treasury in relation to the estimates of expenditure on the National Identity Scheme.

Initial cost estimates for a card scheme were published in July 2002 in the consultation paper "Entitlement Cards and Identity Fraud" (CM5557)

Revised cost estimates have been published from time-to-time, for example, when the Identity Cards Bill was introduced to Parliament. During the passage of that legislation, the Government agreed to lay a report before Parliament every six months, which sets out the estimated cost of the National Identity Scheme for the coming 10 years.

The National Identity Scheme is being built around plans first to issue biometric passports incorporating; fingerprints which many countries will be implementing in 2009; and second, to issue biometric visas and immigration documents to foreign nationals. The procurement projects will therefore in the main deliver generic facilities covering, for example, the recording and storage of biometric information for passport and immigration purposes as well as ID cards.

As with any major project or programme, cost estimates will continue to be revised as it reaches key stages in its development, such as commencing procurement, signing contracts with suppliers and the commencement of live operations.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what checks are carried out to assess the employability of non-EU citizens applying to enter the UK. [132004]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

There are a number of schemes under which non-EU nationals can apply to work in the UK. Details of these, including the requirements and evidence which should be submitted, can be found on the UKvisas website (www.ukvisas.gov.uk). Two of the largest schemes are Work Permits and the Highly Skilled Migrant Programme (HSMP) and details of the requirements and processes of these are given.

Non-EU nationals can also be permitted to work if they enter the UK under a long-term category, such as husband/wife/partner, though there is no requirement for them to demonstrate their employability in order for entry clearance to be issued.

Work Permits

If a non-EU citizen is required to have a work permit to apply to enter the UK, their UK-based employer, as part of the work permit application process, is required to:

- demonstrate that the non-EU citizen has the skills, qualifications and experience to enable them to do the job on offer (except under the Sectors Based Scheme);
- inform the Border and Immigration Agency how they verified the non-EU citizen's qualifications and skills for most Business and Commercial and Training and Work Experience applications; and
- demonstrate that the non-EU citizen has appropriate registration with a UK professional organisation, for example, the Nursing and Midwifery Council or the General Medical Council, where that is required by legislation.

The employer is required to provide supporting documentation. The Border and Immigration Agency may request original documents where copies have been supplied and, if necessary, check their authenticity.

A work permit holder must apply for entry clearance before travelling to the UK. This will be granted provided the Entry Clearance Officer is satisfied that the applicant:

holds a valid work permit and is capable of undertaking the employment specified; is not below the age of 13 years;

does not intend to take employment except as specified on the work permit; intends to leave the UK on expiry of the work permit (where a work permit is due to expire within 12 months); and is able to be maintained and accommodated (and any dependants) adequately without recourse to public funds.

HSMP

The HSMP is a points based immigration route. If a non-EU citizen wishes to enter the UK as a highly skilled migrant they must demonstrate their highly skilled status by scoring 75 points across the following areas:

qualifications held;

previous earnings;

age; and

UK experience.

Applicants must also demonstrate that they hold English language skills to the required level. Successful HSMP applicants do not require a prior offer of employment to enter the UK.

When considering HSMP applications, the Border and Immigration Agency requests original documents and, where necessary, checks their authenticity.

Intermittent Custody

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average travelling distance from home to intermittent custody centres is for women prisoners subject to (a) a weekday and (b) a weekend intermittent custody order, broken down by centre; [133274]

(2) how many and what percentage of (a) female and (b) male prisoners are subject to an intermittent custody order; [133275]

(3) how many and what percentage of intermittent custody orders have been made for (a) weekday and (b) weekend custody in each year since their introduction under the Criminal Justice Act 2003; [133276]

(4) how many intermittent custody centres there are in England and Wales; and how many places there are for (a) female and (b) male prisoners in each centre. [133277]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The two intermittent custody pilots at HMP Kirkham for male offenders and HMP Morton Hall for female offenders came to and end in November 2006. Each centre accommodated up to 39 offenders.

During the pilots we did not hold records on travelling distances for offenders to the IC centres. However, the IC evaluation found that the geographically larger female pilot catchment area meant that women spent longer travelling, usually by public transport, to the IC centre than men.

On 23 April 2007 there was one female prisoner currently recalled at Morton Hall serving an intermittent custody order. The total number of intermittent custody orders during the pilot was 456; of these, 384 offenders were subject to weekend custody, and 72 offenders were subject to weekday custody.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Police: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in each London borough are on paid sick leave. [133493]

Mr. McNulty: Information on sick leave absences is collected annually and only at force level. In the Metropolitan Police Service for 2005-06 the average number of hours lost per annum was 54.3 hours per officer.

Police: Retirement

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average retirement age was of police officers in each of the last 15 years. [133394]

Mr. McNulty: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the Member for Taunton (Mr. Browne) on 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1091, which provides all the relevant information that is available.

Police: Schools

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many schools in England and Wales have an allocated police officer, broken down by local authority area. [133343]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office does not collect this information centrally.

Prisoners: Locks and Keys

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders in (a) Category C prisons, (b) Category D prisons and (c) youth offender institutions in England and Wales have access to the keys for their cells. [132242]

John Reid: No prisoners have cell keys in their possession. In 32 Category C prisons, six semi-open prisons and five closed young offender institutions (YOIs), cells are fitted with privacy locks which enable prisoners to open and close their cells only during periods when the cell locks have been unlocked by staff. Privacy locks do not enable prisoners to leave their cells unless unlocked by staff, nor do they enable them to prevent staff from entering. Open prisons and open YOIs do not normally have cell locks on individual cells.

Respect Task Force: Advertising

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the Respect Task Force has spent on advertising since its establishment; and what the projected advertising budget is for each of the next two financial years. [133363]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Since its establishment in September 2005, the Respect Task Force has spent £35,580.32 on advertising.

Currently, we have no committed expenditure on advertising over the next two years. Any further advertising that is commissioned will be dependent on budget allocations and communication plans which have yet to be settled in detail.

Special Constables

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007; Official Report, column 1651W, on special constables, for what reasons the recruitment figures are not published in the Police Service Strength Bulletin; and if he will publish such figures in future editions. [133366]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The annual Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales" publish joiners and leavers data for special constables. The data for joiners take into consideration not only those individuals who are recruited to the force, but also those who transfer between forces and those who leave the force and subsequently rejoin at a later date. For this reason, data for joiners are considered a more accurate representation of changes in strength than recruits. Data are published in this way not only for special constables but also for police officers.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departments: Huddersfield

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people employed by his Department were working in Huddersfield in each of the last 10 years. [131583]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001 bringing together the former Department of Social Security and Employment Service. Information on the number of people employed by the Department in Huddersfield at 31 March each year following its formation is in the following table. The figures are also included as at 28 February 2007, the latest available.

	Number of staff
31 March 2002	414
31 March 2003	421
31 March 2004	389
31 March 2005	355
31 March 2006	292
28 February 2007	277

Employment Schemes: Lone Parents

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measure are (a) in place and (b) planned to be introduced to help lone parents into employment. [131771]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The following measures are already in place to help eligible lone parents into employment, some of which are open to eligible people other than lone parents:

- New Deal for Lone Parents
- New Deal Plus for Lone Parents
- Work Focused Interviews
- Programme Centres
- Work Trials
- Childcare Subsidy
- Childcare Assist
- In-Work Credit
- In-Work Emergency Fund
- Adviser Discretion Fund
- Job Grant
- Mortgage Interest Run On
- Housing Benefit Run On
- Tax Credits

As we have announced, we also plan to introduce the following measures to help eligible lone parents into employment:

- From 30 April 2007: extension of six-monthly Work Focused Interviews for lone parents with a youngest child aged five to 13;
- From 30 April 2007: introduction in New Deal Plus for Lone Parent pilot areas of quarterly Work Focused Interviews for lone parents with a youngest child aged 11 to 13;
- From 1 July 2007: introduction of a higher In-Work Credit rate of 60 across London;
- From 1 July 2007: continuation of the In-Work Credit in pilot areas until June 2008;
- From 1 April 2008 to March 2011: expansion of the New Deal Plus for Lone Parent pilot areas to cover all London districts;
- From 28 April 2008: extension of six-monthly Work Focused Interviews for lone parents with a youngest child aged 0 to four.

Grandparents: Carers

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations his Department has received on the allowances for grandparents caring for their grandchildren; what level of benefits they receive; and if he will make a statement. [132787]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) receives numerous representations from hon. Members, organisations and members of the public about the benefits and services it provides. It is not possible to provide numbers below high-level subject matter on the number of such representations.

Grandparents who are responsible for children are able to claim the same benefits and increases as all other persons responsible for children; the exact amounts that they receive will depend upon the individual circumstances of each such case.

Income Support: Disqualification

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many sanctions were imposed on lone parents claiming income support who had missed their first work focused interview in each quarter since 1997. [123579]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 26 February 2007]: Work focused interviews were introduced nationally for some lone parents from April 2001. They were extended in stages to all lone parents making new or repeat claims to Income support, and from April 2004 to all lone parents with an existing claim to income support.

Lone parents making a new or repeat claim for income support are expected to attend a work focused interview before an income support payment is made, unless the interview is deferred or waived. Failure to attend this first interview would result in the claim being disallowed rather than a benefit sanction being imposed. Benefit sanctions are imposed on existing customers who fail to attend their first work focused interview.

Between April 2001 and March 2006, 1.76 million initial lone parent work focused interviews have been booked and, in the same period, 1.62 million initial interviews have been attended, with 39,920 sanctions applied for failure to attend an initial work focused interview.

The number of work focused interviews (WFIs) booked for lone parents in the year to March 2006 was around one and a half times the number booked two years earlier, and over two and a half times the number booked three years before. This has, inevitably, resulted in an increase in the number of sanctions imposed. However, at less than 5 per cent. of the number of interviews booked, this represents a very low proportion of the total.

Information on the number of benefit sanctions imposed on lone parents for failure to attend a first work focused interview, broken down by each quarter, is in the following table.

Lone parent benefit sanctions

Period	Benefit sanctions applied
April to June 2001	10

Income Support: Lone Parents

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on income support for (a) lone parents whose youngest child was (i) under three, (ii) under five, (iii) under 11, (iv) under 14 and (v) under 16 and (b) all lone parents in (i) cash and (ii) real terms in each of the last 10 years; what proportion of GDP each figure represented; and what estimate he has made of the expenditure for each of the next 10 years. [126529]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following tables. Figures after 2007-08 are illustrative projections consistent with the 2006 'Long-term Public Finance Report'. They are based on current policy continuing and do not represent firm expenditure plans. They also do not take account of measures proposed in the current Welfare Reform Bill.

Notes:

1. Figures up to 2007-08 are consistent with the historical out-turn and pre-Budget report forecast expenditure figures published on the Department for Work and Pensions website at: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/expenditure.asp.
2. Figures after 2007-08 are illustrative projections consistent with the 2006 Long-term Public Finance Report, and assume current policy continues throughout the projection period, including the migration of the dependant child element of income support for lone parents to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs as part of the wider child tax credits roll-out. They do not take account of policies proposed in the current Welfare Reform Bill.
3. Lone parents are defined as single claimants with dependants not receiving incapacity benefits. Expenditure refers to the total expenditure directed at working-age adults and any child dependants from income support for lone parents.
4. Expenditure has been apportioned among age groups using data on IS recipients from the 100 per cent. Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study. For all years beyond 2006-07, expenditure is apportioned using age group data for 2006-07.
5. Information prior to 1999-2000 has not been provided because the underlying data series begins in that financial year.
6. All figures relate to expenditure in Great Britain only, but GDP figures used are for the United Kingdom.

Industrial Injuries Scheme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the potential savings to the Exchequer in each year from 2008-09 to 2020-21 of ending industrial injuries benefit for new claims while continuing to pay outstanding claims; and if he will make a statement. [124758]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have asked officials to carry out a review of the IIDB scheme to ensure that it meets the needs of our modern society and is compatible with the Government's broader welfare reform agenda. A consultation document was published on 29 January 2007. The consultation document sets out questions that we would like stakeholders' views on. The questions address the key issues to shape an occupational scheme for injuries and diseases caused through work that will best meet the needs of our society, beyond financial compensation alone, today and for the future.

The consultation document does not commit DWP to any particular line of action or programmed spend. We are seeking stakeholders' views before we decide on the nature of the reform.

Outline estimates were made at the beginning of 2006 for stopping new claims to industrial injuries disablement benefit/reduced earnings allowance. These estimates should be used only as a guideline or indication rather than a complete and accurate assessment.

The estimated savings from not allowing new industrial injuries disablement benefit/reduced earnings allowance claims from April 2008 are in the following tables.

National Insurance: Greater London

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the latest performance statistics are for the processing of national insurance number applications at each of the London offices dealing with such applications. [131212]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 25 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question what the latest performance statistics are for the processing of National Insurance Number applications at each of the London offices dealing with such applications. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There are currently four National Insurance Number processing sites in London—Tooting, Cityside, Camden, and Hounslow. There is also a satellite office at Harlesden. Cityside, our newest site, opened in November 2006. The centres in London deal with 36% of all applications nationally.

We aim to process applications for National Insurance Numbers as quickly and securely as possible. In order to manage performance we have set an internal target for our teams to clear 86% of applications within 30 days.

The current performance figures are shown in the table below.

	Proportion cleared within 30 days (Percentage)
Camden	83.50
Cityside	75.38
Harlesden	82.07
Hounslow	82.07
Tooting	91.07
London	83.34

Note:
The figures quoted are up to the end of February 2007.
I hope this is helpful.

New Deal

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost per person moving into unsubsidised employment was of each New Deal programme in each year since 1997-98. [118799]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The available information is in the following table.

New Deal costs per person into unsubsidised employment

	New Deal for Young People	New Deal 25 Plus	New Deal 50 Plus	New Deal for Lone Parents	New Deal for Disabled People	New Deal for Partners

2004-05	3,663	4,578	131	292	1,934	633
2005-06	2,852	4,197	53	367	1,557	467

Notes:
1. Employer subsidies are only paid through New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 plus. Costs for these programmes are calculated excluding employer subsidies and excluding those who have only gained subsidised employment through these New Deals.
2. Cost figures are calculated on latest confirmed spend figures to March 2006 and figures for people into unsubsidised employment through each New Deal to March 2006.
3. The New Deal 50 plus cost figures up to 2002-03 include the DWP-funded ND50 plus employment credit. In 2003-04 this was replaced by the 50 plus element of the working tax credit, which is the responsibility of HMRC, so New Deal 50 plus costs reduced very significantly between 2002-03 and 2003-04.
4. Following agreement with HM Treasury in 2002/03, ringfences for New Deal were removed from New Deal. Administrative costs are excluded as it is no longer possible to identify the costs of administering the costs of each New Deal separately from the costs of other labour market activities.
5. Cost data includes start-up costs.
6. Following changes to the New Deal 25 plus programme in April 2001 when a mandatory intensive activity period was introduced, programme costs rose significantly resulting in an increase in the costs of helping people into work through the programme.
7. The costs of helping someone into work through New Deal for Lone Parents are lower as support provided to participants is primarily Adviser support and administrative costs are excluded from cost calculations.
8. Costs for voluntary programmes are also lower than the mandatory New Deals as a higher proportion of participants on voluntary programmes will be job ready without additional intervention.
9. Programme start dates are: New Deal for Young People: January 1998; New Deal 25 plus: July 1998; New Deal for Lone Parents: October 1998; New Deal for Partners: April 1999; New Deal 50 plus: April 2000; New Deal for Disabled People: July 2001.
10. Although New Deal for Young People started in January 1998, it only operated in pilot locations between January-March 1998, rolling out nationally from April 1998.
11. Average cost figures are rounded to the nearest pound.

New Deal for Disabled People: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Copeland have participated in the new deal for disabled people since its launch. [133491]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Information on the number of participants on new deal for disabled people is not available at constituency level.

Social Fund

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the latest performance statistics are for each office where Social Fund applications are processed. [130176]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 24 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the latest performance statistics are for each office where Social Fund applications are processed. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The time it takes to process Social Fund applications is measured by counting the average length of time taken to clear all claims processed within a set period (usually monthly). The measure is referred to as the Average Actual Clearance Time.

The clearance time for an individual application is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received to the date the decision is taken (on whether to make an award or a loan offer), plus, if a loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply. The minimum clearance time recorded for an individual application is one day, even if the application is cleared immediately.

Applications are made for five elements of the Social Fund: Community Care Grants, Crisis Loans, Budgeting Loans, Sure Start Maternity Grants and Funeral Payments.

The Average Actual Clearance Time service level expectations for each element are:

Community Care Grants—9 days.

Crisis Loans—2 days.

Budgeting Loans—6 days.

Sure Start Maternity Grants—5 days.

Funeral Payments—16 days.

However, applications for Crisis Loan living expenses must be cleared on the same day as the application is made.

The attached table shows the performance of each of the 42 operating units that are currently responsible for Social Fund applications. The data covers February 2007.

I hope this is helpful.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether lie detector test pilot schemes for benefit claimants will analyse the psychological impact of undertaking a lie detector test on claimants who are not committing fraud. [132223]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department intends to test voice risk analysis software as part of wider efforts to improve customer service and reduce fraud. It is not a lie detector. Applications of voice risk analysis technology have been reported to help identify and reduce risk of fraudulent claims in other sectors. The Department will be considering the impact of this technology on its business and customers to ensure legitimate benefit claims are paid quickly and accurately.

Social Security Benefits: Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 816W, on social security benefits: lone parents, how many lone parents there were in the United Kingdom in each year since 1992; and what proportion of them had been in receipt of out-of-work benefits in each quarter since 1995. [130374]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The available information is in the following table.

3. Payments made to people aged 60-64 years and over 80 payment are included from 2000-01 onwards. Following a European Court of Justice Judgement in 1999, winter fuel payments were extended to people aged 60 or over regardless of whether they were receiving a social security benefit. A claims process was set up in the year 2000 to enable payments to be made to those people who could not be identified through the Department's records.

TREASURY

Departmental Expenditure Limits: Department of Health

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date he increased the Department of Health's planned resource departmental expenditure limit for 2005-06 from £75,090 million, as stated in public expenditure statistical analyses 2005, to £76,365 million, as stated in the Treasury's Public Expenditure Outturn White Paper for 2005-06; and how this increase was divided between near-cash and non-cash. [127835]

Mr. Timms: Planned expenditure figures changed for a number of routine and technical reasons and because of the reprofiling of the Department of Health's budget. The main reason for the change in planned resource DEL expenditure in 2005-06, which increased the near-cash element of resource DEL, was a classification adjustment to the Department of Health's resource DEL to cover payments to NHS Trusts to meet their depreciation costs, as set out in Budget 2006. Chapter 2 of the public expenditure analyses 2006 compares the latest plans for DEL and AME with the plans set out in the previous year.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 721W, on departmental staff, whether individual teams in his Department keep records of the number of away days; and if he will estimate the cost of obtaining away days for one team. [109192]

John Healey: Individual teams do not maintain records of the number of away days and no such cost estimate has been prepared.

Departments: Public Opinion

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on (a) opinion polls and (b) focus groups in each of the last five years. [133023]

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many opinion polls of the public his Department has commissioned since July 2006; and what the (a) purpose, (b) date and (c) cost was of each. [133440]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave on 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2230W to the hon. Member for South-West Hertfordshire (Mr. Gauke).

EU Budget

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much expenditure was categorised under the European Union budget line of sundry debtors in the 2006-07 financial year; and if he will make a statement. [133074]

Ed Balls: 'Sundry debtors', covering receivables arising from the activities of the European Communities, including unpaid fines, cash advances and amounts paid to financial intermediaries, appears as an item under short-term assets in the balance sheet provided for the 'Final Annual Accounts of the European Communities 2004'. This amounted to €4,140 million at 31 December 2004.

Following a modernisation of the accounts of the European Communities in 2005 and the change to an accruals accounting system, an asset entitled pre-financing is now recognised on the balance sheet and represents the advances paid to beneficiaries. In 2005, the latest year for which European Communities accounts are available, the amount of short-term pre-financing is given as €6,633 million as at 31 December (with a restated figure of €6,728 million as at 31 December 2004).

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 474W, on energy: conservation, what proportion of the funding announced by his Department on 22nd March 2006 (a) has been spent and (b) relates to improved (i) energy efficiency in the public sector and (ii) increased access to the arts and culture; and what estimate he has made of energy efficiencies gained. [131353]

Mr. Timms: Priority areas for round 8 of the invest to save budget commencing in 2006-7 included improved energy efficiency in the public sector and third sector bodies; and efficiency and increased access to the arts and culture sector. ISB funding is awarded for up to three years. On conclusion, all projects submit an evaluation of their project against its stated objectives. Data on the energy efficiencies gained have therefore not yet been collected.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the merits of hypothecating vehicle excise duty revenue for funding policies to address climate change and other forms of environmental damage. [132952]

John Healey: The Government's spending priorities are not in general determined by the way in which the money is raised. Revenue from the taxation of vehicles contributes—with other taxes and income—to the overall amount available to Government to spend, including on our transport and environmental protection priorities.

The Government's principled approach to the use of taxation as an instrument of environmental policy is set out in paragraphs 7.3-7.5 of the Chancellor's 2007 Budget report.

Migrant Workers: Eastern Europe

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the impact of workers from Eastern Europe on the UK economy. [132739]

John Healey: The latest official statistics (October to December 2006) show workers from the new EU member states in Eastern Europe made up 1.2 per cent. of UK employment, and contributed around 0.8 per cent. of the economy.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the reduction in revenue from applying higher rate stamp duty (3 per cent. to 4 per cent.) only to the amount from a property sale above the relevant threshold for that rate in a full tax year. [132813]

Ed Balls: If all commercial and residential property sales above £250,000 were taxed where 1 per cent. was applied on the whole of the first £250,000, 3 per cent.

on the excess consideration above £250,000 up to £500,000, and 4 per cent. on the excess consideration above £500,000, the reduction in revenue from stamp duty land tax is estimated at about £1.9 billion for the current financial year.

Taxation: Arrests

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions in 2005-06 HM Revenue and Customs requested that the police use their power of arrest as a result of a tax inquiry. [133739]

John Healey: HMRC does not hold a record of the number of requests made to the police to make arrests in 2005-06. However, on the basis of the information held, the Department estimates that around 150 arrests were made by police on its behalf during this year.

Taxation: Electric Vehicles

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax is paid on the purchase of a new (a) Toyota Prius and (b) Honda Accord hybrid car. [132819]

John Healey: These cars are subject to annual Vehicle Excise Duty under the carbon dioxide emissions graduated class for cars registered from 1 March 2001 onwards. Honda's Civic Hybrid has a certified CO_2 emissions figure of 109 g of CO_2 per kilometre and Toyota's Prius Hybrid has a certified CO_2 emissions figure of 104 g of CO_2 per kilometre.

These vehicles are therefore subject to band B CO_2 emissions graduated vehicle excise duty. In Budget 2007 the Chancellor built on Budget 2006 changes by further reducing this rate to £35 and freezing it until 2010-11. By announcing rates for future years the Government are providing future certainty and further sharpening the environmental signal to motorists to purchase more fuel efficient vehicles.

Cars purchased for private and business use are subject to VAT in the normal way. Under certain conditions cars that have been adapted for the carriage of a disabled person will be zero-rated. Charities and certain other eligible bodies (listed in HMRC Reference Notice 701/59 of March 2002) may also be able to purchase adapted vehicles free of VAT.

Welfare Tax Credits: Cardiff

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether staff working for the tax credit office in the Cardiff contact centre have guidelines for the number of calls they should deal with from customers each day; and if he will make a statement; [133027]

(2) how long staff answering customer calls at the tax credit office in Cardiff are recommended to spend on each call; and if he will make a statement. [133028]

Mr. Timms: The Contact Centre at Cardiff does not currently handle tax credit calls.

Loans: Students

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to ensure that the best possible price is achieved from the planned sale of tranches of the student loan book. [133710]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 April 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

We are at the early stages of implementing the Budget announcement to sell income-contingent student loans. Further details about the sale will be announced in due course. We are confident that the Government will obtain good value for money, as they are obliged to do by rules of Government accounting.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on hospitality by her Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133251]

Vera Baird: The amount of hospitality expenditure incurred by the Department, which covers costs for Her Majesty's Courts Service, Tribunals Service, Public Guardianship Office and DCA headquarters, for 2006-07 is provisionally £43,804. This amount is subject to audit and the final amount will be included in the Department's annual resource accounts.

All hospitality expenditure incurred by the Department is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety that is based on principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Democratic Republic of the Congo: Rain Forests

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown by major heading of how the recently announced £50 million to help conserve the Congo basin rainforest will be spent, including details of all funding recipients. [133499]

Mr. Thomas: The UK is committing £50 million to support proposals that have been made by 10 central African countries, to help them protect the Congo basin's forests and people. This will establish a fund that will slow the rate of deforestation by developing the capacity of people and institutions in the Congo basin countries to manage their forests and help local communities find livelihoods that are consistent with the conservation of forests.

The details of the new fund are still being developed—including how the work will be implemented. The fund will have a clear governance framework designed to ensure that it has strong African ownership and supports the needs of the Congo basin's countries, protects the livelihoods and rights of forest people and is spent effectively, with good financial management.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent on hospitality by his Department in the financial year 2006-07 [133259]

Mr. Thomas: The total for entertainment within administration costs budgets for 2006-07 was £238,000.

This figure for entertainment includes working breakfasts and lunches, refreshments at meetings and official entertainment.

All entertainment is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting.

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133801]

Mr. Thomas: None.

Developing Countries: AIDS

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the progress made by developing countries in delivering universal access to treatment for AIDS sufferers by 2010; and what support his Department has given to this policy. [132990]

Mr. Thomas: The World Health Organisation, UNAIDS and UNICEF published a new report last week—"Towards Universal Access: scaling up priority HIV/AIDS interventions in the health sector". The report shows that countries in every region of the world are making substantial progress in increasing access to HIV treatment. More than 1.3 million people in sub-Saharan Africa were receiving treatment in December 2006, representing coverage of approximately 28 per cent. of those in need compared to just 2 per cent. in 2003. Coverage in other regions varied, from 6 per cent. in North Africa and the Middle East, to 15 per cent. in Eastern Europe and Central Asia, and 72 per cent. in Latin America and the Caribbean. Overall, while encouraging trends continue, just 28 per cent. of the estimated 7.1 million people in need of treatment in all low and middle income countries were receiving it in December 2006.

Substantial challenges remain, which is why DFID continues to work with Governments and the international community to help deliver a comprehensive response. DFID is committed to spending at least £1.5 billion on tackling the HIV and AIDS epidemics. In 2005-06 DFID spent £385 million tackling HIV and AIDS, an increase of nearly 30 per cent. on the 2004-05 figure of £298 million. The UK has committed £300 million to the Global Fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria from 2002-08 including, £100 million for 2006 and the same for 2007 subject to performance. To date, Global Fund-financed programmes have provided treatment to over 600,000 people with AIDS. DFID is also committed to improving access to medicines and announced support of €20 million for UNITAID, the new drugs purchase facility established in September 2006, as part of a 20 year commitment, increasing to €60 million per year by 2010 subject to performance. Following its first two board meetings in October and November 2006 UNITAID has already approved several significant items of expenditure, including $61.7 million for paediatric anti-retroviral therapy (ART), $70 million for second line ART and $52.5 million for the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria.

Developing Countries: Cleft Palate

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent providing support to organisations that treat children in developing countries with cleft lip and palate in each of the last five years. [133508]

Mr. Thomas: The level of detail available on our central systems does not allow us to systematically capture the amount of expenditure channelled through organisations which treat cleft lip and palate. DFID provides direct funding to support general health services in many countries, and those health services provide a range of surgical interventions.

Developing Countries: Debts

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what targets his Department has to reduce debt in developing countries over the next two years. [132864]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's 2005-08 public service agreement (PSA) includes a target shared with Her Majesty's (HM) Treasury, that 90 per cent. of heavily indebted poor countries (HIPCs) that have reached Decision Point by end 2005 should receive irrevocable debt relief by end 2008. By the end of 2005, 28 HIPCs had reached HIPC Decision Point (thereby demonstrating their commitment to poverty reduction and qualifying for interim debt relief). Of these 28 countries, 22 have now completed the HIPC initiative and received irrevocable debt cancellation. The PSA target requires that four more countries complete HIPC before the end of 2008. Current indications are that this target will be met.

The public service agreement framework will change for the period 2008 to 2011. New departmental strategic objectives are under discussion.

In addition to our existing PSA target, DFID and HM Treasury work closely to deliver the UK Government's commitments on debt relief. We remain committed to the full implementation and financing of the HIPCs and multilateral debt relief initiatives (MDRI). We exceed our commitments under HIPC, cancelling 100 per cent. of bilateral debts for qualifying countries. We are also the second largest bilateral donor to the HIPC Trust Fund which helps multilateral organisations deliver HIPC debt relief in a timely manner. We continue to pay our share of the costs of the MDRI at the World Bank, IMF and African Development Bank. We also support debt reduction facility operations managed by the World Bank which allow poor countries to buy back their commercial debts at a considerable discount (generally over 90 per cent.).

The UK remains committed to 100 per cent. bilateral and multilateral debt relief for poor countries that will use the savings for poverty reduction. We have cancelled bilateral aid debts from low income countries (except Zimbabwe and Burma, neither of which are making payments) and qualifying lower middle income countries. We also pay our share (10 per cent.) of debt service to the World Bank and African Development Fund for eight low income countries that are not eligible for assistance under HIPC. We hope that other countries will soon also reach the standards of public financial management and commitment to poverty reduction necessary to receive this support.

Avoiding the re-accumulation of unsustainable debts is crucial. The UK supports debt management capacity building for countries. We are also working with the international community (including the international financial institutions, export credit agencies and emerging lenders) to ensure responsible new lending to poor countries. We support the World Bank and IMF's debt sustainability framework (DSF), and promote its use wherever possible. The DSF identifies countries that might struggle to repay loans, and these are offered grants, or a mixture of grants and loans, by the World Bank and African Development Bank.

Developing Countries: Forestry

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the extent of economic, social and environmental benefits of the traditional concession-based industrial logging model in developing countries. [133500]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has recently completed a study on 20 years of UK support to Ghana's forest sector. This study documents the lessons gained from experience in a single sector and how they can be applied more generally. It also assesses the social and economic aspects of Ghana's industrial forest development, and identifies rights-based approaches to making forestry work for poor people.

In the Democratic Republic of the Congo, DFID is funding the Roundtable Review, a study looking at alternative forest uses and innovative finance mechanisms for conservation and sustainable forest management (DRC). This study will look at the current benefits of logging in the DRC and seek alternative models that are more responsive to the needs of local people and the global environment.

DFID is funding the Rights and Resources Initiative along with other donors, research institutes and conservation organisations. This initiative focuses on pro-poor forest policy and tenure reform, including ways of increasing local ownership and access to forest resources. The Rights and Resources Initiative has produced a number of studies that assess the social and economic benefits of concession-based forest industry. More information about this initiative can be found at: www.rightsandresources.org.

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress is being made by the G8 in delivering universal access to HIV prevention treatment and care by 2010. [132872]

Mr. Thomas: The UK made AIDS a centrepiece of the 2005 G8 and EU presidencies. We pressed for and secured international commitments to universal access to HIV treatment. We subsequently worked hard to ensure that this commitment was endorsed and expanded by the international community in the Political Declaration adopted by the United Nations General Assembly High Level Meeting on AIDS (2 June 2006). This Declaration committed to achieve comprehensive HIV prevention programmes, treatment, care and support by 2010. It also agreed that countries would develop ambitious targets, including interim targets for 2008, to measure progress towards universal access. Crucially, it also set out a process by which countries will develop national AIDS plans to scale up towards universal access by 2010; and made the commitment that no credible, costed, national AIDS plan should go unfunded.

By early 2007, 90 countries had developed targets for achieving universal access, and at least 23 countries had proceeded with costing their strategic plans. The UK is pressing UNAIDS to define what constitutes a credible national AIDS plan. We are also pressing for a multi-stakeholder process in country to review universal access plans as they are developed, to agree their credibility and ensure they are fully funded.

We will push hard to ensure an ongoing focus by the G8 on achieving its commitment to universal access. We see our work with UNAIDS as central to unlocking the G8 and international community's commitment to funding credible, costed national AIDS plans. We will ensure that this work is discussed as we prepare for the G8 Heiligendamm summit in June.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress was made at the G8 meeting of Development Ministers on 26 and 27 March in Berlin on establishing a funding plan for the delivery of universal access to HIV prevention treatment and care; and if he will make a statement. [132873]

Mr. Thomas: At the Berlin meeting G8 Development Ministers reaffirmed their commitment to get as close as possible to universal access to HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment and care by 2010. They acknowledged that the price of some drugs remains prohibitive for many countries, and more needs to be done to help lower their cost including the use of TRIPS flexibilities to the fullest extent.

By early 2007, 90 countries had developed targets for achieving universal access, and at least 23 countries had proceeded with costing their strategic plans. The UK is pressing UNAIDS to define what constitutes a credible national AIDS plan. We are also pressing for a multi-stakeholder process in country to review universal access plans as they are developed, to agree their credibility and ensure they are fully funded.

We will push hard to ensure an ongoing focus by the G8 on achieving its commitment to universal access. We see our work with UNAIDS as central to unlocking the G8 and international community's commitment to funding credible, costed national AIDS plans. We will ensure that this work is discussed as we prepare for the G8 Heiligendamm summit in June.

Environmental Transformation Fund

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) if he will publish a detailed breakdown of the expenditure of the Environmental Transformation Fund; [133496]

(2) what measures his Department has in place to assess the effectiveness of the Environmental Transformation Fund; [133497]

(3) what measures his Department has in place to ensure the transparency and accountability of the Environmental Transformation Fund; and if he will make a statement. [133498]

Mr. Thomas: Expenditure from the Environmental Transformation Fund (ETF) will cover the three years of the comprehensive spending review period from April 2008. Apart from £50 million earmarked for the Congo basin, which was announced in the Budget, detailed breakdown of allocations have not yet been decided. It is expected that the allocation will be used to fund multilateral activities, such as the World Bank and Regional Development Banks' clean energy investment framework and other initiatives, as well as bilateral projects with countries. It will also be used for purposes such as adaptation, promotion of clean energy and tackling unsustainable deforestation.

Officials from DFID and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) are in discussions over appropriate governance arrangements for the ETF. These arrangements will include measures to assess effectiveness and ensure transparency and accountability.

Latin America: Overseas Aid

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Global Conflict Prevention Pool in Latin America. [132433]

Mr. Thomas: The Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) Latin America Strategy was established in late 2004 and a detailed evaluation will be undertaken later this year or early next year. A GCPP steering team consisting of officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), Ministry of Defence (MOD) and DFID hold regular meetings to monitor progress of the Strategy and decide changes with input from a Regional Conflict Adviser (RCA) who is based in Venezuela. Country analyses are regularly provided to the GCPP steering team by the RCA.

At project level, activities are monitored and evaluated by the RCA on a regular basis. Projects are designed to address individual needs in specific circumstances and therefore vary widely in scope and scale. Monitoring and evaluation is built in, and is undertaken against the objectives and projected outcomes. The positive impact of GCPP supported projects is being seen through these evaluations.

The Latin America conflict prevention strategy has at its heart the objective of resolving existing conflicts and preventing new conflicts from breaking out. In delivering this objective, evaluation shows that this has been successful. For example, working with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) a successful border management model has been developed around Colombia's borders to assure refugees' rights and to resolve and manage conflicts. In Colombia, GCPP support has contributed to the visible presence of community defenders in remote and vulnerable communities who have helped to reduce the risk of internal displacement of people by providing increased access to legal services.

Overseas Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what evaluations his Department has made of the effectiveness of technical assistance. [133494]

Mr. Thomas: In 2006 we published an independent evaluation of DFID-funded technical co-operation (technical assistance) for economic management in Sub-Saharan Africa. The study evaluated the technical assistance provided to the Governments of Ghana, Kenya, South Africa and Zambia over the period 1999-2004. We are currently considering further evaluation work on technical co-operation jointly with other donors.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to include significant participation from Southern country recipients in its forthcoming review of its technical assistance programmes. [133501]

Mr. Thomas: Technical cooperation or technical assistance is the provision of know-how to developing countries in the form of personnel, training, research and associated costs. DFID spends approximately 10 per cent. of bilateral official development assistance on technical cooperation. In 2008, DFID will review its provision of technical cooperation personnel, i.e. contracted specialists who share know-how and expertise with developing countries. The review will assess DFID's progress in implementing guidance for country offices written in June 2006.

DFID's long-term vision for technical assistance is that our partners in developing countries should lead in identifying needs for technical assistance, designing terms of reference, and contracting and managing consultants. DFID considers it important that Southern partners and recipients of technical assistance play a significant role in the review.

We are still at the early stages of planning the review so no decisions have yet been made. We are considering the following ideas to ensure Southern partners participate fully in the review:

the reviewers make some country visits to interview partner governments and recipients of technical assistance a small reference group of representatives of partner governments and recipients of technical assistance advise on the review one of the criteria for selecting consultants to carry out the review is that Southern-based consultants play a significant role.

DFID has agreed that the terms of reference for the review will be developed jointly with the UK Aid Network, a network of UK development NGOs including ActionAid, Christian Aid, Oxfam and WaterAid. We hope they will also contribute ideas on this.

While Southern partners' contributions are critical for the DFID review, internationally agreed aid effectiveness principles indicate donors should not make excessive demands on Southern partners' time. This is particularly so for individual donor initiatives. We need to use our partners' time wisely when inviting them to work on the DFID review.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of the bilateral aid budget was spent on technical assistance in each year since 2001. [133502]

Mr. Thomas: The proportion of the bilateral official development assistance (ODA) spent on technical co-operation is set out in the following table.

	Technical co-operation as a percentage of Bilateral ODA
2001	29.5
2002	25.0
2003	25.7
2004	14.1
2005	10.3
2006 (provisional)	10.8

Technical co-operation

Technical co-operation is the provision of know-how in the form of personnel, training, research and associated costs. It covers primarily:

Consultancies: the provision of assistance to recipient countries in the form of contracted specialists.

Knowledge and Research: grants for agreed programmes of research and development at UK and non-UK institutions which will be of benefit to assisted countries.

Training and Scholarships: the provision of assistance in the form of training for persons from aid recipient countries. The training may be provided in the UK, in the home country of the student, or in a third country. Training provided under the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan, the Shared Scholarship scheme and Training through Country programmes is managed directly by, or on behalf of, DFID. Increasingly training is also being provided by means of short in-country courses as part of, or in association with, country projects. This is not fully captured at present in the statistics on training. The costs of these activities are included within projects and programmes.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of technical assistance contracts were awarded to (a) UK firms, (b) Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development firms and (c) developing country firms in each of the last five years. [133503]

Mr. Thomas: Information on the percentage of Technical Assistance contacts which have been awarded in the above categories is not held centrally and to obtain these would incur disproportionate costs.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what guidelines exist on the process of bidding for technical assistance contracts; and what steps the Government is taking to ensure that the technical assistance procurement market is an open market. [133505]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) is committed to transparent, fair and open competition. All contracts above £93,738 are tendered through international competition in accordance with the EU Public Procurement directives and the code of good practice issued by the Office of Government Commerce. Full information on the bidding process is available on the DFID website at:

www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement

DFID's global business attracts interest from a wide range of experts, companies and institutions. In 2005-06 our headquarters engaged 338 different suppliers to provide goods and services to DFID and our development partners.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what international development assistance has been given by the Government to (a) Helmand Province and (b) the Government of Afghanistan's National Drugs Control strategy. [133397]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for International Development has allocated up to £30 million over three years to the Government of Afghanistan to support its Helmand Agricultural and Rural Development programme (HARDP). This programme is designed to extend the Government's National Priority programmes to Helmand, and will fund projects in the road-building, community development, micro-credit, water/sanitation and agriculture sectors. Since the programme started in January, over 1000 wells have been surveyed and designed. Of these, 120 wells have been completed, benefiting around 21,000 people and work is continuing on a further 30. A second batch of 150 wells will begin construction shortly. Construction has also started on four roads, totalling 51 km. These roads should be completed by May, security permitting. In 2006-07, the UK Government also committed £6.2 million to fund 128 quick impact projects. These have included improvements in flood defences; humanitarian assistance to drought victims and those who have had to flee their homes; refurbishment of 30 tractors and ploughs; permanent vehicle checkpoints to improve security; and improvements to two local markets.

The UK has committed £270 million to support counter narcotics activity in Afghanistan, including support for the National Drugs Control strategy. This includes £30 million for the Counter Narcotics Trust Fund, which was set up specifically to support the National Drugs Control strategy. The fund will bring counter narcotics funding on budget; give the Afghans greater ownership over this important agenda; and ensure that assistance is targeted as effectively as possible. In 2006-07, the Department for International Development also spent £33.7 million on programmes to strengthen and diversify legal rural livelihoods.

Colombia

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Colombian Government on the fulfilment of the Colombian Supreme Court decision of May 2002 on the reconstruction of the village of Tabaco. [133532]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials met with members of the Tabaco community in London on 30 January. Their concerns included claims of being forcibly displaced, lack of compensation and damage to the environment regarding the Cerrejon Mine. Since then we have made inquiries with Cerrejon both in London and Colombia.

Our embassy in Bogota has raised the communities' concerns with the office of the Vice President of the Government of Colombia. We will continue to raise with the Government of Colombia the importance we attach to adherence to socially responsible business practices by extractive companies around the world.

Colombia: Mining

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reason British embassy officials in Bogota will not meet representatives of communities forcibly displaced by coal mining expansion in the province of la Guajira. [133469]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Our embassy in Bogota, when responding to the meeting request my hon. Friend refers to, explained to the community representatives that it would be more helpful to await the Colombian Government's response before meeting with them. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials subsequently met representatives of communities from the la Guajira province on 30 January in London. They raised the issue of forced displacement. Since then we have made enquiries with Cerrejon in London and Colombia. Our embassy in Bogota has raised the issue with the Government of Colombia Vice President's Office.

Entry Clearances: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will estimate the number of fraudulent applications for visas in each of the last four years; and if she will make a statement. [132088]

Mr. McCartney: At present statistics are not available on refusals of visa applications made on the grounds of fraud. Individual visa issuing posts may keep such records but it would incur disproportionate cost to contact each post requesting these details.

Gibraltar: Children

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outstanding issues are between the British and Spanish Governments over the operation in Gibraltar of the 1996 Hague Convention on the international protection of children; and when she expects them to be resolved to the extent necessary to enable the Convention to be ratified by the EU. [133868]

Mr. Hoon: The outstanding issue blocking the ratification of the Hague Convention, and other mixed competence conventions, by the EU concerns the arrangements for communicating with competent authorities in Gibraltar which Spain has questioned.

Negotiations remain at an advanced stage and we continue to work closely with Spain to find a solution acceptable to all parties.

Given the nature of these negotiations, it is difficult to estimate a precise time-scale for their conclusion. I have agreed to notify Parliament when we are in a position to announce progress that will enable the ratification of the Convention.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the statement of 24 March 2007 by the Foreign Ministers of China, France, Germany, Russia, the UK and the US, with support of the High Representative of the European Union, whether additional talks between the EU High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy and Iranian nuclear negotiator Ali Larijani to discuss the Iranian nuclear programme have taken place. [132708]

Margaret Beckett: Dr. Javier Solana has spoken to Dr. Ali Larijani on a number of occasions to discuss the Iranian nuclear programme and we understand that they are due to meet in the week commencing 23 April. We hope that this channel of communication will remain open.

Iraq: Casualties

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British civilians have died in Iraq in violent circumstances since the beginning of March 2003. [132397]

Dr. Howells: Our consular records show that at least 59 British civilians have died in Iraq since March 2003. This number includes deaths from natural causes, but is not a definitive figure as records include only those cases where consular assistance has been sought. The figure does not include British dual nationals or unrepresented foreign nationals.

Iraq: Conferences

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the next round of the Iraq neighbours conference is expected to take place; and whom she expects to be representing the United Kingdom. [132707]

Margaret Beckett: With the assistance of the Government of Egypt, the Government of Iraq has decided to hold an Iraq Neighbours Conference in Sharm El-Sheikh, Egypt on 4 May. The Government of Iraq and the UN have also agreed to officially launch the International Compact on 3 May at the same venue.

I welcome these Iraqi initiatives and the opportunities for the international community to show its support to Iraq. I intend to represent the United Kingdom at both events.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the (a) Defence Secretary and (b) Home Secretary on a future resettlement program for those Iraqi citizens who (i) have been and (ii) are still working for the British Army deployed in Southern Iraq. [132735]

Margaret Beckett: Applications for assistance from Iraqis who work, or have worked for the Government in Iraq are dealt with on a case-by-case basis, taking account of their particular circumstances. Officials from the relevant Government Departments are engaged in ongoing discussions about how best we might be able to lend assistance to such individuals.

Iraq: Reconstruction

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding and resources she provided to the Property Claims Commission in Iraq in each year since 2001; and what funding she has allocated in each of the next three years. [132395]

Mr. McCartney: The UK has not provided or allocated funding to the Property Claims Commission in Iraq.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Property Claims Commission in Iraq. [132396]

Mr. McCartney: The Commission for Resolution of Real Property Disputes, formerly Iraq Property Claims Commission, carries out an important role in addressing the consequences of Saddam's enforced migration policies. Working under difficult circumstances, their annual report states that the total number of claims received by 31 December 2006 was 122,655 of which 24.54 per cent. of claims have been decided.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Darfur Peace Agreement; and if she will make a statement. [132299]

Mr. McCartney: The Darfur Peace Agreement marked an important milestone in the development of the political process for Darfur. It provided for a comprehensive and fully monitored ceasefire, reinforced by detailed measures on Security Sector Reform and Disengagement, Demobilisation and Reintegration, and on humanitarian protection. It provided for fair political representation for Darfur as part of Sudan. It also provided mechanisms for compensation and for fair and transparent redistribution of Sudanese national wealth to Darfur as part of the overall redistribution set out under the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. However, there was insufficient support among the parties to the conflict in Darfur to support the agreement. This is the main reason there has not been further progress in implementing it. We are pressing for a renewed political process under the auspices of the UN and African Union. I made clear our concerns over Darfur to the Sudanese Minister for Justice at a meeting held during the Human Rights Council on 13 March.

Thailand: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she (a) has made and (b) intends to make to her opposite number in Thailand on the conduct of elections scheduled for December in Thailand; and what international observers she expects to be present for the election campaign. [132704]

Mr. McCartney: We have consistently expressed to the Thai Government our wish to see democratic government re-established as swiftly as possible. I reiterated this when I met the Thai Foreign Minister at the EU-Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting in Nuremberg on 14-15 March. We will closely monitor the election process due to take place in December, though it is as yet unclear whether international monitors will be invited to observe the election.

Thailand: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects a referendum on a new constitution to be held in Thailand. [132562]

Mr. McCartney: As discussed during my meeting with the Thai Foreign Minister during the EU/Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting in Nuremberg on 14-15 March, we understand that a referendum is due to be held in autumn 2007.

United Nations Security Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK priorities and objectives are for its presidency of the United Nations Security Council. [132709]

Margaret Beckett: The principal priorities for the UK Presidency of the Security Council during April are:

to hold a thematic debate in the Security Council on Energy, Security and Climate to raise international consciousness of the implications of climate change for international security. I chaired the debate on 17 April and an unprecedented number of states took part;

to achieve agreement on increasing the pressure on Sudan to accept a UN/African Union hybrid force in Darfur. I chaired an informal Security Council discussion on Sudan on 16 April; and for the Security Council to consider positively Mr. Ahtisaari's proposals for Kosovo. A sustainable settlement for Kosovo is urgent.

My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Kim Howells, will chair a UN Security Council debate on the Middle East today.

Vietnam: Religious Freedom

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the extent of freedom of religion in Vietnam; what representations the United Kingdom is making to encourage religious pluralism in Vietnam; and if she will make a statement. [132563]

Mr. McCartney: We are concerned about the issue of religious freedom in Vietnam, but note that the situation has improved in recent years. In November 2004, the Vietnamese passed legislation which set out the terms under which religious groups may gain official recognition. However, implementation of the new rules has been variable between regions. Additionally, the Vietnamese Prime Minister discussed restrictions on religious freedom when he met His Holiness the Pope at the Vatican on 25 January.

With our EU partners, we regularly discuss human rights issues with the Vietnamese Government. The biannual EU-Vietnam Human Rights Dialogue, which was established in 2003, is the main forum for raising our concerns. The most recent dialogue was held on 20 December 2006. Freedom of religion, restrictions on religious organisations and the situation of ethnic minority Protestant groups were among the issues raised by the EU.

We are aware of reports of the continued harassment of some religious groups in some areas. We have urged the Vietnamese authorities to increase awareness and capacity among local authorities and to guarantee the right of all religious groups to practise their faith freely in the community through full implementation of the appropriate legislation and to adhere to its international human rights obligations.

We raised this issue at the recent bilateral with Vietnamese Vice-Minister Le Cung Phung during the EU/Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting in Nuremberg on 14-15 March.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Government Services

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment she has made of the use of Government services by each socio-economic group. [131977]

Hilary Armstrong: Each Government Department is responsible for regularly assessing the use of its own services by socio-economic group. However, on occasions where related to its cross-cutting role, the Cabinet Office carries out such assessments in particular policy areas. For example, recent work by the Strategy Unit with DFES looking at raising participation rates in higher education concluded that all social classes, including those from less well-off backgrounds, were more likely to participate when students obtained a level 3 qualification.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children in Custody

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children in custody were looked after by the state (a) under a court order and (b) under a voluntary care order (i) prior to and (ii) after conviction in each of the last five years. [111274]

Mr. Dhanda: We do not collect centrally information on the number of children in custody who were looked after by the state nor information on convictions. However we collect information on the number of children looked after by local authorities placed in young offender institutions or prison.

The following table provides the number of children looked after by local authorities placed in youth offender institution or prison (a) under care order legal statuses and youth justice legal statutes and (b) under a voluntary care order.

Table 1: Children looked after by local authorities placed in youth offender institution or prison at 31 March (a) under care order legal statuses and under youth justice legal statutes and (b) under a voluntary care order, 2002 to 2006 [1,2,3,4] England

	All children looked after by local authorities placed in youth offender institution or prison
Years [1,2]	All children looked after by local authorities placed in Youth Offender Institution or Prison [4]	Number who have care order legal statuses and under Youth justice legal statutes [5]	Number who have voluntary care order legal status [6]	Number who have other type of legal statuses [6,7]
2002	120	100	10	0
2003	110	110	—	—
2004	140	110	30	0
2005	110	100	20	0
2006	130	110	—	—

[1] Figures are derived from the SSDA903 return which in 2001-02 and 2002-03 covered one-third sample and which since 2003-04 covers all looked after children.
[2] To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, data at national level are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 to the nearest 10 otherwise. Figures between one and five inclusive have been suppressed and replaced by a hyphen"-". It has on occasion been necessary to suppress other data whenever it would be possible to calculate missing data by means of simple arithmetic. In these circumstances the second smallest number relating to the same variable is suppressed.
[3] Historical data may differ from older publications. In previous years, data in this table would have been extracted from CLA100. To be consistent with the method used throughout the statistical volume published on 29 March 2007, data are now taken from the SSDA903 throughout and the breakdowns may therefore differ from figures in previous publications.
[4] Figures exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements.
[5] This category includes the following legal statuses: interim care orders; full care orders; on remand, or committed for trial or sentence, and accommodated by LA; detained in LA accommodation under PACE; and sentenced to CYPA 1969 supervision order with residence requirement.
[6] This category includes the legal status of single period of accommodation under section 20.
[7] This category includes the following legal statuses: freeing order granted; placement order granted; accommodated under an agreed series of shorter-term breaks, when individual episodes of care are recorded and when agreements are recorded (i.e., not individual episodes of care); under police protection and in local authority accommodation; emergency protection order and; under child assessment order and in local authority accommodation.

Departments: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which bilateral agreements have been signed between the European Union and non-EU countries establishing co-operative projects in the areas of competence covered by his Department. [133077]

Bill Rammell: The following bilateral agreements have been signed between the European Union and non-EU countries establishing co-operative projects in the field of education and skills:

Agreements with the USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Japan

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132203]

Mr. Dhanda: The following guidance is issued by the Department to staff on the provision of alcohol.

There is a general principle that alcohol should not be provided at public expense and never when only civil servants are present.

Moderate amounts of alcohol can be provided at public expense when entertaining non-civil servants if not providing alcohol might be regarded as unusual or cause embarrassment. Examples of such events are hospitality from Ministers, at publicity events such as launches or the rare occasions when senior staff judge that official business can best be transacted by hosting a meeting over lunch or dinner.

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other Departments since May 2005. [133802]

Mr. Dhanda: Since May 2005 the Department has transferred two oral questions to other Departments.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by his Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130142]

Mr. Dhanda: Information about the political activity of appointees is recorded and publicised in accordance with the independent Commissioner for Public Appointments' code of practice. This shows that no former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 have since been appointed to public bodies sponsored by the Department.

Education: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) which (a) conferences, (b) seminars and (c) other events have been funded under bilateral EU-Australia funding for joint activities in higher education, training and youth; [133081]

(2) which (a) conferences, (b) seminars and (c) other events have been funded under bilateral EU-New Zealand funding for joint activities in higher education, training and youth. [133088]

Bill Rammell: This Department does not hold information on activities carried out under the EU's bilateral co-operation programmes which are funded and administered centrally by the European Commission.

Education: EC Grants and Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which UK educational establishments for which he is responsible are in receipt of EU funds. [133094]

Bill Rammell: There are well over 1,500 schools, Further Education colleges and Higher Education institutions in receipt of EU funds through programmes such as Socrates and Leonardo da Vinci. Information on individual establishments in receipt of these funds is not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what EU grants were made to UK educational establishments for which he is responsible in each of the last two years for which figures are available; and what the purpose was of each award. [133098]

Bill Rammell: Some UK educational establishments receive grants directly from the EU. This information is not maintained centrally by my Department. The following table shows the EU grants made to UK educational establishments for 2005 and 2006 from the former Socrates and Leonardo da Vinci programmes. The awards were made to fund eligible activities, as shown, within these programmes.

Purpose	2005	2006
Comenius (school) projects	8,920	10,238
Erasmus (higher education) placements	20,488	24,674
Grundtvig (adult learning) projects	n/a	373
Leonardo (vocational training) pilot projects	3,852	4,137
Leonardo (vocational training) mobility placements	2,936	7,166
Total	36,196	46,588

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which UK agencies are funded under Article 8(2) of the EU Youth in Action Programme. [133099]

Bill Rammell: No UK agencies receive funding under Article 8(2) of the EU Youth in Action Programme. However, the national agency responsible for the management of the programme in the UK has set up a number of regional committees to help in the promotion of the programme at a local level.

Educational Psychology

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the funding of training of educational psychologists. [133156]

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2006, Official Report, column 879W, on educational psychologists, what the outcomes were of the meeting with representatives of educational psychologists and the local authority employers' side on the funding arrangements for those wishing to train to become an educational psychologist; [133310]

(2) what assessment he has made of future (a) demand for and (b) supply of educational psychologists in local education authorities; and if he will make a statement. [133506]

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent discussions he has had with the Local Government Association on its distribution to local authorities of funding for educational psychology training places for 2007-08. [133390]

Mr. Dhanda: Educational psychologists are employed by local authorities. Decisions on their recruitment, retention and deployment are matters for those authorities as employers to determine in light of local circumstances and available resources. The Department makes no manpower planning assessment for this group of local authority employees.

Funding for the training of EPs has previously come from within the Local Government Employers' (LGE) organisation's top slice of the Revenue Support Grant (RSG), as distributed by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG). For the 2007-08 RSG settlement, the LGE top slice was reduced by £2.088 million and distributed by the DCLG to local authorities through formula grant, as proposed by the Local Government Association (LGA).

As we made clear in our response to the House of Commons Education and Skills Select Committee report on special educational needs (October 2006, Cm 6940), we do not believe that it would be appropriate for us to intervene in the funding arrangements for those wishing to become EPs. Local authorities, and their representative body the LGA, should determine these issues.

Lord Adonis, the Under-Secretary of State for Schools, met with representatives of the educational psychology profession and the local authority employers' side on 23 January 2007 for an update on the funding arrangements. As a result of those discussions, it was agreed that the Children's Workforce Development Council would help facilitate further discussions between the employers' side, in the form of the LGA, representatives of the EP professional interests, and training providers. We expect a report on those discussions shortly.

English Language

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on English for Speakers of Other Languages in each London borough in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [131006]

Bill Rammell: This information is collected by the national Learning and Skills Council (LSC). Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, has written to the hon. Lady with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

EU-Canada Joint Committee on Higher Education Training and Youth

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which (a) conferences, (b) seminars and (c) other events have been funded under bilateral EU-Canada funding for joint activities in Higher Education, Training and Youth. [133103]

Bill Rammell: This Department does not hold information on activities carried out under the EU's bilateral co-operation programmes which are funded and administered centrally by the European Commission.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the annual gross income for each further education college in England was in the latest year for which figures are available. [132571]

Bill Rammell: We have increased public investment in further education by 48 per cent. in real terms between 1997 and 2005. Adult education funding will increase by 7 per cent. between 2005-06 and 2007-08, with funding for young people increasing by 13 per cent. over the same period. This means that overall in 2007-08, through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) we will invest £11.2 billion, an increase of £716 million compared with 2006-07.

On the basis of information provided by the LSC, and taken from the colleges' own audited financial accounts, the gross income in 2005/06 for each further education college in England is shown in the table at Annex 1 which has been placed in the House Library.

Higher Education

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students in higher education completed degree studies in (a) soft furnishing and (b) cabinet making in each year between 1996 and 2006. [132694]

Bill Rammell: Information on the number of students completing degree studies in soft furnishing and cabinet making is not held centrally.

The Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) publishes figures on newly qualified graduates by subject. Figures are available for crafts including both soft furnishing and cabinet making and a number of other crafts but no specific figures for either soft furnishing or cabinet making are available.

Law: Students

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding support is available for students taking a legal practice degree course. [133485]

Bill Rammell: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer that I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Blackpool, South (Mr. Marsden) on 9 October 2006, Official Report, column 123W.

Nurseries: Non-domestic Rates

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the implications for nurseries of levying business rates on private nurseries but not maintained nurseries or those in state schools. [133851]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

All occupiers of non-domestic property, known as hereditaments, pay business rates as a way of contributing to a range of local services. Business rates are payable regardless of ownership and are based on the rateable value of the hereditament in question. The level of business rates payable by a ratepayer depends on the circumstances of the particular case. Depending on the facts, a building may for rating purposes constitute more than one hereditament. In such cases, the occupiers of those separate units would be liable for rates.

Rateable values are generally based on the assumed rent the property would attract if let on the open market on a specific date. These values are assessed by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), an independent agency of HM Revenue and Customs, in line with well-established rating principles and methodology. If ratepayers disagree with the rateable value of their property, they may challenge it by making an appeal to the VOA.

We are aware that the impact of business rates is greater on small businesses compared with larger concerns. The small business rate relief scheme that we introduced with effect from 1 April 2005 therefore provides up to 50 per cent. rate relief for eligible properties irrespective of the use to which the property is put.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make it his policy to equalise the levels of business rates for all nursery provision. [134067]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answers given today to parliamentary questions 133765, 133766 and 133851.

Personal Social and Health Education: UK Membership of EC

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his policy is on the inclusion of material promoting European citizenship in the European Communities Youth in Action programme; and if he will make a statement. [133075]

Bill Rammell: Promotion of European citizenship is a general objective of the Youth in Action Programme and is fulfilled by participants engaging in the programme's activities. In England, Citizenship Education has been a statutory subject in the secondary school curriculum since 2002. As part of Citizenship Education, pupils are expected to understand the United Kingdom's relations in Europe, including with the European Union.

Pre-school Education: Expenditure

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been spent on (a) School Action (b) School Action Plus, (c) Early Years Action and (d) Early Years Action Plus in each year since the schemes were introduced, broken down by local education authority. [132885]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Sight Impaired

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he last surveyed the availability of textbooks to blind or partially sighted children; and if he will make a statement. [133140]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not hold information on the availability of textbooks to particular groups of children. Part 4 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 requires schools and local authorities to plan to improve access to the curriculum and written materials for all disabled pupils, including those blind or partially sighted children over time.

With regard to the availability of text books and materials in electronic format for schools, I refer my hon. Friend to the reply that I gave on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 721W, to my hon. Friend the Member for West Ham (Lyn Brown).

Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children in West Lancashire with a special educational need were referred to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal in each of the last two years. [112225]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply.

The table gives the number of appeals against Lancashire local authority in the last two school years, and the number of children with special educational needs in the local authority's primary and secondary schools in the January of the relevant period.

Appeals concern children residing in the local authority, rather than pupils at the local authority's schools. It would therefore be misleading to express one figure as a proportion of the other.

Appeals are made against local education authority decisions and we do not collate appeals data at a more local level.

	Special educational needs appeals	Children with special educational needs
2005/06	63	26,866
2004/05	66	27,050

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills who is responsible for monitoring the performance and practices of the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal; and if he will place in the Library copies of monitoring reports. [132380]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply.

SENDIST has been part of the Tribunals Service, an Executive Agency of the DCA, since 1 April 2006. The chief executive of the Tribunals Service is, therefore, now responsible for the administration of the tribunal including its performance. SENDIST's president is an independently appointed judicial office holder and is responsible for the judicial aspects of the tribunal's work, including judicial decision making and training of the judiciary. Copies of SENDIST's most recent annual report for 2005-06 have been placed in the Library.

The Tribunals Service will be publishing its first annual report (covering 2006/07) shortly.

Students: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of the book value of the tranche of the student loan book to be sold he hopes to achieve in the planned sale that he announced in the Budget Statement 2007. [132896]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 April 2007]: We are at the early stages of implementing the Budget announcement to sell income-contingent student loans. Further details about the sale will be announced in due course. We are confident that the Government will obtain good value for money, as they are obliged to do by rules of Government accounting.

Students: Loans

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people have defaulted on the payments of their student loans; and what the cost of these defaults was in each of the last five years. [131302]

Bill Rammell: The number of borrowers in arrears with their student loan repayments at the end of each of the last five financial years is shown in the table. These borrowers represented some 7 per cent. of the total number of borrowers at April 2006.

The figures relate mainly to 'mortgage style' student loans which are no longer offered to new students. Since 1998, the Government have provided loans on an income contingent basis with repayments made through the tax system, so the issue of repayment arrears and default does not normally arise.

Number of UK student loan borrowers in arrears[1]

Thousand

	At the end of financial year
2001-02		2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06 (provisional)
Deferring with arrears[2]	29	27	22	15	12
In arrears owing less than two months repayments[3]	29	39	51	58	64
In arrears owing two months repayments or more	80	72	62	59	48

[1] All figures apply to publicly-owned student loans, and exclude those sold to the private sector. Being in arrears does not necessarily mean that the borrower is not currently repaying at some level.
[2] These borrowers are currently deferring repayments as their income is below the repayment threshold, but have some arrears from period when payments were due accounts.
[3] This includes borrowers awaiting approval to defer their repayments, with no repayment schedule in place or owing small amounts.

The Student Loans Company does not write off any amounts and continues to seek repayments of any arrears incurred.

Training: Expenditure

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1685W, how the percentage of the train to gain budget not accounted for by training and skills brokerage is spent. [133090]

Phil Hope: Train to gain is a new service aimed at supporting business improve their productivity through increased investment in the skills of their workforce. By the end of February 2007, more than 30,000 employers have engaged their workforce in training with more than 107,000 learners engaged on training activity. Almost 70 per cent. of these were employers that fell within the definition of hard to reach.

For 2006-07, the total budget for train to gain was £281 million of which a total of £269.5 million was allocated to training and brokerage. The remaining budget is allocated to marketing and communications, evaluation and administration. In 2007-08, the planned budget is £414.4 million, of which £397.4 million is planned for training and brokerage. The remainder will be allocated to marketing and communications, evaluation and administration.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Centrica: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will set a target timetable for dealing with all stages of the Calor Gas and Centrica appeal in respect of their proposal to install a liquid natural gas importation plant on Canvey Island. [132716]

Yvette Cooper: The appeal will be dealt with in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Inquiries Procedure) (England) Rules 2000. The Planning Inspectorate have advised the parties of the timetable that the rules apply to the submission of their documents and will aim to arrange a public local inquiry date within 22 weeks from the starting date for the appeal, 15 March 2007. Following the close of the inquiry a timetable will be set for the appeal to be determined, which will be notified to the parties.

Community Wardens

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the Government Office for the West Midlands to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North dated 12 March, on community wardens; why the letter was not acknowledged; and if she will take steps to ensure that correspondence to Government offices (a) is acknowledged and (b) receives a substantive reply within a reasonable period. [133138]

Mr. Woolas: A substantive response was sent on 18 April.

The Government office has a system in place to issue acknowledgements in respect of correspondence where a substantive reply is unlikely to be provided in 15 working days. Unfortunately, on this occasion this was not adhered to and I offer my hon. Friend sincere apologies for the inconvenience caused.

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many oral questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to her Department have been transferred to other Departments since May 2005. [133803]

Angela E. Smith: Since May 2005, the Department for Communities and Local Government (and its predecessor Department the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) has transferred nine oral questions to other Departments.

Energy: Conservation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans (a) to make proposals and (b) to provide incentives to improve the energy efficiency of district heating schemes. [124714]

Yvette Cooper: The decent homes standard is the major mechanism by which the Government are encouraging greater thermal and energy efficiency in social housing. The standard requires that homes have both efficient heating and effective insulation and this covers district heating systems.

The proposals in the consultation paper "Building a Greener Future" that all new homes will have to be zero carbon by 2016 could also drive the use of energy efficient district heating systems. This is supported by an incentive announced by the Chancellor in Budget 2007. The Chancellor announced a time-limited stamp duty exemption for zero carbon homes with all new zero carbon homes costing up to £500,000 paying no stamp duty.

Equal Opportunities: Adoption

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an adoption agency expressing a preference to place a child with (a) a black or Asian family, (b) a family of a specific faith and (c) a heterosexual couple would constitute discrimination under the Government's proposed equality legislation. [117924]

Meg Munn: An adoption agency (i.e. a local authority or a voluntary adoption agency) may assess a person as regards their suitability to adopt a child, but the decision on whether to place a child for adoption with particular prospective adopters is taken by the local authority adoption panel. The paramount consideration in any decision on whether to place a child for adoption with particular prospective adopters is the welfare of the child throughout his or her life, taking account of the child's religion, racial origin and cultural and linguistic background.

Housing: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) individuals and (b) families are in housing need in each local authority area in Hampshire; and what strategy she has for meeting this need. [131174]

Yvette Cooper: Communities and Local Government does not make estimates of housing need in each area, local authorities are required to assess housing need assessments as part of their strategic local housing market assessments.

Communities and Local Government has a variety of strategies for addressing housing need, including concentrating efforts and resources on homelessness prevention activities, increasing investment in the provision of new social housing and improving the stock of existing social housing through the Decent Homes programme.

Maps: Databases

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the cost was of developing the Maps on Tap database; [128444]

(2) what datasets are incorporated into her Department's Maps on Tap database; [128445]

(3) what (a) geospatial, (b) geo-demographic and (c) cadastral data her Department's Maps on Tap database holds; [128446]

(4) whether the Valuation Office Agency has access to her Department's Maps on Tap database. [128557]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Maps on Tap database at:

http://www.mapsontap.gov.uk

The Valuation Office Agency has access to the Maps on Tap database.

The cost of developing the Maps on Tap database was £3.03 million.

Non-domestic Rates: Children's Centres

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what level of business rates Sure Start children's centres pay when located within primary schools; [133765]

(2) what level of business rates is paid by (a) maintained and (b) private, voluntary and independent nurseries when located within a primary school. [133766]

Mr. Woolas: All occupiers of non-domestic property, known as hereditaments, pay business rates as a way of contributing to a range of local services. Business rates are payable regardless of ownership and are based on the rateable value of the hereditament in question. The level of business rates payable by a ratepayer depends on the circumstances of the particular case. Depending on the facts, a building may for rating purposes constitute more than one hereditament. In such cases, the occupiers of those separate units would be liable for rates.

Rateable values are generally based on the assumed rent the property would attract if let on the open market on a specific date. These values are assessed by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), an independent agency of HM Revenue and Customs, in line with well-established rating principles and methodology. If ratepayers disagree with the rateable value of their property, they may challenge it by making an appeal to the VOA.

We are aware that the impact of business rates is greater on small businesses compared with larger concerns. The small business rate relief scheme that we introduced with effect from 1 April 2005 therefore provides up to 50 per cent. rate relief for eligible properties irrespective of the use to which the property is put.

Parking: Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes Planning Policy Statement 3 has made to the number of car parking spaces allowed in new housing developments; what status Planning Policy Guidance Note 13 has in this context; and if she will make a statement. [129765]

Ruth Kelly: Planning Policy Statement 3: Housing gives local authorities the ability to set their own standards for density and car parking. PPS3 says that local authorities should, in partnership with their communities, develop residential parking policies for their areas, taking account of expected levels of car ownership, the importance of promoting good design and the need to use land efficiently.

PPS3 Annex A cancelled the guidance on residential parking in paragraphs 12-17 of Planning Policy Guidance note 13: Transport (PPG13) as the general principles of PPS3 supersede this section, by outlining the wider duty of local authorities to consider promoting sustainable transport choices and local circumstances when developing car parking policies.

Planning: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to her Department's observations of 22 February 2007 on the petition presented to the House on 26 April by the hon. Member for North-East Milton Keynes whether her statement that overall responsibility for planning policies and delivery in Milton Keynes remains with Milton Keynes council applies to all land within the boundary of the unitary authority. [126225]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 8 March 2007]: Milton Keynes council is responsible for all local planning policies i.e. development plan documents that apply within the boundary of the unitary authority. This includes those local planning policies which form part of the development plan for the purposes of section 38 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. The relevant planning policies within the Regional Spatial Strategy, in particular the Milton Keynes and South Midlands Sub-Regional Strategy, also forms part of the development plan for the Milton Keynes area.

Planning: Wind Power

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department is considering changing the guidelines for any planning policy relating to energy producing wind turbines in (a) national parks and (b) areas of outstanding natural beauty. [126691]

Yvette Cooper: We have recently consulted on a draft planning policy statement (PPS) "Planning and Climate Change". This sets out our proposals on how planning should contribute to reducing emissions and stabilising climate change. Planning is expected to make a full contribution to delivering the Government's Climate Change Programme and energy policies. This includes giving greater emphasis to local renewable sources for supplying the energy needs of new developments and looking favourably on proposals for renewable energy.

The draft PPS builds on our policies in PPS22 "Renewable Energy" which state that renewable energy developments should be capable of being accommodated throughout England in locations where the technology is viable and environmental, economic, and social impacts can be addressed satisfactorily. PPS22 sets out detailed considerations applicable to determining planning applications for renewable energy projects, including on sites in areas with nationally recognised designations such as those within national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. Planning permission for renewable energy projects on these sites can be granted where it is demonstrated that the objectives of designation of the area will not be compromised by the development, and any significant adverse effects on the qualities for which the area has been designated are clearly outweighed by the environmental, social and economic benefits.

Temporary Accommodation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the progress of the research commissioned by her Department into the experiences of homeless households in temporary accommodation. [133730]

Yvette Cooper: This research is expected to be published in the autumn this year.

The publication date reflects the need for detailed analysis to ensure that the findings reflect a full understanding of the data.

Written Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to question 126691, on guidelines for planning policy regulations, tabled by the hon. Member for Cotswold on 6 March 2007. [133886]

Yvette Cooper: I have now replied to question 126691.

HEALTH

Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she intends to take following the recommendation of the National Screening Committee, that a national screening policy should be implemented by her Department for abdominal aortic aneurysm. [133523]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The United Kingdom National Screening Committee (NSC) has advised that screening for men aged 65 for abdominal aortic aneurysms (AAA) can be recommended in principle subject to further work, particularly on the appropriate configuration of treatment services and the provision of men to make an informed choice about whether to undergo screening. The NSC considered further work undertaken by the AAA screening working group at its meeting in March 2007. More detailed work will now be undertaken on the practical issues that would be involved in implementation.

Acute Beds

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many delayed transfers of care from acute beds there have been in each NHS trust in the last 12 months; and what proportion of the total number of transfers of care from acute beds this represents in each trust. [131879]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Acute Beds: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many delayed discharges there were in acute hospitals in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in the last 12 months. [130968]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of patients with delayed transfer of care at East Sussex hospitals national health service trust is available in the following table:

Animal Feed

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what restrictions are in place to ensure that pet food manufacturers do not add unsuitable ingredients to pet food; why such restrictions do not extend to a ban on both sugar and salt; and if she will make a statement. [133757]

Caroline Flint: There is extensive legislation in place covering the composition of pet food, which is designed to protect the health of pet animals. This includes maximum permitted levels for various contaminants and only substances that have undergone an official assessment for safety, quality and efficacy can be used as additives in pet foods. It is also an offence to sell pet foods that are deleterious to pet animals.

It is not necessary to ban sugar and salt as the use of such ingredients is controlled by this legislation. A wide range of ingredients, including sugar and salt, are used in manufactured pet foods to satisfy the nutritional requirements of animals and for palatability and technological reasons.

Blood: Diseases

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's per capita spending on (a) sickle cell and (b) cystic fibrosis was in each of the last five years. [133492]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the per capita spending for treating those living with sickle cell disease and cystic fibrosis is not collected.

Carers: Grants

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether funding for the carers special support grant will continue to be made available to local authorities after March 2008; and if she will make a statement on the funding of carers services over the next five years. [133222]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Decisions about the future of the carers grant in the next spending review period will be taken later this year.

Cervical Cancer: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the Joint Committee on Vaccinations and Immunisations (JCVI) to make a recommendation as to whether a national immunisation programme for the human papilloma virus should be implemented; and on which dates the JCVI human papilloma virus subgroup (a) has met and (b) is expected to meet in 2007. [131863]

Caroline Flint: No decisions will be taken on introducing human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccines into the immunisation programme until the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) has presented its advice to Ministers for their consideration.

The JCVI is in the process of thoroughly examining the vaccine safety, efficacy and cost-effectiveness evidence concerning HPV vaccines. The work is being taken forward by a sub-group of JCVI, which met in May and September (2006) and in February 2007. Further meetings of the sub-group will be scheduled as required.

The sub group's advice will be reported to the main JCVI committee for their consideration.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether she has held discussions with the Department for Education and Skills on the possible implementation of a schools-based vaccination programme for human papilloma virus vaccine; [132824]

(2) whether her Department has made an assessment of what would be required to initiate a schools-based vaccination programme for human papilloma virus vaccines. [132826]

Caroline Flint: The Department is seeking advice on the new human papilloma virus vaccine from the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) which is an independent expert advisory committee. Ministers will consider advice from JCVI when it is forthcoming.

Schools-based vaccination programmes have been previously used; for example the Men C vaccination campaign started in 1999 and the measles-rubella catch-up campaign in 1994.

Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the current ratio is of (a) NHS dentists, (b) private dentists and (c) all dentists to people in England; and what it was in each year since 1997. [133199]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The numbers of national health service dentists per population in England are included in reports published by the Information Centre for health and social care. Most dentists eligible to provide NHS services also choose to provide some private treatment. Information is not held on the number of dentists who only provide private treatment.

Numbers of NHS dentists per population in England as at 31 March 1997 to 2006 are contained in Annex F of the 'NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006'. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements. This is available on-line at www.live.theic.precedenthost.co.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006

Numbers of NHS dentists per population in England as at 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006 are contained in Annex 3 of the 'NHS Dental Statistics for England Q3: 31 December 2006' report. This information is based on the new contractual arrangements and is not directly comparable with earlier information. This is available on-line at www.live.theic.precedenthost.co.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006

Both reports are available in Library.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of NHS dentists operating in (a) Coventry and (b) England. [133211]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Information Centre for health and social care publishes quarterly information on the number of dentists in England at strategic health authority and primary care trust level.

The latest information available is as at 31 December 2006. Numbers of dentists at this date and at 30 June and 30 September 2006 are contained in Section G of Annex 3 of the 'National Health Service Dental Statistics for England Q3:31 December 2006' report.

This report has been placed the House of Commons Library and is also available on-line at:

www./live.theic.precedenthost.co.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to ensure that people have access to an NHS dentist. [133213]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The dental reforms launched in April 2006 give local primary care trusts (PCTs) for the first time the responsibility for commissioning dental services to meet the needs of their local populations. Under the previous system, dentists could set up practice where they wished and choose how much or how little national health service work to provide. If a dentist stopped providing NHS services, the local NHS could do very little to secure replacement services. Under the reforms, PCTs have the resources to commission agreed levels of patient services from local dentists. If a dentist stops providing NHS services in the area, the money for that service now stays with the PCT and is used to commission services from other dentists. PCTs are increasingly using these new powers to commission additional services which better reflect local needs.

The reforms build on a programme of significant Government investment in NHS dental services and workforce expansion. The annual resources now allocated for NHS dentistry are some £400 million more than in 2003-04 (excluding the money for annual pay increases). In the two years leading up to the reforms, the Government co-ordinated a major recruitment programme, which resulted in the equivalent of over 1,450 whole time dentists joining the workforce. There are currently some 20,900 dentists on NHS contracts, around 1,500 more than two years ago and 4,000 more than in 1997. To support future growth, the Government also increased annual numbers of dental training places by 25 per cent. in 2005.

Dental Services: Finance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated for NHS dentistry in each of the last five years. [133212]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Primary care trusts (PCTs) assumed responsibility for local commissioning of primary care dentistry from 1 April 2006. The following table sets out the resources allocated to the national health service for commissioning dental services in 2006-07, including resources distributed via strategic health authorities to support dental vocational training. Total (gross) expenditure on NHS primary dental services also includes income raised from patient charges. The table includes the indicative assumptions made before the start of the year about gross budgets and patient charge income. A number of factors will affect the actual levels of gross expenditure and patient charge income, including the levels of dentistry commissioned by PCTs, the time needed for new dental services to be commissioned and come into operation, and changes in the mix of charge-paying and charge exempt patients treated.

Primary dental service resource allocation, England, 2006-07

	£ million
Net allocation	1,765
Indicative patient charge income	634
Indicative gross budget	2,398

PCTs did not receive full primary care dental allocations prior to 2006-07. The bulk of primary dental care was provided through the centrally funded general dental services (GDS). Under GDS, spending was largely demand-led, with dentists determining how much NHS work they carried out and claiming separate fees for each individual item of treatment. The following table sets out overall (gross) expenditure on NHS primary dental care in the four years from 2002-03 to 2005-06.

Gross expenditure on primary dental care (general dental services and personal dental service pilots), England

Financial year	£ million
2002-03	1,749
2003-04	1,815
2004-05	1,951
2005-06	2,205

Drugs: Prisons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding for the Integrated Drug Treatment System has been allocated to each prison in England and Wales. [130197]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 April 2007]: In 2006-07, the Department invested £12 million in the integrated drug treatment system (IDTS). This has paid for 45 prisons to implement the clinical element of IDTS. £7.8 million of this funding was allocated directly to these prisons.

For 2007-08, investment will increase to £12.7 million and 49 prisons will receive funding. We plan to allocate £11.1 million of this sum directly to these prisons.

In addition to this, the Home Office invested £5 million in 2006-07 for the psycho-social element of IDTS. This has been implemented in 17 of the 45 prisons. Of this sum, £3.5 million was allocated directly to these prisons. The amount of this investment for 2007-08 will increase to £6 million.

The amounts allocated directly to each prison are shown in the table. The remainder of this investment has been invested in the small building conversions and alternations necessary in these prisons to accommodate IDTS facilities, as well as in central programme costs, which include training, research and evaluation, clinical support and regional management support.

Family Practitioner Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress she has made in establishing an expanding practice allowance, as referred to in paragraph 3.33 of her Department's White Paper of 30 January 2006, "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say". [131932]

Andy Burnham: As we explained in paragraph 3.33 of "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say", we have asked NHS employers to consider the case for establishing an expanding practice allowance as part of the general practice contract framework. Progress on this has however been inhibited by the decision by the British Medical Association to withdraw from the negotiation about the contract framework for 2007-08.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1138W, on influenza, what estimate she has made of the total number of poultry workers in England who are eligible for receiving seasonal influenza vaccination under the relevant programme. [131881]

Caroline Flint: All premises that keep 50 or more birds of designated poultry species are required to register on the Great Britain Poultry Register (GBPR). As of 5 January 2007, there were around 17,000 such premises registered employing around 61,000 poultry workers.

Further information about the number of poultry workers eligible for receiving seasonal influenza vaccination is contained in the departmental guidance on the implementation of a seasonal flu vaccination programme for poultry workers available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Policyandguidance/Healthandsocialcaretopics/Flu/DH_063506

Maternity Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to reduce the negative effects on (a) babies, (b) parents and (c) the NHS associated with pre-term birth. [132258]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: "Maternity Matters: Choice, access and continuity of care in a safe service" published on 3 April sets out the Government's framework for services to provide safe, high quality maternity care. The priority for modern maternity services is to enable the whole pregnancy experience to be as safe and satisfying as possible for mother and baby and to support new parents to have a confident start to family life.

In line with the vision set out in the report of the Department's Expert Review Group on Neonatal Intensive Care, published in 2003, we have facilitated the development of 24 neonatal managed clinical networks to provide safe and effective services for mothers and babies. Since April 2003 over £70 million additional funding has been made available to support the development of these networks. This is in addition to the general increase in national health service funding, from which neonatal services can also benefit. Because of improvements in technology and the development of health care expertise, greater numbers of very small babies are being born alive and surviving. In the past many of these babies would have died just before or just after birth.

NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2007, Official Report, column 1748W, on NHS Direct, which organisations the NHS Direct NHS Trust pays for the provision of the NHS Direct service through Freeview; and how much she expects each such organisation to receive in the 2007-08 financial year. [131846]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the chief executive of the new NHS Direct NHS Trust.

NHS Treatment Centres

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she plans to publish the review of NHS walk-in centre funding arrangements. [131941]

Andy Burnham: We now expect to publish the report of the NHS walk-in centre funding review in early summer.

Nutrition

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of the Food Standards Agency's nutrient profiling model; and if she will make a statement. [131987]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency will review the effectiveness of the nutrient profiling model after one year of use.

Testosterone

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of waiting times for testosterone therapy. [132168]

Caroline Flint: The information is not collected centrally.

Tobacco Packs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 65W, on tobacco packs, when she plans to publish final proposals relating to the introduction of picture warnings on tobacco packs. [131900]

Caroline Flint: The Department is still finalising proposals for the introduction of picture warnings on tobacco packs. There is no date yet set to publish final proposals, but the Department expects this to be in the coming months.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Great Yarmouth of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1797W, on transplant surgery, if she will break down the figures for those awaiting organ transplant in each year since 1997 by the type of organ they are waiting to receive. [133053]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the numbers of patients listed (including those temporarily suspended) as at the end of each of the last 10 years.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

EC Law: Parliamentary Scrutiny

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House what plans he has to improve scrutiny of EU legislation. [133850]

Mr. Straw: This remains under consideration. I have recently discussed the matter with the chairman of the European Scrutiny Committee.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Waste Disposal

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what percentage of waste from the House of Commons Estate for (a) recycling and (b) incineration was exported for processing in each of the past three years. [120731]

Nick Harvey: The House's waste contractor has reported the following:

(a) Recycling:

Paper and cardboard

Once the paper and cardboard is processed, ideally it is all then sold to paper mills within the UK. However, because the re-sale market for this material varies so much on a daily basis, sometimes this material is exported to Europe and the Far East. It is not possible to establish the percentage of the House of Commons' paper and cardboard that is exported.

Glass, plastic and metals

The other main recyclable materials such as glass, plastic and metals are generally sold on to reprocessing plants based within the UK.

Soil and hardcore waste is handled and reused within the UK.

(b) Incineration:

None of the waste for incineration is exported. It is all sent to the contractor's Energy from Waste Plant in North London.

WALES

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Office was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134050]

Mr. Hain: In the last three years the Wales Office has used 100 per cent. recycled paper for photocopying and printing, and the paper used in our publications for the last three years has been at least 75 per cent. recycled.

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many days he spent in Wales on official business in each of the last 12 months; and on how many occasions he stayed overnight. [133620]

Mr. Hain: In the last 12 months I have spent 67 days in Wales in my capacity as Secretary of State for Wales.

In addition to the time spent in Wales, the Under-Secretary of State and I undertake Wales business in Parliament and in the Wales Office at Gwydyr House in London.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Nepal

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions he has had with (a) Virgin Airlines, (b) British Airways and (c) other carriers on the possibility of direct flights from the UK to Nepal; [133565]

(2) what representations he has received on the desirability of direct flights between the UK and Nepal. [133564]

Gillian Merron: Ministers and officials meet regularly with UK airlines to discuss their future plans for all parts of the world. No specific representations relating to air services to Nepal have been made in any recent discussions with airlines or other bodies. It is a matter for airlines to decide which destinations they wish to serve.

Crossrail Line

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his timetable is for making a decision on the Crossrail project in London. [126866]

Mr. Tom Harris: Crossrail funding and financing issues will be considered further in the context of Sir Michael Lyons' recommendations and wider spending pressures and priorities. However, the affordability challenge represented by the scheme remains significant.

Highways Agency: Vehicles

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the Highways Agency uses four wheel drive vehicles for motorway patrols. [133885]

Dr. Ladyman: The Traffic Officer Service is a 24 hour-365 day operation covering all the motorways in England and certain key interlinking trunk roads. Given the nature of the service it is essential that the vehicles which are provided for patrol activities are able to safely operate in adverse weather conditions such as snow and slippery surfaces, hence four wheel drive is considered to be essential. This drive provision also enables the vehicles to be used for certain carriageway clearance operations. There is also a further requirement for a high payload in order to carry the crew, essential kit and, where appropriate, passengers, which means that only vehicles of a particular size can safely be used.

M1

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to reduce congestion on the southbound carriageway of the M1 motorway caused by queuing vehicles seeking to exit at junction 19; if he will consider widening the road at this point to create an extra lane; and if he will make a statement. [133932]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is aware of queuing on the M1 southbound approach to junction 19. A major improvement scheme is programmed which will increase capacity and improve flow at this junction. One of the anticipated benefits will be to eliminate the queuing problem. Preparatory work is in progress and, subject to statutory processes being completed, work on site is expected to begin in February 2009.

As an interim measure advance warning signs have been installed for safety reasons. There are no plans to widen this section of the M1.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many prosecutions were brought against the keepers of foreign registered vehicles for failing to re-register their vehicle details with the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency after six months in each of the last five years. [132948]

Dr. Ladyman: There is no current legislation available to the Agency, which allows for the prosecution of keepers of foreign vehicles who have failed to register their vehicles within the required timescales.

However, if the Agency receives a report recording the sighting of an unlicensed vehicle on the road, the Agency is able to prosecute under the legislation provided by Section 29 VERA. There are practical difficulties with this and unless a name and address of the keeper of the foreign vehicle is provided the Agency is unable to pursue these cases. The Agency is able to utilise other enforcement action such as the wheel clamping and impounding of a vehicle. Vehicle keepers are required to provide evidence of registration in the UK and licensing before the release of the vehicle. The number of prosecutions of foreign vehicles under this legislation in each of the last five years is not collated.

Motorcycles: Licensing

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1853W, on motorcycles: licensing, what the location will be of each of the off-road motorcycle test facilities that will be available for use at the date of the implementation of the off-road manoeuvre aspects of the European Second Driving Licence Directive; and if he will make a statement. [133882]

Dr. Ladyman: The following lists the 67 search areas identified by the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) for possible locations of off-road motorcycle test facilities (ORMTF). The list also indicates the 20 acquired before the end of March 2007.

It is not possible to confirm which of the remaining 47 sites will be operational by October 2008. This is because acquisition and construction are subject to market availability, planning consent, brownfield remediation, and other factors outside DSA's control.

We are confident that, by the implementation date of October 2008, most customers will be able to reach an MPTC within 45 minutes, travelling no more than 20 miles. DSA will also reach the current target of 40 per cent. of customers being within 20 miles or 45 minutes of an ORMTF by March 2008.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children were in working and non-working households (a) below 60 per cent. of median income, (b) in the bottom 20 per cent. of the income distribution and (c) the bottom 30 per cent. of the income distribution in each year since 1994-95. [133943]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following tables.

At present, we are unable to provide data for 2005-06 as the Households Below Average Income 2005-06 release is currently being revised. The new release will be available from mid-May.

The Secretary of State made a written statement to Parliament on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 20WS on why the statistics are being revised.

(a) Number of children (millions) living in households below 60 per cent. of median income: by working/non-working households: before housing costs

Children: Maintenance

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Child Support Agency uses local authority certificated bailiffs for the collection of arrears of child support payments. [130862]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Gentleman with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 26 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Child Support Agency uses local authority certificated bailiffs for the collection of arrears of child support payments. [130862]

The Agency's bailiffs are appointed by the county court, not the local authority. As such, the bailiffs used by the Agency are county court certificated, rather than local authority certificated.

Certificated bailiffs are granted a certificate by a County Court judge which allows them to levy distress for rent. To obtain a certificate, the applicant must satisfy the judge that he is a fit and proper person to hold a certificate, that he has sufficient knowledge of the law of distress, and that he is not in the business of buying debts.

Further information concerning the certification of bailiffs can be found on the Department for Constitutional Affairs website at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/enforcement/enfrev01/repac/htm.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what action he is taking to speed up execution of arrest warrants in cases of persistent failure to pay child support; [123984]

(2) what the target time is for the period between the issuance and execution of arrest warrants in cases of persistent failure to pay child support; and what the average time was in the last period for which figures are available. [124015]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 26 April 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary for Work and Pensions, what action he is taking to speed up execution of arrest warrants in cases of persistent failure to pay child support. [123984]

and;

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the target time is for the period between the issuance and execution of arrest warrants in cases of persistent failure to pay child support; and what the average time was in the last period for which figures are available. [124015]

The priority for execution of child support warrants is set by each Magistrates' court who will arrange for the execution of warrants through either their own civilian enforcement officers or the Police. The Agency cannot set a target for the executions of warrants.

The Agency is working with the Office for Criminal Reform and the Department of Constitutional Affairs on an ongoing basis to improve the current time taken to execute arrest warrants.

The current management information system cannot provide the average period between the issuance and execution of warrants. As at the end of January 2007 the Agency had 278 outstanding warrants in England and Wales. The average period for which these have been outstanding is approximately 50 weeks.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Community Care Grant

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received a community care grant in each of the last three years; and how many (a) were disabled and (b) were receiving disability living allowance. [116523]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 18 January 2007]: The available information is in the following table.

Number of people who received community care grant awards in Great Britain

	2004-05	2005-06
All	261,000	273,000
Disabled	94,000	96,000

Notes:
1. A community care grant award is recorded as being made in a given year if the final decision on the application (including any review(s)) was made in that year.
2. Some people in each category received more than one community care grant award in a year.
3. The disabled category does not include pensioners who are disabled or unemployed people who are disabled.
4. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 1,000.
5. Figures are based on an analysis of all community care grant decisions held on the social fund computer system at the end of September following each year.

Departments: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of his Department's staff are located in Eastbourne. [130930]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions currently employs 99 staff (equating to 84.9 full-time equivalent posts) in Eastbourne.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132189]

Mrs. McGuire: Any expenditure on alcohol for hospitality purposes is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Accordingly alcohol is provided only as an exception and only with the specific written authority of a small number of designated senior civil servants.

Deprived Areas Fund

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what deprived areas fund allocations his Department (a) made in 2006-07 and (b) plans to make in 2007-08, broken down by district; and if he will make a statement; [129634]

(2) how much of the deprived areas funds allocated by his Department in 2006-07 have been spent, broken down by district; and if he will make a statement. [129635]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 23 March 2007]: Information on the Deprived Areas Fund allocation by district for 2006/07 and 2007/08 is in the table.

Information on spend from the fund is only available for one district; Forth Valley, Fife and Tayside. It has recorded a spend of £17,640 to the end of February. Information on spend by other districts will be available later in the year as part of their regular reporting process.

Any unspent allocation for 2006-07 will be carried over to 2007-08.

Notes:
1. Districts recorded as having a zero Deprived Areas Fund (DAF) allocation for 2007/08 are in City Strategy areas. In these areas, DAF money will be allocated to City Strategy consortia.
2. In the Marches district, only one ward qualified for DAF allocation in 2006/07. As this was a very modest amount, a decision was taken to carry it forward to 2007/08 and include it in the City Strategy consortia allocation.

Employment: Discrimination

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of the implementation of the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 on company benefits available to retired employees; and if he will make a statement. [131993]

James Purnell: The Employment Equality (Age) Regulations implement the age strand of Directive 2000/78 EC establishing a framework for equal treatment in employment and vocational training. This requirement makes it unlawful for pension schemes to discriminate against members or prospective members of a pension scheme and was introduced in December 2006.

In the last few months, companies have been reviewing their occupational pension schemes in compliance with these regulations. The Government's aim has been to ensure that occupational pension provision will not be jeopardised by this legislation, but it is still too early to assess the effect in practice of these regulations.

Jobcentres: Norfolk

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what associated services are offered by (a) Swaffham and (b) Downham Market Jobcentre Plus branches; and what plans have been made for their continued provision if these Jobcentre Plus branches are closed; [126238]

(2) what assessment he has made of the financial savings that would be achieved as a result of the closure of the Swaffham and Downham Market Jobcentre Plus branches; [126248]

(3) what alternatives have been considered to closing Jobcentre Plus branches at Swaffham and Downham Market. [126253]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 26 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about the closure of Swaffham and Downham Market Jobcentres. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

You are already aware that we are currently consulting on the closure of both these sites, and no decision will be made on the closure of either Swaffham or Downham Market until the consultation is complete.

Both these offices currently deliver the full range of Jobcentre Plus services including Fortnightly Jobsearch Reviews for customers in receipt of Jobseekers Allowance. The only exception to this is when customers require New Jobseeker interviews; these are delivered from Dereham for Swaffham customers, and Kings Lynn for Downham Market customers.

Both Jobcentres also provide Jobsearch facilities through our Job Point technology. Additionally customers can access these services via the internet and our Contact Centre Jobseekers Direct Service.

If closure of these Jobcentres does go ahead, we intend to provide all advisory and Fortnightly Jobsearch Reviews in other locations. For Downham Market customers this would usually be at Kings Lynn, unless transport links make it easier for them to travel elsewhere. The majority of Swaffham customers would use Dereham Jobcentre, again unless transport links make it easier for them to travel to another Jobcentre. However we will also consider the provision of alternative ways for customers to access our services.

As part of the consultation we are already considering how we could provide these alternative services. In Downham Market we have opened discussion with the Local Authority regarding the feasibility of delivering Fortnightly Jobsearch Reviews from existing Local Authority premises. We have not yet been able to identify similar opportunities in Swaffham but are continuing discussions with our partners.

In addition to these specific proposals we will ensure that our Internet access and Contact Centre Jobsearch facilities are marketed to our customers. We are also looking at the feasibility of locating some of our Job Points in partner premises.

The financial savings that could be realised if these sites are closed would depend upon the potential alternative services provided.

I hope this is helpful.

New Deal

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many New Deal training providers have had their contracts terminated; and for what reason in each case; [111227]

(2) what action has been taken against providers of ineffective training on the New Deal programmes. [111228]

Mr. Jim Murphy: New contracts for the delivery of New Deal programmes commenced in May 2006 in Scotland, and in July 2006 in England and Wales. None of those contracts has to date been terminated. Information on whether any New Deal training providers had their contracts terminated between January 1998, when New Deal started, and April 2006, could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

One New Deal prime contract in Jobcentre Plus's South Tyne and Wear Valley District will end by mutual agreement in October 2007. This is because Jobcentre Plus has concluded that the arrangements in place do not deliver the outcomes and quality service expected for customers. Alternative arrangements are being established.

Ineffective providers are dealt with through Department for Work and Pensions contract management processes. In the first instance, a performance improvement plan is agreed with the contractor. If performance fails to improve within a reasonable timescale, a formal breach notice is issued to the contractor. If contract delivery continues to fall below the required standard, the contract is terminated.

Social Security Benefits: Mentally Ill

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 898W, on mental health, what MIND's conclusions on quality assurance for the Condition or Disability training product were; and if he will make a statement. [124739]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 26 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question pursuant to the answer of 15th January 2007, Official Report, column 898W, on mental health asking what was MIND's conclusions on quality assurance for the Condition or Disability training product. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus works with a range of partners including MIND in the development of training materials to support the implementation of the Jobcentre Plus Incapacity Benefit Adviser role. The 'Working with Customers with a Health Condition or Disability' training product was developed for staff and sent to MIND for their quality assurance prior to release. On this occasion MIND did not provide any comments or suggestions to the development of this product, however Mencap did respond and we took their comments into consideration.

I hope this is helpful.

Social Security Benefits: Widowed People

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were in receipt of widowed parent's allowance in each of the last 10 years, in each local authority area. [132172]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Unemployment: Households

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of households of working age adults with no one in work in each year since 1977-78; what projection he has made of that percentage in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [123595]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Labour Force Survey data used to answer this question are only available from 1992. The latest available data are for 2006. There is no information available on the projected percentage of households of working age adults with no one in work for 2007-08.

The available information is in the following table.

Percentage of households of working age adults with no one in work in Great Britain from 1992-2006

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Subsidies

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on her plans to reform or phase out the housing subsidy system for council housing. [129218]

Yvette Cooper: Housing revenue account (HRA) subsidy is based on a notional measure of authorities' income (which is mainly rents) and expenditure. If need to spend is assumed to be greater than assumed income, then the authority is assumed to have a deficit and HRA subsidy is paid to the authority to make up that shortfall. If the assumed income is greater than the assumed need to spend, this negative subsidy is captured, recycled within the HRA subsidy system and used to help pay for the subsidy entitlement of the deficit authorities. Even with this recycling, in the most recent year for which audited data are available (2005-06), the Exchequer still made an annual contribution of over £200 million.

Surpluses (and deficits) are not related to the efficiency of a council in operating its HRA. Surpluses rarely, if ever, occur where the need to spend is greatest; if we were to allow those authorities that make surpluses to retain them this would, within the total funding levels agreed, mean reduced subsidies and therefore higher rents, for all those authorities with a deficit. The alternative would be higher taxes or cuts in services. We also need to recognise that the surpluses that are being generated by some authorities come from housing that has largely been funded by central Government.

The Department is currently working with a group of local authorities to investigate the potential benefits, in terms of asset management, efficiency and better outcomes, of allowing some councils to leave the subsidy system. Self financing would involve a one-off settlement to replace future subsidy or surplus payments. As such, it would not be a means for surplus authorities simply to retain a larger share of overall housing resources.

Departments: Publicity

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Department's total spending and that of its predecessors was on advertising and promotional campaigns in each year since 1997; and what the cost of each campaign was, broken down by costs relating to (a) television, (b) radio and (c) print media. [128040]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was established on 5 May 2006. The campaigns run since then are as follows:

The Fire Safety campaign

This was aimed at reducing the number deaths and serious injuries caused by domestic fires. The media spend is as follows:

Television	1,200,000
Radio	99,000
Print	118,622
Online	183,000

Home Information Packs campaign.

The aim of the campaign is to inform the industry and those in the market of the introduction of Home Information Packs and to encourage take up. The media spend is as follows:

Radio	360,000
Print	1,862,000
Online	561,000

Tenancy Deposit campaign

Aimed at alerting landlords and tenants of their new obligations under the law. The media spend is as follows:

Radio	270,000
Print	233,000
Online	70,000
Other	50,000

Fire Order Reform campaign

Aimed at small and medium sized business to alert them to their obligations under the new fire order reform regulations. The media spend was as follows:

Connect to your council - Take-Up campaign.

The campaign is aimed at encouraging individuals to use the online services provided by local authorities. The media spend is as follows:

Phase 1 May 2006 to end June 2006

Television	n/a
Radio	602,000
Print media	1,034,00

Phase 2 September 2006 to end October 2006

Television	n/a
Radio	544,000
Print media	230,000

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff she expects to be transferred from existing fire control centres to the regional fire control centres; what consultation she has held with staff and unions about Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) transfer; and what arrangements she plans to make for staff unable to transfer to the new regional fire control centres. [131227]

Angela E. Smith: The number of staff transferring from existing control rooms will not be known until the local authority controlled companies have formulated proposals on staff numbers and structure, and criteria have been developed that define the circumstances under which it would be unreasonable for staff to transfer.

The Department has published guidance on a wide range of issues relating to the transfer and many informal discussions with staff have been held. Formal consultation is a matter for the current employers and the regional control centre companies. For staff who are unlikely to be able to transfer, fire and rescue authorities have been encouraged to find alternative jobs, and where appropriate, to provide retraining. Costs of redeployment and retraining will be borne by the Department, within reason. The Department seeks to avoid compulsory redundancies where possible.

Government Office for London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1144W, on the Government Office for London, for what reasons the information requested is not held centrally; and if she will consider the case for holding such information. [132499]

Angela E. Smith: It is not a valuable use of resources to record centrally all the items of business referred to in the earlier question. Since 2002 Government Office for London (GOL) has had a central database which records draft replies produced for Ministers in all sponsoring Departments in response to hon. Members' letters. This database shows that GOL has dealt with the following number of Ministerial correspondence cases each year since 2002:

	Number
2002-03	503
2003-04	461
2004-05	708
2005-06	325
2006-07	327

There are no plans to record centrally GOL's direct correspondence with members of the public.

HomeBuy Scheme

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications have been made for the (a) Open Market HomeBuy, (b) Social HomeBuy and (c) New Build HomeBuy schemes; and how many have been (i) accepted and (ii) refused in each case. [133815]

Yvette Cooper: Between April 2006 and February 2007 there were 19,268 applications for Open Market HomeBuy, of which 10,580 have been approved so far by HomeBuy agents. Only a small number are rejected—the majority of those not approved will be still going through the application process. Of those applications approved, 716 were subsequently cancelled. This can be a result of applicants formally withdrawing from the scheme or, for example, detailed financial checks revealing county court judgments. In addition a large number of approved applicants will simply not pursue their application, without formally withdrawing it.

Between April 2006 and February 2007 there were 73,556 applications for New Build HomeBuy of which 54,624 have been approved by HomeBuy Agents. Only a small number are rejected—the majority of those not approved will be still going through the application process. Information on cancelled approvals is not held for New Build HomeBuy because the applicants buy through a large number of housing association providers, and mortgages are available from all lenders.

A large number of applicants will initially apply for both Open Market and New Build HomeBuy and will therefore feature in both figures.

Between April 2006 and February 2007, 534 applicants were received by RSLs for Social HomeBuy pilots. Information on applications declined for Social HomeBuy is not recorded on a monthly basis, but will be examined as part of an extensive monitoring exercise to be undertaken on the programme later this year.

In the LA sector, between July 2006 and March 2007, 96 applications were received, of which 37 were refused.

Housing: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households in (a) Hartlepool constituency, (b) Tees Valley sub-region and (c) North East Region are part of a Shared Home Ownership scheme. [131366]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the number of new homes provided on shared ownership terms through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing programme (AHP) and local authority social housing grant (LASHG) in Hartlepool, Tees Valley and North East Region for 2002-03 to 2005-06 and planned 2007-08. We do not hold figures for the numbers of households currently in shared ownership. Information is not available at constituency level.

Local Government

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice and guidance she has circulated to local authority chief executives on how they should conduct themselves in respect of their public statements when contentious restructuring proposals are under debate; and if she will make a statement. [134089]

Mr. Woolas: Within the statutory framework, including the requirements under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 restricting certain officers' party political activities, the conduct of chief executives is a matter for them and their councils.

Officials wrote to all chief executives in areas affected by the 16 unitary proposals under consultation, drawing their attention to the "Code of Recommended Practice on Local Authority Publicity". The code makes it clear that local authorities should not at any time use public funds to mount publicity campaigns whose primary purpose is to persuade the public to hold a particular view on a question of policy, and that authorities must take particular care when publicity is issued immediately prior to an election.

Local Government Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 16 February 2006, Official Report, column 2239W, on local government finance, in which years since 1997 the Government were required to make up a shortfall on local authority housing revenue accounts between total rental income and the sources of expenditure to which the answer refers. [133352]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The Housing Revenue Subsidy System has received a net contribution from the Exchequer in each financial year since 2001-02, when the Major Repairs Allowance was introduced to help councils do more to repair and refurbish council homes.

The net subsidy position for each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06 (the last year for which we have audited figures) is given in the following table, negative figures represent net surpluses for that year and positive figures show net deficits, which were paid by the Exchequer.

	£ Net housing element
1997-98	-668,307,497
1998-99	-869,992,311
1999-2000	-1,040,869,030
2000-01	-1,116,331,437
2001-02	351,105,009
2002-03	252,059,142
2003-04	191,153,240
2004-05	78,877,384
2005-06	229,558,982

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's allocation was for local authorities' allowances for management, maintenance and major repairs in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; what they are projected to be in 2007-08; and what the total (i) service debt charges and (ii) rental income paid to local authorities were in each year. [133360]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Details of management, maintenance and major repairs allowances are given in the following table:

Status	Financial year	Management allowance	Maintenance allowance	£ Major repairs allowance
Audited	2005-06	1,168,254,149	2,052,043,828	1,357,380,814
Provisional	2006-07	1,207,333,911	2,119,654,860	1,313,506,485
Estimated	2007-08	1,253,322,310	2,203,103,351	1,351,978,810

Data on actual rental income and expenditure on debt charges are only available for 2005-06 as these are dependent upon audited returns from local authorities and are shown as follows.

	Amount (£)
Debt charges	3,013,330,952
Rental income from dwellings	6,019,037,529
Other rental income	189,132,296

Audited returns for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are not due until December 2007 and December 2008 respectively.

Natural Gas: Pipelines

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to reduce the length of time taken to commission the construction of gas infrastructure projects following initial planning application prior to the implementation of the measures expected in the Planning White Paper. [133475]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the reply recently given to him by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on 24 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1073-74.

The time taken to commission gas infrastructure projects following the initial planning application can be affected by a range of factors—including commercial or technical issues which are for developers themselves to resolve.

The Government have implemented measures to avoid unnecessary delays at the planning application stage in dealing with major infrastructure projects under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. These could, depending on individual circumstances, include gas infrastructure projects. Section 44 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 inserted new sections 76A and 76B into the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to allow the Secretary of State to designate a planning application a major infrastructure project if she thinks it is of national or regional importance. If such is done, the application would be processed via special procedures which are aimed at speeding up the decision making process.

The forthcoming Planning White Paper, to be published this spring, will set out proposals for reforming the consent regime for major infrastructure projects, including major energy projects.

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the length of time taken for (a) planning decisions and (b) other stages of gas infrastructure projects following initial planning applications. [133533]

Yvette Cooper: Since the beginning of the year, the Department has received a parliamentary question about delays in decision making following planning inquiries for gas storage infrastructure and one about the steps being taken to ensure the timely delivery of gas infrastructure projects.

Delays in decision making in these cases can often be attributed to their extremely unusual, technical and complex nature. But the Government are committed to streamlining and simplifying the regulatory regime for approving infrastructure projects, and proposals for doing so will be contained in the forthcoming Planning White Paper, to be published in the spring.

Owner Occupation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the level of owner occupation is in each constituency. [132249]

Yvette Cooper: Levels of owner occupation by constituency, derived from the 2001 Census, are contained in a House of Commons Research Paper 04/01 entitled "2001 Census of Population: Statistics for Parliamentary Constituencies", published 30 January 2004.

Planning Permission: Brighton and Hove Albion Football Club

David Lepper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the impact on Brighton and Hove Albion Football Club of further delays in announcing a decision on its planning application for a community stadium at Falmer; and what the latest date is by which a decision on the matter will be announced. [132905]

Meg Munn: Following the quashing of the original decision on this case in the High Court, representations were sought on a range of issues from interested parties. A number of those representations address the impact on the football club of the lack of a final decision.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State set out her target for making a final decision on this case in her letter of 2 March. That date is 9 July, and there are no plans to amend that date.

Recycling: Birmingham

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the best value performance indicators were for kerbside collection of recyclables for Birmingham for each year since 2004-05; whether the authority is on target to comply with provisions in the Household Waste Recycling Act 2003; and what the figures are for (a) other Metropolitan authorities and (b) the best performing local authorities. [133022]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The best value performance indicator (BVPI) for kerbside collection of recyclables was measured by BVPI 91 in 2004-05. In that year, Birmingham city council reported that 80.6 per cent of its household residents were served by a kerbside recycling collection.

BVPI 91 was revised in 2005-06 to BVPI 91 a and BVPI 91 b, which measure the percentage of household residents served by kerbside recycling collection of (a) one or more recyclables and (b) at least two recyclables.

In 2005-6, Birmingham city council reported that 90.0 per cent. of its household residents were served by kerbside recycling collection of one or more recyclables. 12.2 per cent. were served by collection of two or more recyclables.

Results for BVPI 91 a and BVPI 91 b for 2005-06 for all Metropolitan districts with collection responsibilities are in the following table:

Metropolitan District	BV 91 a	BV 91 b
Barnsley	98.0	98.0
Birmingham	90.0	12.2
Bolton	96.9	96.9
Bradford	100.0	52.0
Bury	98.0	67.3
Calderdale	95.4	95.0
Coventry	84.2	71.0
Doncaster	98.8	98.8
Dudley	88.0	88.0

Metropolitan District	BV 91 a	BV 91 b
Gateshead	94.5	94.3
Kirklees	88.7	88.7
Knowsley	95.8	95.8
Leeds	90.1	90.1
Liverpool	91.8	91.8
Manchester	83.0	83.0
Newcastle upon Tyne	89.2	89.2
North Tyneside	98.9	98.9
Oldham	95.0	95.0
Rochdale	94.4	94.2
Rotherham	100.0	100.0
Salford	99.5	99.5
Sandwell	85.4	84.5
Sefton	97.0	97.0
Sheffield	89.8	20.7
Solihull	100.0	85.7
South Tyneside	97.5	97.0
St Helens	100.0	100.0
Stockport	94.9	94.7
Sunderland	98.8	97.3
Tameside	100.0	89.1
Trafford	100.0	86.0
Wakefield City	96.7	42.9
Walsall	95.5	95.5
Wigan	99.5	29.1
Wirral	100.0	65.8
Wolverhampton	88.5	88.5

In 2005-06, two Metropolitan districts, Rotherham and St Helens, reported that 100 per cent. of household residents were served by kerbside recycling collection of two or more recyclables. For the same period, 125 of authorities (35.4 per cent.) with waste collection responsibilities reported the same level of kerbside collection in England.

Under the Household Waste Recycling Act 2003, all local authorities in England are required to collect at least two types of recyclable waste from all households in their area by the end of 2010. It is up to each local authority to plan how it fulfils this requirement.

Regeneration: Finance

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much regeneration money has been spent in each constituency since 1997; and what studies have been undertaken to gauge its effectiveness. [134035]

Mr. Woolas: The Department does not record information on regeneration spending by parliamentary constituency and this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

We are committed to understanding the effectiveness of our regeneration programmes and have commissioned a wide range of evaluations in support of this. Evaluations completed or underway include the single regeneration budget, coalfields regeneration programmes, housing market renewal pathfinders and the new deal for communities.

Details of research and evaluation commissioned by Communities and Local Government are available from our research management database (RMD) at: http://www.rmd.communities.gov.uk.

Temporary Accommodation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary's statement on 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 288WH, on households in temporary accommodation, what discussions her Department has had with the Department of Work and Pensions on extending the pilot Working Future scheme for homeless families. [133731]

Yvette Cooper: Working Future is a pilot led by the Greater London Authority and East Thames Group testing the use of a central block grant to subsidise the cost of procuring temporary accommodation in the private sector, which also promotes affordable rents and allows increased access to employment services and training opportunities for 100 households in three London boroughs. There is ongoing dialogue between my Department and the Department of Work and Pensions regarding 'Working Future'. An evaluation is under way, the result of which will feed into future policy development in this area.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will break down by area of expenditure the costs associated with the pilot Working Future scheme for homeless families. [133732]

Yvette Cooper: Households participating in Working Future pay an affordable rent based on the average weekly council rent for the area, the cost of which is met through housing benefit. The remaining housing costs, which reflect the higher rental and management costs associated with temporary accommodation, are funded separately through a direct central Governmentgrant. £2.28 million was made available at the start of the pilot. CLG provided an additional £60,000 in 2006-07 to fund support services to increase employability among homeless households placed in the subsidised temporary accommodation. 'Working Future is a pilot led by the Greater London Authority and East Thames Group and these and other partner bodies have also contributed.

Urban Areas: Trees

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the loss of street trees was in urban areas in each of the last 10 years. [133405]

Yvette Cooper: A survey of trees in urban areas in England carried out in 2004-05 indicated an overall increase in the number of street trees compared with the situation in 1992. The report of the survey 'Trees in Towns II' produced by ADAS and Myerscough College will be published shortly. Copies will be deposited in the House Library.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are being taken to preserve street trees in cities. [133406]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities are encouraged to produce tree strategies to promote the planting, maintenance and protection of trees in their areas, including street trees and to use current best practice. Local authorities also have powers to make tree preservation orders to protect trees where it is considered expedient in the interests of amenity.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are being taken to ensure the implementation by local authorities of the European Landscape Convention, in particular Articles 5(b), 5(c) and Article 6, in relation to street trees. [133407]

Yvette Cooper: National planning policies, including Planning Policy Statement 1: Delivering Sustainable Development, already recognise the need to provide appropriate protection and enhancement of urban landscapes, which will include street trees, in England, in line with the principal aims of the European Landscape Convention.

Written Questions

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to the question 126225, from the hon. Member for North East Milton Keynes, tabled on 5 March, on planning in Milton Keynes. [134187]

Yvette Cooper: I replied to question 126225 on 25 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1190-91W.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Childbirth

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many births in Northern Ireland in the last year were to mothers aged (a) 17 years, (b) 16 years, (c) 15 years and (d) under 15 years of age, broken down by health board area. [133915]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the number of live- and still-births[1] registered in 2006[3] by age and Health and Social Services Board[2] of residence of mother.

Mother's age	Eastern HSSB	Northern HSSB	Southern HSSB	Western HSSB	Northern Ireland
Under 15 years	4	2	0	1	7
15	11	12	4	2	29
16	59	33	11	10	113
17	114	53	38	52	257

[1] Birth is defined to be either live- or still-birth. Pregnancies which resulted in the birth of twins, triplets or other multiple births are counted twice, three times, etc.
[2] Births have been allocated to the area of usual residence of the mother based on her postcode. The data include only those births to mothers resident in Northern Ireland at the time of birth.
[3] Provisional data.

Down District Council: Recruitment

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many positions have been advertised by Down district council in the last 12 months; and what the religion was of those subsequently appointed to those positions. [133872]

David Cairns: Employment policies and procedures are matters for each individual council. I have therefore asked the Chief Executive of Down district council to respond direct to the hon. Lady.

Further Education: Internet

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which further education colleges in Northern Ireland offer on-line courses. [133897]

Maria Eagle: Although it is not mandatory for further education colleges in Northern Ireland to offer on-line courses, all 16 further education colleges, to a greater or lesser degree, offer on-line learning in some courses. Access to on-line or blended learning and the number of courses for which it is available, varies extensively across the 16 colleges.

Northern Ireland Government; Artefacts

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the whereabouts are of the Black Rod of the former Senate of Northern Ireland Parliament. [134254]

Mr. Hanson: Black Rod's Wand is the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Assembly and is stored in the Artefact's Store in Parliament Buildings. A catalogue of Parliament Buildings artefacts is available from the Office of the Keeper.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland where the Maces of the former Northern Ireland (a) House of Commons and (b) Senate is; and if he will make a statement. [134256]

Mr. Hanson: The pair of silver maces from the Commons and Senate, London 1924 that were presented to the Northern Ireland Assembly are stored in the Artefact's Store in Parliament Buildings.

Paper: Recycling

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the 12 month pilot project which began on 1 April 2006 involving the use by all Departments in Northern Ireland of photocopying paper manufactured from a minimum of 70 per cent. post-consumer waste. [133916]

Mr. Hanson: An initial assessment of the outcome of the 12 month pilot project, which began on 1 April 2006, is currently under way and will be presented to the Northern Ireland Procurement Board at its next meeting in late May.

I will forward the hon. Gentleman a copy of this paper for information following its consideration by the Procurement Board.

Church Leaders

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions in the last 12 months the Head of the Northern Ireland Civil Service has met leaders of (a) the Presbyterian Church, (b)

the Roman Catholic Church, (c) the Church of Ireland, (d) the Methodist Church, (e) the Baptist Union of Ireland, (f) the Free Presbyterian Church, (g) the Elim Pentecostal Church, (h) the Reformed Presbyterian Church (i) the Congregational Union of Ireland, (j) the Evangelical Alliance (k) Evangelical Continuation in Northern Ireland and (l) the Caleb Foundation. [132888]

Mr. Hanson: The Head of the Northern Ireland Civil Service has had no formal meetings with the leaders of these churches and organisations in the last 12 months. He has met once with the Churches Forum, which has representatives from the Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Church of Ireland and Methodist Church, and he also attended a number of other events with church leaders, including a dinner to mark the retirement of Archbishop Robin Eames and the enthronement of Archbishop Alan Harper. He would be willing to meet representatives of any of the churches and organisations listed, if requested.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bankruptcy

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many individuals applied for individual voluntary arrangements in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [134479]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no published statistics on the number of individuals who have applied for an individual voluntary arrangement. However there are published statistics for the numbers of individual voluntary arrangements approved by creditors for the last five years and they show

	IVAs
2002	6,295
2003	7,583
2004	10,752
2005	20,293
2006	44,332

Employment: West Midlands

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on MG Rover, in which sectors the 100,000 jobs have been created; what the locations are of the 1,000 hectares of brownfield land which have been reclaimed; and what initiatives (a) Advantage West Midlands, (b) the Learning and Skills Council and (c) Birmingham City Council have put in place to assist unemployed former employees of MG Rover and its suppliers. [124757]

Margaret Hodge: Advantage West Midlands does not collect data in the form asked. The agency does have data which disaggregate the jobs total by whether they are jobs in rural, urban or disadvantaged areas but these data are only available from 2005-06 onwards. The sector data are not available and to disaggregate the totals by sector can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Similarly the total figure of 1,000 hectares of brownfield land which have been reclaimed cannot be disaggregated in the way requested, except at disproportionate cost.

AWM is able to account for 459 hectares of brownfield sites reclaimed since 2003. The remaining 541 hectares were acquired through legacy projects funded by other agencies and programmes, such as the SRB programme and English Partnership.

MG Rover

Following the highly successful work of the MG Rover Task Force over 95 per cent. of ex-MG Rover employees are now back in work. The remaining 260 job seekers are able to access a number of initiatives delivered in partnership by AWM, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and Birmingham city council. These are:

- South West Business Connections, led by Birmingham city council
- Work for you Project—Partnership project between AWM and Birmingham city council
- Working for jobs—initiative involving AWM, LSC and Job Centre Plus
- Northfield and Longbridge Uplift Project—led by Birmingham city council

Post Offices: Closures

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what methods will be used to determine those post offices which will qualify for the closure compensation package being offered should more than 2,500 post offices apply. [134208]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Following the Government's final decisions, it will be for Post Office Ltd. to develop local area plans for proposals for closures and other changes in service provision on a strategic basis within the framework set by Government. As outlined in the consultation document the closure programme will be a compulsory scheme.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his most recent estimate is of the number of post offices which will close. [134209]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As outlined in the Government's proposals, compensated closures will be limited to a maximum of 2,500 post offices nationally.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the reasons are for the deferral of publication of the Government's conclusions on the response to the consultation on the closures within the Post Office network. [134210]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department received over 2,500 responses to the public consultation which formally closed on 8 March. We are giving full consideration to the comments submitted and hope to be in a position to announce final decisions in May.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bees

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what resources are committed by his Department to survey for bee colony collapse disorder. [133319]

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department is monitoring colony collapse disorder in honey bees in (a) the US and (b) Germany; [133303]

(2) what research is being supported by the Government into the threat to UK honey bee colonies of colony collapse; [133304]

(3) what steps his Department is considering to prevent the importation of honey bee colonies from countries where incidents of colony collapse disorder have been recorded. [133305]

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to fund research into the potential emergence of colony collapse disorder in the UK's honey bee colonies. [133632]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA is aware of the press reports about the situation in the USA in respect of the widespread loss of bees described as Colony Collapse Disorder (CCD). Reports of high colony losses have come from at least 22 states.

In the UK, scientists and inspectors at the National Bee Unit (NBU) are monitoring the situation, and are in contact with experts in the USA and in Europe to learn the latest results of research into abnormal colony mortality. The NBU has taken samples for further analysis from the few apiaries in England and Wales found this spring with unusually high colony loss for which there is no readily identifiable cause. This work will help the NBU ascertain whether there is a common cause for such losses.

The DEFRA budget for bee health research and development in 2006-07 is £200,000, which is comparable to previous years, and covers work on all pests and diseases of bees. If findings in the US or elsewhere identify a research need in the UK, the necessary resources would be found as part of our contingency response to emerging new threats.

Colony loss is known in Europe, but there is currently no reason to link high colony losses in the USA to the situation in Europe. Recent cases in Spain and Portugal seem likely to have been caused by Nosema ceranae, a spore-forming protozoan that invades the digestive tracts of bees, as well as the impact of varroa.

If a common cause for high colony loss in the USA is identified and it is pest or disease-related, it is unlikely to be imported here, as long as the rules restricting imports from third countries are respected. It is illegal to import bees from the mainland of the USA.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to increase the (a) speed and (b) accuracy of tests to determine the presence of bovine TB in cattle. [133154]

Mr. Bradshaw: The single intradermal comparative cervical tuberculin (SICCT) test, commonly known as the tuberculin "skin test", is the primary screening test for TB in cattle in Great Britain and other parts of the European Union (EU). The skin test is the internationally accepted standard for surveillance for infection with Mycobacterium bovis, and is considered the best screening test currently available for detecting TB in cattle. No diagnostic test is 100 per cent. accurate, but the current skin test is effective.

In October 2006, the Government extended the use of the gamma interferon blood test, alongside the skin test, to improve the sensitivity of the testing regime for controlling disease in infected herds by identifying more infected animals more quickly. It is being applied mainly in herds disclosing TB infection in low risk areas to help ensure infection does not become established in cattle or wildlife. It will also continue to be available for use as a disease control tool in areas of higher incidence.

In line with recommendations from the scientific community, DEFRA continues to fund further research into improved diagnostics for bovine TB.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the costs and benefits of local authorities reducing the collection of waste bins from domestic residences from once a week to once a fortnight or longer. [133669]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 80W.

Fisheries

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether proposed changes to the number and boundaries of sea fisheries committees may proceed only (a) after consultation with and (b) with the support of home sea fisheries committees affected by the proposals. [133771]

Mr. Bradshaw: As outlined in the current Marine Bill White Paper, I have asked my officials to undertake a review of the number and boundaries of Sea Fisheries Committees (SFCs) in England and to pursue measures in the Marine Bill to implement any change. The review will take place later this year in consultation with the SFCs, the fishing industry and with other interested parties. I will examine the outcome of that review before deciding on any changes to the number and boundaries of SFCs in England.

Fisheries: Manpower

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his estimate is of the number of fishermen working (a) full-time and (b) part-time in the UK in each month since January 2006, broken down by region. [133058]

Mr. Bradshaw: The latest year for which information on the number of fishermen is available is 2005. Details are in the following table.

Number of fishermen by district: 2005

Fly Tipping: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many incidents of fly-tipping were reported in Bournemouth in each of the last four years. [132398]

Mr. Bradshaw: Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database was set up in 2004 by DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the Local Government Association, to record fly-tipping incidents dealt with by the Environment Agency and local authorities. Data are therefore only available from April 2004 onwards.

Numbers of incidents reported in Bournemouth, in years for which data are available, are shown in the following table:

Bournemouth borough council

	Total number of incidents
2004-05	1,479
2005-06	1,784

Data for 2006-2007 are not yet available but will be published this summer.

Graffiti

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on removing graffiti in each local authority area in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [134216]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held by my Department. Local authorities (LAs) do not have a duty to clear graffiti and so do not receive funding for its clearance.

Under sections 48-52 of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003, LAs can issue a Defacement Removal Notice on the owners, occupiers and operators of land and buildings owned by a statutory undertaker or educational institution and which are accessible or visible to the public. These notices can also be served on objects in or on the public street such as cable boxes, telephone kiosks and bus stops. Once served, the company or statutory undertaker has 28 days to remove the defacement. If the defacement has not been removed after this time, the LA can remove it itself and recover the costs of doing so. LAs are required to make reasonable attempts to enter into partnership with the property owners before issuing any notices under sections 48-52.

Livestock: Disease Control

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much livestock was ordered to be slaughtered by his Department in each year since May 1997 (a) with and (b) without compensation. [133378]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the number of livestock slaughtered for disease control purposes, and the amount of compensation paid, is available in the Chief Veterinary Officer's Reports. These are available in tables which have been placed in the Library.

Shellfish

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effect on marine conservation of the banning of the landing of berried lobsters. [133770]

Mr. Bradshaw: Scientific studies suggest that a ban on the landing of berried lobsters and an increase in the Minimum Landing Size (MLS), if equally complied with, would provide similar conservation benefits. However, a ban on the taking of berried lobsters would be almost impossible to enforce, and we know it is likely to be widely ignored. Its potential contribution to lobster conservation may therefore not be realized.

As a MLS can be more effectively enforced and very difficult to ignore, I chose to investigate this option in the interests of getting effective conservation results. We have recently completed a consultation on proposals for increasing the MLS for lobsters and will announce the conclusions from it in the near future.

Waste Disposal: Lighting

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance has been issued to local authorities on disposal of long life bulbs; and whether these bulbs contain mercury. [132584]

Mr. Bradshaw: Energy efficient light bulbs contain a small amount of mercury (less than 5 milligrams per lamp) and are therefore classified as hazardous waste. They should be disposed of responsibly by local authorities (LAs) and in accordance with waste regulations.

From 1 July this year, long life bulbs, where collected with other waste electrical equipment, will need to be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations. LAs that register their civic amenity sites as designated collection facilities (DCFs) for WEEE will be entitled to free collection from those sites by producer compliance schemes. Once these bulbs are collected, producers will be responsible for their treatment and recycling. Guidance on the WEEE regulations, including on how LAs can register their sites as DCFs, is available from the Department for Trade and Industry. Guidance on the WEEE treatment requirements was issued by DEFRA in November 2006.

There is increasing evidence that the mercury in each energy efficient bulb is considerably outweighed by the mercury put into the atmosphere through the additional electricity generation required to operate a traditional bulb.

Senior Civil Servants

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the staff turnover rate for senior grade civil servants within the (a) Waste Strategy Division and (b) Waste Management Division was in the last (i) 12 months and (ii) five years. [132275]

Barry Gardiner: The staff turnover rate for senior civil servants within the stated Divisions are as follows:

Waste Strategy Division

	Number
(i) Last 12 months	1
(ii) Last five years	2

Waste Management Division

	Number
(i) Last 12 months	0
(ii) Last five years

Whales: Conservation

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to oppose the lifting of the moratorium on commercial whaling; and if he will write in opposition to lifting of the ban to his counterparts in (a) Denmark, (b) other member Governments of the European Union, (c) St. Lucia, (d) St. Vincent and The Grenadines, (e) Antigua and Barbuda, (f) Dominica, (g) Grenada, (h) St. Kitts and Nevis, (i) Solomon Islands, (j) Belize, (k) Toralu, (l) Kinibati, (m) The Gambia, (n) Cameroon and Nauru, (o) other Commonwealth members of the International Whaling Commission and (p) other members of the International Whaling Commission. [131144]

Mr. Bradshaw: The UK will continue to protest at the highest diplomatic level against the resumption of commercial whaling and we will continue our efforts, along with other countries, to urge those countries that support whaling to reconsider their position.

DEFRA officials ensure that Foreign and Commonwealth Office posts in the relevant capitals are briefed, and engage in discussion with their counterparts on whaling at every appropriate opportunity. This ensures that these countries are in no doubt of the importance that the UK attaches to whale conservation. UK embassies and Ministers across Government will continue to lobby on this issue in the run-up to the next annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission in Alaska in May.

HOME DEPARTMENT

DNA Database

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam, of 16 October 2006, Official Report, columns 1042-44W, on the DNA database; if he will break down the information given by police force area. [130339]

Notes

1. NFA—means 'No Further Action' taken i.e. the person was arrested and subsequently not charged or cautioned in relation to the arrest/sampling offence.
2. This table shows the number of records where a PNC record had been created for the person before 31 December 2003. This indicates that these persons had previously been charged, reported for summons or sanctioned for at least one previous offence. Sanctions include convictions and cautions (including reprimands and final warnings).
3. Records where the individual was arrested after the 'arrest and NFA event' are not included.

Drink Driving: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of drink driving were recorded in each London borough in year since 1997. [132923]

Mr. Coaker: Incidents of drink driving are not recorded centrally as the summary offences of 'driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs' do not form part of the recorded crime series.

Available information on the number of convictions at all courts and those dealt with by written warning, taken from the annual Home Office publication "Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales Supplementary tables", for the Metropolitan and City of London police force areas, from 1997 to 2004 (latest available) are given in the table.

Data are not available at London borough level. 2005 data will be available later this year.

Notes:

1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system currently being implemented by the Department for Constitutional Affairs reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Golden Arrow Communications

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings his Department's Ministers have held with representatives of Golden Arrow Communications over the last 12 months. [134244]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. and learned Gentleman to my answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1443W.

Manpower: Home Office

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which committees and working groups in his Department assess the capacity of prisons in England and Wales. [133423]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The operational capacity of individual prisons is assessed and agreed on behalf of the Secretary of State by Area Managers and the Director of High Security Prisons (within public sector prisons) and by Regional Offender Managers and the Head of the National Commissioner's Support Bureau (within private prisons).

Prisoner Transfers

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average number of transfers from one prison to another was per prisoner in the last year for which figures are available; [133278]

(2) how many and what percentage of prisoners were transferred from one prison to another (a) once, (b) twice, (c) three times, (d) four times, (e) five times, (f) six times, (g) seven times and (h) eight times or more in the last year for which figures are available. [133279]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally.

Prisoners: British Nationality

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) British nationals were in prison abroad and (b) non-EU nationals were imprisoned in the UK in each of the last five years. [132745]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures on the numbers of both non-European Union prisoners held in prison establishments in England and Wales and the numbers of new detentions of British nationals held in prisons abroad can be found in the table. The Scottish Executive and the Northern Ireland Prison Service respectively hold information on prison numbers in Scotland and Northern Ireland.

The figures on the numbers of British nationals detained in foreign prisons were taken from the answer given by my hon. Friend, Minister of State for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam (Mr. Clegg) to his question on 16 January 2007, Official Report, column 999W. As at 30 September 2006, we were aware of 2,421 British nationals in detention overseas, either on remand or serving a custodial sentence.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the incidence of suicide and self-harm has been for prisoners serving indeterminate public protection sentences. [133784]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The exact information about indeterminate public protection sentenced prisoners has not been collated in the requested format and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many self-inflicted deaths have occurred in prisons since January 2006. [133976]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number of self-inflicted deaths in prisons between 1 January 2006 and 24 April 2007 is 97.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of a switch from soft to hard drugs testing on positive mandatory drug testing rates in prisons; and if he will make a statement. [132974]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The standard group of drugs covered by mandatory drug testing in prisons remains as it was when the programme was introduced in 1995. There has been no switch from soft to hard drugs testing.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the accuracy of mandatory drug testing exercises within prison establishments as a measure of the extent of drug usage in prisons; and if he will make a statement. [132977]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The mandatory drug testing programme provides the best measure of the level of drug misuse. Research conducted by the Office for National Statistics published in January 2005 found that mandatory drug testing provides a good indication of patterns and levels of drug misuse over time particularly at a national and regional level or prison category type.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons there is no key performance target for targeted mandatory drug tests for prison establishments; and if he will make a statement. [132985]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All prisons carry out targeted mandatory drug tests. In order to allow prisons to target testing flexibly to meet local circumstances no key performance target has been set.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Serious Fraud

21. Anne Moffat: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will assess the merits of introducing plea bargaining in serious fraud cases. [133949]

The Solicitor-General: When the Government responded to the recommendations of the Fraud Review on 15 March 2007, they indicated that a working group would be established to explore how far it was possible to introduce a framework for plea negotiations in the context of the criminal courts in England and Wales. The group is scheduled to start its work next month, and a symposium chaired by the Attorney-General will be held on 30 April to explore some of the issues.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Solicitor-General what role he plans for plea bargaining in combating fraud following the fraud review. [133950]

The Solicitor-General: The Government have accepted the recommendations of the Fraud Review that further consideration should be given to the means by which we might introduce a framework for plea negotiations/plea bargaining into our criminal justice system. A working group is being established to engage in detailed consideration of the issues which need to be resolved.

Human Trafficking

23. Dr. Kumar: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Crown Prosecution Service is taking to improve prosecution rates in cases of alleged human trafficking. [133951]

The Solicitor-General: Since the introduction of human trafficking offences under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 the number of prosecutions brought to court has increased from 16 in 2004-05 to 116 in 2006-07.

The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) can only prosecute those cases which are referred to it by investigators. The CPS is working with colleagues in the Home Office to strengthen and improve investigation, law enforcement and the prosecution process against those who commit human trafficking offences.

The UK Action Plan on tackling human trafficking, which was published on 23 March 2007, recognises the need to ensure that human trafficking becomes part of 'core' police business by improving the capability of the police and their partners. Actions include the development of 'key diagnostic indicators' to measure performance and progress in dealing with human trafficking issues.

The United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre (UKHTC) is now recognised as the central point for the development of law enforcement expertise. The CPS is working closely with the UKHTC in developing and taking forward training packages and courses for police, other law enforcement agencies and Crown prosecutors. Training, together with the development of an early victim identification toolkit for front-line police and immigration officers, will enable identification of trafficked victims at the earliest opportunity. This should prevent potential trafficked victims who have committed immigration offences from being removed before providing information or intelligence to investigators.

Crown Prosecution Service: Freemasonry

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Solicitor-General what provisions exist for legally qualified staff in the Crown Prosecution Service to declare freemasonry membership on appointment. [133301]

The Solicitor-General: None.

Fraud: Victims

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps he is taking to ensure that lessons about how to ensure justice for victims of fraud are learned from recent prosecutions. [133946]

The Solicitor-General: My hon. Friend has drawn my attention to a recent case involving two constituents which raises issues about the way our current provisions for dealing with confiscation and compensate operate.

The Fraud Review, commissioned by the Government in 2005, conducted a short survey of fraud victims from a random selection of City of London prosecutions. It was apparent from the survey that victims were predominantly concerned that fraud offences would not be repeated. Victims also hoped to be compensated for their losses, although they had no general expectation that this would happen.

The Fraud Review recommended that the Crown court should have wider powers to deal with the consequences of fraud offences. The Government have agreed that these recommendations need to be considered further, and that consideration will include wider powers to compensate victims of fraud offences. In relation to wider powers the views and experiences of victims will be one of the main considerations.

In giving further consideration to these issues, the Government will consider any lessons we might learn from other jurisdictions.

Honours: Prosecutions

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Solicitor-General whether he would proceed with the appointment of named counsel to advise him on whether prosecutions under the Honours (Prevention of Abuses) Act 1925 should proceed if the approval of the Leader of the Opposition were not forthcoming. [134088]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-General has previously indicated the arrangements which his Office will put in place if he is consulted by the Crown Prosecution Service in the current "honours" case. These will ensure objectivity, independence and transparency through the appointment of independent senior counsel to consider the CPS conclusions and advise. The Attorney-General has undertaken to consult Opposition spokesmen in an attempt to secure prior agreement on the choice of counsel. A decision on who to instruct will be taken then. If, following this process, a decision is taken not to prosecute, counsel's advice relating to that decision will be made public.

The Attorney-General has made it clear that he will exercise his role independently of Government, in accordance with the law and the evidence. We are clear that our first duty as Law Officers is to the law, not to party politics.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the capability of the Royal Navy to execute carrier-based air superiority missions following the decommissioning of the Sea Harrier; and if he will make a statement. [132853]

Mr. Ingram: The primary function of carrier-borne airpower is the direct support of ground operations, for which the Harrier GR7/GR9 aircraft are eminently suited. In an operation where there is a significant air threat to maritime forces, air defence will be provided by either land-based or coalition aircraft in addition to the sea-based air defence capability. In the future, the Joint Strike Fighter will give the joint force the ability to contribute to the full spectrum of fast jet air operations from either a carrier or a land base.

Armed Forces: Cadets

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) Gap Year Commission and (b) Combined Cadet Force recruits who entered the regular forces in each year since 1997. [131695]

Derek Twigg: On the subject of Gap Year Commissions, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 687W, to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell).

The information on the proportion of the Combined Cadet Force that go on to join the regular armed forces is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Casualties

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to which UK (a) military and (b) civilian airports British armed forces casualties are evacuated. [132847]

Mr. Ingram: To establish an appropriate aeromedical evacuation pathway, British armed forces casualties are medically risk-assessed on an individual basis. Most military patients are flown to RAF Brize Norton, Oxfordshire or (in the case of a Hercules aircraft transfer) RAF Lyneham in Wiltshire.

Should the medical risk assessment identify an urgent clinical need, arrangements will be made to fly patients to the most appropriate airfield, either military or civilian, for quick access to the receiving hospital or facility. In most cases, the most appropriate airfield will be the East Midlands Airport to enable rapid transfer to the University Hospital Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust (UHBFT), the main reception centre for Service casualties and home of the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM). However, other civilian airfields have been used occasionally to place patients in the most appropriate place as soon as possible.

In the event of large numbers of patients being repatriated, the destination airfield is defined by the Reception Arrangements for Military Patients (RAMP) agreed from a rota produced by the Department of Health (DH) and Department for Transport (DFT) based on:

Location of available NHS resources and the required treatment for the patients.

The requirement to avoid overloading facilities in any one NHS region.

Type of aircraft and the likely patient load.

Aircraft capability and expected weather conditions.

Armed Forces: Desertion

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions service personnel were recorded absent without leave because NHS hospitals did not notify service authorities of the admission of service patients in each year since 1997. [132626]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Employment

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many servicemen from the 3rd Battalion of the Parachute Regiment have been granted permission to serve in the private security sector while still a serving member of the armed forces in (a) the UK, (b) Dubai, (c) Iraq and (d) Afghanistan in the last five months; and if he will make a statement. [132843]

Mr. Ingram: No serviceman from the 3rd Battalion Parachute Regiment has either sought or been granted permission to serve in the private security sector while serving in the armed forces during the last five months in any country. Queen's Regulations for the Army clearly states that such employment is not permitted. This includes personnel who are on terminal leave at the end of their service.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the proportion of personnel who do not have a local connection to any local authority for the purposes of applying for social housing on leaving the armed forces. [133144]

Derek Twigg: Information on the number of Service personnel who do not have a local connection with any local authority for the purposes of applying for social housing is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate expense.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence from whom the house occupied by the (a) Commander-in-Chief Land and (b) Adjutant General is rented. [134154]

Derek Twigg: As with all service personnel occupying service families accommodation in England and Wales, the houses occupied by Commander-in-Chief Land and the Adjutant General are owned by Annington Homes Ltd and leased back under the terms agreed under the sale of the Married Quarter Estate in November 1996.

Armed Forces: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by his Department to help members of the armed forces living in Northern Ireland with their transition back to civilian life in each of the last three years; how much of that sum was spent on housing; and what personnel were responsible for this task over the same period, broken down by grade. [133117]

Mr. Ingram: The cost of providing third line contracted-out career transition partnership (CTP) services to service leavers using the Regional Resettlement Centre (RRC) at Aldergrove during financial years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 was £286,000, £397,000 and £391,000 respectively. These sums cover only the per capita payments made to the CTP contractor, Right Coutts Ltd, for full resettlement service registrations and discharges, and employment support programme registrations and discharges. It does not cover the cost of providing the facilities of RRC Aldergrove to the CTP contractor, or his staffing costs, which cannot be disaggregated from contracted price standing charges for all CTP facility manpower across the UK and Germany.

Neither do these figures include the cost of resettlement services provided in Northern Ireland by single service education and resettlement staffs: such information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Moreover, disaggregation of the proportion of time spent on resettlement provision by many who also deliver general education services to service personnel stationed in Northern Ireland would be subjective in the absence of recorded activity. The cost of resettlement training for the service leavers using RRC Aldergrove over this period, and their associated travel and subsistence costs, is not held centrally and could also only be provided at disproportionate cost. However, the maximum sum claimable by service leavers who discharged over this period in terms of individual resettlement training costs grant only would have been in the order of £900,000.

None of the per capita sums represents housing costs.

Since all CTP services are provided under contract, and not directly by the MOD, no MOD personnel were directly involved in delivering services under the CTP contract. Information on the break-down of grade structure of MOD personnel involved in delivering resettlement services at unit or local level could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces living in Northern Ireland received support to aid their transition back to civilian life in each of the last three years; and how many were assisted with housing issues. [133118]

Mr. Ingram: A total of 2,102 members of the armed forces were discharged through the Regional Resettlement Centre at RAF Aldergrove during financial years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07, although it is not possible to confirm that all these Service leavers were living in Northern Ireland at the time or subsequently settled in the Province. The breakdown, which does not include serving personnel still moving through the resettlement process, is as follows:

	Financial year
Numbers taking up	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	Total
Full resettlement programme	491	615	674	1,680
Employment support programme	194	139	89	422

The personnel moving through resettlement include approximately a further 1,562 Royal Irish (Home Service) redundees who commenced resettlement preparation from 6 January 2006 but have yet to reach their phased exit date. The 1,680 includes 273 RI(HS) who were discharged by March 2007.

Information on the numbers of these Service leavers assisted with housing is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what support is provided to service personnel living in Northern Ireland to aid their transition back to civilian life, with particular reference to housing. [133119]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence has set up the Joint Service Housing Advice Office (JSHAO) to provide advice, guidance and support on all aspects of accommodation for those leaving the Services. In addition to this, the Service Leavers Support team provide specific support for Service personnel in Northern Ireland.

These offices provide links to local authorities and Housing Associations throughout the UK and can offer advice on all housing options available. These include applications for social housing, shared or co-ownership schemes, and advice on renting or purchasing a property.

The MOD also provides a Long Service Advance of Pay (LSAP) of up to £8,500 repaid over 10 years and prior to discharge to assist in purchasing a property. This is intended to encourage home ownership for those preparing to leave the Services.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Defence Schools Presentation Team visits are planned for 2007; [131699]

(2) what estimate he has made of the percentage of armed forces recruits that can be attributed to the work of the Defence Schools Presentation Teams in 2006; [131700]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2007, Official Report, columns 922-3W, on Defence Schools Presentation Teams, what assessment he has made of the impact of the Defence Schools Presentation Teams on (a) recruitment and (b) the public understanding of and relations with the armed forces; [131701]

(4) pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2007, Official Report, columns 922-3W, on Defence Schools Presentation Teams, what consultation his Department undertook with each of the services when taking the decision to end the Defence Schools Presentations Teams; [131702]

(5) whether secondary school teachers will receive training on using the Defence Dynamics programme; [131718]

(6) what assessment has been made of the likely effects of replacing the Defence Schools Presentation Teams with the Defence Dynamics programme; and if he will make a statement; [131719]

(7) how much time he expects pupils to spend participating in the Defence Dynamic programme in order for that to be considered equivalent to attending a presentation by the Defence Schools Presentation Teams; [133339]

(8) whether the Defence Dynamic programme will be compulsory for all secondary schools in the United Kingdom; and how he plans to monitor the use of the programme's website. [133342]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Surveys

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library the most recent Continuous Attitudes Survey for (a) the Army, (b) the Navy, (c) the Royal Air Force and (d) service families. [132630]

Derek Twigg: With reference to the publication of the Continuous Attitude Surveys for serving personnel, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 201W. The Service families Continuous Attitude Surveys will be published shortly. I will write to the hon. Member when this has been done and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Defence Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the expenditure was on the defence dental services in each of the last five years. [132621]

Derek Twigg: Expenditure on the defence dental services (DDS) is presented in the following table. The total is shown as a sum of Direct Resource Expenditure (R-DEL—Salaries and consumable resources) followed by Capital Resource Expenditure (C-DEL—fixed assets) for each year. Indirect DEL (Depreciation etc.) is not included. Prior to 2005, the DDS was a Defence Agency (the Defence Dental Agency).

Figures for the last five years are:

£ million

Financial year	RDEL	CDL	Total
2002-03	40.801	0.900	41.701
2003-04	48.677	1.253	49.930
2004-05	49.466	1.205	50.671
2005-06	52.253	0.445	52.698
2006-07[1]	54.400	1.833	56.233

[1] Please note that the figures for the financial year 2006-07 have yet to be finalised.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many defence dental service dental officers were deployed on each operation in each of the last five years. [132624]

Derek Twigg: The number of times military dental officers deployed on operations in each calendar year is shown in the following table:

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Op Herrick—Afghanistan	—	—	—	—	16
Op Telic—Iraq	—	32	24	24	24
Op Palatine—Bosnia	8	8	—	—	—
Op Occulus—Balkans	—	—	8	8	8
Op Agricola—Kosovo	4	4	4	4	—

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many defence dental service dental officers are located at each of the regional defence dental service headquarters in (a) the UK, (b) Germany and (c) Cyprus. [132625]

Derek Twigg: As of April 2007 there were nine defence dental service uniformed dental officers working as Principal Dental Officer (PDO) located at regional Headquarters in the UK, one in Germany and one in Cyprus.

The primary role of a PDO is to provide higher management to the regional dental centres. However, a number of PDOs also provide primary dental care at a dental clinic within their region.

General Service Medal: Suez

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to allow the wearing of the Suez Medal alongside National Service medals; and if he will make a statement. [132998]

Derek Twigg: Service in the Suez Canal Zone during the post-war years was recognised by the institution of the Naval General Service Medal 1915-62 and the General Service Medal 1918-62, with the clasp 'Canal Zone', for service between 1951 and 1954 and the clasp 'Near East', for participation in Operation Musketeer during the Suez Crisis of late 1956. There is no officially recognised 'Suez Medal'.

Similarly, no medal has been instituted for undertaking a period of National Service. National Servicemen could qualify for campaign medals under the same circumstances as their Regular colleagues. It would be divisive to offer National Servicemen a medal for being conscripted, when those who volunteered for service might not have received any award. Accordingly, there are no plans to introduce a new medal specifically for National Service.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how much money was spent on psychiatric aftercare of Territorial Army members who served in Iraq and Afghanistan in each of the last five years; [131630]

(2) how many members of the Territorial Army who have completed tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan have sought psychiatric assistance following demobilisation; what medical support services are provided by the armed forces to members of the Territorial Army on demobilisation; and by what means the Government monitors the health of Territorial Army members following demobilisation. [131635]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army (a) are on deployment in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan and (b) have served in each country in the last five years. [131636]

Mr. Ingram: As of 4 April 2007, there were around 280 Territorial Army (TA) personnel deployed in Iraq and around 260 in Afghanistan. This excludes members of the TA deployed on full-time reserve service.

We estimate that since March 2003 over 10,000 members of the TA have served in Iraq the basis of on mobilisation figures, but exact data is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. We estimate on a similar basis that since May 2006 around 450 members of the TA have served in Afghanistan. Data for service in Afghanistan during the preceding years are unavailable.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what medical services are made available by the armed forces to members of the regular army on the completion of tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan. [131638]

Derek Twigg: Members of the regular Royal Navy, Army, Royal Air Force and Royal Marines have access to a wide range of medical and dental services at all times when they are not on operational deployment overseas. The range of services can be summarised as follows:

Primary Medical Care;

Regional Rehabilitation Services;

Dental Services (including dental hygiene);

Secondary Medical Care at the University Hospital Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust (UHBFT) where the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM) is based, at NHS hospitals hosting Ministry of Defence Hospital Units (MDHUs) and other NHS hospitals when required;

Rehabilitation Services provided by the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC), Headley Court; Community and In-patient Mental Health Services.

Military Equipment: Iran

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what UK military equipment was seized by Iran in (a) 2004 and (b) 2007; and what its value is. [133580]

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value was of United Kingdom equipment seized by Iran in the Iraqi-Iran waterways in (a) 2004 and (b) 2007. [133818]

Des Browne [holding answers 24 April 2007]: In 2004 the equipment seized by the Iranian authorities consisted of two Combat Support Boats, six rifles and sights, six pistols and ammunition, radios and navigation equipment, global positioning system and maritime charts. The estimated replacement cost was approximately £500,000.

The equipment seized by Iranians during the capture of the 15 Royal Naval personnel in 2007 consisted of two Rigid Hull Inflatable Boats, seven carbines, four rifles, 10 pistols and ammunition, communications and navigation systems, body armour, helmets, goggles and camera equipment. The replacement cost is estimated at around £270,000.

Reserved Forces: National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of reservists who are overpaying national insurance; and if he will make a statement. [133536]

Derek Twigg: The change to a new payroll system in April 2007 may impact adversely on the national insurance charge levied on some reservists owing to two or more months' attendance pay being paid at the end of April 2007. It is too early to quantify the extent of the problem because data are still being input by Units and have yet to be analysed.

Once the extent of any problem has been determined a case will, if appropriate, be made by MOD to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs for a central adjustment to correct overpayments. Any individuals who believe they have overpaid national insurance can, in the usual way, claim a refund at the end of the tax year.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many questions tabled by right hon. and hon. Members to her Department for oral answer have been transferred to other Departments since May 2005. [133800]

Mr. Lammy: Six oral questions tabled by right hon. and hon. Members to the DCMS have been transferred to other Departments between 18 May 2005 and 16 April 2007.

Questions are only transferred to another Department when it is clear that the DCMS is not responsible for that area of policy, and only when the other Department has agreed to answer it. Members are always notified promptly.

Digital Broadcasting: Cheadle

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the number of households which will qualify for the targeted assistance scheme for the digital switchover; and how many of those households are in Cheadle constituency. [132496]

Mr. Woodward: Our current estimate is that 7.1 million households will be eligible for the Digital Switchover Help scheme (DSHS) nationally. For the Cheadle constituency, we estimate around 10 000 households will be eligible.

Notes:

Totals are rounded to the nearest thousand.

Eligibility for help from the Digital Switchover Help scheme will be by benefit unit rather than the whole household definition used by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) the Scottish Executive, the Welsh Assembly Government and the Northern Ireland Office to forecast future household growth.

The definition of a benefit unit is a couple and any dependent children. It excludes adults deemed to be non-dependants who, if eligible, will be able to claim assistance from the Help scheme in their own right.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures have been put in place to ensure that those eligible for the Targeted Assistance scheme for the digital switchover in Cheadle constituency are contacted by the most appropriate means. [132497]

Mr. Woodward: Using Department for Work and Pensions and local authority data, the Digital Switchover Help scheme operator will write to all eligible individuals well in advance of switchover in their area. This will give options to enable them to continue to receive television services after switchover. Where the scheme operator has information about the particular communications needs of individuals, it will aim to tailor its communications accordingly. In addition, Digital UK will provide generic communications about the Help scheme.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures have been put in place to ensure that those eligible for the Targeted Assistance scheme for the digital switchover in Cheadle constituency receive assistance that is appropriate to their individual needs. [132498]

Mr. Woodward: The scheme will contact those eligible eight months before their regional switchover, explaining the choices open to them. It will run a free help line so they can obtain more information. Once a choice has been made, the equipment will be delivered and, if necessary, installed.

Digital Switchover

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1550W, on digital switchover, whether the figure includes the households of people who are registered as blind or partially sighted but not on Department of Work and Pensions lists. [132183]

Mr. Woodward: We estimate that around 80 per cent. of registered blind and partially sighted people will be over 75 or receive a qualifying disability-related benefit. A further 50,000 people, or 0.7 per cent. of the total eligible households, nationwide may be eligible on grounds of blind or partially sighted registration alone. Our current estimates of the number of households in Whitehaven who qualify for assistance do not include those who qualify on grounds of registration alone but will be within the rounding tolerances given for the Whitehaven estimates.

Energy: Conservation

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 17W, on energy conservation, if she will list the energy-producing features contained in the Government's Better Public Building initiative. [133578]

Mr. Lammy: The Better Public Building initiative aims to encourage high-quality design in all new public building. It does not itself set standards or recommend specific design solutions relating to energy-producing features. Rather, it sets out principles for good design, which include sustainability, and exemplifies its benefits.

There are therefore no specific requirements for energy-producing features to be incorporated into new build or refurbished buildings within the Government's Better Public Building initiative. However, alongside energy efficiency and low energy measures, it is encouraged and buildings that do so are championed, for example through the Prime Minister's Award for Better Public Building. Information can be found at http://www.betterpublicbuildings.gov.uk/

The section on environmentally sustainable design on pages 8 and 9 of Better public building (December 2006) summarises this position.

Licensing Laws: Urban Areas

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the consistency of application of the Licensing Act 2003 by local authorities in urban areas. [133934]

Mr. Woodward: The evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 includes a review of the statutory Guidance given to the licensing authorities; the independent review of licence fees, which has included some areas of licensing administration; the impact of the Act on the four licensing objectives; and the DCMS simplification plan published in December last year. The evaluation will not be complete until later this year. It should be noted that the administration of the 2003 Act is devolved by its provisions to local licensing authorities. Local licensing authorities have some discretion to respond to local circumstances and absolute consistency is not an aim of the legislation. Where inconsistency is generated by misunderstanding, the Government have attempted to provide clarification through the statutory Guidance. We expect to publish revised Guidance in the early summer.

Museums and Galleries: Theatre

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) museums and (b) theatres (i) opened and (ii) closed in (A) the United Kingdom, (B) each region and (C) each London borough in each month of the last five years. [132140]

Mr. Lammy: Museums and the arts outside England are devolved matters. Information on local authority funded museums and theatres, or independent museums and theatres, is not held centrally. Four branches of DCMS-sponsored museums have opened in the last five years: The Churchill Suite (April 2003) together with The Churchill Museum (February 2005) at the Cabinet War Rooms, Whitehall, part of the Imperial War Museum and located in the London borough of Westminster; The Museum in Docklands (May 2003), part of the Museum of London Group and located in the London borough of Tower Hamlets; the Imperial War Museum of the North (July 2002) in the north- west; and Locomotion (September 2004) in the north-east, a branch of the National Museum of Science and Industry.

Two branches of DCMS-sponsored museums have closed in the last five years: The Museum of Liverpool Life (June 2006) in the north-west, part of National Museums Liverpool, but with a new Museum of Liverpool scheduled to open in 2010; and the Theatre Museum (January 2007) part of the Victoria and Albert Museum and located in the London borough of Camden.

Two Arts Council England-funded producing theatres have opened in the last five years: Hampstead Theatre (February 2003, London borough of Camden) and the Unicorn (December 2005, London borough of Southwark).

One Arts Council England-funded producing theatres have closed in the last five years:

Region	Closure
London	The Bridewell (December 2004, City of London) and Southwark Playhouse (September 2006, London borough of Southwark)
North West	Chester Gateway (March 2007), but new performing arts centre scheduled to open in 2010-11
South East	Gardner Arts Centre, Brighton (March 2007) and The Haymarket Theatre, Basingstoke (January 2007, but scheduled to re-open in September 2007)

Sports: Scotland

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate her Department has made of the likely reduction in lottery funding for grass-roots sport in Scotland due to the funding requirement of the 2012 Olympics. [134133]

Mr. Caborn: Lottery money has always paid for a very wide range of sport projects from kit for local teams to investments in major stadia and sports halls. There is no accepted definition of what constitutes "grass roots" investment or otherwise in this range.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Africa: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received from the British ambassador to the United Nations following the Security Council briefing by the African Union Chairman Alpha Oumar Konare. [132586]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary chaired an informal private meeting, bringing together all members of the UN Security Council (UNSC) with the UN Secretary-General and African Union (AU) chairperson on 16 April.

Following the meeting the UK, as UNSC president, issued a press statement on behalf of the council, welcoming the Government of Sudan's acceptance of the heavy support package to the AU mission in Sudan. It also called on the Government of Sudan to facilitate the immediate deployment of the peacekeeping package, as agreed at the Addis Ababa and Abuja summits last November. It was agreed that the UNSC president would write to the UN Secretary-General to request funding for the package from the General Assembly. The UNSC members also called for an immediate ceasefire; a renewed political process; and an improvement in the humanitarian situation.

Democratic Republic of the Congo: Angola

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the activities of Angolan military forces in territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in Kahemba district; and if she will make a statement. [133158]

Mr. McCartney: Angolan forces are currently positioned in Kahemba on what they consider to be Angolan territory. The Congolese and Angolan Foreign and Interior Ministers have had discussions on the disputed territory of Kahemba and are committed to the peaceful resolution of the border dispute. An investigative commission went to Kahemba and will report to the Democratic Republic of the Congo Parliament in due course.

On 15 December 2006 Angola signed up to the Security, Stability and Development Pact for the Great Lakes region. With international partners we continue to call on the signatories to ratify the pact, resolve in a constructive manner their shared security and border problems, and ensure their territory is not used by armed groups to infringe on the sovereignty of others.

Mr. Kiyemba Mutale

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) reports she has received and (b) representations she has made to the Ugandan authorities on the assault of Mr. Kiyemba Mutale on 1 March; and if she will make a statement. [132984]

Mr. McCartney: Our high commission in Kampala is following the case of the alleged People's Redemption Army suspects closely. We were concerned by the eye-witness and media reports of an assault on Mr. Mutale.

We have not made specific representations to the Government of Uganda about Mr. Mutale's case. However, on 5 March my noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, raised our concerns about events on 1 March at the Ugandan High Court with the Ugandan high commissioner in London. Our high commissioner in Kampala, with other EU heads of mission, made representations to the acting Foreign Minister, Henry Okello Oryem, on 2 March, including on the violence used by the security forces, and again most recently with other EU heads of mission on 13 April with Foreign Minister Kutesa. We continue to press all sides to respect the rule of law, human rights and abide by the constitution.

Official Visits

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries do not receive an official welcome from the Government for their Ministers on official visits to the UK. [134091]

Mr. Hoon: Only Ministers who have been invited as guests of the Government receive an official welcome. On arrival in the UK they are met by a representative of my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary.

Sudan

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to extend the arms embargo established under UN Security Council resolutions 1556 and 1591 in co-operation with the UN Panel of

Experts (a) to cover the whole of Sudan and (b) to reflect the full inventory of weapons held by all parties to the conflict. [133490]

Mr. McCartney: At a meeting of the UN Security Council on 16 April chaired by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, she made the case for further sanctions to press the Government of Sudan and rebel movements to abide by their agreements. We are discussing a draft UN Security Council Resolution with other Security Council members to extend the UN arms embargo to the whole of Sudan covering arms and related military material. If the Sudanese Government and rebels do not co-operate and fulfil their obligations, we must be prepared to take tougher measures.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of statements by the Sudanese Government that 3,000 United Nations peacekeepers will be allowed into Darfur; whether the deployment is to include (a) attack helicopters and (b) armoured personnel carriers to help African Union forces; under what remit these peacekeepers will serve; and if she will make a statement. [132598]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary welcomed the Sudanese acceptance of the UN's heavy support package (HSP) for Darfur at a Security Council discussion on 16 April. However, it is only a step towards the full African Union (AU)/UN hybrid operation that was agreed six months ago in Addis Ababa. We are now looking to the Sudanese to ensure they honour their commitments through the speedy implementation of the HSP and hybrid force.

The HSP will include attack helicopters. Armoured personnel carriers are provided through a light support package which is already deploying. The HSP will prepare the way for a foil AU/UN hybrid force, as well as reinforce the police and civilian elements of the current AU mission.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of a new ceasefire agreement between the Ugandan Government and the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA); what terms have been agreed between both parties; and what reports she has received from the United Nations Special Envoy Joachim Chissano on his meetings with the LRA leader. [132573]

Mr. McCartney: We are encouraged that the Cessation of Hostilities Agreement between the Government of Uganda and the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) was extended on 14 April. The parties have agreed that the LRA will assemble at a designated assembly point in southern Sudan by 25 May. The Juba peace talks are set to resume today. We call on all parties to remain focused on finding a peaceful resolution to this long-running conflict, and to implement their commitments.

The UN Special Envoy for LRA Affected Areas, former Mozambican President Joaquim Chissano, briefed the our high commissioner in Kampala along with other members of the international community, most recently on 15 April, following his meeting with LRA leaders on 13 April. We will continue to support his efforts.

Uganda: Human Rights

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment her Department has made of the human rights situation in Uganda; and if she will make a statement. [132987]

Mr. McCartney: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave to the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow) on 19 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1409-410W.

We continue to raise our concerns with the Ugandan Government on the issues mentioned in my previous answer. Most recently, we have focused on:

the forced disarmament programme in Karamoja, where there have been serious allegations of human rights abuses; and events surrounding the detention and treatment of the alleged People's Redemption Army suspects, where the violence used by the government forces at the Uganda High Court on 1 March to frustrate the decision of the High Court to grant the suspects bail had grave implications for the independence of the judiciary, respect for the rule of law and human rights in Uganda.

We will continue to press the Ugandan Government on the need to respect fully human rights.

Zimbabwe: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations the Government have made to the United Nations Human Rights Council on (a) political and civil rights, (b) freedom of the press and (c) food provision in Zimbabwe. [132606]

Mr. McCartney: In my address to the Human Rights Council (HRC) on 13 March, I expressed the UK's utter condemnation of the violent repression of peaceful protesters on 11 March. The UK made a statement at the HRC on 29 March expressing our deep concern at events in Zimbabwe. We urged the Government of Zimbabwe to allow its people to express their political views without harassment, intimidation or violence and to repeal repressive legislation that curtails the freedom of the media, expression and association. We also confirmed our commitment to alleviate the suffering of ordinary Zimbabweans caused by the Government of Zimbabwe's misgovernance by continuing to provide humanitarian assistance and food relief.

In addition, we urged the UN special rapporteur for freedom of opinion and expression and the UN special rapporteur on torture to visit Zimbabwe and report back to the HRC at its sixth session, and welcomed the commitment made by the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights to monitor the judicial process against Mr Tsvangirai and his colleagues.

Also on 29 March, 50 UN member states supported a statement by the EU presidency at the HRC expressing concern at the situation in Zimbabwe and, at our request, the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs briefed the UN Security Council in New York on the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations (a) she and (b) representatives of her Department have made to (i) Zimbabwean authorities and (ii) the Ugandan authorities on physical attacks on the leaders of the opposition in their countries; and if she will make a statement. [132986]

Mr. McCartney: On Zimbabwe, both my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, have made statements condemning the violent and unwarranted action taken by that country's Government on 11 March and stating clearly that we hold Mugabe and his Government responsible for the safety of all those detained. The same strong message was delivered to the Zimbabwean ambassador in London when he was summoned by my noble Friend Lord Triesman on 13 March. I also condemned the Government of Zimbabwe in my address to the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva on 13 March, and both the UK and EU made similar statements of condemnation at the Human Rights Council on 29 March.

We are not aware of any recent physical attacks against leaders of the Ugandan opposition. However, in our contacts with the Government of Uganda and with Ugandan opposition parties, we continue to stress the importance of maintaining a pluralist democracy, developing civil society, and respecting the rule of law.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Electoral Register: Foreigners

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if the Government will take steps to require foreign individuals who register to vote to prove their nationality. [134189]

Bridget Prentice: All electors are required to state their nationality on the canvass form when registering to vote. Furthermore, electoral registers are available for public inspection and anyone who believes that an ineligible person has been included may object and notify the ERO who may then make further inquiries as to the eligibility of that individual. The Electoral Administration Act strengthened this process by:

Allowing any individual to object to another person's registration details at any time.

Allowing an ERO to initiate and conduct a review of a person's registration at any time.

Creating a new criminal offence of supplying false information or failing to supply information to the electoral registration officer at any time.

Giving the police more time to carry out investigations into electoral fraud (they may apply to court to have the normal one year limit for bringing prosecutions increased to two years, so long as there has been no undue delay in the investigation).

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2006, Official Report, column 1790W, on accident and emergency departments, in what format data relating to the catchment areas of accident and emergency departments are collected. [131940]

Andy Burnham: In terms of information on accident and emergency (A and E) departments, national health service trusts self-report the number of A and E services they provide against definitions set by the Department for the three types of A and E. This information is not available at the level of individual hospitals.

Population data are also available at the level of strategic health authorities.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 117W, on accident and emergency departments, what the evidential basis is for increasing consensus among professional bodies that a critical size of hospital is required to ensure that specialist facilities are available to treat all patients with emergency needs safely; and what the (a) date of publication and (b) professional body responsible is in each case. [131969]

Andy Burnham: Reports for example by Collins (1999) "Organisation of acute general services" Joint Consultants Committee, and from the Royal College of Surgeons (2006) "Delivering high quality surgical services for the future—a consultation document from the Royal College of Surgeons of England reconfiguration working party", make reference to suggested catchment areas for hospitals and services that should be available.

Arun Community Hospital

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects rebuilding work to begin on Arun community hospital; and if she will make a statement on the Government's policy on community hospitals. [132706]

Andy Burnham: We are committed to community hospitals where they represent the best solutions for local communities. As such we have set up a five-year, £750 million programme to support the development of community hospitals and services.

The future of Arun community hospital is a matter for the local national health service. I am informed by NHS South East Coast that the future configuration of community hospitals, including Arun community hospital, is a key part of West Sussex primary care trust's strategy. However, no decisions on the future of community hospitals in West Sussex will be made until the outcome of the "Creating an NHS fit for the future" consultation exercise for West Sussex is known.

Blood: Diseases

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to set up a series of recognised regional sickle cell and thalassaemia screening and care centres based on the model developed for cancer care. [133486]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The implementation of the screening programmes for sickle cell and thalassaemia has raised the profile of the conditions and increased the demand for services with increased numbers of cases being identified. A range of work is in hand to support clinicians responsible for patients with thalassaemia and sickle cell and help to ensure that patients have access to the same quality of care, including neonates identified by the screening programme.

A professional group led by the British Society for Haematology (on behalf of the British Committee for Standards in Haematology), and the United Kingdom Forum on Haemoglobin Disorders and supported by the Department and the voluntary sector has developed national standards for the clinical care of children with sickle cell disease. These guidelines were published in October 2006. Standards for the clinical care of children and adults with thalassaemia in the UK were published in June 2005. The guidelines were sponsored by the UK Thalassaemia Society and endorsed by the Department.

The Department is working with a range of key stakeholders to develop a model of a managed clinical network, to ensure that the potential benefits of the screening programme are achieved and that the complications that require specialist care are managed in the right place with appropriate resources. Ten such networks covering the country are proposed, building on existing expertise, to allow access to comprehensive care to be available across the country.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what account has been taken by her Department of the views of older people living in care homes who are in receipt of the personal expenses allowance in the annual consultation on residential care charges; [132146]

(2) what assessment her Department has made of the impact on the quality of life of older people in care homes of an increase of the personal allowance to £40 per week, as part of its annual consultation on residential care charges. [132147]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A number of meetings have been held with key stakeholders representing care home residents, to discuss a range of issues relating to the assessment of resources regulations, including the personal expenses allowance (PEA). Stakeholders involved have included voluntary organisations such as Age Concern, Help the Aged, the Nursing Home Fees Agency, the Relatives and Residents Association and MENCAP. The views of stakeholders will be considered and there will be a further meeting with them before recommendations are put to Ministers.

I have made no assessment of the impact on the quality of life of older people in care homes of an increase of the personal allowance to £40 per week. The PEA was set many years ago at a level that was felt to be appropriate. Since then PEA has been increased annually in line with average earnings. The PEA is provided for care home residents to have money to spend, as they wish, on small items such as on stationery or personal toiletries. It takes into account the fact that people in care homes generally have fewer personal expenses than those living in their own homes. The PEA was increased to £20.45 per week on 9 April 2007.

Cervical Cancer: Vaccination

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department plans to provide guidance on the use of human papilloma virus vaccines in its licence indications. [132823]

Caroline Flint: The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) has set up a human papilloma virus (HPV) subgroup to examine all safety, efficacy and cost issues relating to HPV vaccines. The subgroup is in the process of examining the evidence concerning the available HPV vaccines, including all the licence indications. The sub group's advice will be reported to the main JCVI committee for further discussion. No decisions will be taken on introducing these vaccines into the immunisation programme until the JCVI has presented its advice to Ministers for their consideration.

Coventry Teaching Primary Care Trust

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding Coventry Teaching Primary Care Trust received in each year since 1992. [133683]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations were first made to primary care trusts (PCTs) in 2003-04. Prior to this, funding was allocated to health authorities.

The most recent round of revenue allocations, covering 2006-07 and 2007-08, was announced in February 2005. The table shows the revenue allocations made to Coventry Teaching PCT for this period

Coventry Teaching PCT
Allocation (£ million)
2006-07	425.2
2007-08	469.5
Two year increase
£ million	89.0
Percentage	23.4

The 2003-04 to 2005-06 revenue allocations to PCTs were announced in December 2002. The table shows the revenue allocations made to Coventry Teaching PCT for this period.

Coventry Teaching PCT
Allocation (£ million)
2003-04	289.9
2004-05	318.4
2005-06	348.0
Three year increase
£ million	82.3
Percentage	31.0

Notes
Comparisons between allocations rounds cannot be made for the following reasons:
Revenue allocations were made to health authorities for the period 2000-01 to 2002-03;
Changes are made to the weighted capitation formula for each allocations round, therefore, comparisons would not be on a like for like basis;
2003-06 revenue allocations were made direct to PCTs, for the first time, and were on a three yearly basis;
2006-08 is the first year that Primary Medical Services (PMedS) were incorporated onto revenue allocations.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were registered with a general practitioner in each year since 1997. [131911]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows the number of patients registered with a general practitioner (or since 2004 with a general practice) in England in each year since 1997.

	Numbers (headcount)
1997	50,917,256
1998	51,117,646
1999	50,898,948
2000	51,336,812
2001	51,254,833
2002	51,524,894
2003	52,713,780
2004	52,527,737
2005	52,817,500

General Practitioners: Fees and Charges

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will review the appropriateness of the entitlement of general practitioners to charge patients for a letter certifying that they may safely attend a gym. [133155]

Andy Burnham: General practitioners (GPs) are required to issue specified medical certificates, free of charge. However, GPs also provide a variety of other services which successive Governments have regarded as private matters between the patient and the doctor providing the service. The doctor is free to make a charge for these non-national health service services if he or she wishes. There are no plans to review this.

General Practitioners: Pay

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 39W, when she plans to publish audited financial outturn data on the amount primary care trusts have spent on component 2 of the directed enhanced service for practice-based commissioning. [131897]

Andy Burnham: Final spend figures for component two of the practice-based commissioning directed enhanced service, based on audited annual accounts, will be available in summer 2007.

Health Appointments

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2007, Official Report, column 1883W, on health appointments, when the Chair of the Appointments Commission will write to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Attercliffe. [133869]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 5 April 2007]: I understand that the Appointments Commission have now written to the hon. Member in response to his earlier inquiry.

Health Services: Mothers

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the level of support offered to women with postnatal health problems. [133682]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No assessment has been made of the adequacy of the level of support offered to women with postnatal mental health problems.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) postnatal care guideline, published in July 2006, recommends a fully personalised plan for each woman, which takes into account her and her baby's individual needs. The guideline also places great importance on healthcare professionals, taking into account the particular needs of individual families and on having the competencies required for each routine postnatal visit or appointment with the mother or baby, so that they can recognise any signs and symptoms of potentially life-threatening conditions. It recommends that all maternity care providers (whether working in hospital or in primary care) should implement an externally evaluated structured programme that encourages breastfeeding. NICE also made recommendations in its recent guidance to improve services for women who experience mental health problems during or after pregnancy. We expect mental health services available for such women to improve as local services implement the Department's and the Institute's guidance in light of their assessment of local need.

One of the key commissioning mechanisms of the framework for Commissioning health and wellbeing, which went out for consultation in March 2007, includes placing emphasis on the importance of primary care trusts and local authorities working together to develop practical and deliverable proposals for improving maternity services including the development of maternity, neonatal and perinatal mental health networks and Children's Trusts.

Our framework document "Maternity Matters: Choice, access and continuity of care in a safe service" outlines our strategy to deliver and achieve our commitment to give women clinically appropriate choice over the maternity services they will receive. This was published on 3 April and it includes outlining the roles that service providers and commissioners will have in the provision of woman-focused, family-centred maternity services, incorporating the need to commission high-quality, equitable, integrated maternity services as part of maternity, neonatal and perinatal mental health networks according to local need.

Health Visitors: Hampshire

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) head count and (b) full-time equivalent (i) health visitors and (ii) district nurses (A) were working in North Hampshire primary care trusts (PCTs) in each year between 1999-2000 and 2005-06 and (B) are expected to be working in the new Hampshire PCTs in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [132351]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The following table gives headcount and full-time equivalent numbers of health visitors and district nurses who were working in the predecessor organisations which now form Hampshire primary care trust (PCT). Data is only available for the years 2002 to 2005 and is provided in the following table. Figures for 2006 will be published in the 2006 NHS Workforce Census on 26 April 2007.

Hearing Aids: Waiting Lists

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) target and (b) actual average waiting time is for people requiring a new digital hearing aid from the point of referral from GP to final fitting of the hearing aid in England. [132238]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The most complex audiology cases will be covered by the target of treatment within 18 weeks of referral by December 2008, and the remaining routine adult hearing loss cases should be assessed within six weeks by March 2008, in line with the diagnostic waiting time milestone on which local commissioning plans are based. It is also good practice for the subsequent hearing aid fitting to be carried out soon after or at the same time as assessment.

The information on actual average waiting time for people requiring a new digital hearing aid from the point of referral to general practitioner for final fitting is not held centrally. However, the median wait for audiology assessments is 23 weeks.

The national audiology framework "Improving Access to Audiology Services in England", was published on 6 March 2007, and copies are available in the Library. It sets out clear guidance to the national health service on how to reduce waiting times and how to provide the additional 300,000 pathways that are needed in the run-up to December 2008 to make a maximum wait of 18 weeks from referral to treatment possible for all audiology referrals. It aims to mitigate the risk to 18-week delivery and create a sustainable service model for audiology for the long term.

Hospices: Finance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding her Department provided to (a) children's and (b) adults' hospices in each of the last five years for which figures are available; how much she expects to be spent in future years; and if she will make a statement. [133382]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not available centrally. The level of funding a hospice receives is a matter for local negotiation between the local primary care trust, who are responsible for commissioning and funding palliative care services locally, and the hospice.

The Government have delivered on their commitment to make an additional £50 million per annum available for specialist palliative care for adults. The money is now recurrent in PCT baseline allocations. In April 2007, we announced the allocation of £40 million capital funds for adults' hospices to improve their physical environments.

In September 2006, a fund of up to £10 million was also announced to support Marie Curie Cancer Care's major capital modernisation programme of hospices in North London and Birmingham. The business case has been approved, although the final details have yet to be agreed.

Voluntary sector children's hospices are receiving funding of £27 million between 2006-07 and 2008-09. They have already been given the first tranche of £9 million in 2006-07.

Hospitals: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria were used to reach the recent decision to postpone the building of a children's and maternity hospital in Leeds; and whether she was directly consulted during the process leading up to the decision. [134037]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The national health service in Leeds is committed to providing the highest-quality services, including children's and maternity services, for the people it serves.

No decision has been made on any part of the Making Leeds Better proposals. The entire health community remains committed to finding a workable solution to improve children's and maternity services in Leeds.

Yorkshire and the Humber strategic health authority (SHA) has asked Leeds primary care trust (PCT) to review concerns about affordability and to examine all the options available for children's and maternity services in Leeds. The PCT will present a full project plan to the SHA at the end of April.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1194W, on hospital waiting lists, what assessment she has made of the statistical significance of the moderate correlation between the secondary sector clinical targets and service initial positions in 2003-04 and the age-needs index. [131877]

Andy Burnham: The distance between several secondary sector service targets and the service initial positions in March 2003-04 is moderately correlated to the age/needs index: the primary care trust health economies with low age/needs had modestly further to travel to achieve the targets. However, numerous parts of the country with low age/needs did not have far to travel in meeting these targets. The correlation is not a perfect one (with correlation co-efficients ranging from -0.28 in the case of distance to the accident and emergency four hour wait and age/needs to -0.13 in the case of distance to the out-patient booking targets and age/needs). The reasons behind the relationship are complex.

Secondary sector under-performance in low age/needs areas is likely to have existed for some time prior to March 2003-04. By raising the quality of care to uniform national standards, the Government have significantly improved the services provided to patients in these areas.

The age and need indices, and the interactions between them, are currently being reviewed by independent academic researchers under the auspices of the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation. A new age and need adjustment for weighted capitation may emerge from this research for resource allocation in 2008-09.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for (a) in-patient, (b) day case and (c) out-patient appointments at each hospital in London in (i) 1992, (ii) 1997, (iii) 2001, (iv) 2005 and (v) the most recent year for which figures are available. [132331]

[1] The September 2006 in-patient figures are used for St. Mary's NHS Trust due to pending revisions on the in-patient December 2006 data for this organisation.

Notes:

1. In-patient waiting time based on median wait of those still waiting at end of period.
2. Out-patient waiting times based on time waited for those seen during the quarter.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in London waited for (a) 18 months and over, (b) 12 months and over and (c) six months and over for out-patient admission in each quarter of each of the last five years in each primary care trust. [132333]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally. The Department has not collected information on waits of over 26 weeks for out-patients since March 2004, as the current target is only 13 weeks. However, the following table shows how many patients waited over 26 weeks for out-patient admission in each London primary care trust (PCT) from 2002 to 2004.

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) gun-shot and (b) knife wound injuries were treated in hospitals in each of the last five years. [132317]

Andy Burnham: Information is not collected on the number of gun shot and knife wound injuries treated in hospitals.

Information is available, however, on patients who were actually admitted to hospital for gun shot and knife injuries (these figures do not include patients who were treated in accident and emergency departments for gun shot/knife injuries and not admitted). Those cause codes that appear relevant to the question are presented in the table as follows.

Notes:
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Cause code
The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the number of people suffering from (a) personality disorder and (b) dangerous and severe personality disorder; [133046]

(2) how many people are (a) detained and (b) receiving treatment for (i) personality disorder and (ii) dangerous severe personality disorder. [133047]

Ms Rosie Winterton: [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Personality disorders are common conditions, with a considerable variation in the severity and degree of distress and dysfunction caused. An independent study, "The Epidemiology of Personality Disorders" by Dr. Paul Moran, in 2002 reported a prevalence rate of personality disorder amongst adults in the community of 10 to 13 per cent. However, this estimate is for all personality disorders, and a separate prevalence rate for dangerous and severe personality disorder (DSPD) was not made in the Moran study.

Approximately 250 to 300 people are being treated and supported by established specialist national health service personality disorder services, without any form of detention, and an additional 1300 people in new medium secure, community forensic and non-forensic pilot services. Of the latter, about 50 people at any one time will be undergoing in-patient assessment or treatment under sections of the Mental Health Act. There are 40 secure places within forensic mental health services for people with personality disorder who need treatment under detention. A further 400 male patients are detained on court orders under the legal category of psychopathic disorder in secure psychiatric hospitals.

DSPD is not a clinical diagnosis but a description of a patient profile for those whose personality disorder is of an acuteness or severity and risk to indicate they are likely to be the most serious threat to others. There are an estimated 2,000 to 2,500 individuals in the prison population who meet DSPD criteria. Although there are no existing research data on the number of people with DSPD in the community, further work has been commissioned to provide prospective data about the size of this group, which are expected to be available later this year.

DSPD pilot services are provided within Rampton and Broadmoor high secure hospitals and Her Majesty's Prisons at Whitemoor, Frankland and Low Newton. The current figures for those receiving assessment and treatment within these services is 66 in the national health service and 143 in the prison estate. All are detained, with a majority serving current prison sentences.

MRSA

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what techniques and procedures are being used to combat MRSA in NHS hospitals; what use is being made of hydrogen peroxide; how widely it is being used for this purpose; and if she will make a statement. [132757]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 23 April 2007]: As part of the Saving Lives programme, which is designed to support national health service trusts in reducing healthcare associated infections like methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA), high impact interventions have been developed. The high impact interventions are simple evidence based tools. They reinforce the practical actions that clinical staff need to undertake every time for key procedures in order to significantly reduce healthcare-associated infections including MRSA. They cover preventing the risk of microbial contamination (which includes hand hygiene, personal protective equipment, aseptic technique and safe disposal of sharps), central venous catheter care, peripheral line care, renal dialysis catheter care, preventing surgical site infection, care of ventilated patients and urinary catheter care.

The Department also published enhanced advice on screening, including decolonisation, in November 2006.

The Rapid Review Panel (RRP) has reviewed two hydrogen peroxide vapour products and recommended that both products have potential value and that in use trials are now needed. Trials have been undertaken within the national health service and these products have been utilised in outbreak situations.

It is not known how widely hydrogen peroxide vapour is used in the NHS. The NHS does not collect data regarding the usage of products by individual trusts or collectively for the NHS. NHS trusts are free to choose which products to purchase and will maintain their own records.

The Department is liaising with all the bodies which play a role in the assessment of innovative products about how the Department might best assist the take-up of products that have a favourable RRP recommendation. Discussions are at an early stage. Ultimately, they will include how innovative products are assessed for cost-effectiveness and their impact on services, thus creating a more streamlined process.

NHS: Finance

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been awarded by her Department under "Our health, our care, our community" since July 2006, broken down by (a) strategic health authority and (b) primary care trust; how many bids have been submitted; what the final period is for the submission of bids; and if she will make a statement. [126426]

Andy Burnham: Ten proposals were received in wave 1. An announcement about four of these was made on the 21 December. Two of the schemes were withdrawn, one did not meet the criteria and we are resolving an outstanding query on one of the schemes. Two of the schemes were carried forward and announced with the second wave.

The funding allocated to these four schemes totals £44.5 million, and the following chart breaks this down into strategic health authority (SHAs) and primary care trust (PCT) area, and the amount allocated to each scheme.

SHA	PCT	Amount awarded (£ million)
North East	Sunderland (Washington Primary care centre)	8.96
South Central	Hampshire (Gosport War Memorial Hospital)	6.122
South West	South Gloucestershire (Yate Community Health Centre)	5

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the group tasked with the review of general medical services funding to report on its findings and recommendations. [131933]

Andy Burnham: The report of the general medical services global sum formula review group, which contains a number of recommendations on changes to the current formula, is now available. The report is currently out for consultation until 11 May. A copy of the report has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) total expenditure on enhanced services under the General Medical Services contract and (b) the total primary care trust enhanced services expenditure floor was expected to be in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; what actual expenditure on enhanced services was in 2005-06; and what expenditure on enhanced services she expects in 2006-07. [131962]

Andy Burnham: Total expenditure on enhanced services under the new general medical services contract (over the period 2004-05 to 2006-07) is estimated to be £2,067 million.

In 2005-06, the total primary care trust (PCT) enhanced services floor was £676 million. For 2006-07, it was agreed with the British Medical Association's General Practitioner Committee that enhanced services floors would be frozen at 2005-06 levels.

The overall level of investment by PCTs in 2005-06 is £655 million (based on their audited annual accounts). Forecasts received from PCTs for 2006-07 indicates an overall spend on enhanced services of £824 million.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she plans to launch the £50 million advertising campaign to tackle sexually transmitted infections announced on 26 November 2004. [131905]

Caroline Flint: The Department's new adult sexual health campaign, "Condom Essential Wear", was launched in November 2006. Approximately £6 million was spent on the campaign in the last financial year on a combination of TV, cinema, radio, press and digital advertising backed by extensive public relations, partnership marketing and the creation of two bespoke websites.

Funding for the campaign, which targets some of the hardest to reach young people who are at risk of contracting a sexually transmitted infection, has been agreed at £4 million for the financial year 2007-08. It is too early to say what the funding levels will be for 2008-09.

Young People: Drugs

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the potential impact on young people of the proposed changes to funding for drug and alcohol action teams. [133476]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

Drug use among young people is assessed through the Schools Survey and British Crime Survey. Class A drug use is stable and there have been significant reductions in frequent use of any drug by young people. The Government are making £55 million available in 2007-08 to support prevention, early intervention and treatment services for young people experiencing problems with drugs to be used alongside mainstream funding.

PRIME MINISTER

Honours (Prevention of Abuses) Act 1925

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister if he will review the operation of the Honours (Prevention of Abuses) Act 1925. [134090]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2271W.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134047]

The Deputy Prime Minister: All the paper used in my Office since its establishment in May 2006 has been from 100 per cent. recycled sources.

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133794]

The Deputy Prime Minister: No oral questions have been transferred to other departments since the establishment of my Office in May 2006.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Employment Agencies: EC Action

Mr. Brady: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what responsibilities she has for (a) the Agency Workers Directive and (b) other EU legislation. [134212]

The Minister without Portfolio: As part of my cross-cutting ministerial role, I am involved in the consideration of specific policy issues as appropriate.

European Parliament

Mr. Brady: To ask the Minister without Portfolio for what purpose she visited the European Parliament on 11 April. [134211]

The Minister without Portfolio: I visited Brussels on 10 April to undertake meetings on the Agency Workers Directive. My visit to the European Parliament on 11 April was not made in my ministerial capacity.

Legislation

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many pages of new primary legislation were enacted in each year since 1997. [133219]

Hilary Armstrong: Statistical information on the number of pages of legislation broken down on a calendar year basis can be found in Standard Note SN/SG/2911 "Acts and Statutory Instruments: Volume of UK legislation 1950 to 2006" and is available in the Library for the reference of Members. It can also be obtained on line at:

http://www.parliament.uk/commons/lib/research/notes/snsg-02911.pdf.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1349W, on primary care trusts (PCTs), what the reasons were for the selection of each PCT visited last year; which Ministers have received copies of the resulting reports; and to whom copies of these reports were circulated. [134147]

Hilary Armstrong: Within the last year, the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit (PMDU) has carried out eight reviews on different governmental delivery and reform priorities, which involved visits to 35 primary care trusts (PCTs). For each review a number of sites were chosen to ask front line staff about their experience of delivery and the issues they face. The sites were chosen on the basis of a PCTs characteristics (e.g. urban or rural populations) and local circumstances.

The final reports that were produced following each of these reviews were developed jointly with the Department of Health, and act as confidential advice to the Prime Minister, Department of Health Ministers and Secretary of State. Each report was circulated by the PMDU to the Prime Minister. In addition, the Department of Health lead official for each review also circulated the report to relevant senior officials within the Department of Health and to relevant Ministers and/or Secretary of State.

Only one of the eight reviews involved three Government Departments, and as such was therefore shared with the senior officials, and Ministers/ Secretaries of State, as appropriate from the Department of Health, Department for Education and Skills, and the Department for Culture Media and Sport.

Training: Treasury

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 355W, on training: Treasury, which Ministers attended each listed course. [133421]

Hilary Armstrong: I refer the hon. Member to the letter sent to him by the National School of Government's principal and chief executive on 15 March 2007 which sets out detailed information on the number of Ministers participating in the learning and development provided by the National School. A copy of the letter is available in the Library for the reference of Members. It would not be appropriate to release the more detailed information you requested.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Armed Conflict: Finance

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding and resources (a) were committed in each of the last three financial years and (b) are pledged for each of the next three financial years for the global conflict prevention pool, broken down by regional pool. [134126]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

The 2004 comprehensive spending round settlement allocated a baseline figure of £74 million each financial year (FY) for the global conflict prevention pool (GCPP) for FY 2004-05 to FY 2007-08. The following table illustrates how funds were allocated to each of the GCPP strategies in each FY. Overall allocation totals each year do not amount to the baseline settlement figure as the pool has a reserve for unplanned activity.

carried forward from in-year underspend under Government accounting rules.

The table also includes figures for the current financial year.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Secondary Schools: Parental Choice

12. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what initiatives his Department is pursuing to increase parental choice of secondary schools. [133964]

Jim Knight: The Government are committed to creating a real choice of excellent schools for parents. We have placed new duties on local authorities to plan schools with a view to increasing parental choice and to respond to parents. We have created opportunities for new providers to set up schools through competitions. We have introduced a fairer admissions system, with help for parents to exercise their choices, and we have extended parents' rights to free school transport.

Accessible Textbooks

14. Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance his Department has issued to local education authorities on the provision of accessible textbooks; and if he will make a statement. [133967]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has published a training resource "Implementing the Disability Discrimination Act in schools and early years settings" for schools and local authorities to help them meet their duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995.

This includes guidance to schools to help them develop their accessibility plans, covering planning improvements to the provision of written materials for disabled pupils over time. All schools can obtain a copy of the resource from DfES Publications.

Framework for Excellence

15. Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Learning and Skills Council plans to take to reflect the different roles and objectives of further education and sixth form colleges when aggregating performance measures into a single star rating as proposed under the framework for excellence. [133970]

Bill Rammell: The framework for excellence arrangements will take account of the aims and missions of individual colleges and providers. The Learning and Skills Council will pilot the arrangements for the framework fully during the academic year 2007-08, including developing and testing the processes and criteria for deriving each institution's overall performance rating. The LSC will publish further details on the piloting arrangements in about two months' time.

Secondary School Standards

16. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to raise standards in secondary schools. [133971]

Jim Knight: We are investing over £1 billion in personalising learning by 2008.

The Secondary National Strategy provides training and support for teachers, including resources and materials for intervention and personalised learning.

As a result, the number of schools with less than 25 per cent. of pupils achieving five or more good GCSEs is down from 616 to 47, and 86,555 more students achieved that standard than in 1997.

Reforms at 14-19 will improve vocational skills and will ensure that pupils leave school with functional skills in English, maths and ICT.

Academy Schools

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many academy schools are planned to open in the next 12 months. [133966]

Jim Knight: There are currently 47 academies open, and we anticipate that around 35 further academies will be opened in the next 12 months.

Adult Education: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many adult learners entered higher education in Copeland in 2005-06. [133483]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the table.

City Academies: Sponsorship

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills who the sponsor or sponsors are of each academy; and how much each has contributed. [133035]

Jim Knight: There are 47 academies now open. Information on the sponsor of each academy and the sponsors' donations received to date towards open academies' capital costs—rather than total sponsorship committed—is given in the following table.

Sponsorship for the first academies has been provided in the form of a contribution to the capital costs of buildings. However, we have changed the sponsorship model and sponsors will now, as the norm, establish an endowment fund worth £2 million (or £1.5 million for the fourth or subsequent academy for sponsors of multiple academies), with a minimum of £500,000 payable in the first year. Payment of the endowment will normally be over five years. To date, only one open academy, St Mark's academy in Merton, has this form of sponsorship.

Sponsors' donations contributing to capital costs are normally made over the lifetime of the building costs of the project, so in some cases a number of payments towards capital costs remain to be made. In other cases, sponsors' payments have been made, but are not recorded in the table as auditors have not yet completed their checks on whether these were spent on capital or recurrent costs.

We do not keep a record of sponsors' non-capital donations to academies.

Dentistry: Admissions

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) in what month of the academic year students who are applying to read dentistry at university are required to submit their University and College Admissions Service applications; and what the average time was to inform such students of the outcome of their application in the latest period for which figures are available; [133284]

(2) what the maximum number of universities is to which students applying to read dentistry may apply; and whether that figure differs from other university courses; [133285]

(3) what impact the requirement for students applying to read dentistry at university to make a dental-specific University and College Admission Service application has on their prospects of being accepted on other university courses should they not be accepted on a dentistry course. [133286]

Bill Rammell: The deadline for applications to dentistry is 15 October. Institutions are advised to contact UCAS by 31 March with their decisions, and the rejected by default date is 9 May.

Applicants may make four course choices for dentistry. Medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine and veterinary science applications are all restricted to four choices with a deadline of 15 October. All other subjects have an advisory deadline of 15 January with up to six choices available. There are also separate arrangements for Oxford and Cambridge applications.

In their original application the applicant makes six choices in total, only four of which can be in dentistry. The final two choices can be in any subject. Should all of the applicant's choices be unsuccessful, opportunities to apply for courses remain through UCAS Extra and through the clearing system in August.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many applications there were to read dentistry at university in (a) the 2004-05, (b) the 2005-06 and (c) the 2006-07 academic years; and how many applications were successful in each year. [133287]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 25 April 2007]: The figures are shown in the table.

Applicants and accepted applicants to full-time courses in pre-clinical dentistry

	Applicants	Accepted applicants
2004-05	2,118	989
2005-06	2,621	1,187
2006-07	2,577	1,114

Source: Universities and Colleges Admission Service (UCAS).

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) extra-curricular and (b) work experience activities are prerequisites for students who wish to apply for dentistry at university. [133288]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 25 April 2007]: The criteria used to assess applicants are a matter for individual universities.

The guidance in the UCAS publication on "Progression to Medicine and Dentistry" advises that "Without doubt, admissions tutors for both medicine and dentistry look for strong academic ability, just to prove your ability to cope with straight science, plus clear evidence of a commitment to medicine or dentistry as a career (which can usually be demonstrated via work experience placements)."

In one of the case studies in this publication, work experience in a local dental practice is cited.

Education: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the status is of discussions to establish an European Union-wide common school text book; and if he will make a statement. [133101]

Bill Rammell: No formal discussions have taken place at the level of the United Kingdom or the European Union with a view to establishing a European Union-wide common school textbook. The Department would oppose such a textbook, should it be formally proposed, as it is an important part of schools' autonomy that they are able to decide which resources they use to reach their teaching objectives. Furthermore, the implementation of such an EU-level proposal would be entirely at the discretion of each member state, as there is very little European Community competence in the field of education and training.

Education: EC Grants and Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which projects were funded in support of the last European Youth Week; and what projects are planned in the UK for the next one. [133100]

Bill Rammell: The Government do not fund any events for European Youth Week. It is for individual youth organisations to decide how they will participate in this event.

The UK does send a delegation, selected and organised by youth organisations and their national representative bodies, to the annual Brussels event.

English Language: Au Pairs

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in what circumstances a person living in the UK and working as an au pair from (a) an EU and (b) a non-EU state may qualify for full fee remission for English for Speakers of Other Languages fees; and for how long such a person needs to be resident in the UK before qualifying. [124882]

Phil Hope: Since 2001, people enrolling on Learning and Skills Council (LSC) supported English for Speakers of Other Languages courses have been entitled to automatic fee remission provided that they meet the LSC's eligibility criteria for publicly funded further education.

Entry to a course by any learner will depend on an initial assessment which confirms that a Skills for Life ESOL course is the most appropriate way of meeting their learning needs. For au pairs, this is unlikely to be the case as Skills for Life ESOL courses are intended to meet the needs of the most disadvantaged learners in settled communities, not those who are temporarily in the UK possibly with the intention of learning English.

However, if ESOL is appropriate, the following eligibility and fee arrangements apply:

Under the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) Funding Guidance for 2006/07, the general rule for public funding of further education (FE) is that the learner should have been resident in the UK for three years. Citizens of European Union (EU) countries are also generally considered to be eligible, as long as they have lived in the European Economic Area (EEA) for three years. This three-year residency requirement applies equally to UK citizens who have not been resident in the UK/EEA.

However, there are already a number of exceptions to this rule that take account of exceptional circumstances. For example, newly arrived spouses do not have to wait the normal three-year period. Provided they are married to a UK resident with settled status they become eligible for FE provision once they have been resident in the UK for one year.

These residency requirements reflect the Government's view that it is reasonable to expect a person to have established a relevant connection with the UK before being allowed to benefit from funding provided by UK taxpayers. These arrangements are long standing and have generally proved to be a fair measure for determining fee status. The eligibility rules must be met by all adults seeking to qualify under the 'home' fees criteria, including UK nationals returning to this country from outside the EU.

Although there is no change to the eligibility conditions set out above, changes announced to fee remission will apply to all eligible learners. From August 2007, there will be no automatic fee remission for ESOL courses. Learners who can afford to do so will be asked to make a contribution to the cost of learning at a rate of 37.5 per cent. of the course fee with the Government still paying the majority of the cost. Those who are on benefits or who can evidence very low incomes will be entitled to fee remission.

English Language: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people in each London borough he estimates are eligible for English for Speakers of Other Languages courses with full fee remittance. [131007]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 16 April 2007]: All learners eligible for support from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and enrolling on Skills for Life ESOL courses are currently entitled to automatic fee remission. Because entitlement is automatic, the LSC does not require evidence related to concessionary fees to be collected on its Individualised Learner Records. Consequently, it is not possible to use this information either to calculate those who would be entitled to full fee remission under current arrangements or to predict accurately for the future.

However, some evidence has been gathered to help clarify the number of people who will continue to be entitled to full fee remission from August 2007 when ESOL courses will no longer attract automatic fee remission and free tuition will only be available to priority groups, such as people who are unemployed or receiving income-based benefits.

For example, the South London Learning Partnership carried out a questionnaire with 12 providers covering 2,615 learners. Of these 35 per cent. are employed, of whom 89 per cent. have an income of 15,000 or below, and 51 per cent. are in receipt of benefits. Of the remainder, 19 per cent. thought they would be able to pay. On this evidence, the majority of learners seeking ESOL courses would be entitled to full fee remission.

Further Education: Curriculum

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on plans for the post-16 curriculum. [133959]

Bill Rammell: Post-16 students choose a curriculum best suited to their individual needs, interests and aspirations. If the leaving age is raised to 18 as we propose, it is crucial to ensure there is an appropriate curriculum for everyone. We are ensuring a greater post-16 choice through the introduction of employer designed diplomas, reforms to A-level and increased access to the International Baccalaureate.

Headteachers: Vacancies

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect of the measures set out in the response to the Committee of Public Accounts' 59th Report of 2005-06 on the level of head teacher vacancies. [133969]

Jim Knight: Since 1997, head teacher vacancies have remained low and fairly stable. Provisional figures released today show a fall in the head teacher vacancy rate for the maintained sector from 0.8 per cent. in January 2006 to 0.6 per cent. in January 2007. However, we know that some types of schools such as church schools, schools in London and some small schools in rural areas find it harder to recruit senior staff than others.

Regarding the specific work highlighted in our response to the PAC report, we have made progress on a number of fronts. On vacancy filling, we have provided an additional £10 million funding to the National College for School Leadership (NCSL) to extend its support to schools and local authorities on succession planning. The NCSL is also strengthening work with governor organisations including advice on recruiting school leaders. We have further developed initiatives on bringing on new talent, including the Fast Track and Future Leader programmes. Revised professional standards for teachers, from September 2007, will provide all teachers with a clear, coherent and progressive set of career pathways and help them to prepare for leadership. More broadly, the PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) study identified a number of issues affecting recruitment to leadership positions and we will be working with key stakeholders, including the social partners, to make progress on these issues.

Higher Education: Scholarships

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the total value was on income-assessed non-repayable student bursaries administered by the Student Loans Company on behalf of higher education institutions in each year since 2001; [131428]

(2) how many income-assessed non-repayable student bursaries were administered by the Student Loans Company on behalf of higher education institutions in each year since 2001. [131429]

Bill Rammell: The Student Loans Company (SLC) have offered a bursary payment and administration service on behalf of individual higher education institutions since academic year 2006/07. The value and number of bursaries administered by SLC to date are as follows.

	Value/ Number
Value of 2006/07 bursaries paid to date by SLC on behalf of HEIs[1] (£ million)	44.672
Number of 2006/07 bursaries paid to date by SLC on behalf HEIs[1]	75,523

[1] Figures relate to HEIs in England and Northern Ireland are correct as at 11 April 2007

It should be noted that these figures only represent a part-academic year, and cover only HEIs that have opted to use the SLC's full bursary payment and administration service.

The Office for Fair Access (OFFA) is responsible for the annual monitoring of access agreements from academic year 2006/07 and will report on the outcome in autumn/winter 2007.

We are aware that following the introduction of access agreements in 2006, higher education institutions have budgeted to spend in excess of £300 million on bursaries and scholarships benefiting students from low-income backgrounds and other underrepresented groups by 2010-11.

Higher Education: Science

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many undergraduate places there were at universities in England for (a) physics, (b) chemistry, (c) biology and (d) mathematics in each of the last five years; and how many of these places were filled. [132870]

Bill Rammell: Information on the number of places available for each subject is not held centrally. The allocation of places for particular subjects is a matter for individual higher education institutions.

The latest available information is shown in the table; comparable figures for the 2006/07 academic year will be available in January 2008.

Nutrition: Curriculum

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consideration has been given to including practical lessons about healthy food in the primary curriculum. [133429]

Jim Knight: Practical food lessons are a statutory requirement within the primary National Curriculum. Pupils carry out practical tasks that develop their knowledge, skills and understanding, including the importance of healthy eating. For example, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Schemes of Work include units on eating more fruit and vegetables and healthy sandwiches. The Department funds Food Partnerships where expert secondary food technology teachers train and support primary colleagues in practical food lessons.

Outdoor Education: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) secondary schools and (b) secondary school pupils have participated in field visits and outdoor learning as a result of the London Challenge Residential Courses programme. [132915]

Jim Knight: A total of 31,245 pupils from 295 London secondary schools have participated—or will shortly be participating in—a range of residential courses that have been funded by the London Challenge programme.

Personal Social and Health Education: UK Membership of EC

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library the guidance provided by his Department to schools on the Key Stage 4 scheme of work for citizenship in sections entitled (a) How am I part of Europe?, (b) Euro versus pound and (c) Debate on the Euro. [133102]

Jim Knight: The Department has not issued guidance additional to that which is contained within the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QC) Key Stage 4 scheme of work.

Schools are not obliged to follow the QCA schemes of work. These are offered as exemplars and can be adopted or adapted as schools decide.

Pupil Exclusions: Intimidation

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were excluded for racist bullying in the most recent period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [133968]

Jim Knight: In 2004-05, the most recent year for which we have data, there were 40 permanent and 3,390 fixed period exclusions for racist abuse. In addition there were 130 permanent and 7,680 fixed period exclusions for all types of bullying. We deplore racist bullying and fully back teachers and head teachers in taking tough action whenever it occurs.

Pupil Referral Units

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much the Government have spent on pupils in pupil referral units with (a) unstatemented special educational needs, (b) statemented special educational needs and (c) special educational needs both statemented and unstatemented in each year from 1997 to 2006. [132884]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect the information in the format requested. However, the following table provides details of the total planned expenditure on the provision of education at Pupil Referral Units and total expenditure on SEN pupils both statemented and unstatemented as it is not possible to extract this information. Comparable data are not available prior to 2000-01.

Budgeted net expenditure by local authorities on the provision of education for children with special educational needs[1,2] and budgeted net expenditure by local authorities on the provision of education for children at Pupil Referral Units[2] in England: 2000-01 to 2006-07

	Budgeted net expenditure by local authorities on the provision of education for children with special educational needs[1,2]	Budgeted net expenditure by local authorities on the provision of education at Pupil Referral Units[2]
2000-01	2,763,226,000	100,309,000
2001-02	2,908,380,000	108,467,000
2002-03	3,038,661,000	134,741,000

2005-06	4,120,549,000	227,794,000
2006-07	4,477,300,000	265,256,000

[1] Includes planned expenditure on the provision for pupils with statements and the provision for non-statemented pupils with SEN, support for inclusion, inter authority recoupment, fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad, educational psychology service, local authority functions in relation to child protection, therapies and other health related services, parent partnership, guidance and information, the monitoring of SEN provision and inclusion administration, assessment and co-ordination. Also included is the funding delegated to primary and secondary schools identified as "notional SEN" and the individual schools budget (ISB) for special schools. Does not include any planned expenditure on pupils with SEN attending Pupil Referral Units (PRUs).

[2] The ISB for special schools will include some general education costs for pupils with SEN in addition to those costs specifically for SEN while the figures recorded against "notional SEN" are only indicative of the amount that might by spent by schools on SEN and, from 2004-05 onwards, "notional SEN" delegated to nursery schools was reported on section 52 for the first time (nursery schools "notional SEN" accounts for £7.8 million, £9.5 million and £10.3 million of the respective 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 totals). In 2005-06 and 2006-07, local authorities also budgeted £499.6 million and £528.5 million for SEN transport expenditure but this is not included in the above table as figures are not available prior to 2005-06.

[3] Includes planned expenditure on the provision of education at Pupil Referral Units as defined in section 19 of the 1996 Act. In addition to the figures quoted above, Pupil Referral Units were also allocated School Standards Grants of £7.6 million in 2006-07.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000 and may not sum due to rounding.
2. The data are drawn from local authorities section 52 Budget Statements (tables 1 and 2) submitted to the DfES. Data are not available prior to 2000-01.
3. Cash terms figures as reported by local authorities as at 18 April 2007.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average spending per pupil was in each (a) primary and (b) secondary school in the County of Durham in each of the last five years. [133446]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the House Library.

School: Sports

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of school sport helpers who have begun working in schools in the last six months. [133426]

Jim Knight: Through the national School Sport Strategy's sports leadership and volunteering programme:

6,433 young volunteers are engaged in sports volunteering in their schools and local communities; and, over 16,000 students were this year involved in planning and running over 1,800 festivals of sport and sports days.

Schools: Buildings

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance he has given schools on the use and suitability of temporary classrooms; and if he will make a statement. [132916]

Jim Knight: The Department's guidance encourages authorities and schools to fully consider and compare the costs and benefits of options for the provision of accommodation.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year by year in improving the quality of the school building stock. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to replace temporary classrooms where they are considered to be unsuitable.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children in (a) secondary and (b) primary schools were taught in temporary accommodation in each London borough in each year since 1997. [132917]

Jim Knight: Data showing numbers of temporary buildings have been received from local education authorities for three years since 1997, but the data do not show numbers of pupils taught in those buildings.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to replace temporary classrooms where they are considered to be unsuitable.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on school buildings in each of the last 30 years at current prices. [133449]

Jim Knight: Expenditure on school buildings in England each year is determined by each local authority, using both resources both from the Department for Education and Skills and other resources available locally. Accordingly, no central records are kept of expenditure at local authority level. Capital allocations for school buildings and associated capital infrastructure in each of the last 30 years are set out in the following table, in £ billion.

These include ICT capital allocations and, from commencement in 1998-99, projects funded through PFI. Capital expenditure by local authorities will not necessarily be incurred in the year allocations are announced, owing to timing differences.

Allocation figures have been converted to current prices using the 2005-06 GDP deflator.

Science: Higher Education

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) chemistry and (b) physics departments in English universities closed in each year since 1997. [133225]

Bill Rammell: Information on the closure, merger or opening of particular university departments is not collected by the Department. However, subjects like chemistry and physics are starting to become more popular and the measures we are taking to increase demand and the extra £75 million announced last year should help to sustain capacity as demand increases. Physics and chemistry are also taught as major subjects at some 50 and 70 UK institutions respectively. We have consistently made clear that if a physics or chemistry department closes at one institution, the Higher Education Funding Council for England should seek to maintain capacity elsewhere and we announced last year that the council should report to us on how provision can be maintained in this way.

Secondary Education: Urban Areas

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the merits of extending the London Challenge to other areas of England. [132914]

Jim Knight: On 4 April 2007, I announced the extension of the London Challenge in London for at least a further three years. I also announced the expansion of a similarly focused London Challenge-type approach to two other parts of the country that face similar challenges to those which have afflicted the capital.

My decision is based on an assessment of the proven success of the London Challenge programme. Today, more than half of London's pupils get five good GCSEs. London schools have outperformed the rest of the country for three years running and improvements have been seen in every London borough. Ofsted recently reinforced this assessment in its December report "Improvements in London Schools 2000-06". The report recommended considering the model

"in other vulnerable areas where performance is a concern".

Special Educational Needs Learners

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the success rates for special educational needs learners are for complete frameworks of (a) work-based learning, (b) further education, (c) adult and community learning and (d) school sixth forms levels 1 to 3 vocational programmes in each year since 1997. [111349]

Mr. Dhanda: Data on those assessed as having a special educational need (SEN) is not captured on the FE individualised learner record (ILR) databases that underpin the success rate figures produced by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). However, learner self-assessment of whether they have a learning difficulty, disability and/or health problem is recorded on the LSC's learner data for learners participating in work-based learning, further education and adult and community learning.

In 2004-05 the national success rate for learners in LSC-funded FE provision with a self-declared learning difficulty, disability and/or health problem was 73 per cent. compared to 74 per cent. for those without. Comparable success rates for those in work-based learning or adult and community learning have not been calculated.

The self-declared information captured on the ILR is very different from the SEN status attributed during compulsory education against a national legitimate and agreed framework, so an analysis using solely the LSC's learner data is deemed to be too inaccurate an approximation to provide a valid response to the question.

Learner data for school sixth forms is currently not collected on the LSC's ILR, so success rates can not be calculated. However, statisticians in the Department and the LSC are working to collect data which will enable the calculation of these success rates; a date for publication has not yet been agreed.

Special Educational Needs: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children in Hartlepool (a) have special educational needs and (b) were educated in special schools in each year since 1997. [131362]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is shown in the table.

Teachers: Termination of Employment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many primary and secondary school teachers who have left the profession before completing five years of teaching in the last 10 years have not returned to teaching; [131266]

(2) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers have left the profession before completing five years of teaching in the last 10 years, broken down by subject. [131267]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of full and part-time qualified teachers with less than five years recorded teaching service who left maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in each year between 1995-96 and 2004-05. The number of these teachers who are recorded as not being in maintained sector service at March 2005 is also shown and the head count number of teachers in service each year. These figures include teachers who retired and are the latest information available. The information is not available broken down by subject.

[1] Teachers leaving service will be counted in each year in which they left and therefore some will be counted more than once if they re-enter service and subsequently leave. An overall estimate of teachers leaving during the 10 year period is not therefore available. In addition teachers who have left service may not have done so permanently. This affects the later years in the series particularly. The increasing trend in teachers shown not returning to service does not necessarily reveal an actual increase in the proportion of teachers leaving service permanently with less than five years service.

Teachers: Training

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to increase funding for the training of designated teachers over the next three years. [131844]

Jim Knight: "Care Matters", published in October 2006, set out a range of measures to improve the lives of children in care. Of central importance is improving their education so that we give children in care the best possible chance in life. We propose to put the role of designated teacher on a statutory footing to ensure that all schools have a member of staff responsible for planning and co-ordinating support for the education of young people in care.

The Department for Education and Skills Comprehensive Spending Review settlement gives us an overall spending envelope for 2008-11 which will enable us to deliver our key priorities for children, young people and learners. Decisions to be taken over the coming months will allow us to make more precise announcements about the allocation of resources towards the summer. A forthcoming White Paper will set out how we will take forward measures to improve the education of children in care.

Textbooks: Visually Impaired

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to (a) increase the proportion of (i) mathematics and science GCSE textbooks and (ii) English textbooks available in large print or Braille and (b) make available versions of Key Stage 4 dictionaries and atlases accessible to those with a visual impairment. [133831]

Mr. Dhanda: Part IV of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 requires schools and local authorities to plan to improve access to the curriculum and written materials for disabled pupils over time. This includes all National Curriculum-taught subjects.

With regard to the availability of text books and materials in electronic and other formats for schools, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 721W, to my hon. Friend the Member for West Ham (Lyn Brown).

Truancy

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children were (a) stopped and (b) cautioned for truancy in (i) Taunton Deane, (ii) Somerset and (iii) England in each year since 1997. [133345]

Jim Knight: Figures from the twice-yearly nationally co-ordinated truancy sweeps that the Department ran until autumn 2006 show:

	Number of pupils stopped
	Somerset	England
Autumn 2002	95	20,554
Spring 2003	109	14,375

Autumn 2005	42	4,965
Spring 2006	20	4,589
Autumn 2006	72	4,840

Local authorities run sweeps at other times in response to local intelligence but the Department does not collect statistics from these sweeps. The Department does not collect statistics for either Wales or district councils.

Vocational Training: Pilot Schemes

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many qualifications have been awarded under the employer training pilots, broken down by (a) sector and (b) level. [131985]

Phil Hope: The Employer Training Pilots ran from September 2002 to March 2006, when the pilot areas became part of the Train To Gain programme. The offer in the pilots was of subsidised training leading to a qualification in basic skills or a first Level 2 qualification for employees. The following table from the Learning and Skills Council shows achievements by learners who started on the pilot before end-March 2006 (but excludes about 1,500 those still on their courses).

Employer's industrial sector and qualification type	Number of ETP achievements

TREASURY

Competition Law

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of debt outstanding on fines imposed by the European Commission for infringements of competition rules. [133539]

John Healey: Information concerning the amount of debt outstanding on fines imposed by the European Commission for infringements of competition rules is not held by HM Treasury.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what total sum of fines was imposed upon each EU member state in 2006 for infringements of competition rules; and how much has been written off. [133540]

John Healey: The infringements of competition rules that can result in fines pertain to companies and not member states.

Customs Officers: Manpower

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers are employed at UK ports; and how many are expected to be employed at UK ports in each of the next five years. [133391]

John Healey: Staff engaged on frontline operational activity at the frontier operate in a mobile, flexible and inteiligence-led manner. They are not, in the main, allocated to particular ports and their duties may involve them working at ports, airports or inland locations.

Some 4500 staff from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs' Detection directorate are employed on frontline operational duties at ports and airports. Other HMRC staff also attend ports and airports as part of their official duties.

HMRC plans to maintain the number of frontline staff employed at UK borders in 2007-08 but no firm figures are yet available for this year or beyond.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 737W, on departmental staff, if he will redact the personal information and place redacted copies of the staff magazine in the Library. [123618]

John Healey: I have nothing further to add to my answer of 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 737W.

Departments: Art Works

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what pieces of artwork valued at over £1,000 have been (a) purchased and (b) transferred to his Department's ownership since July 2006; and what the (i) name and (ii) value is of each. [133441]

John Healey: There have been no pieces of artwork purchased by, or transferred to, HM Treasury since July 2006.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what official (a) lunches, (b) dinners and (c) receptions he hosted in each of the last six months; and what the (i) location, (ii) total cost and (iii) purpose was of each event. [133325]

John Healey: The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EC Budget

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what estimate he has made of the amount of pre-financing made, as project advances, under the latest European Union budget that is due for recovery; what the UK's share is of that funding; and what percentage was reclaimed on such funding from last year's budget. [133552]

Ed Balls: HM Treasury does not make estimates for pre-financing. The amounts of pre-financing are recorded in the annual accounts of the European Communities, which are then reported on by the European Court of Auditors.

The latest figures available for pre-financing and recovery orders are for the 2005 financial year and may be found in the 'Final Annual Accounts of the European Communities 2005' at http://ec.europa.eu/budget/library/publications/fin_manag_account/fin_annual_acc_2005_en.pdf

EC Budget: Rebate

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much of the agreed rebate to be returned to the EU has been paid; and what the time scale is for future payments. [133447]

Ed Balls: None. As agreed at the December 2005 European Council, expenditure on economic development in the new member states will gradually be disapplied from the United Kingdom abatement calculation, from 2009. The following formula will be used for this purpose:

	Percentage
2009	20
2010	70
2011[1]	100

[1] Onwards.

EC Grants and Loans: Taxation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether campaigning organisations and think tanks that receive EU funding pay tax on such funding. [133545]

John Healey: There are no special tax rules which apply to campaigning organisations and think tanks. Where a grant, including a grant from the EU, is given to a non-trading body, then generally no tax liability will arise.

Energy

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what decisions on energy were made by the G7 Finance Ministers at their meeting in Washington DC on 13 April; and if he will (a) place in the Library and (b) post on his Department's website the final declaration of the G7 Ministers. [133384]

John Healey: The outcomes of the G7 discussions in Washington on energy and climate change matters are recorded in the official statement. The convention is for this to be published on the website of the finance ministry chairing the meeting, in this case the United States Treasury. This can be found at http://www.treasury.gov/press/releases/hp350.htm. The full text of the statement is attached for information; energy is covered in the third to last paragraph:

"In order to ensure energy security and to address climate change, we consider energy efficiency and the promotion of energy diversification to be important issues for both developed and developing economies. Diversification can include advanced energy technologies such as renewable, nuclear, and clean coal. We agree that market based policy measures should be effectively designed to meet specific conditions in each country."

Gift Aid

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how much was donated to British charities through Gift Aid between inception and 1999; how much of the Gift Aid Scheme has been donated (a) since 2000 and (b) since inception; and if he will make a statement. [134083]

Ed Balls: Information on donations using Gift Aid for each year from inception in 1990-91 up to 2005-06 is published on the HMRC website at

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/table10-3.xls

This table will be updated in June 2007.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what percentage employers' national insurance contributions form of the UK labour cost. [133588]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 April 21007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking the percentage that employers' national insurance contributions form of the UK labour cost. (133588)

Estimates of the various components of labour costs are provided by the ONS in its labour costs survey (LCS). LCS estimates are compiled every four years based on information from the annual survey of hours and earnings, labour force survey, annual business inquiry and other data sources. The most recent results were compiled for 2004 and cover sectors C-O of the UK standard industrial classification of economic activities 2003 and businesses with 10 or more employees. The 2004 LCS shows that the proportion of UK labour costs attributable to employers' national insurance contributions is 6.2 per cent.

Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many questions tabled by right hon. and hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other Departments since May 2005. [133795]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers answer all questions concerning matters for which we are responsible. Only questions which it would be more appropriate for other Ministers to answer are transferred to other Departments.

Since May 2005, six of the 400 questions tabled to the Treasury for oral answer have been transferred to other Departments.

Planning Gain Supplement

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the contracts which have been awarded for the provision of information technology in preparation for the introduction of the Planning Gain Supplement. [133744]

John Healey: No contracts have been awarded for the provision of information technology in preparation for the introduction of the Planning Gain Supplement.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent on preparations for the introduction of the Planning Gain Supplement. [133745]

John Healey: The Treasury, HM Revenue and Customs, and the Department for Communities and Local Government have undertaken preliminary work to develop and explore the feasibility of a Planning Gain Supplement since 2004. This has included the publication of one consultation document alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report and three consultation documents alongside the 2006 pre-Budget report. The costs incurred have been borne by the respective Departments as part of the normal policy development process.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what commission and consultancy fees have been paid to private finance initiative advisers since 1997. [133557]

John Healey: The Treasury does not collate this information centrally.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward proposals enabling the National Audit Office to examine the books of private finance initiative providers. [133587]

John Healey: In 2006 the Government introduced provisions giving the National Audit Office the right to examine all such documentation as it may reasonably require from the companies involved in PFI contracts as set out in paragraphs 26.7.1 and 26.9.3 of the Standardisation of PFI Contacts (Version 4).

Public Sector: Land

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration he has given to whether social and community benefits should carry equal weight in the sale of public sector land as achieving the best price. [133690]

John Healey: In general, the Government are always interested in securing the greatest value for money for the taxpayer. Government Accounting's General Principles (24.2.1) exhorts:

> "Once surplus assets have been identified, they should be disposed of as quickly as possible subject to value for money considerations."

Value for money bears on nearly all aspects of deployment of public resources: procurement, asset management, disposals, administrative systems and financing arrangements such as leases and PFI transactions. It means finding solutions which achieve the best mix of quality and effectiveness for the least outlay.

However, all aspects of a transaction or proposed transaction, financial or otherwise, should be first taken fully into account, comprising any potential auxiliary or tangential benefit, including possible social and community benefits that may be attendant upon the issue, before the terms of a disposal, or other physical conveyance, are concluded.

The Surplus Public Sector Land Taskforce was set up as part of the Government's response to the Barker Review of Housing Supply to examine cost-effective options for accelerating the release of public sector land in order to increase housing supply.

Specifically with regard to local authority disposals, the Government's policy is that local authorities and other public bodies should dispose of surplus land wherever possible. Generally it is expected that land should be sold for the best consideration reasonably obtainable. But it is recognised that there are circumstances in which a local authority may consider it appropriate to dispose of land at an undervalue.

The General Disposal Consent issued in August 2003 in ODPM Circular 06/2003 enables local authorities to make land disposals which will contribute to the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of an area at less than best consideration.

Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what targets are in place to ensure that members of the public receive a timely response to correspondence to Inland Revenue offices. [133601]

John Healey: HMRC aims to deal with 80 per cent. of general correspondence within 15 working days of receipt and 95 per cent. within 40 working days.

Revenue and Customs: Glasgow

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will make a statement on the backlog at the Inland Revenue office in Glasgow; [133599]

(2) whether people applying to the Inland Revenue office in Glasgow to reclaim a tax overpayment are compensated for lost interest due to the backlog; and if he will make a statement. [133600]

John Healey: Centre 1, HMRC's main processing office in the Glasgow area, receives large volumes of customer correspondence so there is inevitably work in progress at any time. There are no significant backlogs of work at Centre 1.

There are statutory provisions for making a repayment "supplement" in addition to a tax repayment in certain circumstances. HMRC's approach to compensation and redress is set out in its Code of Practice COP1 "Putting Things Right".

Revenue and Customs: Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what studies have been made of the feasibility of transferring HM Revenue and Customs' criminal investigative function to the Serious Organised Crime Agency. [133751]

John Healey: There have been no studies undertaken into the feasibility of transferring HM Revenue and Customs' criminal investigative function to the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

Smuggling

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what resources HM Revenue and Customs plans to allocate for making seizures of prohibited and restricted items at UK ports in each of the next five years. [133392]

John Healey: Information is not available in the format requested as HM Revenue and Customs does not specifically allocate resources to making seizures of prohibited and restricted goods. HMRC resources allocated to anti-smuggling work are multi-functional and are deployed flexibly against priorities that are subject to change at any time.

Tax Allowances

Harry Cohen: To ask Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment has been made of the appropriateness of tax breaks for (a) operations based on debt and (b) self-employment and sub-contracting which place those arrangements at an advantage over those for direct employment; and if he will make a statement. [133282]

Ed Balls: The Government monitor all aspects of the tax system on an ongoing basis and policy changes were announced in the recent Budget. In addition, on 8 March I announced a review of the current tax deductibility rules applying to the use of shareholder debt where it replaces the equity element in highly leveraged deals in the light of market developments. The review aims to ensure that existing rules are working as intended, consistent with the Government's focus on ensuring that commercial decisions are taken on a level playing field, to maximise efficient working of the investment chain.

Taxation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what his Department's most recent estimate is of the tax gap; and how the Treasury model is used to estimate the amounts. [133560]

Ed Balls: There are no reliable estimates of the total tax gap. However, estimates of revenue losses in indirect taxes are available and are reported in 'Measuring Indirect Tax Losses - 2006', which is published alongside the PBR and can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Taxation: Electric Vehicles

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax is paid on the purchase of a new (a) Toyota Prius and (b) Honda Accord hybrid car. [132819]

John Healey: [pursuant to the reply, 25 April 2007, Official Report, c.1163W]: The second paragraph of my answer stated that

"These vehicles are therefore subject to band B CO_2 emissions graduated Vehicle Excise Duty. In Budget 2007 the Chancellor built on Budget 2006 changes by further reducing this rate to £35 and freezing it until 2010-11."

My answer should have said

"These vehicles are therefore subject to the Alternative Fuel Car band B CO_2 emissions graduated Vehicle Excise Duty rate. In Budget 2007 the Chancellor built on Budget 2006 changes by further reducing this rate from £30 to £15 and freezing it until 2010-11."

I very much regret this inadvertent error.

Taxation: Personal Savings

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, whether his Department has any proposals for strengthening the EU savings tax directive. [133559]

Ed Balls: We have no proposals at present. A review will take place, in accordance with the directive, in 2008.

Taxation: Self-Assessment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was received in fines for the late submission of self-assessment tax forms in each of the last nine years. [133327]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to a similar question from the hon. Member for Wellingborough (Mr. Bone) on 10 January 2006, Official Report, column 3138W.

Penalties paid for the year to end of October 2005 was £39.40 million.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were fined for late submission of self-assessment tax forms in each of the last nine years. [133328]

Ed Balls: The total numbers of people to whom HM Revenue and Customs issued Late Filing Penalties in each of the last four years are as detailed in the following table. This information is not available prior to 2003-04.

	Number
2006-07	1,582,446
2005-06	1,468,476
2004-05	1,482,044
2003-04	1,424,416

A self assessment taxpayer may receive more than one penalty in each year. The table shows the total number of penalty notices issued less the number of penalties cancelled in each year.

Unemployment

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the rate of youth unemployment was in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available, broken down by region; what the unemployment rate was for all age groups in each region in each year; and if he will make a statement. [133458]

John Healey [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what has been the rate of youth unemployment in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available, broken down into regions and how these figures compare with the unemployment rate for all age groups. (133458)

For the purpose of this Parliamentary Question, we have taken 'youth' to mean people aged 16-24 years. Estimates of unemployment rates for people aged 16 to 24 by region are not available. Table 1, attached, gives unemployment rates for people aged 16 to 24 for the United Kingdom, as well as unemployment rates for people 16 and over, broken down by region.

This information is for the 3 months ending December each year from 1997 to 2006 (estimates for 1998 and 2000 are not available). The data are not seasonally adjusted.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many 18 to 24-year-olds were (a) employed and (b) unemployed in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available, broken down by region; and if he will make a statement. [133459]

John Healey [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what provisions on confidentiality there are in the contract between Capgemini and Cole Layer Trumble (CLT) to provide a server version of OASIS and workflow software for the Valuation Office Agency. [130578]

Mr. Timms: The normal ASPIRE terms and conditions, which prohibit CLT from publicising details of the agreement and restrict the passing on of any confidential information to third parties, are contained in this contract.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1593W, on welfare tax credits, what guidance has been given to those administering tax credits claims affected by the part of the manual referring to undisclosed partners. [133348]

Mr. Timms: Chapter 15 of the Claimant Compliance Manual provides guidance on how to deal with a case where HMRC discovers that a claimant has not disclosed that they have a partner. The Claimant Compliance Manual is available on HMRC's website at www.hmrc.gov.uk. Compliance staff refer to that guidance where a case meets the criteria.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departments: Tribal Group

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what contracts her Department awarded to (a) Geronimo Communications Ltd. and (b) its parent company Tribal Group plc. in each of the last three years; and what the cost was of each contract. [133743]

Angela E. Smith: The Department has not awarded any contracts to Geronimo Communications Ltd. in the last three years. A number of contracts have been awarded to Tribal Group though the detail of the spend for each contract could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However the total spend with Tribal Group over the last three years is as follows:

2004-05	378,619
2005-06	622,093
2006-07	587,410

Housing: Construction

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on red ash testing; and what guidance she has issued on red ash testing and floor replacement. [131984]

Angela E. Smith: Over a number of years the Department has received representation from a number of homeowners who have properties constructed using red ash. In the past the Communities and Local Government has not issued technical guidance specific to this issue but has referred individuals to related documents published by the Building Research Establishment. Work on a new guidance document 'Guidance for assessing sulphate bearing hardcore under domestic buildings' will be completed shortly and this guidance will then be made available.

Local Government

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) events, (b) engagements and (c) meetings (i) she, (ii) other Ministers in her Department and (iii) staff in her Department attended with (A) councillors and (B) officials of authorities bidding for unitary status between 1 February and 16 April 2007. [133142]

Mr. Woolas: My colleagues and I and officials frequently meet members and officers of councils from across the country which may include councils that either have made unitary proposals or would be affected by such proposals.

Members: Correspondence

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to the letter of 21 March 2007 from the hon. Member for Maidstone and The Weald. [133892]

Ruth Kelly: I apologise for the delay in responding to the right hon. Member's letter.

I will respond to the letter shortly.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Minister of State expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 23 February 2007, on the Sustainable Communities Bill. [134604]

Mr. Woolas: I responded to the hon. Member's letter on 19 March 2007. I have arranged for a copy of that letter to be resent.

Regional Planning and Development: Gloucestershire

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what amendments affecting Gloucestershire were made to the South West Regional Spatial Strategy following the consultation in 2006; and whether such amendments were recommended by (a) Assembly officers, (b) the Government Office of the South West, (c) the South West Regional Development Agency, (d) her Department, (e) local authorities, (f) commercial interests, (g) community representatives and (h) members of the public. [134462]

Meg Munn: No amendments have been made to the draft South West Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) following the consultation in 2006 when it was submitted to the Secretary of State for her consideration. The draft RSS is at an Examination-in-Public now and so any proposed changes will be considered in the light of this.

Unitary Councils

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) she and (b) other Ministers in her Department met representatives from (i) any council that has bid for unitary status and (ii) any councils affected by such bids between October 2006 and 27 March 2007. [131048]

Angela E. Smith: My colleagues and I frequently meet members of councils from across the country which may include councils that either have made unitary proposals or would be affected by such proposals.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish an assessment of the 26 proposals for future unitary structures which have been submitted to her Department by local authorities against the criteria in her October 2006 invitation. [132583]

Mr. Woolas: The reasons for my right hon. Friend's decisions are set out in the decision letters of 27 March 2007. These can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1509144

Copies of the letters have been placed in the Library of the House.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Cultural Heritage: Iraq

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funds have been allocated by her Department to protect sites of cultural heritage in Iraq since 2003; and if she will make a statement. [133853]

Tessa Jowell: My Department's response to the heritage crisis in Iraq has been via the bodies which it funds, most notably the British Museum. The DCMS has and will continue to support the museum's work in this area.

The British Museum has: provided expertise and training on conservation and site management;

sent two archaeologists to Iraq who were instrumental in co-ordinating the quick supply of a wide range of desperately needed materials and equipment to the Baghdad Museum; and arranged and managed (with additional funding of £15,000 from the DCMS) a project that allowed three interns coming from the Iraqi Ministry of Culture to learn the skills necessary for the future management of the Babylon archaeological site.

In addition to the work of the British Museum, the British Library has also provided expertise and support. It was able to work with the Iraq National Library and Archive, supplying surrogate material to replace that which was lost during the conflict.

Gambling Act 2005

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the measures her Department has put in place to address in the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 the project management weaknesses highlighted in paragraphs 51 to 54 of the Better Regulation Commission's Report on the Implementation of the Licensing Act 2003. [132800]

Tessa Jowell: In response to the advice set out at paragraphs 51 to 54 of the Better Regulation Commissioner's Report on the Implementation of the Licensing Act 2003, the Department has put in place the following measures:

robust programme management arrangements that draw on lessons learned from implementing the Licensing Act 2003;

a ministerial commitment, which has been honoured, to local authorities that there would be a period of three months between laying of relevant secondary legislation and the assumption of their new duties; provision for a system of "continuation rights" designed to give those businesses that take advantage of the opportunity reassurance about their ability to operate legally in the event that applications are not processed in time for the coming into force of the new regime.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has used a cross-sector pilot group to test the application requirements and forms for the licences required by the Gambling Act 2005 as recommended by the Better Regulation Commissioner's Report on the Implementation of the Licensing Act 2003. [132801]

Tessa Jowell: In light of the Better Regulation Commission's recommendations, the Department and the Gambling Commission piloted all application and other forms with industry representatives and licensing authorities. The original proposals were modified significantly as a result of the comments received. The Department and the Gambling Commission held consultative meetings on other aspects of the licensing regime to ensure that we drew on existing best practice wherever possible as well as lessons learned from implementing the Licensing Act 2003.

Licensing Act 2003

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department has taken to implement the recommendations of the Better Regulation Commission's report on the Implementation of the Licensing Act 2003; and if she will make a statement. [132799]

Tessa Jowell: Following a meeting in October, the Minister for Creative Industries and Tourism agreed with the chairman of the Better Regulation Commission measures to progress the issues raised in the commission's report. These measures were incorporated into the Department's Better Regulation Simplification Plan which was published in December 2006. Recommendations such as the discretion to correct minor errors on application forms and clarifying the flexibility on the scale to be used in plans are being addressed in the revision of statutory Guidance to licensing authorities. We expect to publish revised Guidance in the early summer.

We have also been engaging in pre-consultation with key stakeholders prior to bringing forward proposals later this year for public consultations on minor variations of licences and the removal of the designated premises supervisor requirement for village halls.

Olympic Games

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's latest estimate is of expenditure on the Olympic Games in each year from 2006-07 to 2012-13; and how much money has been spent in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [109851]

Tessa Jowell: Expenditure by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) in 2006-07 is forecast to be £237 million. The ODA's budget for 2007-08 is £538 million.

Spending by the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) in 2006-07 is forecast to be £25 million and the budget for 2007-08 is £57 million. This will be funded from commercial finance. LOCOG's operational lifetime budget is estimated to be circa £2 billion which is financed from private sources.

During the bid period 2003-05 the bid company London 2012 Ltd. spent £28 million. In addition to this the London Development Agency and DCMS contributed, in total, a further £10 million supporting the bid and developing the master plan for the Lower Lea Valley. This cost was outside the Public Sector Funding Package and was partly met by private funding.

In 2005-06 the Interim ODA spent £41 million and the LOCOG spent around £9 million.

On 15 March 2007 I announced an overall budget for the ODA of up to £5.3 billion for expenditure, excluding tax. Work is in progress, in conjunction with the ODA, to establish the budget profiles for 2008-09 and beyond.

DEFENCE

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of the total number of soldiers who have served in Iraq since the commencement of the war in Iraq have been from the ranks of the Territorial Army. [131640]

Mr. Ingram: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, it is possible to estimate that the proportion has fluctuated between approximately 6 per cent. currently to a high of 18 per cent. in 2003. These figures count full-time reserve service personnel within Territorial Army numbers.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Energy

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what instructions are issued to staff in her Department on shutting down computers at night; and what other procedures are in place to ensure computers are shut down. [134864]

Edward Miliband: All staff, contractors and security guards are instructed to switch off PCs and monitors when not in use. This is part of a wider and continuing sustainable development programme, which also includes night time energy audits of buildings.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134055]

Hilary Armstrong: All paper used for photocopying is 100 per cent. recycled with a post-consumer waste content of 100 per cent. The vast majority of paper supplied for printed publications is 100 per cent. recycled with a post-consumer waste content of 75 per cent.

Orders and Regulations

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many regulations were repealed in each year since 1997. [133218]

Hilary Armstrong: Regulations have been repealed in a variety of ways including through primary legislation and orders under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 and its predecessor the Deregulation and Contracting Out Act 1994.

Information on the total number of regulations repealed since 1997 in not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

35 Regulatory Reform Orders were passed under the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 simplifying a range of legislation. For example the Regulatory Safety (Fire Safety) Order 2005 replaced over 50 pieces of legislation with one new set of rules. The Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 repealed the Regulatory Reform Act. Several Legislative Reform Orders are currently at an early stage of development and will also include the repeal of regulations.

Sports: Young People

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1753W, on the Youth Sport Trust, what part the Chairman of v played in the Chancellor's announcement on 7 February of the Youth Trust Programme. [133657]

Edward Miliband: The chair of v, Ron Aldridge, played no role in the Chancellor's announcement.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

City Academies: Pupil Exclusions

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) temporary and (b) permanent exclusions there were from academies in the last two years for which data is available; and for what reasons pupils were excluded. [128508]

Academies: Number and percentage of permanent exclusions[1] 2003/04 and 2004/05—England

	2003/04	2004/05
Number of permanent exclusions	90	100
Percentage of school population[2]	0.83	0.67

Data on fixed period exclusions and the reason for exclusion relating to the 2003/04 and 2004/05 school years have been derived from Termly Exclusions Survey returns. The scope of this survey did not extend to academies.

The Termly Exclusions Survey has now discontinued and the School Census has started to collect information on fixed period exclusions and reasons for exclusion in addition to the information on permanent exclusions it previously collected. First findings relating to the 2005/06 school year are expected to be available in June 2007.

Extracurricular Activities: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many places were available in out-of-school clubs for (a) primary and (b) secondary school age children in each London local authority in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [128656]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested about child care places broken down by primary and secondary school age children is not collected. The available information on the number of registered child care places for children under eight is shown in the table.

The latest figures on registered child care provider and places are available on the following website:

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many students achieved five GCSEs at grade C or above including English, mathematics and science in each year since 1997; [127840]

(2) how many students achieved five GCSEs at grade C or above including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language in each year since 1997. [127841]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the requested information for 15-year-old[1] pupils since 1997.

Grandparents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects to answer question 133014, on grandparents, tabled by the hon. Member for Birkenhead on 17 April. [134500]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer my right hon. Friend to the reply given on 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1021W.

Local Education Authorities: Private Finance Initiative

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which local education authorities have undertaken a review of their school private finance initiative contracts in the last three years; and how many reviews resulted in those contracts being terminated. [134464]

Jim Knight: Private finance initiative (PFI) contracts are made between local authorities and the private sector partner, following a due procurement procedure which includes consideration of design and value for money. The Department is not a partner to the contracts and is not included in reviews. We are aware of only one schools PFI contract which has been terminated, which was a single school contract for the Frances Bardsley School for Girls in Romford.

Primary Education: Sussex

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much money he expects to make available to East Sussex county council between now and 2010 to spend on capital projects relating to rural primary schools; and how much of that funding will be allocated specifically for the renovation of existing buildings. [134497]

Jim Knight: Planned school capital allocations to East Sussex county council in 2007-08 and to schools in its area amount to £17,526,000. Allocations to local authorities for the financial years 2008-10 will be notified later this year. In addition, for 2007-08, East Sussex has taken advantage of repayable advances of £2,755,000 for maintained schools and £380,000 for voluntary-aided schools.

A long-term primary school programme, worth £500 million in 2009-10, will be rolled out with the aim of improving the condition of primary schools throughout the country. Details of this are being worked on at the present time.

The Department relies on local authorities to prioritise funding between schools and does not allocate funding specifically for rural schools or for renovation.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of pupils in (a) Hartlepool, (b) Tees Valley sub-region, (c) the North East region and (d) England and Wales were permanently excluded from (i) primary schools and (ii) secondary schools in each of the last 10 years. [130890]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the tables.

For information on Wales, I refer the hon. Member to the Welsh Assembly.

Pupil Exclusions: Drugs

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many secondary pupils were excluded from school because of drugs misuse in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [128450]

Jim Knight: The available information is shown in the table.

Only two years of data relating to the reason for exclusion are currently available. The first year for which information on the reason for exclusion is available relates to the 2003/04 academic year. Exclusions data for 2004/05 academic year were published in June 2006. Information on exclusions during the 2005/06 academic year is expected to be available in June 2007.

There are 12 categories describing the various reasons for exclusion, one of which relates to involvement with drugs and alcohol.

DfES guidance states that a head teacher can exclude a pupil permanently for supplying an illegal drug and that the Secretary of State would not normally expect the governing body or an appeal panel to reinstate such a pupil. Illegal drugs have no place in schools and harm children's learning, health and behaviour. We have made clear that we support head teachers and governing bodies together with local partners including the police in their efforts to tackle illegal drugs in schools.

Pupil Exclusions: Offensive Weapons

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were excluded (a) temporarily and (b) permanently for bringing an offensive weapon to school in each year between 1997 and 2006. [122381]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not available.

Only two years of data relating to the reason for exclusion are currently available. The first year for which information on the reason for exclusion is available relates to the 2003/04 academic year. Exclusions data for 2004/05 academic year were published in June 2006.

Tables showing the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions by the reason for exclusion in 2003/04 and 2004/05 have been placed in the Library. There is not a specific category relating to offensive weapons.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many assaults on (a) teacher staff and (b) non-teaching staff were perpetrated by pupils in the (i) primary sector and (ii) secondary sector in the Peterborough local education authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [129419]

Jim Knight: The number of assaults on staff in schools is not collected centrally.

From the academic year 2003/04, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against an adult'.

The following table provides the number of fixed period and permanent exclusions from maintained primary and secondary schools in Peterborough local authority for assault against an adult.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many assaults on (a) teaching and (b) non-teaching staff were perpetrated by pupils in the (i) primary and (ii) secondary sector in Eastbourne in each year since 1997. [130949]

Jim Knight: The number of assaults on staff in schools is not collected centrally.

From the academic year 2003/04, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against an adult'.

The table provides the number of fixed period and permanent exclusions from maintained primary and secondary schools in Eastbourne parliamentary constituency for assault against an adult.

Schools: Standards

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools in England were accorded special measures status in each year between 1997 and 2006; and how many pupils attended such schools in each year. [130988]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of schools that were placed in special measures in each academic year between 1997 and 2006.

	Primary	Secondary	Special	PRU	Total
1997/98	210	43	32	5	290
1998/99	142	29	17	6	194

Schools: Wycombe

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools in Wycombe constituency have received Excellence in Cities money since 2001; and how much funding each school received. [127372]

Jim Knight [holding answer 13 March 2007]: The High Wycombe Excellence Cluster initially consisted of 14 schools and has received over £3.3 million in Excellence in Cities funding since 2002.

The final decisions on funding allocations to schools were made locally, (by the headteachers and local authority acting in partnership), to ensure that local knowledge informed the targeting of the resources. As the Department does not keep records of individual school allocations, we are unable to say precisely how much funding schools received.

Schools: Yorkshire

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many incidents of (a) pupil on pupil and (b) pupil on teacher violence occurred in each of the state secondary schools in Yorkshire in each of the last two years. [129711]

Jim Knight: The number of incidents of violence towards staff and pupils in schools is not collected centrally.

From the academic year 2003/04, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against a pupil' and 'physical assault against an adult'.

A summary table shows the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions from maintained secondary schools in the Yorkshire and Humber region for physical assault against a pupil or an adult. In addition a school level table has been placed in the Library.

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Chorley constituency have a teacher with a formal music qualification. [125250]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

In 2002 an estimated 6,300 full-time teachers were teaching music in maintained schools in England. Of these, an estimated 87 per cent. (4 percentage points) held a Post A level qualification in music. The source of this information is the 2002 Secondary School Curriculum and Staffing Survey and is the latest available.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Air Pollution: Population

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the principal population projections of the Government Actuary's Department for 2031, what estimate he has made of the effect of the expected increase in the UK's population on UK carbon emissions; and if he will make a statement. [133238]

Ian Pearson: UK carbon dioxide emissions projections include the impact of predicted population growth. Updated projections will be available shortly in the forthcoming Energy White Paper.

Biofuels: Subsidies

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the subsidies which are paid to encourage the growing of biofuels. [132772]

Ian Pearson: The EU's annual €45/ha Energy Aid payment is available to farmers for purpose-grown biofuel crops grown on non set-aside land. Farmers can also receive the Single Payment for purpose-grown biofuel crops on set-aside or where the EU's €45 per hectare energy aid payment is claimed for crops on non set-aside land.

Support for energy crops is also provided by Research and Development funding from DEFRA to increase yields and reduce inputs.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what consultations he has had with public health experts on the possible health impact associated with the reduction of waste bin collection from domestic residences from once a week to once a fortnight or longer intervals; [133670]

(2) what assessment he has made of the possible health implications of the reduction of the domestic residence waste bin collection system from a weekly to a two or three weekly basis. [133671]

Mr. Bradshaw: An independent, DEFRA-funded research study, carried out by Enviros Consulting and Cranfield University, identified no evidence of adverse health impacts resulting from alternate weekly collection (AWC) of household waste.

Waste management, inside and outside the home, carries small health risks. Simple precautions mitigate these risks and there is no evidence that they are increased by AWC of household waste.

Electronic Equipment: Recycling

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimates his Department has made of the likely effect of implementation of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive on recycling levels of the relevant materials. [134383]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government expects the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations, which transpose the WEEE Directive, to lead to an increase in the recycling of metals, plastics and other materials found in WEEE. However, DEFRA has not carried out an assessment to quantify the expected increase.

The Department of Trade and Industry lead on the implementation of the WEEE Directive.

Flood Control: Finance

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much he estimates his Department will need to spend on flood defences in (a) Tamworth constituency, (b) Staffordshire and (c) England in each of the next five years. [133416]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA has policy responsibility for flood risk management in England only. The Environment Agency (EA) is the principal operating authority and estimates spending of £5.6 million on the Tamworth Flood Alleviation Scheme. The EA's five-year capital works programme also includes the Scotch Brook - Stone scheme at an estimated cost of £1.7 million. A number of other potential schemes have also been identified in Staffordshire but have yet to be evaluated. In addition to its capital programme, the EA has allocated £892,000 in 2007-08 for work on non-routine projects within the county to be funded by levies on local authorities or revenue.

DEFRA grant to all operating authorities in 2007-08 will be in excess of £500 million including grant for local authority coast protection projects which often provide significant flood risk benefits. Future departmental funding for flood risk management is being considered in the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

Flood Control: Sea Defences

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Environment Agency expects to publish guidance to landowners on the maintenance of sea defences. [132794]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency plans to publish guidance to landowners on the maintenance of sea defences in June.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how individuals may obtain a home energy check; how much such a check costs; and if he will make a statement. [133283]

Ian Pearson: The Energy Saving Trust provides home energy checks to householders. These can be completed on the Trust's website or by calling into one of its local Energy Efficiency Advice Centres, which provide impartial advice on saving energy in the home. Home energy checks are free to householders.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the Warm Front scheme targets hard-to-reach and hard-to-treat households. [134610]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA closely monitors Eaga plc's activities regarding the delivery of the Warm Front Scheme including activities for those living in homes which are hard to treat or who are harder to reach. For example, Eaga plc work closely with a range of community and voluntary organisations at a local level to help reach vulnerable households.

My Department is currently considering what additional measures can be provided for those who live in homes which cannot be assisted with the range of energy efficiency and heating measures currently offered by the scheme.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Minister of State expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 15 March 2007, on the Sahara Desert and energy. [134606]

Ian Pearson: The hon. Member's letter has been transferred to the Department of Trade and Industry which has policy responsibility for the energy issue.

Recycling

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many local authorities are in compliance with the requirement of the Household Waste Recycling Act 2003 to collect at least two types of recycled material. [130644]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the Household Waste Recycling Act 2003, all local authorities in England are required to collect at least two types of recyclable waste from all households in their area by the end of 2010.

The latest results from the Audit Commission's Best Value Performance Indicator (BV 91b) for 2005-06 show that 125 authorities (35 per cent. of the 354 with a waste collection responsibility) provided a collection service of two or more materials for recycling from all of their households. 75 per cent. of authorities provided this service to at least 90 per cent. of their households.

Water: Storage

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage water companies to provide more storage capacity. [133776]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency has a duty to secure the proper use of water resources. Water companies have duties to maintain adequate supplies of water and several companies have provision in their water resource plans to enlarge existing reservoirs or construct new ones. These proposals were set out in the 25 year water resources plans they prepared in 2004. The Environment Agency advised Ministers about the appropriateness of these proposals, and other measures to ensure security of supply, in its report "Maintaining water supply", which was published in July 2004.

It would be inappropriate for Ministers to encourage water companies to pursue particular options, since specific proposals may come before us for determination or on appeal.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

British Overseas Territories

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the occasions in the last 30 years on which members of the indigenous population of a UK Overseas Territory have been expelled from their home in respect of which no legal proceedings are active; and what the dates and circumstances were of each such case. [132424]

Mr. Hoon: There have been no occasions in the last 30 years on which members of the indigenous population of a UK Overseas Territory have been expelled from their home in respect of which no legal proceedings are active.

Cuba: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations the Government has made to the United Nations Human Rights Council on human rights in Cuba. [132608]

Mr. Hoon: At the Human Rights Council's (HRC) second regular session in September 2006, the UK—both nationally and through the EU—actively participated in interactive dialogues with more than 40 UN Special Rapporteurs on the basis of their annual reports. During this process we drew particular attention to the human rights situations in a number of countries, including Cuba.

It is anticipated that the 2007 annual report issued by the Special Rapporteur on Cuba will be discussed at the June session of the HRC. The EU again plans to participate in this dialogue, with the objective of highlighting the serious concerns it has over the human rights situation in Cuba. In addition, as a member of HRC, Cuba will be among the first countries to undergo Universal Periodic Review, a mechanism for evaluating each country's human rights standards. The UK supports this system.

Global Opportunities Fund

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) funding and (b) other resources have been (i) committed in each of the last three financial years and (ii) pledged for each of the next three financial years to the Global Opportunities Fund. [133568]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested by the hon. Member is provided in the table as follows.

Name of Global Opportunities Fund (GOF)	GOF allocation (£ million) 2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Afghan counter narcotics [1]	—	16.3	16.3
Climate Change and Energy	4.9	4.7	4.7
Counter Terrorism	7.3	8.8	8.8
Drugs and Crime [1]	—	6.0	6.0
Economic Governance	4.5	5.0	5.0
Engaging with the Islamic World	9.6	8.2	8.2
Human Rights [2]	—	—	3.1
Migration [1,3]	—	1.5	1.5
Overseas Territories [1]	—	5.0	5.0
Reuniting Europe	5.1	5.5	6.1
Sustainable Development [2]	5.0	4.7	1.6

[1] The Afghan counter narcotics, Drugs and Crime, Migration and Overseas Territories programmes were brought under the GOF umbrella in 2006-07.

[2] Human Rights projects were funded under the Sustainable Development programme until 2007-08.

[3] 2007-08 allocation may be increased subject to outcome of ongoing discussions.

To support GOF programmes overseas, there is a network of 100 project officers at posts costing £1.3 million.

GOF programme allocations for the next three financial years will depend on the outcome of the ongoing negotiations with HM Treasury as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Resource Allocation Round that will flow from that. We should know the outcome of the CSR in the autumn.

Latin America: Global Opportunities Fund

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Global Opportunities Fund in Latin America; and if she will make a statement. [133569]

Mr. Hoon: There is no Global Opportunities Fund (GOF) programme specifically dedicated to Latin America; GOF programmes are generally organised by theme rather than geography. The following GOF programmes have projects in Latin America: Climate Change and Energy, Drugs and Crime, Economic Governance, Human Rights and Sustainable Development.

GOF-funded projects have achieved some notable recent successes in Latin America. Our Embassy in Mexico City, along with the British Council, received an award in October 2006 from then President Fox for their GOF-funded governance work. In Colombia, GOF projects have focussed on strengthening the prosecution service and implementation of the Justice and Peace Law. One project, part-funded by GOF and aimed at improving the case handling of and protection for child victims of sexual exploitation, received a UN21 Commendation for outstanding field projects. Out of 4,500 project nominations, only 20 received an award.

North Korea: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the status of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea's nuclear disarmament. [134614]

Dr. Howells: We assess that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) has not fulfilled its commitments in Phase one of the Six Party Talks, Initial Actions for the Implementation of the September 2005 Joint Statement. The Joint Statement obliged the DPRK to abandon all its nuclear weapons and nuclear programmes. Phase one set a deadline of 60 days, from the 13 February, for North Korea to shut down and seal the Yongbyon nuclear facility and to re-admit International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) inspectors. It also called for North Korea to discuss with other parties to the talks, a list of all its nuclear programmes including plutonium already extracted from Yongbyon. We note with concern that the DPRK has not carried out these undertakings within the agreed timeframe. However, we welcomed the visit by the IAEA Director, Dr. Mohamed El Baradei, on 13-14 March to discuss preparations for the re-admittance of IAEA inspectors.

HEALTH

Ambulance Services: North East Region

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average response time was for ambulances to reach patients in (a) North Yorkshire, (b) County Durham and (c) Cumbria in the latest period for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [133130]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not collect information of the average response times by ambulance trust. It does, however, collect data from national health service ambulance trusts which allow response time standards to be monitored. The response times for the ambulance services for the Cumbria, North Yorkshire and County Durham areas are shown in the following table.

Category A calls, response within 8 minutes and 19 minutes, by ambulance trusts 2005-06

	Percentage
	Within 8 minutes	Within 19 minutes
Cumbria Ambulance Service Trust	74.4	93.3
North East Ambulance Service Trust	75.3	99.0
Tees, East and North Yorkshire Ambulance Trust	75.0	97.5

Note:
In 2005-06 there were some inconsistencies in the measurement of the category A response times (eight minutes) for six ambulance trusts, this included Cumbria Ambulance Service.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions her Department has had with the Screening Advisory Committee on the effectiveness of extending the NHS Breast Screening Programme's upper age limit beyond 70 years. [134378]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The evidence for inviting women aged over 70 on a population basis is not clear. That is why research has been commissioned on behalf of the Advisory Committee on Breast Cancer Screening (ACBCS) to bring more clarity to this area. A modelling exercise has been carried out to look at the potential benefits, and a draft final report has been produced and peer reviewed. The research team have now amended the report based on the peer review comments, and this report will now be discussed by the ACBCS at their next meeting in the summer. The ACBCS will advise on a way forward.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of women diagnosed with breast cancer received an HER2 test in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what steps her Department is taking to monitor the implementation of the Government commitment that all women diagnosed with breast cancer should receive a HER2 test. [134379]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely collect figures on the number of breast cancer patients who are tested for HER2.

As set out in the written ministerial statement of 17 July 2006, Official Report, column 5WS, 28 out of the then 34 cancer networks reported that they were HER-2 testing all women diagnosed with early stage breast cancer. The remaining six reported that they would be testing all these women by the end of October 2006. These networks have since reported that they are now HER-2 testing all women with early breast cancer.

No further progress reports have been requested.

Care Homes: Northamptonshire

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care homes in Northamptonshire received Dignity in Care grants in 2006. [134436]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No Dignity in Care grants to care homes were awarded in 2006.

These grants, announced in November 2006, are to be made available during 2007-08. The grants will support minor improvements to the environment to enhance the dignity and quality of life of older residents. Effective use of the grants will help older people living in care homes to do so with dignity, and enable care home providers to be more responsive to the needs of their older residents.

The grants are being paid to local authorities under section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003. Grant allocations will be made to local authorities in May 2007, subject to agreement by the Department of spending proposals submitted by each authority. The local authority will arrange the distribution of the capital to individual care home providers in accordance with their submission.

We are currently considering the spending plan submitted by Northamptonshire county council, which proposes distributing their grant allocation of £805,000 among 86 care homes.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 330W, on colorectal cancer: screening, how many testing kits were sent out each month from April 2006 to February 2007 in each of the 49 primary care trusts covered by the programme. [134236]

Notes: This information is based on the new configuration of PCTs.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 330W, on colorectal cancer: screening, whether responsibility for the screening programme in 2007-08 resides with strategic health authorities or primary care trusts; and what measures are in place to ensure that the funding provided by her Department is used for the purpose of colorectal cancer screening. [134237]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 26 April 2007]: Funding for the national health service bowel cancer screening programme from the strategic health authority (SHA) bundle was allocated to Yorkshire and the Humber SHA to manage on behalf of all 10 SHAs in England. NHS Cancer Screening Programmes currently manage the budget on behalf of Yorkshire and the Humber SHA through a service level agreement.

NHS Cancer Screening Programmes make payments directly to NHS trusts who host the bowel cancer screening hubs and local screening centres. The payments are made on a population served basis.

It is for SHAs working in partnership with their primary care trusts (PCTs) and local stakeholders to organise and provide services for their local populations. SHAs were asked to bid for their local endoscopy services to become local screening centres as part of the second wave of the bowel cancer screening programme for 2007-08. These bids have been assessed, and second wave sites are currently being finalised. We are anticipating a considerable expansion of the programme in 2007-08.

The expectation is that funding for the programme will be in PCT baseline allocations once the programme is fully rolled out across England by December 2009.

Dental Services: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to increase the numbers of (a) NHS dentists and (b) places available to register with an NHS dentist in Leeds. [134434]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Under the dental reforms introduced in April 2006, primary care trusts (PCTs) are commissioning an increasing volume of national health service dental services, which is likely to result in further workforce increases. In 2005, the Government expanded the number of dental school places by 25 per cent. in order to support longer term increases in the dental workforce. The number of training places at the University of Leeds Dental School has been increased from 53 to 75, with an additional six places allocated to an outreach training scheme in Hull. The first cohort of new dental graduates will qualify in 2010.

Leeds PCT is working to improve access to NHS dentistry. It has recruited three additional dentists in North West Leeds and has established the Leeds Dental Advice Line to help patients access dental services, including emergency services.

Maternity Services: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she expects a children's and maternity hospital to be built in Leeds; [134435]

(2) if she will take steps to provide additional (a) services for children and (b) maternity services in Leeds during the period of postponement of the building of a dedicated children's and maternity hospital. [134498]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 26 April 2006, Official Report, columns 1269-70W.

NHS: Public Participation

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish (a) evidence from and (b) an evaluation of her Department's local involvement network early adopter sites. [134185]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 26 April 2007]: The Healthcare Commission, Commission for Social Care Inspection, NHS Centre for Involvement (NCI), the Centre for Public Scrutiny, Care Services Improvement Partnership, the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health (CPPIH) and the Department are jointly overseeing the early adopter projects which are testing out how local involvement networks might work in practice. The learning from the sites is already being made available through a range of communication mechanisms including the CPPIH knowledge management system, the NCI's website and the Department's LINk bulletin. This process of sharing lessons learnt will continue throughout the duration of the projects. The time frame for the report of the formal evaluation is still to be settled by the partner organisations.

South London and Maudsley NHS Trust

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many reports requested by the courts could not be supplied by South London and Maudsley Foundation Trust in 2006. [132784]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the chair of South London and Maudsley National Health Service Foundation Trust. We have written to Madeline Long informing her of your inquiry. She will reply shortly and a copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Alcoholic Drinks

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many litres of alcoholic drinks were purchased for sale (a) in bars and restaurants of the House and (b) by the House Refreshment Department for catering functions on the Parliamentary estate in each year since 2005. [134496]

Nick Harvey: The Refreshment Department does not purchase drinks for specific trading areas, but issues goods as required from its central store. The estimated quantity of alcoholic drinks consumed in the 11 months to February 2007 is estimated to be (a) 53,495 litres in the bars and restaurants and (b) 30,517 litres at functions supplied by the House of Commons Refreshment Department. The following table details by outlet, however this does not include alcohol transferred to our souvenir outlets.

April 2006 to February 2007 (11 months)

	Quantity (litres)	Estimated cost of consumption (£)
Bars and restaurants
(a) Beers and ciders	34,377	52,620
(b) Aperitifs, fortified wines and spirits	743	9,729
(c) Wines	18,377	130,922
Total	53,497	193,270
Catering functions
(d) Beers and ciders	1,371	2,539
(e) Aperitifs, fortified wines and spirits	700	7,703
(f) Wines	28,446	176,380
Total	30,517	186,622

Detailed consumption information is not currently available for the year 2005-06 due to technical issues that are being investigated by the software supplier. The Director of Catering Services will write to the hon. Member with the requested information when it becomes available.

The software used by the Refreshment Department does not retain historical information of stock consumption for earlier years.

House of Commons: Drinking Water

Bob Russell: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the cost was of bottled water provided to the House in each of the last five financial years; and what the estimated cost is for the 2007-08 financial year. [133377]

Nick Harvey: The cost of bottled water purchased by the House of Commons in each of the last five financial years is estimated as follows. However, the hon. Member should note that the Refreshment Department sells water to its customers at a profit, and so the cost of water purchased for sale in the Refreshment Department outlets (item (a) in the table as follows) is not a cost to the House.

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07

No information is available for the current financial year to March 2008.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on his Department's current projects in Afghanistan. [132267]

Hilary Benn: Afghanistan is DFID's sixth largest programme and we are Afghanistan's second largest bilateral donor. We are focusing on three things: building effective state institutions; improving economic management and aid effectiveness; and improving the livelihoods of rural people. We plan to spend £107 million in 2007-08.

To help build effective state institutions, DFID provided £1.6 million to the World Bank to help the government restructure key ministries in Kabul and the provinces. Pay reforms are helping to attract and retain qualified civil servants, doctors and teachers, and we have just finished supporting the government to come up with a comprehensive capacity building plan.

DFID's economic programme is working to strengthen the government's capacity to manage and grow the legal economy. We are providing £165 million from 2006-09 through the Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund to fund recurrent costs such as doctors' and teachers' salaries. We are also raising the quality of public spending and level of domestic revenues through technical assistance worth £15 million in the Ministry of Finance, and increasing opportunities for enterprise in Afghanistan with a £9 million portfolio on private sector development.

DFID's Livelihoods programme is playing a major role in supporting the government of Afghanistan to create an environment that will foster opportunities for legal livelihoods, including support to the National Solidarity Programme (£28 million over six years to fund community-based projects); the Microfinance Investment and Support Facility Afghanistan (£15 million over three years); and the Horticulture and Livelihoods Programme (£7 million over three years). We are also supporting the Ministry of Rural Rehabilitation and Development and the Ministry of Agriculture in policy formulation and programming (£4.5 million); funding research into alternative crops (e.g. mint and saffron) and other livelihoods (£3 million); and assisting the government in preparing national land policy and reform (£335,000).

DFID has also committed up to £20 million of our 2007-08 budget to support the UK effort in Helmand. Last year we contributed £4 million (part of an overall commitment by Her Majesty's Government of £6.2 million) to support quick impact projects such as school construction and repairs. Our commitment also includes £30 million over three years (2006-09) for the government of Afghanistan's Helmand Agricultural and Rural Development Programme, which will benefit around 590,000 people and create 15,000 new jobs through speeding up the draw down of national programmes to Helmand.

Civil Society Challenge Fund

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) funding and (b) other resources have been (i) committed in each of the last three financial years and (ii) pledged for each of the next three financial years to the Civil Society Challenge Fund. [133570]

Mr. Thomas: Over the last three financial years, programme funds provided through the Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF) have amounted to:

£ million

2004-05	10.338
2005-06	13.885
2006-07	[1]13.6

[1] Estimated—final expenditure is not yet available.

We currently plan to maintain CSCF funding at £14 million a year.

In terms of other resources, a team of 7.5 full-time equivalent officials is responsible for management of the CSCF, including contributions to technical assessments, contract management and day-to-day programme administration for the large number of projects under way at any time (there will be 153 projects under CSCF support during 2007-08). Additional technical support on the assessment of project proposals and on monitoring is provided by external consultants. The amount paid under this consultancy have been:

2004-05	109,549
2005-06	329,466
2006-07	[1]227,578

[1] Estimated - final expenditure is not yet available.

The apparent increase in expenditure between 2004-05 and 2005-06 reflects timing of payments made around the end of financial year 2004-05. Overall consultancy inputs and expenditure have not changed significantly over the three-year period.

Developing Countries: AIDS

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will propose discussion of a comprehensive funding plan for universal access to treatment for AIDS sufferers by 2010 at the G8 Heads of State meeting in June. [132991]

Mr. Thomas: The UK made AIDS a centrepiece of the 2005 G8 and EU presidencies. We pressed for and secured international commitments to universal access to HIV treatment. We subsequently worked hard to ensure that this commitment was endorsed and expanded by the international community in the Political Declaration adopted by the United Nations General Assembly High Level Meeting on AIDS (2 June 2006). This declaration committed to achieve comprehensive HIV prevention programmes, treatment, care and support by 2010. It also agreed that countries would develop ambitious targets, including interim targets for 2008, to measure progress towards universal access. Crucially, it also set out a process by which countries will develop national AIDS plans to scale up towards universal access by 2010, and made the commitment that no credible, costed, national AIDS plan should go unfunded.

By early 2007, 90 countries had developed targets for achieving universal access, and at least 23 countries had proceeded with costing their strategic plans. The UK is pressing UNAIDS to define what constitutes a credible national AIDS plan. We are also pressing for a multi-stakeholder process in country to review universal access plans as they are developed, to agree their credibility and ensure they are fully funded.

We will push hard to ensure an ongoing focus by the G8 on achieving its commitment to universal access. We see our work with UNAIDS as central to unlocking the G8 and international community's commitment to funding credible, costed national AIDS plans. And we will ensure that this work is discussed as we prepare for the G8 Heiligendamm summit in June.

Latin America: Civil Society Challenge Fund

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Civil Society Challenge Fund in Latin America; and if he will make a statement. [133571]

Mr. Thomas: No aggregate assessment has been made of the effectiveness of Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF) projects in Latin America. However, for each project funded under the CSCF, including those in Latin America, implementing agencies are required to submit annual progress reports, as well as a project completion report and independent evaluation at project end.

Philippines: Food Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is making available to the World Food Programme initiative to provide emergency relief in Jolo, Southern Philippines. [133887]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is monitoring the situation in Jolo. As the Government of the Philippines are coping, we are not planning to respond. However, we will consider any requests for international assistance from the Government of the Philippines, and stand ready to respond should the humanitarian situation deteriorate.

World Bank

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with his international counterparts concerning the World Bank president; and if he will make a statement. [133813]

Hilary Benn: At the Spring Meetings of the World Bank I discussed the issue with my fellow Governors of the Bank and we agreed the following section of the Development Committee Communiqué, dealing with the allegations against President Wolfowitz:

"We have to ensure that the Bank can effectively carry out its mandate and maintain its credibility and reputation, as well as the motivation of its staff. The current situation is of great concern to all of us. We endorse the Board's actions in looking into this matter, and we asked it to complete its work. We expect the Bank to adhere to a high standard of internal governance."

I have had follow-up discussions with some Governors since the Spring Meetings.

We expect the World Bank executive directors to meet again this week to discuss the next steps.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fly Tipping

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what work has been undertaken by the two cross-border working groups set up by him and the Government of the Republic of Ireland dealing with unauthorised waste activities and the transfrontier shipment of wastes; how many meetings each has held; what conclusions each has reached; what outcomes have resulted; and if he will make a statement. [133924]

David Cairns: The Unauthorised Waste Activities (UWA) group was established to co-ordinate regional enforcement action against unauthorised waste activities. In addition to its co-ordinated enforcement actions, the group has also held seminars in conjunction with the Garda Siochana. The group first met in September 2004 and met six times in the first year The group was then reformed into a smaller regional co-ordinator working group which has gone on to meet seven times.

The focus of the Transfrontier Shipment of Waste (TfS) Group has been on better and consistent enforcement by local authorities of the legislation covering cross-border movements of waste. This has involved action to check legitimate waste movements to Northern Ireland, development of guidance and training and liaison with European regulators. The TfS group first met in September 2004 and has met 13 times to date.

The work is ongoing but has been acknowledged as bringing about better enforcement of environmental legislation on the island of Ireland. The research undertaken has enabled the scale of illegal waste activity on the island to be quantified and future plans to tackle it determined.

Participation in the groups has led to improved communication and liaison between Northern Ireland and Republic of Ireland enforcement authorities involved in illegal waste enforcement cases. Increased co-ordination of enforcement activity on both sides of the border has led to a major reduction in the trafficking of illegal waste from the Republic of Ireland into Northern Ireland. At the same time, there has been a reduction in the movement of illegal waste to Europe and beyond.

Sewage: Waste Disposal

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many households in each (a) council district and (b) parliamentary constituency had septic tank emptying agreements with Northern Ireland Water before 31 March 2007. [134924]

David Cairns: The Water and Sewerage Services (NI) Order 2006 transferred responsibility for the delivery of water and sewerage services from the Department's Water Service Agency to a statutory water and sewerage undertaker. A government-owned company, Northern Ireland Water (NIW) has been appointed as the undertaker and the issues raised are operational matters for it. I have asked the chief executive of NIW (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to these questions.

SCOTLAND

Second Homes: Voting Rights

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what the residential requirements are for second home owners to have their names entered on the electoral roll in Scotland; [134471]

(2) what basis decisions are made to permit the names of second home owners in Scotland to be entered on the electoral roll and vote in Scottish parliamentary and local government elections. [134472]

David Cairns: A person's name may appear on the electoral register only if they reside at an address within the electoral area. Residence is not defined in law, but it is held to entail a considerable degree of permanence. It is for the Electoral Registration Officer to decide, in light of the relevant circumstances, whether a person may be said to be resident at a particular address. This includes second home owners, in Scotland or elsewhere in the UK.

It is possible for a person to appear on more than one electoral register. It is for the Electoral Registration Officer to decide on the basis of the information provided to them. Due regard must be given to the purpose and other circumstances of the person's presence at or absence from an address. For example, where a person is staying at a non-permanent location for a particular time, they may be considered to be either (i) resident at that address because they have no home elsewhere or (ii) not resident there if they do have a home elsewhere. Absence due to the performance of any duty associated with office, service or employment, or absence due to attendance at an educational course, does not constitute an interruption to a person's residence. For example, a student who has a permanent home address and a term-time address, and spends about the same amount of time in each, can be registered lawfully at both addresses.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Sentencing: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Solicitor-General whether he plans to review decisions by local Crown Prosecution Service offices not to appeal sentences for being too lenient in the case of offences involving violence; and if he will make a statement. [134527]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) does not have a power to appeal sentences on the ground of leniency. The Law Officers do however have a power, under the Criminal Justice Act 1988, to refer sentences passed in certain Crown court cases to the Court of Appeal for review, if of the opinion that a sentence passed in such a case was unduly lenient. Any reference to the Court of Appeal must be made within 28 days of the sentence being passed.

The Law Officers regularly receive requests from the CPS to consider referring sentences of concern to the Court of Appeal, including in cases of violence. There are no plans to review local CPS decisions not to do so. The Law Officers also receive requests to review sentences from victims (or families of victims), Members of Parliament and members of the public.

I am aware that the hon. Member has expressed concern about sentences passed in a case at Peterborough Crown court last month. The sentences are being considered by the Law Officers and the hon. Member will be written to directly in due course.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Balance of Trade

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the trade balance was with the EU in each year since 1977. [132811]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Estimates of the UK balance of trade in goods and services with the EU25 are only available from 1999. The latest estimates including initial figures for 2006 are shown (at current prices) in the following table:

	£ billion
1999	-10.4
2000	-7.2
2001	-14.1
2002	-24.3
2003	-28.3
2004	-30.5
2005	-37.4
2006	-37.2

Estimates of the balance of trade in goods and services with the EU15 from 1977 to 2004 are shown (at current prices) in the following table:

	£ billion
1977	-2.1
1978	-2.8
1979	-3.2
1980	0.4
1981	-0.8

Clothing: Fire Prevention

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the regulations are regarding flammability and safety of children's nightwear. [132116]

Mr. McCartney: The fire safety of children's nightwear in the UK is governed by The Nightwear (Safety) Regulations 1985. These Regulations place a requirement on suppliers of nightwear—manufacturers, importers, wholesalers, retailers—to ensure that children's nightwear, such as nightdresses, dressing gowns, bath robes and similar garments, meet the specified safety flammability requirements.

Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions there have been with industry representatives on updating the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988; and if he will make a statement. [134174]

Mr. McCartney: The provisions of the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 (CMARs) dealing with misleading advertisements directed at consumers will be replaced from 6 April 2008 by regulations implementing the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive (UCPD). The UCPD introduces a general prohibition on unfair business-to-consumer commercial practices. For the sake of clarity the UCPD sets out how practices may be unfair by misleading consumers through action or omission.

As a consequence, the scope of the original Misleading and Comparative Advertising Directive (MCAD), which the CMARs implement, has been narrowed to cover only business-to-business relationships.

The Government have held extensive consultation with interested parties on how the UCPD should be implemented. They will also be consulting on draft regulations implementing the UCPD, and re-implementing the MCAD as amended by the UCPD, at the end of May.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent on hospitality by his Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133266]

Jim Fitzpatrick: For 2006-07 the total expenditure on hospitality and entertainment of the Department was £1,420,000. All departmental expenditure is incurred in accordance with the principles of Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134053]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since 2000 all DTI's publications and photocopying use recycled paper. The in-house reprographics section use 100 per cent. recycled paper for photocopying. Printed publications contain a minimum of 75 per cent. post consumer waste.

OM Energy

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the status is of the OM Energy projects; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Government support for OM Energy. [134228]

Mr. McCartney: Phase one of the OM Energy project has progressed well with its objectives being fully met including academic validation of the technology; the establishment of a UK company; the securing of private seed capital investment; the filing of a worldwide patent; and the design of a next generation laboratory prototype. Phase two will begin shortly and discussions are under way with top UK engineering firm to evaluate potential market applications and the design of commercial prototype.

Government support has been effective because much of this activity was achieved with assistance from UK Trade and Investment's Global Entrepreneur Programme. This has seen the formation of a pioneering UK company, developing an exciting technology in the renewable energy sector.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been spent by his Department on assistance to OM Energy Ltd. [134229]

Mr. McCartney: OM Energy is a client of the UK Trade and Investment's Global Entrepreneur Programme (GEP) and an inward investment success having migrated from Russia in 2006. The company has received no financial help from the GEP. The type of assistance provided has been within the terms of the programme, namely advice, signposting, guidance and introductions to key relevant networks, including business angels.

Post Offices

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the decision to relocate 70 post office branches to WH Smith stores. [134004]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have received two representations from MP's relating to the decision to relocate 70 post office branches to WH Smith stores. The Government are regularly kept informed of progress with Post Office's business strategy.

Post Office Ltd reached this commercial deal as a way of tackling the losses currently sustained by Crown branches.

Radio: Illegal Broadcasting

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps are being taken to combat pirate radio stations. [134589]

Margaret Hodge: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Telecommunications: Billing

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with British Telecom on its additional charges for payment of bills by cheque or cash. [133935]

Margaret Hodge: I have not held discussions with British Telecom on this issue. However, I have raised the matter with the chief executive officer of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom). Ofcom is considering whether any of the changes BT has recently made raise any regulatory issues and is coming back to me on this in May.

I understand that, BT has applied a price differential between customers who pay their accounts by direct debit and those who pay by other means for a number of years. This reflects the increased processing and debt management costs associated with payments not made by direct debit. Such differentials are common practice among communications providers and utility service providers.

From 1 May 2007, BT is changing how it presents this differential from a discount for those customers paying by direct debit, to a charge for those paying by other means for a number of years. BT has combined this change with an increase of £1.50 a quarter in the charge (from £3 to £4.50).

The Light User Scheme and In Contact Plus will not be affected by the increased charge. These are the special tariff schemes offered to vulnerable customers by BT as a result of the Universal Service Obligation placed on the company.

Trade

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what (a) progress was made on the reduction of agricultural subsidies and (b) deadline was set to complete the Doha round of talks at the World Trade Organisation at talks in New Delhi between the United States, the European Union, Brazil and India; [132632]

(2) what reports he has received from Commissioner Mandelson following trade talks in New Delhi; and if he will make a statement; [132633]

(3) what progress was made towards a successful conclusion of the Doha round of talks at the World Trade Organisation in New Delhi between the United States, the European Union, Brazil and India. [132634]

Mr. McCartney: Following these discussions, Trade Ministers representing the EU, the US, Brazil, India, Australia and Japan (the G6 countries) issued a statement reaffirming their commitment to reach convergence and conclude the Doha round by the end of this year. This has been the clear message relayed to all EU member states by the Commission in subsequent Council meetings.

The UK Government welcome this statement: we remain fully committed to securing an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the DDA. We will continue to press all WTO members to show the flexibility needed to reach agreement.

Wood: Russia

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the compatibility of recent increases in timber export tariffs from Russia with the standstill agreement Russia signed with the EU prior to its accession to the World Trade Organisation. [133349]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission represents the EU and negotiates on WTO accession applications.

Russia's planned increases in export duties on timber are, in the Commission's view, incompatible with the bilateral market access agreement signed between the EU and Russia in May 2004. The Commission is in the process of intense discussion with Russia on this issue with the aim of seeing EU imports preserved.

TRANSPORT

Eurotunnel

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 775W, on Eurotunnel, what assessment he has made of the potential impact on the operation of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link should Eurotunnel go into receivership. [133928]

Mr. Tom Harris: In the event of receivership, the Concession Agreement allows for a change of ownership of the Concession, which need not have any impact on the operation of the CTRL.

Galileo Project

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the timetable is for completion of the Galileo global navigation system. [134360]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Blackley (Graham Stringer) on 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1244W.

Motor Vehicles: Air Pollution

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the full life cycle analysis of the pollution caused by (a) hybrid, (b) fuel-cell and (c) conventional petrol powered vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [132077]

Dr. Ladyman: There have been various studies of lifecycle carbon dioxide emissions for cars (although they have not compared different fuel technologies). These suggest that a clear majority—around 80 per cent.—of CO_2 emissions arise during the operational phase of a vehicle's life rather than during construction and disposal. We therefore consider that focusing on in-use emissions remains an appropriate approach to reducing the CO_2 footprint of vehicles. At the same time, manufacture and disposal are important, and we welcome measures by industry to address emissions created during these phases. With respect to fuel cell vehicles, life cycle CO_2 emissions are likely to be largely dependent on the energy source used to manufacture the hydrogen for the fuel cell.

The picture is different for pollutants that may affect local air quality, such as volatile organic compounds, oxides of nitrogen and sulphur, and particulate matter. Industry figures suggest that over half of such emissions are created during manufacture and disposal of vehicles. For fuel cell vehicles, almost all the local air pollution emissions are created during manufacture and disposal.

Railway Stations: Smoking

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will develop a joint strategy with the Secretary of State for Health to inform rail passengers about the imminent introduction of the ban on smoking on station premises; [133936]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that (a) Network Rail and (b) train operators make an early start in informing their passengers of the forthcoming ban on smoking at railway, coach and bus stations. [133937]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department of Health (DoH) is conducting a significant communications campaign aimed at the public to ensure maximum awareness of the smoke free legislation before its implementation on 1 July. The Department for Transport has discussed the issue of communication with rail passengers with the Association of Train Operating Companies and Network Rail and provided advice to DoH on issues such as enforcement and signage arrangements on the rail and bus networks.

Railways: South East Region

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1384-5W, on railways: South East region, what definition he uses of overcrowding as a percentage of available capacity; and if he will consult train user groups on this issue. [134513]

Mr. Tom Harris: The overcrowding measure is derived from the number of passengers travelling in excess of capacity on all services divided by the total number of people travelling, expressed as a percentage.

The High Level Output Specification (HLOS), to be published in summer, will set out the additional rail capacity the Government propose to buy to meet the recent and forecast growth in demand for rail travel. It is too early to say precisely where the additional rolling stock will be used: the rail industry's October 2007 response to the HLOS will identify this.

Roads: Construction

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent on road building in each year since 1997, including funding through private finance initiative projects. [134638]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Rochdale (Paul Rowen) on 10 January 2007, Official Report, column 603W.

Smith Institute

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which Smith Institute events he has (a) attended and (b) spoken at in an official capacity in the last two years. [133425]

Gillian Merron: The Secretary of State for Transport has not attended a Smith Institute event in his departmental capacity in the last two years.

Tolls: Greater London

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Mayor of London on the (a) gross and (b) net income from congestion charging in London. [134204]

Gillian Merron: Under the provisions of the GLA Act 1999, Transport for London are required to submit their future spending plans for net proceeds of the London Congestion Charging Scheme every four years. In November 2006 the Secretary of State approved their plans for doing so through to April 2010. There have been no recent discussions between the Secretary of State and the Mayor of London on the specific subject of congestion charging income.

West Coast Railway Line

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the status of seven day per week train services on the West Coast Main Line following the completion of track upgrade in 2008. [133589]

Mr. Tom Harris: The West Coast Main Line upgrade will be substantially completed in time for the introduction of an enhanced passenger timetable in December 2008. From that date, Network Rail intends to introduce revised arrangements for infrastructure maintenance works which will sharply reduce the number of occasions when weekend journeys are disrupted by route blockages.

TREASURY

Bank Services

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps have been taken to promote and advertise the basic bank account to (a) the unemployed, (b) people with disabilities and (c) the elderly. [134068]

Ed Balls: The Government's goal is that everyone should be able to manage their money effectively and securely through having access to a bank account, and the confidence and capability to get the most from it.

This goal was set out in the Government's strategy to tackle financial inclusion, "Financial Inclusion—the way forward", published in March 2007. Since 2004 the banking industry has shared with the Government a goal to halve the number of adults living in households without access to a bank account, mainly through promotion of basic bank accounts. Latest Family Resources Survey data shows the number of unbanked adults had fallen from 2.8 million in 2002-03 to 2 million in 2005-06.

Encouraging benefit recipients and pensioners to open bank accounts and make greater use of them is a key element of the Government's strategy to increase access to banking. Since the move to Direct Payment started in 2003, 98 per cent. of DWP benefits are now paid directly into an account. The Government provide information on basic bank accounts to benefit customers and pensioners to help them decide which account to have their benefit paid into.

In January 2007, the Government launched the "now let's talk money campaign". The campaign is working with trusted intermediaries in regular contact with financially excluded people such as housing associations and charities, to provide information on the availability of bank accounts and other mainstream financial products and services. The campaign is advised by a stakeholder forum, which includes charities representing the elderly and those with learning disabilities.

Departments: Tribal Group

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts his Department awarded to (a) Geronimo Communications Ltd. and (b) its parent company Tribal Group plc. in each of the last three years; and what the cost was of each contract. [133742]

John Healey: The information is as follows:

(a) HM Treasury have awarded no contracts to Geronimo Communications Ltd. within the last three years

(b) HM Treasury contracts with Tribal Group companies within the last three years:

Description	Value (£)
Tribal Consortium
Replacement of IMPReS—Appointment of Project Consultant to conduct a feasibility study	10,430.00

Gold and Foreign Exchange Reserves

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice he received from the Bank of England before his decision to sell the Treasury's bullion reserves between 1999 and 2002. [132892]

Ed Balls [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Treasury officials provided the advice to the Chancellor leading to his decision to sell 395 tonnes of gold between July 1999 and March 2002. This advice was provided after technical consultation with the Bank of England.

HM Revenue and Customs

Hywel Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the approach taken to local economic impact surveys will be in relation to offices classified by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) as being individual locations, with particular reference to the Porthmadog HMRC office. [134381]

John Healey: HMRC is undertaking a series of regional planning reviews of all its accommodation to bring it into line with future operational requirements. For the purpose of these reviews offices have been grouped into three categories: urban centres, clusters of offices, and individual locations (offices more than 25km from any other HMRC office), of which Porthmadog is one.

Each review will include a consultation exercise and detailed feasibility work. An impact assessment will be produced for every office, in all categories, which is identified at the end of this stage of the review process as a candidate for closure. The assessments will consider the social and economic effects of closure on staff, customers and the wider community. Final decisions will be taken in the light of these assessments.

Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 280W, on ministerial policy advisers, whether the Council of Economic Advisers is involved in announcements outside the Treasury's remit. [133658]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Treasury Press Notices of 4 August 1997 and 28 June 2006:

National Income

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average income of each decile was in financial year 2006-07. [134501]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the average income for each decile was in the financial year 2006/07. I am replying in her absence. (134501).

Estimates for 2006/07 are not yet available. The latest data covers the financial year 2004/05 and is in the ONS analysis 'The effects of taxes and benefits on household income'. This can be found on the National Statistics website at http://www.statistics.gov.uk/taxesbenefits. The data for 2005/06 is due to be published on the website on 17th May 2007. The analysis is based on the annual Expenditure and Food Survey, which is a sample survey covering approximately 7,000 households in the UK.

The table below shows both gross and disposable income for income decile groups. The income decile groups are determined by ranking households according to their equivalised disposable income. Equivalised incomes are standardised to take into account different sizes and compositions of households and are standardised in relation to a two adult household with no children.

[2] Disposable income is income available after the deduction of income tax, employees' national insurance contributions and council tax.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate how much would be raised if the upper income limit on national insurance contributions were to be abolished. [133561]

Ed Balls: The yield from removing the upper earnings limit for employees Class 1 national insurance contributions is around £8,880 million for 2007-08. This estimate includes the yield from the consequent increase in the upper profit limit for Class 4 contributions paid by the self-employed, and the cost of the increase in employee and employer rebates for contracting out of state second pension.

This excludes any estimate of behavioural effects which could be significant given the scale of the change.

The estimate is consistent with Budget 2007 assumptions and assumes that the NHS allocation contribution rates are unchanged.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from which Government Departments' budgets the additional £5 billion to be provided by central Government towards the cost of the Olympics will be provided. [133714]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 410W, to his earlier question.

Pensions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of interest rates on pension funds over the last 30 years; [133722]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of fluctuations in the stock market on pensions over the last 30 years; [133723]

(3) what assessment he has made of the impact of pensions mis-selling on current pensions; [133724]

(4) what assessment he has made of the economic impact of interest rates on pension funds over the last 30 years; [133725]

(5) what estimate he has made of the total reduction in pension contributions due to pension holidays in each of the last 30 years. [133726]

Ed Balls: Key factors that have affected pensions and pension funds in recent years were fully set out by the Chancellor in the debate in the House on occupational pensions on 17 April. The Government are not aware of any systematic and quantified assessment of the relative impact of different factors on pension schemes over the last 30 years. The Annex to Chapter 3 of the Pensions Commission's First Report provides an analysis of the main long-term trends affecting private sector final salary pensions over the last 30 years. The Purple Book published by the Pensions Regulator and the Pension Protection Fund also provides recent and historical data on Defined Benefit pension schemes.

Pensions Dividend Tax Credit

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what changes there were to the pensions dividend tax credit between 1979 and 1997. [133727]

Ed Balls: The rate of the payable tax credit on dividends for all tax exempt shareholders was lowered in the following years:

1979: from 33 per cent. to 30 per cent.

1986: from 30 per cent. to 29 per cent.

1987: from 29 per cent. to 27 per cent.

1988: from 27 per cent. to 25 per cent.

1993: from 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Repossession Orders

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many mortgage housing repossessions were recorded in each of the last 30 financial years. [133810]

Ed Balls: The Council of Mortgage Lenders publishes calendar year data showing the level of repossessions of mortgaged properties, which is available at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

Tax Allowances

Lorely Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the total cost of the ending of means testing of personal allowances for people aged between 65 and 74 years. [133762]

Ed Balls [holding answer 26 April 2007]: The cost of removing the tapering of the personal allowance for 2007-08 is estimated at £360 million for people aged between 65 and 74 years and £220 million for those aged 75 or over.

This estimate is based on the 2004-05 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward in line with Budget 2007 assumptions.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response which could be significant given the scale of the change.

Taxation: Overpayments

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps are taken to ensure that people who have made a tax overpayment are aware that they are entitled to reclaim it. [133602]

John Healey: There are three main systems by which HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) collect income tax from individuals: self-assessment, Pay As You Earn (PAYE) and the tax deduction scheme for interest paid by banks and building societies. Overpayment of tax may occur in any of these systems.

Self-assessment

The self-assessment tax return (supported by the guidance notes), the self-assessment Statement of Account and the Internet "View Liabilities and Payments" Service all offer people the opportunity to claim repayment of tax overpaid.

PAYE

When HMRC carry out an "Initial Assessing Review" for a PAYE customer, if an overpayment of tax has occurred and all the necessary information is available, HMRC will make an immediate repayment. Failing this, they will write to the customer to tell the customer that there appears to be an overpayment of tax and ask for the further information required to calculate the refund due.

In addition to this, the Form P45(2) issued by an employer to an employee on cessation of employment contains advice on claiming any repayment of tax.

The HMRC website includes sections on "I want to claim a tax repayment" and a "Student Tax Checker" which enables customers to see whether they have paid too much tax based on actual income received.

Tax deducted from bank and building society interest

A customer who has tax deducted from their savings income may be a non-taxpayer. A claim for repayment can be made by completing form R40 "Claim for Repayment". Every year HMRC send these forms to customers who made such claims in the previous year. Help is also readily available by phoning the "Taxback" helpline or visiting the "Taxback" pages of the HMRC website.

Taxation: Pensions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the net effect on contributions to the Exchequer would be if the pensions contributions by all individuals qualified for tax relief as basic income tax rate only. [133556]

Ed Balls: Latest detailed estimates of the annual cost of tax relief on approved pension schemes are available in Table 7.9 on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/menu.htm

If relief on individual contributions were constrained to the basic rate of tax, this amount of relief would fall by one quarter.

Tobin Tax

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate how much would be raised if a Tobin tax of (a) 0.05 per cent. and (b) 0.1 per cent. was levied on all transactions on the UK stock market. [133558]

John Healey: No such estimates are available.

Unemployment: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individuals were classed as economically inactive in each London borough for each of the last 10 years. [133787]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 27 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the number of individuals classed as economically inactive in each London borough for each of the last 10 years. I am replying in her absence. (133787)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of inactivity for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of economically inactive persons of working age (males aged 16 to 64 and females aged 16 to 59) resident in the London boroughs, from the annual local area LFS for the 12-month periods ending in February from 1997 to 2004 and from the APS for the 12-month periods ending in March from 2005 to 2006. Table 2 shows these numbers expressed as a percentage of the resident working-age population.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates over time should be treated with caution.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with UK retailers concerning Low Value Consignment relief. [133740]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to reform Low Value Consignment relief. [133741]

John Healey: The position in respect of Low Value Consignment relief is set out in para 5.142 of the FSBR, published on 21 March 2007.

WALES

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134819]

Mr. Hain: None.

Farms: Contamination

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many farms, representing what total surface area, still have restrictions on (a) grazing and (b) other agricultural uses arising from the radioactive fallout from the Chernobyl reactor incident in 1986. [134365]

Mr. Hain: There are currently 359 holdings in Wales within the restricted area with 180,000 sheep under restriction arising from the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in 1986.

There are no details of the total land area under restriction because not all the land attributed to a holding is necessarily under restriction. The areas affected are mountain grazings, the farm low land is generally free from restrictions.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bolivia

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when a Minister from his Department last visited Bolivia. [134145]

Mr. Thomas: The former Secretary of State for International Development, the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood (Clare Short) visited Bolivia in August 1999.

Colombia: Refugees

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contribution the UK Government has made to the UN High Commission for Refugees in response to its appeal for funds in connection with Colombia; and if he will make a statement. [134594]

Mr. Thomas: The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) Global Appeal 2007 is currently under review by donors. In 2006, the UK Government provided £27,536,000 to the UNHCR global appeal. DFID's contribution was £25,863,000. There were also contributions from the Home Office (£1,214,000) and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (£459,000). DFID's contribution was split into £15,920,000 un-earmarked and £9,943,000 earmarked. It is not possible to say how much of the contributions went specifically to Colombia.

DFID contributes to the European Commission's humanitarian assistance programme for victims of internal conflict in Colombia through its 18 per cent. contribution to the EC. The EC will be providing €12 million humanitarian aid in 2007, to support people who are displaced as a result of the longstanding internal conflict in Colombia. The funds will be distributed by humanitarian NGOs and the UNHCR.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134059]

Mr. Thomas: All of the A4 size photocopying paper used in the Department for International Development in the last three years was of 100 per cent. recycled content. In 2004-05 and until approximately midway into 2005-06 a very small proportion (less than 0.5 per cent. of our total paper) of virgin A3 size paper was used. In the later part of 2005-06 that too became 100 per cent. recycled.

DFID does not hold the data regarding paper for printed publications centrally, and due to disproportionate cost we cannot supply this information. However, DFID routinely requires that the designers and printers under contract to produce DFID publications source paper that has a minimum of 75 per cent. recycled content.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was of establishing his Department. [134184]

Hilary Benn: When established, the Department for International Development took over the functions, staff and premises of the Overseas Development Administration. There was no cost to public funds associated with this transfer of functions. To establish detailed figures for other set up costs such as changes in stationery and additional ministerial offices would involve disproportionate costs but these would not have been significant. The running costs outturn for DFID in 1997-98 was 2.4 per cent. lower than the outturn for 1996-97.

Nigeria: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what additional aid he plans to make available for the Independent Electoral Commission in Nigeria to deal with the additional workload since the election in that country. [134523]

Hilary Benn: It is too early to make any significant decision on how DFID's programme in Nigeria should be adjusted in response to the elections. Due to the problems encountered, additional elections were being held in many parts of the country on 28 April. Currently all sides are reflecting upon the electoral process and the results as these are returned.

However, we are also reviewing our support for the electoral process, including our support to Independent Nigeria Electoral Commission (INEC). DFID provided £2.5 million of support to a Joint Donor Basket Fund managed by United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). The other donors are the European Union and Canadian CIDA. The majority of the joint funding was notionally allocated to INEC. But INEC has consistently turned down donor offers of technical support, so spending has been lower than anticipated.

Given the events of the last three weeks, the UNDP are now doing a stock-take on our joint support to INEC. We are expecting proposals early this week on how we can best wrap-up our existing programme of support for INEC. After this, there will also be a review of lessons and a priority for the coming few months will be to reach a consensus in Nigeria on how best, INEC can be supported in future. In addition, we will be undertaking joint analysis on the wider aspects of political governance which need to be addressed in order for the 2011 elections to be an improvement on those of 2007.

Palestinians: Sanctions

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of banking sanctions on conditions of life in the Palestinian territories; and if he will make a statement. [134526]

Hilary Benn: Since Hamas formed a Palestinian Government in March 2006, international banks dealing with the Palestinian Authority (PA) have risked litigation under US anti-terrorism laws. One result of this has been that the PA's single treasury account has been frozen. This has undermined important progress made over recent years to improve public financial accountability and control.

Although this situation has made it harder to transfer money to the PA, the PA has been able to continue spending the limited funds it has available. DFID and other donors have also continued and increased aid to help meet the basic needs of Palestinians through other channels. For example, European Union (community and member states) aid is estimated to have increased by 27 per cent. in 2007, compared with 2006. This has partially offset the impact on Palestinian livelihoods of Israel's decision to withhold clearance revenues due to the PA.

DFID is providing technical assistance to the Palestinian Monetary Authority to help ensure that Palestinian banks are able to meet international standards for tackling terrorist financing and money laundering.

Sudan: Dams

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the government of Sudan on the issue of the Hamdab Dam and what account is taken of its impact on the local Amri people. [134243]

Hilary Benn: The UK is concerned by the Government of Sudan's plans to forcibly relocate local communities in the River Nile State by the end of 2007 because of the Hamdab Dam project. Strong protests from local tribes led to an agreement on 1 June 2006, for the state Government and local people to work together to resolve the issue. But the subsequent displacement of 2,200 families without prior warning suggests the Government are reneging on this commitment.

British embassy officials in Khartoum have met representatives of the local people affected by the project. The UN Mission in Sudan's (UNMIS) Human Rights Unit, on behalf of the international community, is following the situation closely. We raised the plight of those affected by the Hamdab Dam project at a meeting of UNMIS and international partners on 26 April.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what humanitarian aid he expects to be provided to the Darfur region of Sudan and eastern Chad in the next six months; and if he will make a statement. [134143]

Hilary Benn: Total donor intentions are difficult to estimate. In 2006, the UN's humanitarian appeal for Darfur was 79 per cent. funded, it is expected that similar levels will be forthcoming this year. DFID's contribution is largely through the Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF), to which we contributed £40 million in 2007, accounting for approximately 60 per cent. of the total. This supports critical needs throughout Sudan. DFID also expect to spend around £15 million over the next year in Darfur through direct grants to humanitarian non-governmental organisations and the International Committee of the Red Cross.

In the case of Chad, the UN's current annual appeal of £89 million is 40 per cent. funded. The UN is about to supplement this with an additional appeal to support the recent increase in internal displacement. DFID is providing £5 million to humanitarian operations in Chad this year, a rise of £1 million from last year.

We will continue to monitor overall funding for Darfur and Chad and support the UN in lobbying other donors to make substantial and timely contributions.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by the House was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134041]

Nick Harvey: Sufficient data to provide the information in the form requested are not available. The House seeks to use the best environmental option for the paper it uses, compatible with the needs of each of its areas of business. I will write to the hon. Member about the specifications of paper provided to Members and used for photocopying and printed publications.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average hourly pay was of the (a) (i) lowest and (ii) highest decile, (b) (i) lowest and (ii) highest quartile and (c) highest duo-decile of working age people in employment in each year since 1997. [135064]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 30 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average hourly pay was of the (a) (i) lowest and (ii) highest decile, (b) (i) lowest and (ii) highest quartile and (c) highest duo-decile of working age people in employment in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (135064)

Average levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. This is the standard definition used for ASHE. The ASHE does not collect information on the self employed and people who do unpaid work.

I attach a table showing the 10th, 25th, 75th, 90th and 95th percentile of Gross Hourly Pay, corresponding to the lowest decile, lowest quartile, highest quartile, highest decile, and highest duo-decile respectively, for all employees, for the years 1997-2006.

The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the chief executive of the Tax Credit Office to reply to the hon. Member for Totnes' letters of (a) 11 December 2006 and (b) 22 February 2007 on the case of Mr. and Mrs. Langford of Queen Elizabeth Drive, Paignton. [134387]

Mr. Timms: HMRC have sent a reply to the hon. Member and have apologised to him for the delay in replying.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 22 March 2007 (PO Ref: 1/48650/2007). [134607]

Ed Balls [holding answer 27 April 2007]: I hope to be in a position to do so very shortly.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what effect he expects the recent revisions of the Olympics budget to have on plans for Crossrail. [133713]

Mr. Timms: Crossrail funding and financing issues will be considered further in the context of Sir Michael Lyons' recommendations and wider spending pressures and priorities. However, the affordability challenge represented by the scheme remains significant.

Revenue and Customs: Publicity

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many click throughs from HM Revenue and Customs online advertisements to the HM Revenue and Customs website have been recorded as part of the online aspect of the "Tax doesn't have to be taxing" campaign since its launch. [133323]

John Healey: As at end of March 2007 1,151,339 click throughs from HM Revenue and Customs online advertisements to the HM Revenue and Customs website have been recorded as part of the online aspect of the 'Tax doesn't have to be taxing' campaign.

Taxation: Members

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) hon. Members, (b) Members of the House of Lords and (c) Members of the European Parliament elected for United Kingdom constituencies are non-resident in the UK for tax purposes. [133346]

Ed Balls: No Members of Parliament or Members of the European Parliament are non-resident in the UK for tax purposes. This information is available because the tax affairs of Members of Parliament and Members of the European Parliament are dealt with centrally by HMRC. No such information is collected for Members of the House of Lords whose tax affairs are not dealt with centrally but by local tax offices.

Taxation: Overseas Residence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people claimed non-domicile tax status in the UK in each of the last five years for which records are available; [133685]

(2) what estimate he has made of the tax forgone by the UK as a consequence of use of the remittance basis by those not domiciled in the UK; [133686]

(3) what estimate he has made of the average length of residence in the UK of those claiming non-domicile status; [133687]

(4) what methodology is used to estimate the economic benefits to the UK from the retention of the domicile laws on taxation; [133688]

(5) what estimates he has made of the economic benefits to the UK from the retention of the domicile laws on taxation; [133689]

(6) what investigations have been carried out looking into non-domicile status in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [133673]

(7) how many people qualified for non-domicile tax treatment in the UK in each of the last five years for which records are available. [133674]

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on the economy of non-domiciled residence tax status; and if he will make a statement. [133972]

Ed Balls: No overall figure for the number of individuals with non-domicile tax status is available.

Estimates of the tax foregone in the UK as a consequence of the use of the remittance basis by those not domiciled in the UK are not routinely made. Information is not held on overseas income and gains that do not give rise to a tax liability in the UK.

Information on the average length of residence is not routinely collected. A small sample survey in 2004 suggested that the majority of non-domiciled individuals who had already left the UK spent no more than five years here.

No estimates have been made of the economic benefits to the UK from the retention of the domicile laws on taxation.

HMRC carry out investigations into non-domiciled status where this may be relevant to a taxpayer's UK tax liability. Such investigations may occur to verify information given to HMRC by individuals completing self-assessment tax returns or making other claims for non-domicile status; as a result of third-party disclosure; or because of the outcome of other HMRC enquiries. No information is available on the number of investigations undertaken.

Information on how many individuals qualify for non-domicile tax treatment in the UK is not available. Some 112,000 individuals indicated non-domicile tax status through their SA returns in 2004-05.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people (a) employed by and (b) contracted to supply services to HM Treasury claim non-domicile tax treatment. [134096]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs is statutorily debarred from disclosing to third parties information relating to the tax affairs of individuals or public and private sector bodies. Treasury Ministers do not have access to such information.

Taxation: Polygamy

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people married abroad polygamously and settled in the UK transferred property free of (a) inheritance tax and (b) capital gains tax to their spouses in each year for which figures are available. [134938]

Ed Balls: No information is available on such transfers.

Written Questions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer question 131290, tabled by the right hon. Member for Birkenhead on 28 March 2007, on the abolition of the 10p tax rate. [135054]

Ed Balls: The Treasury hopes to be in a position to answer the right hon. Gentleman's question shortly.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council of England

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what the investment returns were for the Arts Council of England from National Lottery funding in August 2006; and what they were in the latest period for which figures are available; [134373]

(2) how much funding the Arts Council of England received from the National Lottery in August 2006; and how much it received in the latest period for which figures are available. [134374]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 27 April 2007]: The following table shows the Arts Council England's income from the National Lottery Distribution Fund in August 2006, in March 2007 and in the entire financial year 2006-07.

Period	Operator -related income to nearest £1,000	Investment income to nearest £1,000	Total to nearest £1,000
August 2006	13,794,000	479,000	14,273,000
March 2007	12,566,000	589,000	13,154,000
Financial year 2006-07	142,861,000	6,396,000	149,257,000

Broadcasting Programmes: Children

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will take steps to improve the provision of children's programming by public service broadcasters. [134466]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 27 April 2007]: In advance of their next scheduled PSB Review, Ofcom have announced they are looking at the future of children's TV programming in the UK. We await the outcome of that review with interest.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the sustainability of the market for the commissioning of quality children's television programmes in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [134481]

Mr. Woodward: The Government recognise that the changing broadcasting environment presents challenges to the ability of commercial public service broadcasters to sustain their programming for children.

We welcome Ofcom's review into children's television, due to be published this autumn, which will include the current state of the children's TV market and the sources of future funding for children's programming.

Broadcasting Programmes: Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government plan to take in response to the recent conclusions of Ofcom on violence in television soap operas. [134575]

Mr. Woodward: Parliament has charged the independent regulator, Ofcom, with maintaining broadcasting standards, notably to protect children and to protect the general public from harmful and offensive material. Ofcom sets out the rules and guidance with which broadcasters must comply. Within this framework, it is the broadcasters' job to make judgments about what individual programmes should contain and the time at which they are broadcast. It is a long-standing principle that the Government do not interfere in programming matters. That applies to both scheduling and content. Where there are deliberate, serious or repeated breaches of Ofcom's rules, the regulator may impose statutory sanctions against the broadcaster.

Cultural Heritage: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps are being taken to ensure the preservation of Essex's cultural heritage; and if she will make a statement. [134578]

Mr. Lammy: English Heritage, the Government's statutory adviser on heritage matters, is taking a number of steps to ensure the preservation of Essex's cultural heritage. These include contributing funding towards buildings repairs—such as £400,000 towards repairs to St. Osyth's Priory—and securing the future of a number of "buildings at risk", enabling 44 buildings to be removed from their Register. English Heritage is in discussion with agencies involved in the Thames Gateway expansion, the Stansted airport proposed expansion and proposed wind farm off Maldon. English Heritage is responsible for the management of 11 historic sites in Essex, the largest being Audley End House. English Heritage is a member of the East of England Regional Cultural Consortium and chairs the East of England Heritage Environment Forum.

Since 1994 the Heritage Lottery Fund has made close to 500 awards to the county, totalling some £33.5 million to preserve cultural heritage.

Departments: Bullying

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134833]

Mr. Lammy: There have been no complaints of bullying investigated in the Department in the last 12 months.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134057]

Mr. Lammy: The photocopying paper used by the Department is made from 100 per cent. recycled paper.

All publications have been produced on recycled stock in the last three years.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department spent assisting older and disabled people with the switch to digital television in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006; how much it has spent in 2007; and how much it plans to spend in (i) 2008, (ii) 2009 and (iii) 2010. [134583]

Mr. Woodward: To the present date, a total of £211,000 has been spent on helping vulnerable groups with switchover, this being solely for the Bolton Digital Television Trial in 2005-06. This funding was equally split with the BBC.

All future assistance, which is to be delivered by the Digital Switchover Help Scheme (DSHS), will be provided by the BBC and paid for through the licence fee. We estimate the cost of the scheme at £600 million and this will include assistance provided for the Whitehaven project.

National Lottery: Charities

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the eligibility criteria are for registered charitable organisations to receive Lottery funding; and which charitable institutions are ineligible. [134492]

Mr. Caborn: Almost any organisation in the United Kingdom, including registered charities, can apply for lottery funding for projects which are not intended primarily for private gain and for which funds would be unlikely to be made available by Government or the devolved administrations.

Under the National Lottery Act 2006, "charitable expenditure", in relation to expenditure under the charitable, health, education and environment good causes, means expenditure for a charitable, benevolent or philanthropic purpose. Such expenditure is not restricted to registered charities, which are able to benefit from all the lottery good causes.

However, each of the lottery distributing bodies publishes specific eligibility criteria for each of its funding programmes, and applicant organisations must comply with these.

Office of Communications

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how she plans the Ofcom Public Service Publisher service to be funded. [134465]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Ofcom published its discussion document into the potential role of the Public Service Publisher (PSP) in January and asked for comments by the end of March. At present they are reviewing those responses with a view to publishing a summary later in 2007.

While we believe the proposal for the PSP has stimulated a healthy debate it remains too early to make a wider Government response to the PSP proposal.

Olympic Games: Finance

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the planned World Class Pathway funding for the Beijing Cycle was spent in the 2006-07 financial year, broken down by Olympic sport. [134070]

Mr. Caborn: Between 2006 and 2009, a total of £250.2 million has been budgeted to be invested in the World Class Performance Pathway (WCPP) for Olympic and Paralympic sport, of which a total of £72.5 million was ring fenced to be spent in 2006-07.

The total amount actually invested in Olympic sports for 2006-07 is primarily dependent on the extent to which their World Class Pathway programmes and governance are fit for purpose to receive public funding. The final figures will be available once UK Sport has signed off the audited 2006-07 year-end accounts in June.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how she expects Essex to participate in the Cultural Olympiad initiative. [134577]

Mr. Lammy: The Cultural Olympiad has been designed in such a way that creative and cultural organisations at all levels, from the largest national bodies to the smallest community groups, can participate. We are working with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games to deliver this.

The Nations and Regions are developing plans to maximise the benefit of the London Games to all parts of the UK. In addition, I have recently announced that a network of Regional Creative Programmers in eight of the English Regions is to be established. Their role will contribute to the delivery of cultural events in all the regions in the run-up to and during the 2012 Games.

The Greater London Authority is also developing proposals on how to co-ordinate and deliver a pan-London cultural programme.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures are being taken by her Department to ensure that the 2012 Olympic Games is a drug-free event. [134586]

Mr. Caborn: The Department sponsors UK Sport, the UK's national anti-doping organisation, which is responsible for delivering the UK's national anti-doping programme. In the run-up to the 2012 Games, UK Sport will continue to deliver its anti-doping programme for all Olympic and Paralympic sports.

The chief medical officer at the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG), who was appointed in February, is responsible for the anti-doping programme during the 2012 Games, under delegation from the International Olympic Committee.

In light of this appointment, LOCOG has begun work on arrangements for the testing programme, and will continue to do so in collaboration with UK Sport and DCMS.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether Olympic regional creative programmers will be assigned to (a) London, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland. [134588]

Mr. Lammy: We are planning cultural events in the run-up to and during the 2012 Games to span the UK. The "Nations and Regions Group" of the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games is developing plans to maximise the benefits of and engagement in the 2012 Games for their respective nations and regions. Participation in the Cultural Olympiad will be included within these plans.

The network of Creative Programmers being established will cover the eight English regions outside London. Colleagues in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are considering what arrangements would fit their plans to participate in the cultural programme. The Greater London Authority is also developing proposals on how to co-ordinate and deliver a pan-London cultural programme.

Public Libraries: Kent

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with Kent county council on redundancies in its library service. [134468]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 27 April 2007]: None. Staffing of libraries and library authorities is a matter for local authorities to decide, after considering available resources and local priorities, providing it does not affect the authority's ability to deliver a "comprehensive and efficient" library service to the public as required under the Public Libraries and Museums Act 1964.

Public Service Broadcasting

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she plans to bring forward the review of public sector broadcasting in view of the effect of Web 2.0. [134467]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Under the Communications Act 2003 Ofcom has the responsibility of periodically reviewing public service television broadcasting. The timing of such reviews is a matter for Ofcom, subject to a requirement that they take place at least once every five years. I understand that Ofcom intends to begin the next review in 2008.

For their part, the Government intend to conduct a review of the case for distributing public funding more widely beyond the BBC before the end of the current licence fee settlement.

Public Service Broadcasting: Children

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the regulatory requirements are for each public service broadcaster in relation to children's television; and if she will make a statement. [134169]

Mr. Woodward: Section 264 of the Communications Act 2003 requires Ofcom to regularly review and report on the extent to which public service broadcasters fulfil the purposes of public service television, including the provision (when the services are taken together) of a "suitable quantity and range of high quality and original programmes for children and young people".

Public service broadcasters are required to consult Ofcom on proposals for significant changes in their statements of programme policy.

Television; Telephone Services

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many complaints her Department has received in 2007 on premium-rate telephone competitions. [134582]

Mr. Woodward: To date the Department has received 21 queries regarding the operation of premium rate telephone competitions in 2007. However, complaints about premium rate telephone competitions are a matter for the independent regulators, Ofcom and ICSTIS.

PRIME MINISTER

Berlin Declaration

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what representations he made to his European counterparts during consultations on the Berlin Declaration; if he will place in the Library a copy of such representations; and if he will make a statement. [134301]

The Prime Minister: I made no formal representations to EU counterparts on the Berlin Declaration. However the normal contacts took place at official level, and I discussed the declaration informally with Chancellor Merkel in the course of normal diplomatic contacts.

The document was written by the German presidency of the EU and presented to leaders shortly before the summit to mark the 50th anniversary of the EU on 25-26 March 2007.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Office was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134062]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my Office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Hilary Armstrong) on 27 April 2007, Official Report, column 1330W.

Policy Review

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister for what reason reference to Trident or its successor was not made in the policy review report "Building on Progress: Britain in the World" published on 17 April. [134205]

The Prime Minister: "Building on Progress: Britain in the World" draws on the conclusions and discussions of the Ministerial Working Group on Britain in the World, and seminars for junior Ministers conducted as part of the policy review process. It sets out a high-level overview of the broad UK approach to foreign policy since 1997, what the UK has achieved, and what the UK should seek to achieve in the decades to come. It does not aim to cover every issue in detail.

My statement of 4 December 2006, Official Report, columns 21-24, set out in detail the Government's position on maintaining the UK's independent nuclear deterrent. The reasons for that decision were further explained in the White Paper "The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm 6994), published on the same day. The House voted in favour of the Government's decision on 14 March 2007.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Arms Control

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the recommendations of the United Nations Panel of Experts on the strengthening of the current arms embargo set out in United Nations Security Council Resolution 1591; and what steps she has taken in response to the recommendations. [134945]

Mr. McCartney: We supported the report by the Panel of Experts and its recommendations at the UN Sanctions Committee. It has not yet been transmitted to the UN Security Council (UNSC) nor has it been made public.

At a meeting of the UNSC on 16 April chaired by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, she made the case for further sanctions to impose on the Government of Sudan and rebel movements if they fail to abide by their agreements. We are working on a draft UNSC Resolution with other Security Council members to extend the UN arms embargo to the whole of Sudan, in line with the EU arms embargo.

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to her Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133796]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has incomplete records of transfers of oral questions prior to November 2005. Subject to this caveat, our researches show that since May 2005 the FCO has transferred two oral questions.

Saudi Arabia: European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will place in the Library a copy of the Memorandum of Understanding between the UK and Saudi Arabia on the sale of Eurofighter aircraft, signed in December 2005. [132423]

Mr. Ingram: I have been asked to reply.

No. This document is confidential between the two Governments. I am withholding the information as it would, or would be likely to prejudice international relations and harm the interests of the United Kingdom.

Sudan

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her counterparts at the EU Council of Ministers on pressing the Government of Sudan (a) to accept and implement the full deployment of a strengthened international force with UN elements in Darfur and along the border with Chad, (b) to monitor the EU arms embargo to Sudan, (c) to help implement the Tripoli Agreement of February 2006 and (d) to extend the Sudan sanctions regime against key individuals. [133489]

Mr. McCartney: At the EU's General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 April, which my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary attended, European Foreign Ministers:

> recalled that transition to a full African Union/UN hybrid force for Darfur was urgently required; > underlined the urgency of deploying a UN operation in Eastern Chad and the North-East of the Central African Republic; > called on both Sudan and Chad to refrain from further escalation and fully respect their commitments under the 2006 Tripoli Agreement; and > reiterated their readiness to consider further measures against any party which obstructs implementation of the peace agreements for Darfur.

The meeting did not address the EU arms embargo for Sudan, nor are there any plans to amend it.

Sudan: Arms Trade

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the evidence presented to the UN Security Council of the transportation of arms and heavy weaponry into Darfur; and what reports on the matter she has received from the British Ambassador to the United Nations. [133877]

Mr. McCartney: We supported the report by the Panel of Experts and its recommendations at the UN Sanctions Committee. It has not yet been transmitted to the UN Security Council nor has it been made public. Our Ambassador to the UN, Sir Emyr Jones Parry, reports developments regularly to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary. We continue to discuss the case for further sanctions in the UN.

Sudan: International Assistance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the impact on humanitarian operations of a no-fly zone over Darfur. [133582]

Mr. McCartney: The situation in Darfur is totally unacceptable. We are pressing our international partners at the UN Security Council (UNSC) to impose further measures on those responsible for the humanitarian crisis through their violations of UNSC Resolutions. Those measures include targeted sanctions against individuals engaged in violence or responsible for authorising it, an extension of the arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan and measures to allow better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur. Further options remain under consideration, including a UNSC imposition of a no-fly zone. The humanitarian and security implications of such measures will be important considerations.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to tackle the harassment of humanitarian aid workers by the Sudanese authorities in the Darfur region; and if she will make a statement. [134140]

Mr. McCartney: The UK played a prominent role with the UN and other partners in securing a joint communiqué on 28 March between the UN and the Government of Sudan on humanitarian operations in Darfur. This committed the Government of Sudan to remove bureaucratic impediments and respect the neutrality and independence of agencies involved in the relief effort.

We are pressing the Government of Sudan to implement their commitments in full, including in a letter that my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development sent with five other foreign and development Ministers to the Sudanese Foreign Minister, Lam Akol. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary repeated this point when she chaired an informal meeting of the UN Security Council on 16 April.

Sudan: Overseas Investment

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the business community to divest from Sudan on ethical and prudential grounds. [131835]

Mr. McCartney: The restrictive measures adopted by the United Kingdom against Sudan are targeted to apply maximum pressure on those who engage in violence or who are responsible for authorising it. They include a travel ban and assets freeze on individuals who impede the peace process or constitute a threat to stability in the Darfur region. Members of the European Union also decided to go further than the arms embargo imposed by the UN and extend the embargo to the whole of Sudan.

We are now pressing our international partners at the UN Security Council to impose further measures on those responsible for the humanitarian crisis through their violations of UN Security Council Resolutions. Those measures include targeted sanctions against individuals engaged in violence or responsible for authorising it, an asset freeze of commercial entities owned by sanctioned individuals, an extension of the arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan and measures to allow better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur.

We have not yet considered taking steps to encourage disinvestment from Sudan by British companies. However, if the situation in Darfur does not improve then we will have to consider taking further measures.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what steps her Department is taking to reach agreement on the proposed deployment of 20,000 UN peacekeeping troops in the Darfur region of Sudan; and if she will make a statement; [134141]

(2) what steps she is taking to facilitate Stage 3 of the agreement between the government of Sudan and the United Nations; and if she will make a statement. [134142]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary chaired an informal meeting of the UN Security Council on 16 April which welcomed the Sudanese Government's agreement to the UN's Heavy Support Package (the second stage of the agreement between the UN and the Government of Sudan). We are pressing them to agree to a joint African Union (AU)/UN Hybrid Force (the third stage). If the Sudanese Government and rebels do not co-operate, we will move to tougher sanctions.

We have seconded staff into the UN's Department of Peacekeeping Operations and are supporting their work through political lobbying. We are also a major contributor to the AU Mission in Sudan to keep it going until a joint AU/UN Hybrid Force can be deployed.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has (a) made to and (b) received from the Government of Sudan and the Government of South Sudan on the implementation of the revenue sharing commitments made in the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. [134944]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to urge the joint North-South Government of National Unity to implement the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in full. This was a key message for our intervention at the Sudan Consortium in Khartoum (19-21 March). The UK is also a member of the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC). The AEC is tasked with monitoring CPA implementation and has four sub groups including one focused on wealth sharing. It is the main mechanism for dialogue between the international community and the CPA parties, and meets every month. We also engage both parties regularly on all elements of CPA implementation, including wealth sharing, through our bilateral representation in Khartoum and Juba.

On wealth sharing, I note that over US$1.8 billion of national oil revenue has been transferred to the Government of Southern Sudan. The Fiscal and Financial Monitoring and Allocation Commission has also begun work on determining the division of revenues between the different tiers of government. But much more needs to be done.

Turkey: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports she has received on persecution of the Christian minority in Turkey. [134218]

Mr. Hoon: Our Embassy in Ankara reports regularly on human rights, including freedom of religion. We also receive reports from the European Commission and other international organisations. We are aware of attacks affecting Christian minority groups, including the murder of Father Andrea Santoro, a Catholic priest, in February 2006 and the attack on 18 April on three Christians at a publishing house in Malatya.

The Turkish Government have strongly condemned this recent attack and we continue to urge them to keep up momentum in human rights reforms and encourage them to ensure implementation of EU standards is full and consistent. This of course includes freedom of religion.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Ugandan authorities on the declaration by President Museveni and his Security Minister Amama Mbabazi that the People's Redemption Army suspects will only be released if they apply for amnesty; and if she will make a statement. [134235]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to raise our wider concerns about the continued detention of the People's Redemption Army suspects with the Government of Uganda. Most recently, our High Commissioner in Kampala, with other EU Heads of Mission, made representations about this issue to Foreign Minister Kutesa on 13 April.

We will continue to make representations until the Government of Uganda abides by the constitution and respects the rule of law and independence of the judiciary.

Uganda: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department plans to take to help achieve a successful outcome to the peace talks between the Lord's Resistance Army and Ugandan Government representatives due to commence in the week beginning 30 April; and if she will make a statement. [134139]

Mr. McCartney: Following interventions by UN Special Envoy Joaquim Chissano, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) and the Ugandan Government have agreed to resume peace talks in Juba on 26 April. This is encouraging, as is the extension of the cessation of hostilities agreement until the end of June.

We believe that the peace talks in Juba between the LRA and the Government of Uganda offer the best chance for many years to achieve peace. Through the Africa Conflict Prevention Pool the UK has provided £250,000 to a UN fund set up to support the talks process and we have made it clear that we will consider any further requests for assistance very carefully.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departments: Databases

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how often databases within his Department are updated with records of the deaths of individuals; and if he will make a statement. [133003]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions updated its databases with dates of death approximately 575,000 times in 2006. We have processes in place where we receive death notifications from Registrars on a weekly basis in order to update records. However, many notifications are received from the next of kin in advance of the notification from the Registrars.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations his Department has received from data suppression industry experts regarding data suppression technologies; and if he will make a statement. [133004]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department's IT group has had no direct engagement with the data suppression industry regarding data suppression technologies.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on database suppression technology in (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005 and (d) 2006; and if he will make a statement. [133005]

Mr. Plaskitt: Nothing.

Departments: Planning

Mr. Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are taken by his Department to include (a) older people and (b) people with disabilities in strategic planning, policy making and the delivery of the services they use. [132908]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government's strategy on older people and ageing, "Opportunity Age" was first published in March 2005. A series of consultation events at which the views and ideas of older people were sought has been invaluable in shaping that strategy.

DWP is piloting a "LinkAge Plus" programme, to test ways of building fully integrated services from health and benefits to leisure and learning. Eight pilots (led by local authorities) have been looking at ways of joining up government for older people. LinkAge Plus puts older people at the heart of the process in identifying effective models that meet their needs and aspirations and involves them in their design.

DWP also sponsors "Better Government for Older People", comprising approximately 200 voluntary elected members from older people's forums and groups across the UK, which works to reflect the views of older people in policy making.

DWP engages in a range of ongoing involvement activities with disabled people to ensure that their needs and views are reflected in both policy making and service delivery. These are outlined in our disability equality schemes published on 1 December 2006.

The Department sponsored the creation of Equality 2025, a new non-departmental public body providing a mechanism through which disabled people can have direct communication with central Government to influence, at an early stage, Government policies and service delivery that affect disabled people's lives.

We also consult with disabled people to obtain their feedback on new policy proposals or changes as part of our diversity impact assessment process. The findings from such consultation help to influence the final decision on those proposals or changes.

Disability Living Allowance: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals claimed disability living allowance in each London borough for each of the last five years. [133788]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Disability living allowance cases in payment in London boroughs as at each August, 2002-06

Financial Assistance Scheme

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made towards securing the unclaimed assets of (a) Legal and General and (b) the Prudential for the financial assistance scheme. [132609]

James Purnell [holding answer on 19 April 2007]: On 28 March John Hutton announced a review to examine whether an alternative treatment of the residual funds in affected pension schemes and other non-public expenditure funding that have not already been allocated, could be used to increase levels of assistance above the 80 per cent. provided by the financial assistance scheme.

The review has started and is being led by Andrew Young, Directing Actuary at the Government Actuary's Department. The review team has already met some key stakeholders and will be contacting others shortly to tell them about the review and to invite their contributions. The review will provide an initial view in the summer and will then report by the end of the year.

Incapacity Benefit: Jobseeker's Allowance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much he estimates will be spent on providing jobseeker's allowance incapacity benefits for 2007-08. [133563]

Mrs. McGuire: Planned expenditure in 2007-08, is £2,546 million for jobseeker's allowance, £6,428 million for incapacity benefit, and £887 million for severe disablement allowance.

Income Support: Young People

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will give consideration to the Social Security Advisory Committee's Sixth, Seventh and Eighth reports, with particular reference to the recommendation that the full rate of income support should be restored for young people under 25 years of age living away from home; and if he will make a statement. [132838]

Mr. Plaskitt: Since income support was introduced in 1988, a single person aged 18 to 24 has been paid at a lower rate than single people aged 25 and over. It would be a new initiative rather than a restoration, to pay single customers aged 18 to 24 at the same rate as single customers aged 25 and over. There are no plans to change these rules.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Gloucester

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were claiming Jobseeker's Allowance in (a) Cheltenham and (b) all Gloucestershire constituencies in each month since March (i) without seasonal adjustment and (ii) seasonally adjusted. [133351]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table; March 2007 is the most recent available information. Seasonally adjusted figures are not available at constituency level.

Jobseeker's allowance claimants in Gloucestershire parliamentary constituencies, without seasonal adjustment: March 2007

Constituency	Claimants
Cheltenham	1,443
Cotswold	523
Forest of Dean	937
Gloucester	1,594
Stroud	731
Tewkesbury	684

Maternity Benefits

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was underpaid in maternity allowances due to (a) customer error and (b) official error in each of the last five years; and how many people were affected. [133911]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

New Deal Schemes: Unemployment

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact of the new deal on unemployment; and if he will make a statement. [133437]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Since 1997, claimant unemployment has fallen by 708,000 and the number of people on lone parent benefits has fallen by 230,000. We are also spending £5 billion less on unemployment than we did in 1997.

The new deal, which has helped more than 1.7 million people into work since January 1998, has contributed to this success. It has helped reduce long-term claimant unemployment to close to its lowest for 30 years and to significantly reduce long-term youth claimant unemployment.

Pensions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the size of savings needed to buy an annuity for (a) a single worker and (b) a married couple to ensure a pension income that takes them above pension credit eligibility. [135061]

James Purnell: The size of annuity required to take an individual above pension credit eligibility depends on a wide range of factors. This includes the type of annuity an individual purchases, their entitlement to basic and addition state pension, and any additional needs they may have which affect pension credit entitlement. It also depends on whether their pension will take them above pension credit eligibility at the point of retirement or over their expected lifetime and whether their pension will take them above guarantee credit only or savings credit.

Under our proposed pension reforms someone retiring in 2053 with a good contribution record (through working or caring) could expect to receive around £135 per week from the state pension on retirement (in 2005-06 earnings terms). This is—for a single person—above the end point of pension credit. Couples with good contribution records will be substantially above the end point for pension credit.

Only those on the guarantee credit alone will face pound for pound withdrawal on private saving. Someone with around 25 years of working or caring retiring in 2050 will have accrued enough state pension to bring them above the guarantee credit only. Our analysis suggests that in 2050 around 6 per cent. of all pensioners will be eligible for guarantee credit only, and only around one in 50 pensioners will retire directly onto guarantee credit only. In addition, those with small amounts of savings will be able to take them as a lump sum under the trivial commutation rules.

Remploy: Business Interests

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what outside business interests directors at Remploy are permitted to pursue; and if he will make a statement. [133534]

Mrs. McGuire: Remploy's Executive Directors are permitted to pursue outside business interests, providing this does not impact on their role at Remploy and they have the permission of the Company. Non-Executive Directors are free to pursue outside business interests.

Remploy: Management

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many layers of management operate at the St. Helens Remploy site. [133537]

Mrs. McGuire: There are three layers of management at the St. Helens Remploy site. These are the General Manager, Operations Manager and Local Remploy Manager.

Incapacity Benefit

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of incapacity benefit claimants returned to work within (a) two weeks, (b) one month, (c) three months and (d) six months in the most recent period for which figures are available. [132831]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available in the format requested.

The latest Destination of Benefit Leavers Survey (2004) suggests 50 per cent. of incapacity benefit leavers returned to work of 16 hours or more in that year, higher than reported in the previous year.

The Destination of Benefit Leavers Survey also provides the following breakdown for those leaving incapacity benefits for work, by benefit duration.

IB claim duration (weeks)	Percentage returned to/starting work of 16 hours or more
0-13	67
13-26	61
26-52	46
52+	40

Notes:
1. Incapacity benefits include, contributory incapacity benefit and income support for the sick and disabled.
2. 'Leavers' excludes those leaving as a result of death.

Social Security Benefits

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the name of each benefit administered by his Department was in each year since 1996-97; what the level of each benefit was in each year; what the total amount paid in each benefit was in each year; what proportion of the total paid in each year was means-tested; and what the cost of administering each payment was in each year. [132839]

Mr. Plaskitt: The name of each benefit administered by the Department, and the total amount paid in each benefit in each year, since 1996-97, can be found in benefit expenditure tables on the Department for Work and Pensions website at the following address:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/medium_term.asp

The benefit names are listed in column A of table 3. Annual amounts paid in each benefit are listed from 1996-97 (column H) to 2007-08 (column S). All figures are outturn, apart from 2006-07, which are estimated outturn, and 2007-08, which are planned expenditure. The figures in table 3 are in cash terms and are rounded to the nearest million pounds. Expenditure at 2007-08 prices can be found in table 4, which is laid out exactly the same as table 3.

There are notes attached to each internet table, but the following particular points should be noted:

1. Responsibility for child benefit, guardians allowance and child's special allowance transferred to Inland Revenue, now HM Revenue and Customs, in April 2003.

2. Responsibility for war pensions transferred to the Veterans Agency in 2002-03.

The amount paid for each benefit in each year, in other words weekly benefit rates, are published each year in Statutory Instruments, as Social Security Benefits Up-rating Orders, which will be in the House of Commons Library and can be found on the Office for Public Sector Information website at the following addresses:

Some other useful information about weekly benefit rates can be found on pages 50 to 74 of the 2005 edition of the Abstract of Statistics for Benefits, National Insurance Contributions, and Indices of Prices and Earnings, and on pages 101 to 191 of the 2004 edition of Work and Pensions Statistics (now discontinued) which can be located at the following internet addresses:

The proportion of the total paid in each year that was means-tested is shown in the following table:

	Means tested proportion of total benefit paid in each year (percentage)
1996-97	35.2
1997-98	33.9
1998-99	32.7
1999-2000	31.0

2004-05	31.5
2005-06	30.8
2006-07	31.1
2007-08	30.7

These percentages have been calculated using information in benefit expenditure table 3.

Full information about the cost of administering each payment in each year is not available.

From 1999-2000 the cost of administration is accounted for separately within the departmental expenditure limit (DEL) and the information requested on administration costs at benefit level is not available.

Information on administrative costs prior to the creation of DWP in 2001 is not comparable with administrative costs now due to considerable organisational change.

The available information, which is at benefit level, is in the following tables:

Notes:
1. Costs shown represent the total estimated costs to Government, Department of Social Security and other Departments of administering Social Security benefits.
2. Includes the cost of administering national insurance credits for clients who do not receive any social security benefit.
3. Costs quoted are local authority costs. Central Government costs are allocated to income support.
4. Figures have been rounded to the nearest million pounds.
5. The information has been taken from the 1998, 1999 and 2000 Department for Social Security departmental reports. The information requested is only available to 1998-99.
6. Figures have been converted to 2007-08 prices using GDP deflators issued by HM Treasury following the Budget report 2007.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of lone parents whose youngest child is over the age of 11 years are receiving (a) income support and (b) incapacity benefit; and how many and what proportion of each group are (i) carers for a disabled child and (ii) have a disability themselves. [130380]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The available information is in the following table.

Lone parents with youngest child over 11: Great Britain

Claiming	Number	Proportion of all LPs with youngest child over 11 (Percentage)		Number	Proportion (Percentage)
Income support	108,950	19.1	Caring for a child with a disability	38,000	35.1
			Report disability themselves	65,000	60.2
Incapacity benefits	24,370	4.3	Caring for a child with a disability	[1]—	[1]—
			Report disability themselves	24,370	100

[1] Family and Children's Study sample size too small to identify.

Notes:
1. Reporting a disability and caring for a disabled child are not mutually exclusive categories—those who are both caring for a disabled child and report a disability themselves (21.6 per cent. of those with youngest child over 11 claiming income support) will appear in both categories.
2. The income support figures do not include any claimants on incapacity benefit. However, some of those included in the incapacity benefit may also receive income support.

Social Security Benefits: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed (a) income support, (b) job seeker's allowance, (c) housing benefit, (d) council tax benefit, (e) carer's allowance and (f) incapacity benefit in each London borough in each of the last five years. [132112]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the total volume of deficit repair contributions made in each of the last five years. [132502]

James Purnell: The PPF collects information on deficit reduction payments made by schemes in order to reduce the amount of risk-based levy they are liable to pay. As the PPF has only been in operation since April 2005, information on such deficit reduction payments is not available for each of the last five years.

Such information as is available was published in the Purple Book (http://www.ppf.gov.uk/the_purple_book_ppf-tpr.pdf)

"Schemes in the sample had certified approximately £9.8bn of special contributions to reduce deficits by 7 April 2006. These contributions were certified to the Pension Protection Fund for the purpose of enabling a more up-to-date assessment to be made of the scheme funding position, with the extra contributions increasing the scheme assets and so reducing the risk-based levy."

Figures for deficit reduction payments in 2006-07 are not yet available.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Ministry of Defence Police

10. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on the effect of the reduction in Ministry of Defence Police numbers on civilian police forces. [134282]

Mr. McNulty: I have had no representations from any police force about the impact of reductions in the number of MOD police officers.

It is a matter for discussion between the local force, police authority and the MOD police.

I have regular meetings with ministerial colleagues at the Ministry of Defence and will discuss this issue at my next meeting.

Police: Street Patrols

11. Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of time police officers spend patrolling the streets. [134283]

Mr. McNulty: 63 per cent. of officer time was spent on frontline activities in 2005-06. 14 per cent. of officer time was spent on patrol.

Other frontline activities not captured by the definition of "patrol" include arrests, dealing with incidents, gathering intelligence, responding to 999 calls, carrying out searches, dealing with informants, and interviewing suspects, victims and witnesses.

Licensing Laws

12. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the new licensing laws on reducing crime in (a) West Lancashire and (b) England and Wales. [134284]

Mr. Coaker: We are conducting a full evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on crime and disorder. This is ongoing and is due to be published towards the end of 2007. A separate monitoring exercise is looking at the impact of the Act on police recorded violent crime and criminal damage. Interim results from this exercise were published in July 2006. They show that there had been no change in the overall volume or timing of offences following the introduction of the Act. No separate arrangements have been made to monitor the impact of the Act in West Lancashire.

Police Training Days

13. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate he has made of the cost of training days in the police work force owing to the introduction of new legislation. [134285]

Mr. McNulty: The consequences of any new legislation in terms of training is generally a matter for police forces to determine, although some police training is delivered nationally through what is now the National Policing Improvement Agency.

In terms of force costs, these will vary dependent upon the local impact of legislation, and each force making an assessment of its own training needs and requirements. It is also important to note that law based or legislative police training (except when an officer joins the police service) remains a relatively small proportion of their training needs.

Accordingly, policing costs for new training as a result of legislation will vary from police area to area. There are therefore no estimates of the cost of police training specifically as a consequence of new legislation.

Immigration: Public Services

15. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of levels of immigration on public services in the last 12 months; and what forecast he has made of the likely effects in the next 12 months. [134287]

17. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of (a) the impact of levels of immigration on public services in the past 12 months and (b) the likely effect in the next 12 months. [134289]

Mr. Byrne: To date there has not been a formal system for assessing the impact of immigration on public services but individual Government Departments have mechanisms to receive information about overall pressures on such services. Last summer we conducted a cross-Government review of the impacts of migration. On 28 March we announced the establishment of a new forum to provide an opportunity for regular and organised dialogue with interested parties focusing on the impacts of migration. This will be chaired by Home Office and Local Government Ministers.

Rural Policing: North Yorkshire

19. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on rural policing in north Yorkshire. [134291]

Mr. McNulty: The Government are committed to ensuring that all communities have access to, and are served by a responsive, locally accountable and citizen focused police service. The deployment of that resource is an operational matter for the chief constable.

I am aware that the acting deputy chief constable in north Yorkshire is consulting with all chief constables and commissioners to investigate variations in working practices relating to isolated and rural communities. The hon. Member may therefore wish to speak to the force about this matter directly.

Anti-terrorism Strategy

20. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had with officials and other Ministers on the co-ordination of anti-terrorism strategy. [134292]

John Reid: I regularly discuss the co-ordination of the Government's strategy on counter terrorism with officials and ministerial colleagues, including at a weekly security meeting which I chair.

Correspondence

21. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what average length of time the director general of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate took to reply to hon. Members' letters in the past 12 months. [134293]

Mr. Byrne: For the 12-month period up to and including December 2006 the average waiting time for responses to letters from hon. Members to the Border and Immigration Agency was 24 days in respect of correspondence on immigration matters.

Departmental Restructuring

22. Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on departmental restructuring. [134294]

John Reid: The decision to refocus the Home Office so that it is better able to respond to the changes in the world at both a global and local level, where we have moved from static communities and a static world to a highly mobile world was one that was taken by the Prime Minister and discussed at Cabinet.

Identity Cards

23. Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the potential contribution of identity cards to the tackling of identity fraud. [134295]

Joan Ryan: Our plans for a National Identity Scheme, including the introduction of identity cards, will not only enable people to prove their identity easily, quickly and simply but will also provide a highly secure means of protecting their identity. This will have a significant impact upon identity fraud, which costs the United Kingdom economy at least £1.7 billion each year.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost has been of the identity card scheme. [134288]

Joan Ryan: Some £58 million has been spent on the identity cards scheme since the start of the 2003-04 financial year and up to the end of September 2006.

DNA Database

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the national DNA database. [134364]

24. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the national DNA database; and if he will make a statement. [134296]

Joan Ryan: The National DNA database is a key police intelligence tool which contributes to the efficiency of crime detection. It has a key role to play in contributing to detection outcomes, eliminating the innocent from inquiries, focusing the direction of inquiries resulting in savings in police time and in building public confidence that elusive offenders may be detected and brought to justice.

Violent Crime

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of measures to combat violent crime. [134297]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are taking forward a full range of work to tackle violent crime. This has included: introducing new legislation; providing intensive support to practitioners in those areas which face the biggest challenges in terms of violent crime; and developing a range of measures to reduce sexual and domestic violence re-offending.

We consider that a 34 per cent. fall in BCS violent crime since 1997 is testament to the effectiveness of these measures, and we will continue to focus our efforts to bring down the level of these serious crimes even further.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans his Department has to hold another Antisocial Behaviour Day Count. [134937]

Mr. McNulty: There are no current plans to hold another national Antisocial Behaviour Day Count.

Since the 2003 day count, a number of new ways of measuring performance have been introduced. The focus is now on the perception of antisocial behaviour rather than specific incident counting, which is subject to severe under-reporting. As such these measures supersede the need for a specific "one day" antisocial behaviour incident count.

The perception of antisocial behaviour is monitored nationally through the British Crime Survey (BCS) and at a local level through the Local Government User Satisfaction Survey (LGUSS). In addition a survey of Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) is conducted on a quarterly basis to monitor, at a local level, the uptake and use of a number of tools and powers used to tackle antisocial behaviour, such as acceptable behaviour contracts (ABCs), demotion orders and housing injunctions.

Crime: Macclesfield

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the recorded crime figures for the Macclesfield borough in the Cheshire Constabulary East Division were in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 according to the classifications (i) all crime, (ii) burglary of a dwelling, (iii) violent crime, (iv) vehicle crime and (v) criminal damage; and what assessment he has made of the trends in these statistics. [134403]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested as data for 2006-07 will not be available until 19 July 2007. Statistics for 2005-06 are in the following table together with the percentage change from the previous year.

Offences recorded in the Macclesfield crime and disorder reduction partnership area

	2005-06	Percentage change from previous year
Total crime	11,719	1.4
Burglary in a dwelling	679	-6.7
Violent crime	2,319	16.6
Vehicle crime	1,750	14.5
Criminal damage	2,692	-8.2

Electronic Tags

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders reoffended whilst wearing electronic tags in each year since their introduction; and if he will make a statement. [110531]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table sets out the number of offenders, who have been cautioned, convicted or are awaiting prosecution for offences while they were subject to the home detention curfew scheme, as currently notified to the National Offender Management Service.

The totals for 2005-06 have been updated following a cross-checking of reoffending data from the Police National Computer for the third and fourth quarters of 2005 and the first quarter of 2006.

Some of those awaiting prosecution will be found not guilty or charges will be dropped.

Information is not collected on further convictions for offenders subject to other electronic monitoring schemes apart from home detention curfew.

Extradition

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria his Department uses in assessing extradition requests from other countries. [132660]

Joan Ryan [holding answer 18 April 2007]: The requirements for extradition requests are set out in the Extradition Act 2003. Extradition requests from EU member states are assessed wholly by the courts using criteria set out in Part one of the Act.

Extradition requests from other parts of the world are considered in part by the courts using criteria set out in Part two of the Act. The Secretary of State's role in considering extradition requests is limited to requests made under Part two of the Act; and in those requests, he must decide whether he is prohibited from ordering a person's extradition under criteria set out at sections 94-96 of the Act. These relate to the death penalty, speciality and possible earlier extradition from a third country.

Fixed Penalties

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many penalty notices for disorder were issued for (a) theft, (b) criminal damage, (c) being drunk and disorderly and (d) dropping litter in each month since November 2004. [130816]

Mr. Coaker: Penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) rolled-out to all police forces in England and Wales under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001. Under the scheme, the police can issue a fixed penalty of £50 or £80 for a specified range of disorder offences including shop theft (under £200) and criminal damage (under £500).

Data on the number of PNDs (penalty notice for disorder) issued for the specified offence for each month since November 2004 are provided in the following tables. The data for 2006 are provisional. Finalised data for 2006 will be available this summer.

The figures show that the PND has been an increasingly useful disposal option for the police in tackling low-level antisocial behaviour, providing them with a simple, non-bureaucratic financial punishment for first-time offenders.

[1] Data on PNDs issued in 2006 are unpublished and provisional.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Homicide: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded murders there were in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of those recorded murders led to a conviction in each year, broken down by borough. [133512]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested. The recorded crime statistics relate to homicide offences and convictions data relates to offenders. In addition, recorded crime data are published on a financial year basis and conviction data are published on a calendar year basis. For these reasons, the two data sources are therefore not directly comparable.

Figures for the number of offences recorded and the number of convictions are in the following tables. Recorded crime data at borough level are only available from 2000-01.

[2] Every effort as made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The data covers: murder, manslaughter and infanticide—provided to be consistent with recorded crime data provided for this PQ.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Ministers or officials from his Department last met the chairs of local police committees. [116681]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary (John Reid) and I met with chairs of police authorities and with chief constables most recently at a seminar on police reform on 2 November 2006. I also attended the conference of the Association of Police Authorities, at which many chairs of police authorities were present, on 30 November 2006. I meet the APA on regular occasions and meet the chairs of local committees throughout the year in line with my duties as Police Minister.

Norwich Prison

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the health and safety of prisoners being held in A wing at HMP Norwich; what assessment he has made of the adequacy of staffing levels at HMP Norwich; and if he will make a statement. [134245]

Mr. Sutcliffe: HMP/YOI Norwich has risk assessments and safe systems of work in place for all areas of the prison and for all activities. Part of A wing reopened in late January 2007 following up-to-date Health and Safety risk assessments and safe systems of work been put in place. Prior to occupation having the cells were inspected personally by the Governor and confirmed as being appropriate and suitable cellular accommodation by the Eastern Area Manager. The remaining poor repair cellular accommodation in A wing is not occupied. Safe staffing levels have been agreed for the operation of the prison and for the daily operation of the reopened A wing facility four additional staff have been added to the complement.

Passports: Lost Property

Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of passports dispatched by courier did not arrive at their destination in the last period for which the figures are available; what those figures were in the last comparable period prior to the contract being awarded to couriers; if he will ensure that security of delivery is the paramount consideration in re-awarding the contract; and if he will make a statement. [133141]

Joan Ryan: For the 12 month period ending January 2007, 728 passports have been confirmed as lost while in the delivery process. This equates to 0.011 per cent. of passports delivered. Secure Delivery commenced in February 2004, and the last period of data available for the previous Royal Mail arrangements is for 2003. In that year, 3,593 passports were recorded as lost in the delivery process, which equates to 0.065 per cent.

Secure Delivery has therefore seen a reduction of over 80 per cent. in the number of passports lost in this way.

Security of delivery is the paramount consideration in the current arrangements, and all deliveries can be tracked from collection to the point of delivery. The new contract will balance the need to provide a secure delivery service with the need to provide value for money and high levels of customer service.

Police Custody

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 1227W, on police custody, on how many occasions Operation Safeguard was used in England and Wales between 1 January 2006 and 1 April 2007. [134069]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Operation Safeguard was reactivated on 22 January 2007. Between 22 January and 30 March 2007, Operation Safeguard was used on 9,380 occasions. This does not correspond precisely to a number of prisoners: one occasion means one prisoner night in a police cell.

Police: Broadcasting Programmes

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether police forces in England and Wales charge television companies for video footage used in television programmes. [133920]

Mr. McNulty: Charging the media for police-held video material is a matter for decision by individual chief officers. The Association of Chief Police Officers have produced guidance notes on this subject entitled "Media Advisory Group Guidelines Parts 1-11".

Police: Cheshire

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers were recruited in Cheshire in each year since 1997. [134033]

Mr. McNulty: The available data, for 2002-03 onwards, is in the following tables.

Police officer recruits[1] to Cheshire police from 2002-03 to 2005-06[2] (FTE)[3]

	Cheshire
2002-03	141
2003-04	153
2004-05	105
2005-06	121

[1] Recruits included those officers joining as standard direct recruits and those who were previously special constables. This excludes police officers on transfers from other forces and those rejoining.
[2] Financial year runs 1 April to 31 March inclusive. Data are not available prior to 2002-03.
[3] Full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.

Police: County Durham

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers were transferred from non-operational duties to front line operations in the community in County Durham in each year since 2002; and how many civilian staff filled these non-operational posts. [134439]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally. The deployment of police officers and police staff is an operational matter for individual chief constables.

Police: Bullying

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reported incidents of bullying there were in police forces in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years, broken down by police force area. [133271]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former police officers rejoined the police force in England and Wales in each year since 1997, broken down by police force area. [133273]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are from 2002-03 onwards and are in the following table.

Police: Parental Leave

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers took (a) maternity leave, (b) paternity leave and (c) a career break in each year since 1997. [133272]

Mr. McNulty: The available data is in the table; they are from the 2002-03 financial year onwards and relate to long-term absences as at the end of each financial year.

Police officers (FTE)[1] on long-term absence as at 31 March 2003 to 31 March 2006[2]

[3] Data are not available for Dyfed-Powys, Nottinghamshire, Sussex and West Midlands.
[4] Data are not available for North Wales.

Police: Telephone Services

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police authorities did not meet the target time for handling calls from the public under the National Call Handling Standards for (a) urgent and (b) non-urgent calls in the most recent year for which figures are available. [121205]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 February 2007]: The target times for answering emergency and non-emergency calls under the National Call Handling Standards is not yet collated nationally, as NCHS has not been fully implemented in all forces.

The HMIC Baseline Assessment in 2006 examined implementation of NCHS and its relationship with the Quality of Service Agreement under 1C Customer Service and Accessibility. The HMIC's 2007-08 assessment regime will also address this area of work.

Prisoners Release: Acquittals

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what financial and other assistance is available to those who are released from prison having been on remand and are found to be innocent. [133870]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Remand prisoners are eligible for all induction and resettlement programmes within the prisons and are able to access practical support to effectively help them re-integrate back into the community.

Currently there is no financial scheme that covers such prisoners. However, remand prisoners are entitled to travel warrants and in some cases to housing benefit and council tax benefit and mortgage interest for a limited time.

Prisoners: Compensation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims for compensation were made by prisoners at each of Her Majesty's Prisons and Young Offender Institutions in each year between 1997 and 2007; on what basis each claim was made; how many of these claims were settled out of court; how many were otherwise successful; what the total sum was of compensation paid; and what action was taken by the prison authorities in each case to prevent similar claims in the future. [134450]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign prisoners there were in prisons in England and Wales on 31 March, broken down by country of origin. [132929]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information as at the end of February 2007 on the numbers of prisoners by recorded nationality in all prison establishments in England and Wales is given in the following table. This is the latest date for which the information is currently available

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2007, Official Report, columns 546-7W, on prisons, when he expects to make publicly available the results of the trial of the body orifice scanner in the high security prison. [134074]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no plans to make public the results of this trial. It would not be in the public interest to publicise details of Prison Service security mechanisms.

Prisons: Childbirth

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women gave birth while serving a prison sentence in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [133977]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service has only routinely kept this information centrally since April 2005. Figures prior to this date are not available.

The following figures show, for the last two years, the numbers of women who gave birth while serving the custodial part of a sentence of imprisonment:

1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006: 106
1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007: 98

Prisons: Rural Areas

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has assessed the merits of providing short-term temporary cells in rural areas. [134372]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 27 April 2007]: The National Offender Management Service has investigated a wide range of potential temporary accommodation to increase capacity. Part of the 8,000 place capacity-building programme includes ready built modular accommodation which has an expected life span of 10 to 25 years. The early stages of the programme are using land on existing prison sites. Some of these are in rural areas.

Rape: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded rapes there were in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of those recorded rapes led to a conviction in each year, broken down by borough. [133510]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested. Recorded rape statistics relate to offences and convictions data relate to offenders. In addition, recorded crime data are published on a financial year basis and conviction data are published on a calendar year basis. For these reasons, the two data sources are not directly comparable.

Figures for the number of offences recorded and the number of convictions are provided in the following tables. Recorded crime data at borough level are available only from 2000-01.

The National Crime Recording standard was introduced in April 2002. Figures for earlier years are therefore not directly comparable.

Sentencing

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what extra resources and planning were made for the introduction of indeterminate public protection sentences; and if he will make a statement. [133785]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Criminal Justice Act 2003 created new indeterminate public protection sentences aimed specifically at sexual and violent offenders. This was part of an overall rebalancing of the system to maximise public protection:

the Government believe serious and dangerous offenders should be kept in prison for as long as is necessary to protect the public;

other offenders should normally be punished in the community.

No additional resources were allocated specifically for IPP but correctional services budgets take into account the overall work load demanded of them, including all the measures in the 2003 Act.

Terrorism

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to introduce new terrorism legislation to Parliament this Session; and if he will make a statement. [133649]

Mr. McNulty: Yes, we will let Parliament know when as soon as possible.

World War II: Education

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent in supporting education on the Holocaust in (a) schools and (b) the community in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [132401]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

Data on expenditure by schools to support education on the Holocaust are not collected centrally. However a grant of £3 million, administered by the Department, has been made to subsidise the Holocaust Educational Trust's "Lessons from Auschwitz" programme between April 2006 and March 2008. The programme aims to achieve the participation of two post-16 students from every school and Sixth form college in visits to Auschwitz-Birkenau. Other Departments also fund activities relating to Holocaust education.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Biofuels

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the carbon savings resulting from the growing of biofuels on land which had previously been (a) used to grow food crops and (b) set aside or unused; and if he will make a statement. [132773]

Ian Pearson: The Government have funded a number of studies to consider environmental impacts and benefits of biofuels, including Life Cycle Assessments. Carbon savings vary depending on a number of factors including the crop used and the way it is cultivated, previous land use, the transport used and the processing and conversion process.

A DEFRA-funded project is currently under way to develop a software tool to address the main environmental issues associated with bio-energy technologies. This will include a quantitative assessment of greenhouse gas (GHG) emission savings by using a land use reference system which includes "set-aside" and "food cropland". The tool will be available later this year.

The Government are also developing a comprehensive carbon and sustainability reporting scheme under the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation. This will require suppliers wishing to claim credits for their biofuels to provide information on the GHG saving and wider sustainability characteristics of those fuels. The GHG calculation methodology includes previous land use in addition to emissions from cultivation, transportation and processing and conversion.

Cattle: Disease Control

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals were slaughtered under the cull of animals owned by Mr. Davis Dobbin of Backford, Chester, broken down by (a) sex and (b) age group; what the cost was of the cull for his Department; how many animals appeared not to be correctly identified; and how many appeared to have irregularities in their passports. [134086]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 April 2007]: I cannot comment on this case as there are criminal proceedings pending.

Departments: Smith Institute

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times he has (a) spoken at and (b) attended meetings at the Smith Institute in an official capacity; and how many of those occasions were in the last 12 months in each case. [133764]

Barry Gardiner: In the last 12 months, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (David Miliband) has visited the Smith Institute in an official capacity on 17 October 2006 and 7 February 2007.

Domestic Wastes: Norfolk

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 77-80W, on domestic waste, on what basis the borough council of King's Lynn and West Norfolk was included in the list. [134608]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 27 April 2007]: In a recent survey commissioned by the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), the response received from King's Lynn and West Norfolk borough council indicated that the council operates an alternate week refuse and recycling service.

However, on clarification, it appears the council misunderstood the use of the terms "alternate weekly collection".

WRAP are currently reviewing their list of authorities providing an alternate weekly collection service and will be publishing an amended version shortly.

Fishing Vessels

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what share of total UK fishing quotas he allocated to the under-10 metre fleet in (a) the UK and (b) England in each year since 1997. [133883]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2006, 2 per cent. of the UK's opening quota was allocated to the 10 metre and under fleet. However, such an analysis is misleading because the total UK quota includes quota for stocks which are of no interest to inshore vessels, such as deep sea species and stocks fished in external waters. In addition, many of these vessels catch types of fish, such as crabs and scallops, which are not subject to quotas.

Fishing opportunities for the 10 metre and under fleet are boosted by Fishing Administrations acquiring additional quota in-year for their use.

Results for earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many over-10 metre vessels from (a) producer organisations and (b) the non-sector have moved into the under-10 metre fleet in each year since 1997. [133884]

Mr. Bradshaw: An over 10 metre vessel cannot join the 10 metre and under fleet. However, owners of over 10 metre vessels are able to sell their quota and licence and acquire a licence in the 10 metre and under fleet. Central data systems record all changes in ownership as a result of a sale or an agreed transfer. While these systems record details of the owners of vessels and licences, they are not designed to allow the details of the vessels and licences held by any individual owner to be tracked over time. As such, information on the movement of owners from over 10 metre vessels to 10 metre and under vessels could be produced only at a disproportionate cost.

Flood Control: EC Grants and Loans

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the implication of the new funding arrangements for the European Rural Development Fund on (a) flood defences overall, (b) the Thirsk Flood Alleviation Scheme and (c) coastal flood defences in Filey. [134016]

Ian Pearson: Flood defence expenditure is generally not covered by the Rural Development Programme for England. Funding for flood defence is a matter for the Environment Agency (EA).

The Rural Development Programme for England provides funding to safeguard and enhance our rural environment and to foster competitive and sustainable businesses and thriving rural communities. There is some limited funding available under the Environmental Stewardship Scheme for the creation of wildlife habitats which may also have flood risk management benefits.

It is not possible for the EA to apply for funding from this programme to fund flood defence works at Thirsk and Filey.

Food: Waste Disposal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to decide on whether to prosecute Bernard Matthews for lapses of bio-security concerning the storage of food waste. [134538]

Mr. Bradshaw: A Food Standards Agency investigation examined the possibility that food waste at the Bernard Matthews cutting plant at Holton may have been stored inappropriately.

The investigation concluded there was no evidence of any offences under the Animal By-Products Regulations 2005, for which DEFRA is the enforcement authority.

The Food Standards Agency also considered whether there was sufficient evidence to justify a prosecution under the Animal By-Products (Identification) Regulations 1995 or the Food Hygiene (England) Regulations 2006, for which the agency is the enforcement authority. The agency concluded there was insufficient evidence to provide a realistic prospect of conviction and decided not to proceed to a prosecution in this case.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when his Department plans to complete its review of the Warm Front grant maxima for England; [134609]

(2) when the latest Warm Front price review undertaken by White, Young and Green is expected to be published. [134562]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 27 April 2007]: These reviews are still continuing, and I expect to make further statements by the end of June.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households in each parliamentary constituency were assisted through the Warm Front scheme in each year since the scheme was introduced. [134611]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Since its launch in June 2000, the Warm Front scheme has assisted over 1.2 million households in fuel poverty in England, mainly through energy efficiency measures, including loft and cavity wall insulation.

Data on the number of households assisted in each constituency in each year since the start of the scheme could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, MPs can now access a personal micro site on the Eaga Group website that will update them on work undertaken in their area. The website also provides other information and resources to help MPs to raise awareness of the Warm Front scheme in their constituencies.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many zero carbon homes he expects to be built in each year for which his Department has made such an estimate. [133769]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not collect this information centrally, but are aware of a small number of low and zero carbon homes currently built. The Code for Sustainable Homes and the draft Planning Policy Statement on Climate Change are designed to cut carbon emissions from new homes and promote low and zero carbon homes in the period up to 2016, when the Government have proposed that all new homes will be zero carbon. We would therefore expect an increasing proportion of new housing built over the next 10 years to be zero carbon, but no exact estimates have been made.

Lighting

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will consider exempting people with light sensitivity conditions from proposals to phase out the sale of incandescent light bulbs. [133879]

Ian Pearson: The Government are exploring how various groups may be affected by the phasing out of inefficient lightbulbs. It is important that any unintended impacts are mitigated.

Plastics: Packaging

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the environmental impact of plastic bag use in supermarkets. [134040]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency is carrying out a study of the environmental impacts of a range of carrier bags, including disposable plastic carrier bags and bio-degradable alternatives. The study will look at their entire life-cycle from raw material extraction through to product manufacture. To date, the evidence suggests there would be no benefit in reducing the number of plastic bags in use if this encourages the use of alternative packaging or materials which are even more environmentally damaging.

The National Non-Food Crops Centre has also started work on Life Cycle Analysis comparisons of plastic, oxodegradable and biodegradable bags. The centre has established a Thematic Working Group on Biopolymers, which aims to promote and encourage the expansion of such materials. Biopolymers are derived from renewable sources and can be used in a range of products, including bags, which helps to develop a sustainable supply chain.

DEFRA continues to work closely with the devolved administrations, the Waste and Resources Action Programme, the British Retail Consortium, retailers and the plastics industry to develop a voluntary approach for reducing the environmental impact of carrier bags. Earlier this year, UK retailers agreed to reduce the overall environmental impact of their carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

Polytunnels: Planning Permission

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on planning procedures for (a) existing and (b) new agricultural polytunnels; what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on such procedures; and if he will make a statement. [131019]

Barry Gardiner: While Communities and Local Government (CLG) has overall responsibility for planning policy in England, the interpretation of planning regulations is a matter for the local planning authority in the first instance.

Polytunnels are important to the horticultural sector for helping growers to supply a wide range of high-quality produce over a full season. Crops, especially soft fruit such as strawberries, need to be protected and polytunnels provide an ideal, cost-effective solution. Growing fruit in polytunnels is in line with DEFRA's Strategy for Sustainable Farming and Food in that it meets demand for home grown fruit all the year round. However, extensive polytunnels can have a significant impact on the landscape and the local planning authority must consider each case on its merits.

I have had no discussions with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the question of planning policy for polytunnels, but DEFRA and CLG officials work closely together on this issue.

Power Stations: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what change there has been in carbon dioxide emissions from power generation since the programmed closure of older nuclear power stations began; how the power generated by those stations has been replaced; and what net change there has been in carbon dioxide emissions as a result of the replacement generation. [132110]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

Since 2000, six older nuclear power stations with a total generation capacity of approximately 2 GW have closed. Total carbon dioxide emissions from the power generation sector over the same period (2000-05) have increased by nearly 5 million tonnes of carbon. The level of carbon emissions from the power sector depends on a number of factors, including the level of demand and the wholesale electricity price, which is underpinned by the price of fossil fuels and the price of carbon in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme.

The impact of the closure of nuclear power stations on emissions will depend on the assumptions about the stations which have replaced them. If the capacity has been replaced by generation technologies that emit carbon (such as gas-fired generation, for example) then it is likely that the closure of the older nuclear capacity will have contributed to the rise in carbon emissions from the power sector between 2000 and 2005.

River Don: Pollution

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what measures have been implemented in order to prevent further overflow pollution similar to that experienced in 2006 in the River Don; [133989]

(2) what the most recent assessment is of the water quality of the River Don in the area which was affected by the overflow pollution in 2006. [133990]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency (EA) has been working with Yorkshire Water to agree changes to operations at Blackburn Meadows Sewage Treatment Works (Sheffield), within the terms of its permit. Improved maintenance and changes to procedure should improve the ability of the sewage works to deal with future storm events.

A study is under way into the main storm overflow from Aldwarke Sewage Treatment Works (Rotherham). Any improvements the study identifies will be completed by March 2010.

The EA is starting discussions with Yorkshire Water to agree a study into the impact of the combined storm overflows from the middle section of the River Don from Sheffield through Rotherham to Doncaster. The study will establish in detail what happens when summer storms occur and what can be done to improve the infrastructure in the future. In the EA's Periodic Review submission to the Water Services Regulation Authority (Ofwat) it will recommend that this study be carried out.

The Environment Agency's preliminary assessment of 2006 chemical water quality data shows that the River Don between Blackburn Meadows Sewage Works and Rotherham Centre (2.5 km) has deteriorated from "fairly good quality" to "fair quality" since 2005. While the river has deteriorated slightly in quality, it has not failed the long-term water quality objective set for the river.

The River Don below Blackburn Meadows Sewage Works failed the Freshwater Fisheries Directive in 2005 and has, provisionally, failed in 2006. It is believed that the sewage treatment works caused this failure. Consequently, the EA is also recommending to Ofwat that a detailed study concerning this failure be carried out.

Seas and Oceans: Environment Protection

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with representatives of the devolved administrations on measures to maintain and improve the marine environment. [132113]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have been working with the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly in recent months on our Marine Bill White Paper. I hope that that cooperation and commitment to the marine environment will remain after the Scottish elections in May.

Sewage: Floods

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many incidents of sewer flooding where raw sewage has contaminated homes and property occurred in (a) England, (b) each English region and (c) each county in the last three years. [134376]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Ofwat is the economic regulator of the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales. It collects information from companies on internal and external sewer flooding each year by water and sewerage company area.

The following table sets out the number of incidents of internal and external sewer flooding from public sewerage systems by company area in the last three years. The internal and external incidents include flooding to both household and non-household properties. Ofwat does not collect information showing the split of incidents between household and non-household properties. External incidents also include highway flooding incidents and incidents to open public spaces.

Telephone Use: Mrs. Beckett

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to public funds was of the telephone use of the right hon. Member for Derby, South from her official residence in Admiralty House in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [113985]

Barry Gardiner: Costs incurred by Ministers in the course of official business are borne by the department. The cost to the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for telephone services in Admiralty House for my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) between March 2004 and February 2006 was £1,412.51. The bulk of these costs were for the service charges associated with the telephone services provided.

Television: Carbon Emissions

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on carbon dioxide emissions of plasma television screens. [132227]

Ian Pearson: The Government's Market Transformation Programme (MTP) estimates that in 2005 63 million television (TV) sets were being used in UK homes. Approximately 90 per cent. of these were the traditional cathode ray tube (CRT) type and approximately 10 per cent. were flat screen plasma or LCD types. By 2010, we estimate that the total number of TVs will rise to around 67 million sets, of which approximately 50 per cent. will be CRTs, and approximately 40 per cent. LCD and plasma. The remaining 10 per cent. will be made up of rear-projection and yet-to-emerge technologies such as organic light-emitting diode and field-emission diode screens.

Our assessment, based on current trends, is that the energy consumed by all TVs could increase from around 10 Terra Watt Hours (TWh) of electricity (roughly 1.1 million tonnes of carbon) in 2005 to over 15 TWh of electricity (1.7 million tonnes of carbon) in 2010. Most of this potential increase in emissions is accounted for by a predicted significant rise in the average electricity consumption of each unit. This will be caused by the trend for consumers purchasing TVs with larger screens, including both plasma and LCD technologies, replacing their older and smaller CRT models, and a small increase in the total TV viewing hours and standby usage by households.

However, we believe there is a potential, through actions by manufacturers and retailers to bring forward and to promote TVs that are more energy efficient, so that the projected 2010 electricity consumption can be reduced by around 10 per cent.

The issue of increasing emissions from new generation television sets and the potential impact of emerging technologies was assessed in a report published for DEFRA in June 2005, entitled "An Assessment of Emerging Innovative Energy Efficient Technologies as part of the Energy Efficiency Innovation Review".

Waste Management

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants of each grade are employed by (a) the Waste Management Division and (b) the Waste Strategy Division within his Department. [132270]

Barry Gardiner: The number of staff employed in the two divisions as at 31 March 2007 was as follows:

Grade equivalent	Waste management	Waste strategy
AO	5	3
EO	7	9
HEO	12	9
SEO	1	4
Grade 7	6	5
Grade 6	0	1
SCS	1	1
Total	32	32

The numbers shown are a headcount and exclude inwardly seconded staff.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the job title is of each staff position in (a) the Waste Management Division and (b) the Waste Strategy Division within his Department. [132272]

Barry Gardiner: Job titles for staff in DEFRA's Waste Management and Strategy Divisions are as follows:

Waste Management Division

SCS Deputy Director, Head of Waste Management Division
Personal Secretary to the Head of Division
Grade 7 Head of Waste Management Licensing Unit
2 HEO Policy advisers
EO Policy adviser
AO Administrator
Grade 7 Head of Fly-tipping Strategy Unit

3 EO Policy advisers

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many scientists are employed by the (a) Waste Management Division and (b) Waste Strategy Division within his Department. [132274]

Barry Gardiner: Official scientific capacity in these divisions resides in DEFRA's Waste Evidence Branch (formerly the Waste Research Team).

There are two scientists in this team:

(i) the Head of Branch, a Grade 7, a Chartered Environmentalist and Waste Management Professional who holds a joint Honours BSc in Chemistry and Applied Zoology

(ii) the Senior Waste Technical Officer, a Senior Professional Technical Officer (SPTO), who holds a Master's in Geography focusing on environment.

DEFRA is also supported on waste-related scientific and technical issues by the Environment Agency.

Wood: China

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what procedures are in place to ensure that hardwood products imported from China are not made from timber that has been illegally felled in Indonesia; and if he will make a statement; [134165]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that imports of hardwood finished goods to the EU from China have been sourced from sustainable timber in (a) the Far East and (b) other countries. [134596]

Barry Gardiner: Currently there is no measure available to the UK to stop forest products being imported on the grounds that some or all of the timber used in their manufacture may not have met the laws of a third country.

However, the Indonesian Government have banned the export of round logs and most categories of rough sawn timber, as a measure to help tackle illegal logging within their borders.

To introduce more effective measures, Indonesia is negotiating a Voluntary Partnership Agreement (VPA) with the EU. This would allow member states to ban imports of timber directly from Indonesia which have not been licensed by the Indonesian Government as legally harvested. The UK Department for International Development is actively supporting these negotiations. This Forest Law Enforcement Governance and Trade (FLEGT) agreement, as currently proposed, would not stop Indonesian companies from exporting timber to third party countries, such as China, that do not have FLEGT type agreements with Indonesia. While the Indonesian Government have indicated that they intend to require timber exports to all countries to meet the same legality requirements as those specified under the VPA, the potential for circumvention remains a matter of concern. One solution might be the inclusion of an obligation on FLEGT partner countries to report on levels of timber imports and exports and actions taken to prevent circumvention.

The European Commission recently completed a public consultation exercise on options for additional measures. The UK has indicated particular interest in proposals for a new regulation which would make it a crime in a member state, to trade in products which contain or were manufactured from timber that had been illegally harvested, regardless of country of origin. It is important to stress that currently these options are presented in outline; the European Commission has made no formal proposal to the Council of Ministers. A great deal of detailed work must be done to ensure that any future legal instrument represents good and enforceable law.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Cancer: Drugs

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment has been carried out by his Department of the effectiveness of Sutent in treating cancer; and if he will make a statement. [133106]

Paul Goggins: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has responsibility for assessment of the cost and clinical effectiveness of new cancer drugs such as Sutent. In July 2006, the Department established a formal link with NICE (on behalf of the HPSS) under which NICE guidance is reviewed for its applicability to Northern Ireland and, where deemed to be applicable, is endorsed by the Department for implementation in the HPSS. Sutent has not yet been referred to NICE for assessment.

The Scottish Medicines Consortium (SMC) has however assessed this drug and has not recommended its use in the NHS in Scotland. In the absence of an assessment by MCE, local commissioners will be informed by the SMC's guidance when assessing priorities for the use of specialist drugs moneys in Northern Ireland. In this context, therefore, the Department would not expect Sutent to be widely available for patients in Northern Ireland until further evidence of the clinical and cost effectiveness of the drug is available.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent on hospitality by (a) each department in Northern Ireland and (b) his Department in financial year 2006-07. [133253]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the amount spent on hospitality by each department in Northern Ireland and the Northern Ireland Office in the financial year 2006-07.

Department	Amount spent on hospitality 2006-07 (£)
DARD	60,618
DCAL	26,590.64
DE	43,983.43
DEL	29,819
DETI	22,664.81
DOE	11,615.03
DFP	140,041
DHSSPS	161,813
DRD	16,596.14
DSD	25,187
OFMDFM	78,523
NIO	404,476

These figures are based on provisional outturn and are therefore subject to change. They relate to expenditure on hospitality and entertainment provided but in the case of DE, DFP and DSD it has not been possible, without incurring disproportionate costs, to completely separate out other associated costs such as room hire.

Expenditure incurred on hospitality by the NIO includes accommodation and hospitality for members of the royal family, visiting dignitaries and Heads of State, and also hospitality for the representatives of business, voluntary and community sectors in Northern Ireland attending the annual garden party at Hillsborough Castle.

Departments: Public Opinion

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will place in the Library a copy of the full results of the scoping study opinion poll commissioned from MORI by his Department. [134250]

Mr. Hanson: My Department has not commissioned a scoping study opinion poll from MORI in respect of the proposed multi-sports stadium at the Maze/Long Kesh site.

Doctors: Recruitment

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on what date he expects doctors who have already been interviewed in Northern Ireland to be informed of the outcome of round one. [133691]

Paul Goggins: All applicants will be informed of the outcome of round one on completion of the interview process. This is expected at the end of May 2007.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects medical applicants to the Northern Ireland unit of application to be able to express a preference for a particular hospital and location within the Province. [133692]

Paul Goggins: Successful applicants will be able to express preferences following the round of interviews, which are expected to be completed at the end of May 2007.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which specialities have already given junior doctors the opportunity to submit a CV with their application in Northern Ireland. [133696]

Paul Goggins: In Northern Ireland all recruitment panels had access to full application forms including employment history. Applicants were also asked to bring their complete portfolio to interview.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many foundation year 2 and senior house officer posts are funded, by speciality, in each of the Northern Ireland hospitals; [133697]

(2) how many foundation year 2 posts he expects to be funded, by speciality, in each of the Northern Ireland hospitals in August. [133698]

Paul Goggins: It is expected that 844 SHO training posts will be funded in total. This includes 231 Foundation 2 and 96 GP posts.

A breakdown of specialities and hospitals based on August 2006 baseline figures will be placed in the Library.

Doctors: Training

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are taken to ensure that junior doctors (Foundation Year 2 and Senior House Officer) working in paediatrics complete a certified paediatric life support course before being on call in Northern Ireland. [133701]

Paul Goggins: If, under local clinical governance arrangements, the completion of a certified life support course is a requirement for Foundation year 2 and Senior House Officers working in paediatrics, this should be supported by the Trust.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the ratio of speciality training to fixed term speciality training appointments is by speciality in Northern Ireland. [133704]

Paul Goggins: The current ratio of speciality training posts to fixed term speciality training posts is set out in the following table. These figures will be subject to further change through the reallocation of 20 fixed term speciality training posts to GP training posts.

Speciality	Speciality training posts	Fixed term speciality training posts	Ratio
Acute care	26	22	1:1.18
Anaesthetics	22	0	—

Radiology	6	0	—
Surgery	43	68[1]	1:58:1
Neurosurgery	3	1	1:0.33
Total	386	231	1:1.67

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to ensure that electronic signatures are verified before assessments are entered on the online NHS eportfolio for junior doctors in Northern Ireland. [133707]

Paul Goggins: An eportfolio is individually password protected and Trainees are also required to sign a probity declaration.

Driving Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many drivers in Northern Ireland have been (a) issued with fixed penalty fines for excess speed, (b) prosecuted for excess speed, (c) involved in fatal road traffic accidents and (d) prosecuted as a result of being involved in a road traffic accident in the last 12 months. [133234]

Paul Goggins: PSNI have provided the information in the following table which relates to drivers issued with fixed penalty fines and those drivers reported for prosecution for excess speed in 2006. A total of 173[1] drivers were involved in fatal road traffic accidents in this same period. However, the PSNI does not specifically record the number of drivers prosecuted as a result of being involved in a road traffic collision.

[1] 2006 figures are provisional and subject to change

Excess speed	2006
Received fixed penalty	21,697
Reported for prosecution	3,894

Further Education: Internet

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what records he keeps of the number of people in Northern Ireland enrolled on online further education courses. [133898]

Maria Eagle: The Department for Employment and Learning does not keep records specifying the number of students enrolled on online further education courses. It is not a mandatory requirement by the Department for further education colleges in Northern Ireland to provide information specifically related to students studying online courses; and colleges in Northern Ireland do not hold definitive data relating to this.

Health Professions: Training

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost has been of the generic skills study days organised by the Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency. [133693]

Paul Goggins: The cost of the generic skills study days came to £68,610, which was met within existing NIMDTA resources.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost has been of introducing the online NHS eportfolio website in Northern Ireland. [133694]

Paul Goggins: There was no cost to Northern Ireland in introducing NHS eportfolio, as it was provided free.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many speciality training posts at (a) first, (b) second and (c) third year he expects to be available by speciality in each Northern Ireland hospital in August. [133699]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Speciality	ST1	ST2	ST3	ST4	Speciality training posts
Acute care	12	8	6	—	26
Anaesthetics	9	0	13	—	22
General practice	55	5	7	—	67

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many fixed term speciality training appointments at (a) first, (b) second and (c) third year he expects to be available, by speciality, in each Northern Ireland hospital in August. [133700]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Speciality	ST1	ST2	ST3	Fixed term speciality training posts

Mentally Ill: Convictions

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what percentage of those convicted of criminal offences in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years were sentenced by mental health order disposals. [133129]

Mr. Hanson: The mental health order disposal available in the criminal courts is the hospital order. The following table gives the number of hospital order disposals and the total number of disposals for those convicted, for the calendar years 2001 to 2005. Due to small numbers the percentage of those sentenced by hospital orders has not been calculated.

Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Table: Number of hospital orders and total number of disposals given 2001 to 2005[1,2]

	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Number of hospital order disposals	1	3	2	2	6
Total number of disposals	24,350	24,100	26,675	27,925	26,255

[1] Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.
[2] Data for 2005 are provisional.

Official Publications

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) findings and (b) recommendations were of the review conducted by the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister of practice across Departments on the printing and distribution of Government publications. [134079]

Mr. Hanson: Following the implementation of the cross-departmental policy on the use of recycled paper and the adoption of an electronic print policy in October 2005 officials from the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister performed an informal impact review of the use of recycled paper and the electronic distribution of Government publications. This showed there will be an initial increase in cost but ultimately these will reduce and that there will be a positive environmental impact. On this basis a report is being drafted which will recommend the continuation of the use of recycled paper and electronic publishing in all Government Departments.

Olympic Games: Greater London

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what representations he has made within Government in the last 12 months about securing benefits to Northern Ireland from the 2012 Olympics. [133624]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) is the lead Northern Ireland Department to ensure Northern Ireland benefits from the potential opportunities that will arise from London hosting the Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2012.

The DCAL Permanent Secretary chairs an Olympic NI Task Force, which consists of representatives from other Government Departments and organisations responsible for delivering the benefits. This Group has met on four occasions over the last 12 months. DCAL works in close partnership with the Department of Culture Media and Sport (DCMS), the lead Government Department and with the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG).

Schools: Playing Fields

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many school playing fields there were in each education and library board area in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [133068]

Maria Eagle: The Education and Library Boards have provided the following information for the number of playing fields at controlled and maintained schools. Information relating to voluntary grammar, grant-maintained integrated and Irish medium schools is not readily available.

Board Area	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Belfast	52	52	52	52	52	52	52	52	53	53	53

North Eastern	121	121	118	118	118	118	118	118	118	116	114
South Eastern	78	78	73	73	73	74	76	76	76	76	76

Sportsgrounds: Lisburn

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent on the Maze stadium project to date; how much has been spent on (a) scoping, (b) feasibility and (c) promotion of the Maze stadium project; how much will be spent in total on site clearance; which Departments approved this expenditure; and whether such expenditure came from within existing departmental expenditure limits. [134071]

Mr. Hanson: To date Government and the Strategic Investment Board (SIB) have spent £916,855.38 on the proposed multi-sports stadium project at the Maze/Long Kesh. These costs include £124,727.53 on business planning which incorporate both (a) scoping and (b) feasibility. From 2004 to the end of this financial year, the Office of First and Deputy First Minister (OFMDFM) will have spent some £2.9 million on site clearance, demolition, and decontamination to prepare the Maze/Long Kesh regeneration site for redevelopment. No costs have been incurred on promotion of the stadium. These expenditures were approved by the Department of Culture Arts and Leisure (DCAL) and OFMDFM and are within their existing departmental expenditure limits.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what evaluation was made of the financial feasibility of the Maze stadium project; and if he will place in the Library the report of such evaluation. [134073]

Mr. Hanson: A viability assessment of a shared future multi-sports stadium for Northern Ireland was completed in May 2004. This concluded that the stadium could be operationally viable provided initial capital costs are met and the three sports bodies (Soccer, Rugby and Gaelic) agree to participate.

A copy of this report will be placed in the Library when final agreement has been reached with the three sports bodies and the business case for the stadium has been approved.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether a study was undertaken to assess the viability of alternative sites to the Maze for a regional multi-purpose sports stadium. [134127]

Mr. Hanson: A site selection evaluation exercise carried out in 2004 considered the viability of 12 sites for a shared future multi-sports stadium for Northern Ireland. Following this process, three sites were shortlisted for further, more detailed assessment. On the basis of this, two of the three remaining sites were ruled out on cost and acceptability grounds. This was announced in a press release in March 2005.

Sure Start Programme

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to implement the recommendations of (a) the Sure Start funding bid and (b) the South Down Family Health Initiative findings. [133334]

Maria Eagle: The information is as follows:

(a) The expansion of Sure Start is underway. Seven new projects have been created and 19 existing projects have expanded their catchment areas. Most expansions are operational, with the remainder in the process of recruitment of additional staff. Of the new projects, five have commenced delivery of services, and it is expected that the remainder will be operational later in 2007.

(b) In relation to the South Down family health initiative findings, since the report's publication, a part-time project worker has been appointed and a number of local projects have received support from a range of sources. Further funding will be based on an assessment of local priorities and affordability.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received from non-governmental organisations on individual producer responsibility and the transposition of article 8.2 of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [134384]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 27 April 2007]: The DTI's consultation in July 2006 prompted 15 responses from non-government organisations on the issue of producer responsibility and Individual producer responsibility.

The Government are committed to the principles of Individual Producer Responsibility (IPR) and will continue to work with producers of EEE to establish a workable and cost effective process for IPR in the UK.

The Government will also be considering how IPR is being addressed by other member states as part of the review of the WEEE Directive by the European Commission due to begin in 2008.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions his Department has had with the European Commission on the implementation of article 8.2 of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [134385]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 27 April 2007]: DTI representatives have discussed article 8.2 of the WEEE Directive which introduces individual producer responsibility with the EU on several occasions as part of the UK's implementation process.

DTI officials will continue to address this issue with the Commission and other member states as part of the review of the Directive scheduled to begin in 2008.

Energy Supply: Complaints

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if he will hold discussions with Ofgem on British Gas Services' setting up of a complaints handling service that is available to the public; [133992]

(2) if he will take steps to ensure that energy suppliers have effective and transparent complaints procedures. [133993]

Malcolm Wicks: The Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Bill, which is currently before Parliament, would place a duty on the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) to make regulations to prescribe standards for the handling of complaints by regulated suppliers in the energy sector. Regulated energy suppliers will thus be obliged, at the very least, to have in place the prescribed standards of complaints handling. The Bill will also introduce new redress schemes for electricity, gas and postal services, which will be able to resolve the full range of consumer complaints in these sectors and make provision for customer redress, including, where appropriate, the payment of compensation.

Customers currently have access to a complaint-handling service operated by Energywatch if they are unable to resolve a dispute directly with their gas and electricity supplier. Customers may also contact the Energy Supply Ombudsman, which can resolve complaints in respect of problems encountered with billing or changing supplier.

Low Carbon Buildings Scheme

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much money has been (a) allocated for grants and (b) disbursed by the Low Carbon Buildings Scheme in each month since the scheme began. [131693]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information is as follows:

Month	Allocated	£ Disbursed
2006
May	118,609.94	0
June	400,809.37	1,600.00
July	796,790.76	4,000.00

Month	Allocated	£ Disbursed
August	617,351.89	82,205.44
September	693,352.60	81,379.50

November	1,227,385.73	298,575.68
December	490,893.77	302,001.19
2007
January	493,267.92	390,058.92
February	464,699.72	551,966.42
March	647,304.95	594,249.85

Pregnant Women: Discrimination

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1317W, on pregnant women: discrimination, if he will place in the Vote Office copies of the Maternity and Paternity Rights and Benefits in Britain Survey 2005; how members of the public may obtain copies; at what cost; how much it cost his Department to produce the report; what follow up his Department plans to make on the report; how many officials were employed in drafting the report, broken down by grade; and if he will make a statement. [134460]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not intend to place the report in the Vote Office, however it will arrange for a copy to be lodged in the Libraries of the House. The Maternity and Paternity Rights and Benefits in Britain: Survey of Parents 2005 is publicly available on the Department of Trade and Industry's website. The direct link to the report is: http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file27446.pdf and the link to the Employment Relations Research Series, in which this publication is number 50, is http://www.dti.gov.uk/employment/research-evalution/errs/. Hard copies of the report are available, free of charge, from the Department's publications order-line—0845 015 0010 and quoting the Unique Reference Number (URN) 06/836.

The cost of conducting the survey was shared with the Department for Work and Pensions. The contribution made by the Department of Trade and Industry for conducting the survey, analysis and to produce the report was approximately £150,000. The Department will consider commissioning a follow-up survey in future years to assess the impact of recent legislative change on maternity and paternity rights. The survey report was drafted by Deborah Smeaton and Alan Marsh of the Policy Studies Institute, an independent research institute which was commissioned by the Department. No officials were employed in the drafting of the report.

Thorp

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the safety implications associated with the re-opening of the Thorp reprocessing plant; and if he will make a statement. [131172]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate issued a Consent on 9 January 2007 to allow the THORP plant to reopen—satisfied that the site licensee had done all work necessary to ensure THORP could be restarted safely. The precise date to restart reprocessing fuel at THORP is a matter for the licensee—Sellafield Ltd. in discussion with the site owner the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority.

Wind Power: Air Traffic Control

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the representations of NATS (En-route) plc in respect of the proposed Brenig wind farm. [134168]

Malcolm Wicks: As no application for consent under Section 36 of the Electricity Act 1989 has been lodged in respect of the proposed Brenig wind farm, no such assessment has been made.

TRANSPORT

Compulsory Purchase: Flimwell

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to purchase the Weald Smokery in Flimwell under a compulsory purchase order. [134780]

Dr. Ladyman: Draft orders for the A21 schemes have not yet been published, so no properties are currently subject to compulsory purchase. However, the owner of the Weald Smokery has served a Statutory Blight Notice on the Secretary of State and this has been accepted. The property is therefore to be acquired under the blight provisions contained in Section 154(2) of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

Departments: Translation Services

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) into which languages (a) his Department and (b) each of its executive agencies translates official documents and publications. [134656]

(2) how much (a) his Department and (b) each of its executive agencies spent on translation services in each of the last 10 years. [134657]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Dudley North, (Mr. Austin) of 23 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1681-82W.

Manual for Streets

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Manual for Streets replaces the Places, Streets and Movements and Design Bulletin 32 documents in all circumstances where Places, Streets and Movements and Design Bulletin 32 have been used prior to the publication of Manual for Streets; and if he will make a statement. [134889]

Gillian Merron: The Manual for Streets replaces Places, Streets and Movement and Design Bulletin 32 for the design of residential streets. Places, Streets and Movement and Design Bulletin 32 were intended for residential roads and footpaths although may have been more widely applied. As with the guidance it replaces, Manual for Streets applies to residential streets. However the manual states that many of its key principles may be applicable to other types of streets, for example high streets and lightly-trafficked lanes in rural areas. It is the responsibility of users of the manual to ensure that its application to the design of non-residential streets is appropriate.

Railways: Hastings

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to change (a) the timetabling and (b) the frequency of train services along the Hastings to Charing Cross line; and if he will make a statement. [134785]

Mr. Tom Harris: The franchise agreement with London and South Eastern Railway, the train operator for Kent services, requires the provision of services on the Hastings to Charing Cross route with characteristics similar to those that exist today. The detail of the timetable necessary to fulfil that contractual obligation is a matter for the train operator to agree with Network Rail.

Roads: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic (a) accidents and (b) fatalities there were in Darlington (i) involving drivers aged under 21 years and (ii) in total in each of the last 10 years. [135016]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of reported personal injury road accidents and the resulting number of fatalities (i) involving drivers aged under 21 years, and (ii) in total, in the unitary authority of Darlington for each year since 1996 are given in the table. 2005 is the latest year for which data are available.

(i) Accidents in the unitary authority of Darlington involving at least one driver under the age of 21 and resulting fatalities GB 1996-2005

	(a) Accidents	(b) Fatalities
1996	90	3
1997	81	3
1998	92	2
1999	85	0
2002	78	1
2004	72	1

Courts: Manpower

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of the turnover of staff in the court system in each of the last three years. [134164]

Ms Harman: The turnover rate for staff in Her Majesty's courts service for the last two years is as follows:

1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006—9 per cent.

1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007—9 per cent.

In the year prior to April 2005 the turnover rate for the court service excluding magistrates courts was:

1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005—5 per cent.

There are no centrally held figures for the magistrates prior to the creation of HMCS. The 42 Magistrates Committees maintained their own HR records. The cost of obtaining figures prior to April 2005 can be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134058]

Ms Harman: My Department has a single contract for office supplies that operates across all business areas. Under this arrangement the percentage breakdown of paper used for photocopying obtained from recycled sources in each of the last three years is set out as follows.

	Recycled paper percentage
2004-05	16.57
2005-06	21.88
2006-07	33.09

My Department obtains printed publications from variety of sources. Figures on percentage breakdown of paper used in printed publications from recycled stock over the past three years have not been held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fines: Compensation

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discretion magistrates have in implementing the victims' surcharge when the sentence is a fine. [134421]

Ms Harman: Magistrates have no discretion in implementing the victims' surcharge when the sentence is a fine. They have a duty under section 161A(1) of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to impose a surcharge. By virtue of the Surcharge Order it must be imposed in all cases where the sentence is a fine, whether or not any other penalty is imposed.

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs who is responsible for (a) notification and (b) collection of the victims' surcharge; what estimate has been made of the cost of collecting each victims' surcharge; what funds have been allocated for the collection of the surcharge; and to which budget they have been allocated. [134422]

Ms Harman: The court which imposes the victims' surcharge is responsible for notification of the surcharge. Collecting the surcharge is the responsibility of the magistrates court, in the same way that they currently collect other financial impositions. As the courts are using existing systems, process and legislation (fines collection scheme) and the victims' surcharge is being treated in the same way as a fine for the purposes of enforcement, there are no additional implementation costs for this Department.

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what representations she has received on the victims' surcharge since its introduction. [134423]

Ms Harman: The Department has passed any representations received on the victims' surcharge to the Home Office to respond to as they have lead policy responsibility for the issue. We do not keep a log of representations passed on this way.

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions her Department had with (a) magistrates and (b) court clerks before the introduction of the victims' surcharge; and if she will make a statement. [134424]

Ms Harman: The Department consulted with the Magistrates' Association and Justices' Clerks' Society on the implementation of the victims' surcharge. The surcharge was discussed by the DCA's Criminal Enforcement Policy Advisory Group where the Justices' Clerks' Society and Magistrates' Association were represented. Both organisations went on to jointly produce guidance for justices' clerks and magistrates on the application of the surcharge.

Members: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Castle Point of 30 March on Mrs. Wendy Gillespie. [134366]

Vera Baird: My Department has no record of receiving your letter of 30 March. However, my officials are preparing a response to your earlier related letter of 6 March. I apologise for the delay.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 342W, on the community legal service, when she expects to provide a substantive reply to the Question; and what the reason is for the delay. [134367]

Vera Baird: My reply to the hon. Member on 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 342W, referred him to the list of highest paid barristers receiving fees out of the Community Legal Service during 2004-05. These were the latest figures available at the time the hon. Member tabled his question.

Equivalent information for 2005-06 has now been verified with the barristers concerned and this will appear on my Department's website shortly. I will notify the hon. Member once it has been made available.

Ministry of Justice: Manpower

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps have been taken to train Home Office staff who will transfer to the Ministry of Justice following its creation. [134352]

Vera Baird: Staff from the Home Office and Department for Constitutional Affairs transferring to the Ministry of Justice will continue to carry out their usual functions on and immediately after its creation on 9 May. We will be working with colleagues from the Home Office to determine what training and information they will need to support them through the change. DCA has experience of transferring large groups of staff from the creation of HM Courts Service in 2005 and The Tribunals Service in 2006. Information will be communicated through the departmental intranet, including regularly updated FAQ pages.

Opinion Leader Research

Mr. Francois: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what payments her Department has made to (a) Opinion Leader Research and (b) Deborah Mattinson in each year since 1997. [133716]

Vera Baird: The Department has only made payments to Opinion Leader Research and are detailed as follows:

1997 to 2004-05	0
2005-06	76,316
2006-07	77,154

Sentencing

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will publish information on judges to allow comparison of their sentencing for the same offences. [132253]

Ms Harman: There are no plans to enable analysis of sentences by individual judge. It would not be possible to analyse the sentencing decisions of individual judges in such a way as to allow for any meaningful comparison, as no two offences or offenders are identical. It is the role of the Court of Appeal Criminal Division to ensure consistency of sentencing, either in relation to appeals against sentence or references by the Attorney-General.

Vetting

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the average cost is of carrying out a Criminal Records Bureau check. [134166]

Ms Harman: My Department pays fees to the Criminal Records Bureau which carries out the checks. These are currently £31 for a standard disclosure and £36 for an enhanced disclosure. The additional cost of processing checks within my Department is not kept centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

Vetting: Training

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the average cost was of training officers in the court system to perform Criminal Records Bureau checks in the latest period for which figures are available. [134167]

Ms Harman: My Department currently has 40 staff in its Human Resources Directorate who are trained in assessing criminal records information received from the Criminal Records Bureau. These are supported by administrative staff who have been trained in the checks process. These staff perform criminal records checks duties as part of their job roles. The cost of training these staff is not held centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Climate Change

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent discussions he has had with international counterparts on climate change. [134039]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have just returned from China where my meetings with Premier Wen and State Councillor Tang included discussion on the importance of international co-operation on climate change. I also presented a proposal for Sino-UK collaboration in creating sustainable cities, launched phase II of the UK-China Sustainable Development Dialogue and delivered three keynote speeches on sustainability and climate change to international audiences.

Earlier in April, I launched the British Embassy / British Council climate change campaign "Opportunity through Action" in Prague with keynote speeches at a dinner debate and a youth conference. I engaged Czech Prime Minister Topolanek, and Deputy Prime Ministers Bursik and Vondra on the subject of climate change during separate bilateral meetings and later that week I discussed similar issues with Maltese Prime Minister Gonzi and President Adami.

Departments: EC Action

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many EU Council meetings he has attended; and who represents him if he is unable to attend. [133754]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Ministers and civil servants attend many meetings as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not the normal practice of Government to disclose details or attendance at such meetings. However, I can state that the British Government is always represented at EU Council meetings.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 130W, on the armed forces: council tax, what options are being considered; when he expects to publish his proposals; and what powers there are to ensure that his proposals are implemented across the United Kingdom. [133164]

Derek Twigg: We are discussing with Communities and Local Government both statutory and non-statutory options for providing support for the council tax costs in England of service personnel deployed on operations abroad. We wish to find a solution to this as soon as possible.

Any decision to implement a statutory council tax discount scheme in Wales and Scotland, or a new domestic rate relief in Northern Ireland would be entirely a matter for the Welsh Assembly, Scottish Executive and Northern Ireland Assembly.

Armed Forces: Footwear

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what type of footwear is issued to members of the armed forces as (a) part of their standard kit and (b) when deployed to operations in Iraq; where this footwear is sourced from; and if he will make a statement. [133465]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Footwear supplied to the armed forces is of the following types: Combat; Parade/Ceremonial; and Safety Footwear. The standard issue footwear as part of the Combat Soldier 95 ensemble is the Combat Assault Boot.

Troops deploying on operations in Iraq are issued with Desert Combat Boots. Lightweight patrol boots are also available depending on the duties being undertaken in theatre.

Most footwear is sourced through the prime contractor, Iturri, a Spanish footwear manufacturer.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the lifetime of footwear issued to members of the armed forces; how often new footwear is issued to members of the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [133466]

Mr. Ingram: The life expectancy of footwear varies between each type depending on use and conditions. In broad terms the expectation is: Combat Boots should last between one and five years (although Jungle Boots and Desert Boots may only have a life of six weeks or six months respectively); Parade/Ceremonial Boots are repairable and can last from one to five years plus; Safety Footwear six months to two years.

When boots are no longer serviceable or there has been a change in the users' needs, replacement boots can be obtained or requested from the Unit Quartermasters both in the UK and overseas.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what tests were conducted as part of the procurement procedure of the footwear issued to members of the armed forces; what (a) temperature, (b) weather and (c) terrain conditions were used as part of these tests; and if he will make a statement. [133467]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 April 2007]: When new footwear requirements, designs and materials are introduced, they are subjected to laboratory testing and trials in the locations and conditions for which the item has been designed. The new version of the desert combat boot, introduced in March 2006, is a modification of the existing design, which has been in use since around 2000. Testing in this case was therefore limited to that done in the laboratory.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the monthly expenditure on footwear for members of the armed forces was in (a) 1999 and (b) 2006; and if he will make a statement. [133468]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The current five-year enabling arrangement for supplying footwear to the armed forces was awarded in 2004. The estimated value of the contract is between £8 million and £9 million per year.

The information prior to 2004 is not held centrally and could be provided at only disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what ring-fenced capacity in each speciality his Department requested from the Department of Health in each year since 2001; and what the cost of this capacity was. [132629]

Derek Twigg: There is no 'ring fenced' capacity but the MOD has negotiated accelerated access to hospital assessment and treatment from the five Ministry of Defence Hospital Units (MDHU) host trusts and the University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust (UHBFT). The cost of this delivery in 2006-07 was just under £30 million.

The historic figures for the MDHU spend on accelerated access are as follows:

	£ million
2001-02	22.4
2002-03	23.7
2003-04	25.1
2004-05	26.8
2005-06	27.5
2006-07	29.8

Furthermore, MOD and the Department of Health have agreed an integrated plan for reception arrangements for military patients (RAMP), to manage the reception of injured military personnel in NHS hospitals. This covers the reporting of patients, their medical reception, movement, tracking, care and administration within the NHS.

The military managed ward (MMW) located in the orthopaedic/trauma ward in Selly Oak hospital (part of UHBFT) provides clinical care, by a combined team of military and civilian personnel, for military patients whose clinical condition allows for them to be nursed in this ward.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilian medical personnel assisted in the provision of medical support on military operations overseas in each year since 2001, broken down by operation. [132851]

Derek Twigg: The number of individual civilian medical personnel who have been employed on operations overseas in each calendar year is shown in the following table:

	Operation
	Oculus	Balkans	Telic	Iraq
2001		—		—
2002		—		—
2003		1		—
2004		4		6
2005		1		11
2006		—		21

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions his Department has held with (a) the Local Government Association, (b) veterans' associations, (c) the Gurkha Welfare Association and (d) others on the housing needs resulting from army discharges. [130526]

Derek Twigg: Discussions take place regularly with the Department for Communities and Local Government and other interested parties, these include a quarterly meeting involving representatives from the veterans' and wider charitable organisations. I met with my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Local Government and Community Cohesion (Mr. Woolas) on 13 March to discuss housing issues. Recent discussions have covered a wide range of subjects including veterans' homelessness projects of current interest and research into levels of homelessness among veterans and the measures to address these.

There have been no recent direct discussions with the Local Government Association or Gurkha specific charitable organisations.

Armed Forces: Inheritance Tax

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether inheritance tax is payable on the estate of service personnel who are killed (a) on active service and (b) on overseas service outside the theatre of war; [132854]

(2) under what circumstances inheritance tax is waived on the estate of service people killed in the line of duty. [132855]

Derek Twigg: Under S154 of the Inheritance Tax Act 1984, liability to inheritance tax does not apply in relation to the death of service personnel, where the Secretary of State for Defence, or the Defence Council, certifies that the individual died from a wound inflicted, accident occurring, or disease contracted, either on active service against an enemy, or on other service of a warlike nature. This includes current operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Should an individual die from an injury or disease contracted at some previous time, with death being due to, or hastened by, the aggravation of the injury or illness which occurred during a period when the aforementioned conditions applied, then consideration is given on a case-by-case basis to granting an exemption from a liability to inheritance tax.

As part of the assistance provided to bereaved families, the MOD Joint Casualty and Compassionate Centre (JCCC) considers whether the circumstances of a death of anyone currently serving in the armed forces allows an exemption from inheritance tax and, where appropriate, provide the executor or family member with a certificate of exemption which can be passed to the relevant tax office.

For claims arising as a result of injuries or illness sustained in previous conflicts or in retirement, applications for an exemption have to be made to the JCCC by the executor/next of kin following the death of the individual concerned.

Armed Forces: Military Aircraft

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Lockheed WP-3D Orion aircraft he plans to purchase for the (a) Royal Air Force and (b) Royal Navy. [134330]

Mr. Ingram: The WP-3D variant of the US Lockheed Orion aircraft family was developed for the US Government as a weather research aircraft. There are no plans to procure any of these aircraft for the Royal Navy or Royal Air Force.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to implement the proposal in Early Day Motion 67 that all ex-servicemen and women should be treated equally in the payment of pensions regardless of when they served in Her Majesty's armed forces. [133648]

Derek Twigg: The situation remains as set out by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Ingram) on 31 January 2007, Official Report, columns 337-40, during the adjournment debate secured by my hon. Friend the Member for Morley and Rothwell (Mr. Challen).

BAE Systems

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many meetings his private office has had with representatives of BAE Systems in the last 12 months; and what was discussed at each such meeting. [129443]

Mr. Ingram: Over the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007, officials from the Private Office of the Minister for Defence Equipment and Support held a total of 12 meetings with representatives of BAE Systems. These meetings were to make arrangements for, or follow up on, actions from meetings between the Minister and BAES management. No other MOD ministerial Private Office staff met representatives of BAES Systems in this period.

Bell 212 Helicopters

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Bell 212 helicopters are in service with the British Army; and in which theatres they are deployed. [134201]

Mr. Ingram: There are seven Bell 212 helicopters in service with the British Army, which are leased to the MOD under a civil owned military registered (COMR) contract. Of these, three are used by 7 Flt AAC in support of Brunei garrison and three by 25 Flt AAC in support of the British Army training support unit in Belize. There is an additional Bell 212 based at the School of Army Aviation (SAAvn) in Middle Wallop for aircrew training.

Bombs

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cluster bombs or their equivalents (a) are in the ownership of the Government and (b) have been ordered and have yet to be delivered; what will happen to these stocks; and if he will make a statement. [131397]

Mr. Ingram: I am withholding details about current and future in-service cluster munitions stock levels because its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

As my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Defence announced in his written ministerial statement on 20 March 2007, Official Report, columns 36-37WS, we have withdrawn two types of cluster munitions, the RBL 755 and the MLRS M26, from service with immediate effect. Stocks of these munitions will undergo disposal. The disposal of other cluster munitions that have also been withdrawn from service (155mm HE M483, BL 755 and IBL 755) will continue. No further stocks of these munitions have been ordered.

Holdings of cluster munitions that have been withdrawn from service and are awaiting disposal, rounded to the nearest 100, are:

	Quantity
BL 755 (including the RBL 755 and the IBL 755) bombs	2,500
MLRS M26 rocket pods	7,200
HE M483 shells	16,900
HE M483 shells (unfused/incomplete)	2,400

Defence and Communications Services Agency

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason the technical apprenticeships programme in the Defence and Communication Services Agency was wound down; and if he will make a statement. [133007]

Derek Twigg: The DEandS Information Systems and Services—formerly the Defence Communications Services Agency—has run a three-year modern technical apprenticeship scheme since 2003. The scheme, which is delivered at HMS Collingwood in Hampshire, is designed to equip those successfully completing it with the skills and attributes required of the organisation's future technical managers. This scheme continues.

Once HMS Collingwood was established, the previous legacy schemes run at Royal Air Force Henlow in Bedfordshire and at Highbury college, Portsmouth, which the Agency acquired in 2000, were discontinued in 2005 as they no longer provided the training and development necessary for technical staff working increasingly closely with commercial delivery partners.

Defence Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Defence dental service officers were based (a) in the UK and (b) abroad, including those deployed on operations, in each of the last five years. [132623]

Derek Twigg: The numbers of Defence dental service officers are shown in the following table, as at 1 April in the year stated:

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
UK
Military	218	198	198	198	200
Civilian	42	42	42	42	42
Abroad
Military	52	52	52	52	50
Civilian	11	11	11	11	11

No civilian dental practitioners are deployed on operations. The uniformed Defence Dental Service Officers deployed on operations are drawn from the total cadre based in the UK and abroad as shown above. The numbers deployed on operations overseas in each calendar year were:

	Operations
2002	12
2003	44
2004	36
2005	36
2006	48

Defence Medical Service

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many absences of Defence medical service staff were recorded at each Ministry of Defence hospital unit headquarters in each year since 2001; and what the reasons were for such absences. [132628]

Derek Twigg: Defence Medical Services personnel employed in the five MOD hospital units may be absent from those units because they are undertaking military operational duties or training, or are on leave, or for other reasons. All absences are approved and recorded as necessary. However, the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) uniformed and (b) civilian personnel work in (i) his Department's main building, (ii) the Old War Office Building and (iii) St. George's Court. [130588]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The information requested is set out in the following table. The numbers relate to MOD military and civil service personnel permanently deployed to the respective buildings as at 1 April 2007. These figures can change on a day to day basis, and do not include contractor personnel or staff temporarily operating out of these buildings.

	Military personnel	Civilian personnel	Total
Main building	1,024	2,206	3,230
Old War Office building	272	637	909
St. George's Court	116	674	790
Total	1,412	3,517	4,929

Departments: Money

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much cash was physically lost by his Department in each of the last 10 financial years for which information is available. [134504]

Mr. Ingram: The amount of cash and cash equivalents (e.g. bank notes, postal orders, stamps and travel warrants) physically lost by the Department within the last three years is:

2003-04	93,074.51
2004-05	7,438.06
2005-06	154,683.27

Information on cash losses prior to 2003-04 is not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133806]

Derek Twigg: Our records indicate that two oral questions tabled to this Department have been transferred since May 2005.

Electoral Commission

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer by the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, of 27 November 2006, Official Report, columns 261-62W, on annual canvass: armed forces, if he will place in the Library a copy of the results of the evaluation of the campaign. [134502]

Derek Twigg: Evaluation of the survey carried out to monitor registration levels and awareness among service personnel is not yet complete. I will place a copy of the report in the Library of the House when it becomes available.

Falkland Islands: Armed Conflict

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department is taking to assist (a) the funding of and (b) practical arrangements for events held by servicemen and women to mark the 25th anniversary of the Falklands war. [132848]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave, on the funding of events to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Falklands conflict, on 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 857W, to the hon. Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle).

In addition to the national commemorative events in June that my Department is organising, the armed forces are providing practical support in the form of hosting or supporting a number of other events that are being arranged around the country.

Military Aircraft: Procurement

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1671W, on military aircraft procurement, whether the four Britten Norman Defender aircraft are still deployed in Iraq. [134200]

Mr. Ingram: It is not appropriate to comment on equipment currently deployed on operations as to do so could compromise operational security and the safety of service personnel.

Royal School of Military Engineering: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons are for the delays encountered during the Royal School of Military Engineering Private Finance Initiative contract negotiations; what impact the delay in signing the contract has had on the training of military engineers; and what measures are being taken to ensure that contract signatures for similar projects are not delayed. [133341]

Derek Twigg: Work is ongoing to identify a solution for the Department that provides best value for money and is technically viable, on conclusion of which, the project, subject to successful completion of negotiations, is expected to proceed to contract award in the first half of 2008.

The Royal School of Military Engineering (RSME) continues to deliver well-trained and motivated military engineers to meet the operational requirements of the armed forces. This output has not been affected by the ongoing RSME Project.

Royal Yacht: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to remove the cost of the upkeep of the Royal Yacht from the public purse; and if he will make a statement. [134515]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 161W.

Service Accommodation

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 1 February 2006, Official Report, columns 512-13W, on service accommodation, for what reason single living accommodation is not assessed for standard for condition. [134625]

Derek Twigg: When single living accommodation (SLA) is assessed in respect of its grade for charge the process specifically includes an assessment of the physical condition of the property; along with other aspects including, scale, environment and location.

Currently, this information is not assembled centrally into "standard for condition" statistics in the same way as for service family accommodation. The Department is, however, looking at the scope for grading all accommodation on a common basis in the future.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans the Government has to contribute (a) personnel, (b) hardware and (c) finances to the hybrid force proposed for Darfur. [134943]

Mr. Ingram: Discussions between the UN and African Union (AU) on a hybrid force for Darfur continue. The peacekeeping force is expected to be funded by UN assessed contributions, but the UN's Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) has not yet issued a list of requirements for personnel and equipment. The UK contributes 7.8 per cent. of the UN assessed peacekeeping budget worldwide.

The UK fully supports the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) in its peacekeeping role in Darfur. DPKO has undertaken extensive planning for support to AMIS, with one UK military planner deployed to New York to assist. At UN request, MOD has provided two further officers to fill key appointments in the first (light support package) phase of UN deployments. They are now in Sudan. The UK is also considering a UN request to send another officer to DPKO to assist with preparations for the AU-UN hybrid force.

The Department will consider what further support can be provided when the plans for the hybrid force are mature.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Leicestershire

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding his Department plans to allocate to Leicestershire local education authority for the Building Schools for the Future programme. [133709]

Jim Knight: Leicestershire local authority has four Building Schools for the Future (BSF) projects, which have been provisionally prioritised for waves 10-12 and waves 13-15 of the programme. Funding for projects in these waves has not yet been allocated.

Leicestershire currently has a phase one 'one-school-pathfinder' project concerning King Edward VII School, which has been allocated £26 million of capital funding.

72 local authorities with 87 projects are included in BSF waves one to six. A further 40 authorities are receiving a single-school project. Together with academies, a total of about 1,000 secondary schools are in line for modernisation.

Children's Centres: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much capital has been (a) spent and (b) allocated for future years for the development of children's centres in Warrington. [134028]

Beverley Hughes: For the period 2004-06, £961,633 capital was made available to Warrington for the delivery of Sure Start services.

The General Sure Start Grant (GSSG) made available £3,185,235 capital for the period 2006-08 for the delivery of Sure Start children's services.

The CSR settlement gives us an overall spending envelope for 2008-11 which will enable us to deliver our key priorities for children, young people and learners. A specific capital allocation for Warrington will be made later in the year.

City Academies: Comprehensive Schools

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations he has received on the potential impact of city academies on nearby comprehensive schools. [134192]

Jim Knight: Each academy proposal is subject to a formal consultation process during its feasibility stage, and many representations about academy proposals are received, including the potential impact of academies on neighbouring schools.

City Academies: Consultants

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many project consultants have been engaged by (a) his Department and (b) associated bodies in the Academy Scheme; by what process consultants are appointed for the Scheme; and how much the Department has spent on such consultants. [133854]

Jim Knight: The Academies programme requires a wide range of skills including some which are outside the core civil service skills. Since the Academies programme began in December 2000 the Department for Education and Skills has spent £20,161,977 on a range of consultancy services for the Academies programme. The Department currently has 46 separate contracts for the provision of consultancy services to the Academies programme including:

- an ongoing independent evaluation of the programme;
- programme management expertise;
- school improvement and intervention;
- background checks to determine the suitability of potential sponsors;
- legal advice, construction procurement expertise

Each Academy project also has an overall project manager who is initially contracted to the Department but whose contract transfers to the individual Academy Trust once the funding agreement is signed. The total cost of these project management services from the start of the programme is £28,338,823. There are now 47 open academies and 90 in the pipeline.

Consultancy services are procured for the Academies programme in accordance with the Departmental Procurement Policy and the EU Procurement Directives.

Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on what evidential basis the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority adopted the approach to the curriculum outlined in the National Curriculum planning guidance and draft supporting materials. [134176]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's (QCA) approach to the curriculum outlined in the National Curriculum planning guidance and supporting materials is built on evidence from ongoing work with schools and colleges. The 'futures in action' programme, which has been running since 2005, has continued to demonstrate a high degree of consensus about many of the characteristics of how the curriculum should be shaped. QCA's work is also supported by the results of its annual curriculum monitoring programme which includes interviews and questionnaires with head teachers, deputy heads, teachers and pupils.

Diplomas for England

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to train teachers to deliver the new Diplomas for England programme; and how much is being spent on such training. [134541]

Jim Knight: The Department has already put in place a broad programme of support to ensure that those teaching the Diplomas—as well as those who will be leading and supporting the changes—will be well equipped to do so. The Department is working in partnership with the Centre for Excellence in Leadership (CEL), Lifelong Learning UK (LLUK), the National Assessment Agency (NAA), the National College for School Leadership (NCSL), the Quality Improvement Agency (QIA), the Secondary National Strategies (SNS), the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), and the Training and Development Agency (TDA).

Building on the existing skills of the education workforce, the programme provided by QIA and SSAT includes three days of continuing professional development spread through the 2007/08 academic year for leading Diploma practitioners from each consortium of schools and colleges that will teach Diplomas from 2008. Online materials, a training needs analysis tool, an online community and other resources will supplement this training and encourage collaboration between Diploma-teaching institutions. In future some initial teacher training placements will also be tailored specifically to Diploma teaching.

In the financial year 2007-08 my Department has allocated a total of £45 million for the support of the 14 to 19 workforce development programmes.

Education: Leicestershire

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what capital funding he made available to Leicestershire county council in each financial year since 1996-97. [133811]

Jim Knight: Schools capital funding allocated to Leicestershire county council, including direct to schools in its area, in each financial year since 1996-97 is set out in the following table:

	£ million
1996-97	3.6
1997-98	2.9
1998-99	6.5
1999-2000	9.2

Education: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total amount of capital spending on education in Warrington was in each year since 1997. [134027]

Jim Knight: Schools capital funding allocated to Warrington, including direct to schools in its area, in each financial year since it achieved unitary status in 1998, is set out in the following table.

	Amount (£ million)
1998-99	3.7
1999-2000	4.7

GCSEs

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which 200 maintained mainstream schools had the lowest proportion of pupils achieving five or more GCSEs including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language in 2006. [133461]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The information requested has been placed in the House of Commons Library. Data for all schools was provided in the answer to PQ 112152 on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 298W.

The link to the answer for PQ 112152 giving figures for all schools is at the following address:

This analysis is based on the revised 2006 KS4 data.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many students achieved five GCSEs at grade C or above including English and mathematics in each year since 1997, excluding those students who achieved grade C equivalent at GNVQ; [133847]

(2) how many students achieved five GCSEs at grade C or above including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language in each year since 1997, excluding those students who achieved grade C or equivalent at GNVQ; [133866]

(3) how many students achieved five GCSEs at grade C or above including English, mathematics and science in each year since 1997, excluding those students who achieved grade C or equivalent at GNVQ. [133867]

Jim Knight [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The following table shows the percentage of 15-year-old pupils[1] achieving five or more GCSEs excluding GNVQs[2] at grades A*-C including the subjects listed in each year since 1997[2].

[1] Pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year i.e. 31 August.

[2] At least a pass grade at a full intermediate GNVQ is equivalent to four GCSEs at grades A*-C.

Martial Arts: Schools

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his Department's expenditure on promoting martial arts in schools was in each year since 1997. [127411]

Jim Knight: Funding is not allocated on an individual activity or sport basis. In the five years to 2008, the Government have invested an additional £978 million in PE and school sport through the national school sport strategy. Where there is a perceived need, schools and school sport partnerships will allocate resources to martial arts locally.

The percentage of schools in a school sport partnership offering martial arts has risen from 4 per cent. in 2003/04 to 9 per cent . in 2005/06.

Parenting Support

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are being taken to assist local authorities in providing parenting support. [133684]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 26 April 2007]: Local authorities are central to our ambitions to deliver additional support to parents and we will continue to support and collaborate with them.

On 15 March 2007, we published, "Every Parent Matters", which describes the Government's commitment to support the development of a wide range of services for parents to access, as and when they need it. It makes clear that local authorities will be at the heart of planning and delivering these services locally.

In October 2006 we published "Parenting Support", guidance for local authorities which describes the approach needed to develop a local strategy to provide a continuum of support for all parents. At the same time we launched the Commissioner's Toolkit, a database of parenting programmes including information on what research suggests about the effectiveness of current interventions. This toolkit is designed to equip commissioners to make decisions which better suit the needs of parents in their community. Over 2006-08 local authorities will receive the £7.5 million Parenting Support Strategy Grant. Its purpose is to assist local authorities in developing and implementing a strategic approach to parenting support, and build upon strategic approaches already in place.

We have spent over £2.1 billion establishing and sustaining Sure Start Local Programmes and Children's Centres, since 1999, initially in some of our most disadvantaged areas. Currently there are 1,258 children's centres, providing a range of high quality early learning, health and parental support to a million young children under five and their families. There will be 2,500 centres by 2008, and 3,500 by 2010, one for every community. Additionally, we are establishing extended services for pupils, families and the wider community in all schools across the country. The extended schools core offer includes services providing parenting support, and over 4,500 schools are now delivering the offer. All schools will do so by 2010.

A number of pilots have been developed with local authorities to deliver new ways of supporting parents. The learning from many of these pilots will inform the further roll out of extended schools and Sure Start Children's Centres. For example, Early Learning Partnerships are running in 19 local authorities; targeting hard to reach families and promoting their engagement in early learning for children aged one to three years. Transition information sessions will be run in 20 local authorities by autumn 2007, preparing parents of children in reception and year seven to cope with the wide range of possible challenges that their children may face. Parent Support Advisers are providing a preventative school based role to support parents in 977 schools in 20 local authorities, and we will look to spread practice widely through extended schools. 15 local authorities have been selected to receive a share of £5 million per annum for 2006-07 and 2007-08 to deliver Parenting Early Intervention Pathfinders—testing different parenting programmes for the families of eight to 13-year-olds at risk of antisocial behaviour. We are investing £10 million per annum to develop the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners. The academy will have a key role in improving practice, training and support for the parenting workforce.

Pre-school Education: Expenditure

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what total amount was spent on (a) pre-school education and (b) school nursery education in each of the last 20 years, at today's prices. [133353]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The available information is contained within the following table which shows central and local government expenditure on under fives. Separate figures for pre-school education and school nursery education are not available. Capital expenditure is not included in these figures.

	Expenditure
1989-90	1,347

[1] Provisional.
[2] Estimated.

Notes:
1. Figures within Departmental Expenditure Limits (DEL). Excludes DfES administration costs and expenditure on other areas than education, for instance on children and families and on skills. Figures for 1998-99 onwards are resource-based. Central government figures for 1995-96 to 1997-98 are cash-based.
2. Differences between the totals above and the figures for Under 5's education spending in HM Treasury's PESA Report are the result of (a) data coverage: the exclusion of AME items in the above table, (b) definitional differences: Departmental administration costs and Ofsted spending on education are both classified as education spending under UN Classification of Functions of Government (COFOG) international definitions—the above table excludes these, (c) classifications made since Budget 2006 of Connexions spending to social protection and Adult Education spend to training in line with UN COFOG definitions, (d) further minor data coverage and timing differences.
3. The recurrent local authority figures in this table are drawn from the Local Authority Expenditure table (Table 8.3 of the 2006 Departmental Report); the footnotes to that table set out the underlying data sources. The blank rows denote the changes from the Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions education Revenue Outturn return (the 'RO1') to Section 52 Outturn Statements in 1999-2000 and arising from the review of the Section 52 categories in 2002-03 following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting to schools.
4. All figures have been converted to 2005-06 price levels using the 27 September 2006 Gross Domestic Product (GDP) deflators.
5. Central Government funding on grant-maintained schools has been apportioned to under-fives using pupil numbers.
6. Figures from 2003-04 onwards reflect the transfer of responsibility from the Department to LEAs of costs relating to teachers' pensions.
7. Under five figures include education expenditure on Sure Start (Sure Start figures exclude current grant).
8. Sources of the figures in the table are as follows: 1997-98 to 2005-06 from the Education Select Committee table, 1995-96 to 1996-97 from the November 2005 Education Bulletin, 1993-94 to 1994-95 from the November 2004 Bulletin, 1989-90 to 1992-93 from the Departmental Reports.

Private Education: Charities

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria will be included in the public benefit test to enable private schools to satisfy the requirements for charitable status. [121943]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 February 2007]: This is a matter for the Charity Commission as the Government Department responsible for the regulation of charities in England and Wales. The chief executive of the Charity Commission will write to the hon. Member and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Library.

School Exclusions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) children, (b) children with special educational needs but no statement and (c) children with statemented special educational needs were permanently excluded (i) from mainstream schools, (ii) from special schools, (iii) while on a dual placement scheme, (iv) while on a school action plan, (v) while on early years action plan, (vi) while on school action plus, (vii) while on early years action plus and (viii) while attending a pupil referral unit in each year from 1997 to 2006. [117705]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 30 January 2007]: The available information relating to permanent exclusions from maintained primary, secondary and all special schools is given in the table.

There are quality issues with data on permanent exclusions from maintained primary, secondary and special schools. A significant number of schools are known to have under-reported the situation. The Department has carried out checking exercises in each year to confirm the overall number of permanent exclusions. However, this only confirmed the number of exclusions in each local authority area and did not include information on the characteristics of the excluded pupil, for example whether or not they have special educational needs. Figures provided in the first table are as reported by schools and are known to be incomplete.

The range of indicators collected on excluded pupils does not include whether they were on dual placement.

Figures provided here refer to the cases of exclusion, rather than the number of pupils excluded as some pupils were excluded more than once during the year.

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Includes both maintained and non-maintained special schools.
[3] From 2000-01 onwards there are quality issues with permanent exclusions data. Schools are known to have under-reported the situation. The Department has carried out checking exercises to confirm the overall number of permanent exclusions in each local authority area but this did not extend to the characteristics of excluded pupils (such as SEN). Figures shown here are as reported by schools and are un-confirmed. Caution is recommended when interpreting this output.
[4] The number of excluded pupils by SEN expressed as a percentage of the school population supported by same SEN provision (excluding dually registered pupils).
[5] The SEN data reported by special schools for excluded pupils in 2000/01 is not sufficiently reliable or robust to be included here.
[6] The introduction of the new code of practice means that the number of children with SEN without statements reported in 2000-01 and later are not directly comparable with earlier years.
[7] Totals include those exclusions for which SEN (if any) was not known.

Schools: Accidents

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many legal actions were brought against local and Central Government authorities as a consequence of accidents in schools in each year since 1997; [133861]

(2) how many legal actions brought against local and Central Government authorities as a consequence of accidents in schools involved (a) under-16s and (b) under-18s in the last 12 months. [133857]

Jim Knight: We are not aware of any such actions against this Department. The Government do not collect figures on the number of actions brought against local authorities on accidents in schools, by age or otherwise. Insurers have told Parliament that claims for personal injury in schools are a very small proportion of all such claims to local authorities. Criminal prosecution of a school employer is even rarer.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers experienced physical abuse in their workplace in 2006. [126074]

Jim Knight: The number of assaults on school staff is not collected centrally.

For the academic year 2004/05, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against an adult'.

A local authority breakdown of the number of pupils who have been excluded from school (permanently or for a fixed period) for physical assault against an adult, together with total numbers of exclusions, is given in the following tables.

Schools: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which 10 schools in Nottinghamshire have the highest percentage of Gypsy and Traveller children on their rolls. [133016]

The figures for Travellers of Irish heritage and Gypsy/Roma children need to be interpreted with caution due to the small numbers recorded.

Schools: Private Finance Initiative

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations his Department has received from (a) schools and (b) local authorities on concerns about private finance initiative contracts with schools; and what meetings have taken place at a departmental level on this issue. [134451]

Jim Knight: The Department works directly with schools and authorities, and also with and through a range of bodies, including HM Treasury, Partnerships UK, Partnerships for Schools and the 4ps, to understand and address the concerns that schools and authorities may have from time to time about private finance initiative contracts for schools. Our aim is to ensure that schools get from private finance initiative contracts the excellent service they deserve. Private finance initiatives were introduced for schools in 1998, and contacts with authorities, schools and with other bodies have been a part of the everyday work of the Department since then.

In 2005, we published a report which we commissioned from Partnerships UK on operational schools private finance initiative contracts, which is available at www.teachernet.gov.uk/docbank/index.cfm?id=9262. This report found that, on balance, contracts were operating successfully across most of their provision, and that there were some strong examples of good delivery. It made suggestions for improvements, all of which had already been, or subsequently were, acted upon. Further, we have worked with HM Treasury to enable Partnerships UK to act as a taskforce helpdesk for schools which have concerns or difficulties with their private finance initiative contracts. Department officials also continue to work directly with schools and authorities where needed.

In the past year, directly or through Partnerships UK and other bodies, representations have included benchmarking and market testing; support during the transition to operational status; variations to contract; dispute resolution and poor performance; availability of other schools capital funding; schools changing status while in a PFI contract. Officials also recently met the Association of Schools and College Leaders to discuss a similar range of issues.

Schools: Yorkshire

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on how many occasions pupils at each state secondary school in Yorkshire have been excluded for having been found to be in possession of (a) a weapon and (b) narcotics on school premises in each of the last two years. [129712]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not available.

From the academic year 2003/04, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. The reason for exclusion is described by one of 12 set categories. There is no specific category relating to possession of a weapon or possession of narcotics.

A table showing the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions from each maintained secondary school in Yorkshire and the Humber region during 2003/04 and 2004/05 has been placed in the House Library.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority secondary curriculum review is based (a) wholly and (b) in part on an outcome-based educational approach. [133462]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The purpose of all education is to achieve outcomes or results. The secondary curriculum review is based upon the need for all young people to acquire prescribed subject knowledge, skills and understanding including high level skills in literacy, numeracy and scientific understanding; to develop a knowledge of British history and an understanding of our place in the world; and to understand contemporary issues which shape the international context for the next generation.

The secondary curriculum review also seeks to provide all young people with the skills to continue to learn throughout life; to be inquisitive, independent thinkers; to be problem solvers; and team workers.

If that is what is meant by 'an outcome-based educational approach' then the secondary curriculum review can be said to be 'outcome based'.

If however, 'an outcome-based educational approach' is defined as a curriculum which is content-free; lacking in rigour; entirely skills based; and not specific and particular about cognitive content, then that is most definitely not the approach upon which the secondary curriculum review is based.

Teachers: Pay

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what teachers' (a) starting salary, (b) salary after seven years employment and (c) average pay was in each of the last 30 years; and what the percentage change was in each year at today's prices. [133354]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 April 2007]: To derive figures for a 30-year time period for starting salaries and salaries after seven years employment would be at disproportionate cost.

The average salary figures for (a) newly qualified entrants and (b) teachers with between seven and eight years experience for both March 1997 and March 2005 (provisional), expressed in cash and real terms in 2005-06 prices, for England and Wales is shown in the following table.

Average salaries in cash and real terms

	March 1997		March (provisional)
	Cash (£)	Real (£)	Cash (£)	Real (£)	Real terms difference (Percentage)
Newly qualified entrants in England and Wales[1]	14,560	18,080	19,730	20,100	11
Between 7 and 8 years experience[2]	22,520	27,970	32,060	32,660	17

[1] Teachers qualifying through college based routes in England or Wales in the previous calendar year in full-time regular service the following March.
[2] Includes only teachers on the main and upper pay scale.
Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Real term figures based on latest GDP deflators (21 March 2007) from HMT shown in 2005-06 prices.

Average salaries are used to answer parts (a) and (b) because there are, in fact, no set salaries for those starting teaching or those with seven years' experience.

In relation to part (c), average salary figures over the last 30 years for teachers are available and are shown in the following table in both cash and real terms, with percentage year on year and cumulative changes, for England and Wales.

Textbooks: ICT

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what resources he (a) has made and (b) plans to make available to increase the number of required school textbooks available in an electronic format. [133830]

Jim Knight: The Department does not require schools to use particular textbooks and teachers typically use a range of different resources to support delivery of the curriculum. The electronic availability of commonly used textbooks is a matter for publishers.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many faecal occult blood testing kits have been distributed by each hub participating in the NHS bowel cancer screening programme; how many have been returned and analysed; how many returned kits were positive; how many individuals were subsequently referred for further investigation; what the take-up rate was of individuals referred for further investigation; how many individuals subsequently underwent a colonoscopy; and how many individuals were subsequently diagnosed with bowel cancer. [130886]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are five bowel screening programme hubs in England and their activity, as at 26 March 2007, is set out in the following table. It shows: how many invitations have been sent out to those aged 60 to 69, the screening age group, in each hub's local area; how many people aged 70 and over have self referred and opted in to the programme; how many faecal occult blood (FOB) test kits were sent out by each hub; how many of the FOB kits were returned; and how many of these gave a positive result.

Programme hubs	Invitations sent to 60 to 69s	Opt-on over 70s	Test kits sent	Returned kits	Positive results
Midlands and North West (Rugby)	77,573	2,524	71,196	39,064	767
Southern (Guildford)	20,988	311	18,775	10,402	118
London (St. Mark's)	28,579	230	25,407	8,553	199
North East (Gateshead)	21,191	338	15,883	4,992	39
Eastern (Nottingham)	1,086	3	745	77	0
Total	149,417	3,456	132,006	63,088	1,123

All individuals with a positive FOB test kit result are invited to attend a FOB test positive clinic. As of 26 March 2007, 959 people had attended a clinic. At the clinic, a screening nurse assesses the person's suitability to undergo colonoscopy. The number of colonoscopies undertaken was 664, giving a colonoscopy uptake rate of 69 per cent.

The following table shows the colonoscopies broken down by screening centre, as of 26 March 2007.

Local screening centre	Screening nurse clinic attendance	Colonoscopies
Wolverhampton	226	147
Norwich	265	237
Cheshire and Merseyside	174	120
Bolton	3	0
Gloucestershire	18	1
South Devon	92	70
Solent and West Sussex	0	0
St. Mark's, London	108	69
Inner North East London	0	0
St. George's, London	50	20
University College London	0	0
Tees	8	0
South of Tyne	12	0
Hull	3	0
Total	959	664

101 cancers have so far been diagnosed, but these cannot be broken down by screening centre for patient confidentiality reasons. 342 patients were diagnosed with polyps which may have developed into cancer over time. Treating polyps has reduced their risk of bowel cancer.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of faecal occult blood testing kits distributed since implementation of the NHS bowel cancer screening programme have been returned by (a) women and (b) men. [131016]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is in the following table as at 30 March 2007.

Gender	Number of testing kits sent out	Percentage	Number of testing kits returned	Percentage
Female	64,665	50	31,997	51
Male	64,548	50	30,834	49
Total	129,213	—	62,831	—

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the impact on capacity for colonoscopy services of the roll-out of the NHS Bowel Cancer Screening Programme. [131051]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Billericay (Mr. Baron) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 321W.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132200]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Departmental budget managers are required to observe our code of business conduct. This states hospitality such as business meals or drinks outside of normal working hours can be provided on an appropriate scale but states particular care must be taken to ensure that the provision of alcohol is limited and reasonable.

Health Hazards: Radiation

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost is of the decontamination of 140 Osier Crescent, London, N10. [133040]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

This is a matter that the London borough of Haringey is pursuing with representatives of the owning company. Until a full survey is undertaken, it is not possible to give an estimate of the costs of remediation work. In the meantime, the London borough of Haringey has taken action to restrict access to the house and reassured the public that living close to the property in Osier Crescent is not a health hazard.

Health Services: Rural Areas

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the closure programmes for community hospitals in rural areas on the delivery of NHS care to rural communities. [133625]

Andy Burnham: There is no centrally co-ordinated closure programme for community hospitals in England. Proposals for changes to the way services are delivered locally are a matter for local commissioners in conjunction with local people. Primary care trusts in England are expected to take into account issues such as the impact on rural areas when making decisions about the configuration of services locally.

Health Services: South West Region

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has approved proposals from the South West Strategic Health Authority to rebalance NHS provision away from acute hospital care to out-of-hospital care in the community; and if she will make a statement. [133171]

Andy Burnham: Any proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally.

There is a well established and well understood process for managing formal public consultations on proposed changes so that patients, the public and other stakeholders can help to inform the local debate.

However, our vision for providing more services in settings that are convenient for patients was set out in "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say".

Although one of our goals is to treat people more quickly and conveniently closer to home, this should only happen where it is consistent with safety and good quality care.

Hospital Wards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2007, Official Report, column 1593W, on mixed-sex wards, whether she has determined a timescale for publication of the reports she received on mixed-sex wards from strategic health authorities on 11 December 2006. [131849]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No timescale has yet been decided. The information will be used as part of a comprehensive assessment of the situation, including identification of best practice examples. This will be released in due course.

Hospitals: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vacancies were frozen in each quarter of the last five years in each hospital in London, broken down by staff department. [132334]

Andy Burnham: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was paid by NHS trusts in asset charges for unoccupied or unused space in each hospital in London in each of the last five years; [132335]

(2) how much (a) ward, (b) public, (c) office and (d) other space is unoccupied or unused in each hospital in London. [132336]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally.

Maternity Services: Ashurst

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) financial and (b) managerial responsibilities are of (i) Hampshire Primary Care

Trust and (ii) Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust with respect to implementing a new maternity unit at Ashurst; and if she will make a statement. [134093]

Caroline Flint: Any proposals for improvements to services are a matter for the national health service locally.

Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust led the formal public consultation on these proposals which are now being implemented by the trust to provide the best possible support for local women.

Medicine: Students

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage change in the bursaries that (a) nursing, (b) midwifery, (c) medical, (d) dental and (e) allied health professional students received there was in each year since 1997. [131934]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Table one shows the national health service bursary rates for the basic awards, not including additional allowances, for the period 1997 to 2008 and the annual percentage increases. The majority of nurses and midwives receive the non-means tested bursary. Medical and dental students and the majority of allied health professional students receive the means-tested NHS bursary. The NHS bursary scheme has supported allied health professional students since 1998 and medical and dental undergraduate students since September 2002 from their fifth and subsequent years of study. During the first four years' of study, medical and dental students receive support under the Department for Education and Skills regulations.

In addition to the basic NHS bursary awards there are a number of other allowances.

Table two shows national health service bursary rates for the basic awards, not including additional allowances, for new students who commence their course on or after 1 September 2007.

Changes from September 2007 have been made to modernise the current scheme. This has allowed for the redistribution of funds to provide; an increase in the basic allowance and a new parents' learning allowance.

Medway Maritime Hospital: Nurses

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses have been made redundant at Medway Maritime Hospital since April 2005. [134649]

Caroline Flint: Redundancy data were collected centrally for the first time in 2006. There were no nurses made compulsory redundant at the Medway NHS Trust in the nine months up to 31 December 2006.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the Minister of State to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, on Co-proximal. [134723]

Caroline Flint: The letter was answered on 30 April 2007.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the Parliamentary Under-Secretary to reply to the letter of 13 March from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, on Osbourne Court Community Unit. [134725]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have replied to the letter of 13 March from the hon. Member on 27 April 2007.

Mental Health Services: Cheltenham

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the Independent Reconfiguration Panel to report its advice to her on the referral from Gloucestershire Overview and Scrutiny Committee relating to the decision by Gloucestershire Partnership NHS Trust to centralise older people's mental health inpatient facilities at Charlton Lane, Cheltenham; and when she expects to agree and publish its terms of reference. [134888]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Terms of Reference will be published shortly.

Mentally Ill: Life Expectancy

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of severe mental health conditions on the life expectancy of patients. [132290]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not made a direct assessment of the impact of severe mental health problems on the life expectancy of patients. However, as made clear in the Choosing Health White Paper, the Government recognise that people with mental health problems tend to experience worse physical health than the rest of the population. This is why it is supporting well-being support programmes in spearhead primary care trusts and published a commissioning framework in 2006 on supporting the physical health needs of people with severe mental illness, which has been placed in the Library and is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_4138212

NHS: Consultants

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on management consultancy services by the NHS in the latest year for which figures are available. [131919]

Andy Burnham: Information on the costs of employing external management consultants is not collected centrally.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS organisations have been in receipt of turnaround support in each month since January 2006; and which NHS organisations have received turnaround support in the period since January 2006 but are no longer part of the turnaround programme. [131955]

Andy Burnham: The tables detail the organisations that have been part of the National Turnaround Programme between February and August 2006, between August and October 2006 and since October 2006. This information has been placed in the Library.

North Tees and Hartlepool National Health Service Trust and the Mid-Cheshire Hospital NHS Trust: by January 2007, these trusts were delivering sustained recurrent monthly run rate balance;

High Peak and Dales Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Sedgefield PCT: in the commissioning a patient-led NHS reconfiguration, from October 2006 these PCTs were consolidated into significantly larger new PCTs that did not require turnaround support; and North Hampshire Hospitals NHS Trust: became Basingstoke and North Hampshire NHS Foundation Trust in December 2006.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many posts there were for (a) consultants, (b) registrars, (c) senior house officers and (d) house officers in London in each quarter of the last 10 years, broken down by hospital trust; and how many posts were vacant in each case. [132144]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish the NHS staff earnings survey. [131953]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Updated national health service staff earnings information is expected to be available at the end of June 2007. It will be published by the Information Centre. The exact publication date will be set during mid May, and will be available from:

www.ic.nhs.uk.

NHS: Secondment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many secondees there were from the NHS to each central Government Department in each of the last five years; and from which NHS trusts they were seconded. [131345]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department only began to record all secondees into the organisation on its main Human Resources Information System during 2006-07, so historic information on numbers is not available.

As at the end of March 2007, there were 58 full-time equivalent staff seconded into the Department. We do not maintain a record of the seconding organisation.

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her statement of 10 January 2007, Official Report, columns 314-15, which problems in the NHS arise from the previous Government's negotiation of the European working time directive; and how they differ from the additional problems driven by the impact of the SiMAP and Jaeger judgments. [118243]

Ms Rosie Winterton: More engagement in the working time directive negotiations from the outset would have most likely resulted in a better directive and safeguards against legal challenges such as SiMAP and Jaeger.

The retention of the opt-out and a solution to the problems caused by the SiMAP and Jaeger judgments still remain priorities for the United Kingdom, and together with many member states we continue to seek changes to the European working time directive to address the difficulties from these judgments.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1141W, on NHS: working hours, what indicators of NHS readiness for fully implementing the 48-hour week for doctors in training her Department monitors; and if she will publish the results of such monitoring for the latest period for which figures are available. [131880]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The New Deal contract monitoring returns give an indication of national health service readiness for fully implementing the 48-hour week for doctors in training. Monitoring information is published on the NHS Employers website at: www.nhsemployers.org

The progress of the NHS working time directive pilots programme and research by the medical Royal Colleges also provides useful workforce information to support working time directive implementation.

Palliative Care: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 448W, on palliative care: finance, what the baseline year is for measuring the commitment to double spending on palliative care services; what the level of expenditure on palliative care services was in the baseline year; and by what date she intends to meet the commitment to double spending on palliative care services. [131886]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The NHS Operating Framework for 2007-08 highlighted the importance of primary care trusts (PCTs) undertaking baseline reviews of their end of life care services. We will be issuing guidance on what the reviews should cover shortly. These reviews will provide information on the current position of end of life care services in PCTs and will help support the implementation of the end of life care strategy when it is published.

As part of the end of life care strategy, the analytical and modelling working group will be examining the true cost of providing end of life care. They will aim to estimate the cost of the services provided across the board by both the national health service and the voluntary sector, both general and specialist, in the last three to six months of a patient's life and the current expenditure on end of life care services.

This information will inform the delivery of the Government's manifesto commitment.

Patients: Transport

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patient journeys are estimated to have taken place between Cheltenham and Gloucester in (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005 and (d) 2006; and what the predicted numbers are for (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [134463]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 27 April 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Psychologists

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many qualified clinical psychology staff worked in the NHS in (a) England and (b) each strategic health authority in each year since 1997. [129897]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is shown in the table.

Number of qualified clinical psychology staff working in the national health service in England and in each strategic health authority (SHA) since 1997

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Compulsory Purchase: Liverpool

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which of her Ministers have visited the Liverpool streets designated by her for clearance by compulsory purchase order for the Pathfinder development; and on what dates those visits took place. [133672]

Yvette Cooper: On 4 October 2006 Baroness Andrews visited some of the intervention areas of the Merseyside housing market renewal pathfinder area, although not the areas included in the compulsory purchase orders approved in March 2007. Previously, in 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006, a number of the Office of Deputy Prime Minister Ministers visited the Pathfinder area.

Council Housing: Property Transfer

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which councils' tenants voted against large scale voluntary transfer in each year since 1997. [131053]

Yvette Cooper: A table listing all transfer ballots by year since 1997 has been placed in the Library of the House.

Departments: European Council

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many EU Council meetings she has attended since taking up her post; and who represents her if she is unable to attend. [133755]

Angela E. Smith: The Secretary of State has not attended an EU Council meeting since taking up her post. If the Secretary of State is unable to attend, then the meeting would be delegated to her ministerial team. A member of the ministerial team would then attend, diary permitting.

Departments: Planning

Mr. Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are taken by her Department to include (a) older people and (b) people with disabilities in strategic planning, policy making and the delivery of the services they use. [132907]

Yvette Cooper: Involvement of older and disabled people is integral to the formation of Communities and Local Government policies that affect them. Examples of recent and forthcoming consultations on my Department's policies include those on the Supporting People programme, the review of Disabled Facilities Grants, and the National Strategy for Housing in an Ageing Society. Disabled people were also consulted in the formation of my Department's disability equality scheme, which sets out what we will be doing over the next three years to improve equality of opportunity for disabled people, and has been commended by the Disability Rights Commission.

In addition, the recently published Local Government White Paper encourages local authorities to target groups and communities who may in the past have been marginalised, including older and disabled people's groups, when discharging their new duty to 'inform, consult, involve and devolve'.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by her Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [134993]

Angela E. Smith: In the year 2005-06[1], the amount of energy purchased from renewable sources by Communities and Local Government was as follows:

Renewable energy purchased

	Kilowatt hours
Headquarter buildings	12,538,297
Agencies	6,624,649

This answer does not include the buildings occupied by Government offices, who carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Departments are mandated to source at least 10 per cent. of electricity from renewable sources by March 2008.

Data relating to the Department's energy consumption and its performance against all the Government estate sustainable operations targets is available in the Sustainable Development Commission's Sustainable Development in Government (SDiG) Report 2006 found at:

http://www.sd-commission.org.uk/.

[1] Figures are yet to be fully collated for 2006-07 due to electricity billing arrangements.

Equality Act 2006

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which religious organisations she has met to discuss the Equality Act 2006; and how many such meetings she has had. [122249]

Mr. Woolas: A range of meetings have been held between religious organisations and Ministers and officials about issues related to the Equality Act 2006. These have included meetings with representatives of interfaith groups, the Church of England, the Catholic Church, the Christian Institute, the Lawyers Christian Fellowship, the Evangelical Alliance, faith-based schools and adoption agencies, and Scottish religious groups.

Homebuy Scheme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether tenants purchasing an equity stake in a property under the Social HomeBuy scheme are responsible for the entire maintenance costs of the property. [129278]

Yvette Cooper: Housing association and local authority tenants purchasing a share in their rented home at a discount under the Social HomeBuy pilot scheme assume financial responsibility for all maintenance costs. The Government are currently exploring different options for tenants purchasing small shares.

Housing Revenue Accounts

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much on average local authorities in England paid back to the Exchequer from their housing revenue account in each year since 1990. [131845]

Yvette Cooper: Figures for the period 1990-91 to 1993-94 can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Details of net negative/positive housing revenue account subsidy amounts for England for the period 1994-95 to 2005-06 (the last year for which audited figures are available) have been given in the following table. In 2001, the Major Repairs Allowance was introduced to increase the resources available to local authorities to improve their housing. The figures given in the table show the housing element of HRA subsidy for 1994-95 to 2003-04 inclusive and Housing Revenue Account (HRA) subsidy for 2004-05 and 2005-06. The Local Government Act 2003 changed the way HRA Subsidy is accounted for and the figures are presented in line with current accounting practice. HRA Subsidy for 2004-05 (to date) is the precise equivalent of the housing element in prior years.

Financial year	Amounts distributed to authorities in deficit	Amounts contributed by authorities in surplus[1]	Net expenditure by Exchequer[2]
1994-95	803,583,639	-892,150,955	-88,567,316
1995-96	690,585,862	-1,077,515,215	-390,050,431
1996-97	660,265,906	-1,223,294,361	-563,028,455
1997-98	606,715,419	-1,260,563,048	-668,307,497
1998-99	538,962,811	-1,408,955,122	-869,992,311
1999-2000	484,765,377	-1,525,634,407	-1,040,869,030
2000-01	441,660,519	-1,557,991,956	-1,116,331,437
2001-02	967,053,381	-615,948,372	[3]351,105,009
2002-03	906,718,472	-654,659,330	252,059,142
2003-04	902,327,958	-711,409,278	191,153,240
2004-05	694,206,087	-615,328,703	78,877,384
2005-06	777,572,397	-548,013,415	229,558,982

[1] Prior to 31 March 2004 no surpluses (shown as negative figures) were returned to the Exchequer. HRA Subsidy was paid as a net amount after an offset was made between the housing and rent rebate elements. These amounts were not available to authorities for expenditure on their housing stock as they represent a saving to the Exchequer.

[2] Remaining surpluses after the offset (shown as negative figures) remained with the individual local authority and were transferred to their General Fund and lost to housing. This practice ended on 1 April 2004 and the resources are retained within the subsidy regime.

[3] The introduction of the Major Repairs Allowance on 1 April 2001 reduced surpluses by £1.5 billion and put the national system into overall deficit with the Exchequer making up the difference.

Housing: Water Supply

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role water companies have in the planning of housebuilding programmes; and whether consideration is being given to making them statutory consultees in the planning process. [134382]

Angela E. Smith [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Water companies are already statutory consultees on regional spatial strategies (RSSs) and local development plan documents (DPDs) since water resource issues are an important consideration in determining the pattern of development.

Under the plan-led system, planning applications are determined in accordance with the development plan (the RSS and DPDs) unless material considerations indicate otherwise.

Local Government Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding from Housing Revenue Account rental income each local authority in England used to pay service debt charges in 2006-07. [133362]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 23 April 2007]: This information is not yet available; data from local authorities for 2006-07 is not due to be submitted to my Department until 31 December this year.

Mortgages: Public Sector

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of red-lining on the mortgageability of public sector property; what steps she is taking to seek an end to the practice; what assessment she has made of the effect that an extended capping regime would have on the mortgageability of properties; and if she will make a statement. [134206]

Yvette Cooper: No such assessments have been made. It is for individual lenders to decide, in the light of local circumstances, whether to lend on individual properties. However, the Government will not approve a lender for Right to Buy purposes under section 156 of the Housing Act 1985 if inquiries suggest that it operates a policy of not lending on certain types of property.

Overcrowding: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the £19 million to fund innovative schemes to tackle overcrowding in London announced on 20 November 2006 has been allocated, broken down by local authority. [133603]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the total amount for each borough in receipt of an allocation of regional housing pot funding in 2006-07 for pilot schemes to tackle overcrowding in London:

Local authority	Allocation (£)
Brent	2,150,000
Croydon	3,492,735
Greenwich	606,000
Hackney	860,000
Hammersmith and Fulham	1,000,000
Haringey	120,000
Havering	315,000
Hillingdon	825,000
Islington	760,000
Lambeth	4,280,250
Redbridge	250,000
Southwark	2,772,683
Sutton	120,000
Tower Hamlets	202,000
Westminster	1,395,000
Total	19,148,668

Right to Buy Scheme

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend the Housing (Right to Buy) (Information to Secure Tenants) Order 2005 (S.I., 2005, No.1735) to include a requirement that the type of construction and any known defects associated with the type of construction should be included in the seller's information. [134180]

Yvette Cooper: There are no plans to do this. Section 125 of the Housing Act 1985 already requires social landlords to inform tenants who apply to purchase their homes under the Right to Buy scheme of any structural defect known to the landlord.

Right to Buy Scheme: Social Security Benefits

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of council tenants who exercised the right to buy were receiving (a) council tax benefit and (b) housing benefit in each of the last five years. [133780]

Yvette Cooper: This information is not collected. The ability of tenants who are in receipt of benefits to exercise their right to buy would depend on the willingness of lenders to offer them mortgage finance, or the availability of financial assistance from family or friends.

Social Rented Housing

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people, living in social housing and holding life-time tenancy in England are aged (a) 18 to 25, (b) 26 to 40, (c) 40 to 55 and (d) over 55 years. [134064]

Yvette Cooper: Separate figures for those with lifetime tenancies are not available. Figures for the whole of the social rented sector are as follows:

Age of tenant	Number of households	Percentage
<26	252,000	6.8
26 to 40	898,000	24.3
41 to 55	887,000	24.1
56+	1,650,000	44.7
All	3,687,000	100.0

Source:
ONS, Labour Force Survey

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people living in social housing hold life-time tenancy in England. [134066]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation estimates that at end-March 2006 about 97 per cent. of housing association tenancies were lifetime tenancies. Equivalent figures for local authorities are not available, so an estimate of the total number of lifetime tenancies in social housing cannot be provided.

Social Rented Housing: Insurance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to require registered social landlords to advise their tenants to take out home contents insurance. [134942]

Yvette Cooper: Registered social landlords are required to provide high standards of customer care. Landlords should consider all aspects of this, including insurance. The Housing Corporation has issued good practice guidance on facilitating access to insurance called "Insurance for All" which is available on the corporation's website.

Social Rented Housing: Unemployment

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people living in social housing in England are (a) employed and (b) unemployed. [134054]

Yvette Cooper: In England, in 2006, an estimated 1,162,000 householders in social housing were employed and 213,000 were unemployed.

The remaining householders in social housing comprised an estimated 1,195,000 retired householders and 1,084,000 householders who were inactive for some other reason.

These figures are derived from the Labour Force Survey, a continuous survey ran by the Office for National Statistics.

Temporary Accommodation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the appropriateness of placing homeless households in long-term placements in temporary accommodation outside their local authority area. [133729]

Yvette Cooper: Under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996), local housing authorities must ensure that suitable accommodation is available for housing applicants accepted as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need. In some cases it may be appropriate for a homeless household to be placed in accommodation outside the local authority area but authorities are required to ensure that, so far as reasonably practicable, accommodation is secured in their district. Moreover, we have issued statutory guidance—the "Homelessness Code of Guidance for Local Authorities"—which states that wherever possible the accommodation secured should be as close as possible to where applicants were previously living, so they can retain established links with schools, doctors, social workers and other key services and support essential to the well-being of the household.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Marriage: Licensing

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how much of the £2,148,860 gained in fee income from issuing the Archbishop's Special Licence for marriages has been received by the Church Commissioners. [135142]

Sir Stuart Bell: None.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Office in the last 12 months. [135159]

Mr. Straw: None.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in his Office in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135376]

Mr. Straw: None.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Air Pollution: Kirby

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether there were any (a) incidents involving and (b) prosecutions in which proceedings are not ongoing relating to harmful emissions at the Sonae factory in Kirby in each of the last four years. [134534]

Mr. Bradshaw: Knowsley borough council is responsible for regulating emissions to the atmosphere from this factory under Part I of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and the Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations 2000.

The council advises that the number of incidents (both complaints and reported incidents) and prosecutions relating to this factory in the last four years are as follows:

	Complaints	Reported incidents	Prosecutions
2004	278	49	3
2005	311	152	0

The subject of complaints against Sonae include odour, dust, smoke, fumes, and noise from the Kirby factory. Knowsley borough council advises that a small proportion of the complaints were subsequently found to be unconnected with Sonae. The company has also challenged an unspecified number of complaints.

The number of incidents shown in the table reflects the formal reports which Sonae has submitted. In accordance with their authorisation requirement, Sonae is required to report incidents likely to have an effect on the community. The three prosecutions in 2004 concerned a failure to monitor emissions, failure to comply with an enforcement notice, and failure to comply with an information notice. In total, these resulted in £13,000 worth of fines.

Factories such as this have the potential to emit various substances including oxides of sulphur and nitrogen, particulate matter, lead, volatile organic compounds, isocyanates, and aldehydes.

Avian Influenza: Disease Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the testing of live poultry for avian influenza in the protection and surveillance zones in Suffolk referred to in his Department's submission to the European Commission on 5 March was completed before permission was granted to reopen the Bernard Matthews plant in Suffolk; what type of live poultry was tested; what the location was of each of the premises that were tested; and how many birds were tested in each. [134493]

Mr. Bradshaw: During the outbreak, the State Veterinary Service (SVS, now Animal Health) carried out extensive surveillance in the restricted areas working closely with local authorities in Suffolk and Norfolk and other agencies. A full breakdown of the type and numbers of poultry tested along with a map of their locations can be found on pages 16 and 17 of the final epidemiology report into the outbreak we published on 19 April. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

This testing of live poultry within the protection and surveillance zones was completed by 26 February. The Bernard Matthews slaughterhouse plant in Holton was re-opened on 12 February. However, this was a separate premises from the site of the outbreak (although adjacent to it) and was placed under appropriate restrictions only while it was used to cull the birds. The meat processing plant which was also adjacent to the infected premises was never placed under restrictions. Once culling was completed, it was re-licensed to operate only after being thoroughly cleansed and disinfected and inspected by the SVS and Meat Hygiene Service so that it could not pose any disease risk to either poultry or humans.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to reply to the letter of 2 October 2006 from the hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk on the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005. [135396]

Mr. Bradshaw: The hon. Member's letter was transferred to the Scottish Executive Environment and Rural Affairs Department as it concerns a devolved issue.

Packaging: Waste Disposal

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what work he is undertaking with (a) food processing companies, (b) supermarkets and (c) confectionery manufacturers to reduce packaging waste. [134178]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have already introduced two sets of regulations to encourage producers (including retailers) to minimise, recycle and recover packaging and reduce packaging waste.

The Packaging Regulations have helped to reduce the amount of packaging used around products. However, more still needs to be done to reduce the amount of packaging and packaging waste being generated in the first place. We have asked the Advisory Committee on Packaging to work with industry to find solutions to this problem and recommend ways of encouraging businesses to further reduce the amount of packaging they use.

My Department continues to engage with retailers and the food industry to reduce the amount of food and packaging waste generated by the industry itself and by consumers.

In particular, DEFRA's Food Industry Sustainability Strategy (FISS), published in April 2006, challenges the food manufacturing sector to reduce its own waste by 15-20 per cent. by 2010. 13 major grocery retailers (representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector) have also signed up to the "Courtauld Commitment", agreeing to work with the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) in order to:

(i) design out packaging waste growth by 2008;

(ii) deliver absolute reductions in packaging waste by March 2010; and

(iii) identify ways to tackle the problem of food waste.

Each retailer signed up to the Commitment has been developing its own programme of work with WRAP to reduce packaging and packaging waste. A number of retailers have now announced their own specific performance targets on waste and other environmental issues.

In addition, several food and drink brands and manufacturers, including some confectionary manufacturers, have now signed up to the Courtauld Commitment. WRAP will shortly be announcing further details.

WRAP also provides technical and financial support to retailers and suppliers through an innovation fund. This is helping to identify ways of reducing the weight of primary packaging and the cost of production and transportation, mainly through research and development and innovative packaging design.

Importantly, DEFRA, working with WRAP and the devolved administrations, has recently secured the agreement of UK retailers to reduce the overall environmental impact of their carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

Rabies: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to change the existing arrangements for the control of rabies. [134342]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA is currently carrying out a review of rabies import policy to ensure that UK controls on all rabies-susceptible mammals are proportionate and sustainable.

The review is nearing completion. The evidence received so far from government vets, officials and veterinary risk assessments indicates that our current controls may no longer be proportionate to the risk of rabies entering the UK. Therefore, we may need to consider modernising processes and regulation in this area. Our controls must also be consistent with current thinking on better regulation. I have requested further views before reaching conclusions.

Sewage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to ensure that back-up pumps are available in circumstances where primary sewage pumps fail and effluent is discharged into rivers, watercourses or the open sea; and if he will make a statement. [134077]

Ian Pearson: Under the Water Resources Act 1991, the Environment Agency requires all sewage pumping stations to have duty pumps and standby pumps that are capable of pumping the received flow in the event of a pump failure. This is a condition of consent to discharge, and it is the sewerage undertaker's responsibility to ensure that their pumps are fully operational at all times.

Water

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households in England were subject to water restrictions in 2006. [134494]

Ian Pearson: During 2006, about 16 million people were subject to restrictions on water use. In most cases, this involved hosepipe bans. However, a single drought order, allowing restrictions to be placed on non-essential uses of water, was partially implemented by Sutton and East Surrey Water.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the potential effects on health of emissions from aircraft. [134129]

Gillian Merron: Airport operators are expected to undertake appropriate health impact assessments when bringing forward any expansion plans. "Air Quality Assessments Supporting the Government's White Paper" was published alongside "The Future of Air Transport" in December 2003; this covers Heathrow, Gatwick, Stansted and Birmingham airports. The document is on the internet at http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/whitepapers/air/docs/airqualityassessmentssupport5665.

Future levels of ambient air quality are being studied as part of the Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow. The Air Quality Technical Report, published in July 2006 found that the key pollutants are nitrogen dioxide (NO_2), nitrogen oxides (NO_x), and particulate matter (PM10), for which there are EU limit values aimed at reducing harmful effects on human health and the environment as a whole.

Bicycles: Accidents

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) male and (b) female cyclists were killed in accidents involving heavy goods vehicles in the last three years for which figures are available. [135309]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of (a) male and (b) female pedal cyclists that have been killed in reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one heavy goods vehicles in each of the last three years for which figures are available is given in the table.

Male and female pedal cycle fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one heavy goods vehicle, GB 2003-05

Male	14	15	23
Female	12	7	3

Galileo Project

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his estimate is of the cost of the Galileo project. [133774]

Dr. Ladyman: In its Communication to the Council and Parliament of February 2004, which set out the components of the Galileo programme, the European Commission evaluated the costs of the current development and deployment stage as €3.2 billion. Subsequently, Vice-President Barrot stated in December 2006 that the overall financial exposure for the public side over the 20-year period of the public private partnership (PPP) concession contract would be around €8 billion.

Given the lack of progress in the concession contract negotiations, the March 2007 Transport Council has asked the Commission to consider alternative scenarios for taking the project forward. As with the PPP these alternative scenarios will be assessed for cost, risk and affordability.

Once the Council has taken a decision on these scenarios it is expected that the Commission will then bring forward a draft EC financial instrument on the funding of Galileo during 2007-13 for the Council and the European Parliament to ratify. There has been no political discussion of potential funding commitments for the public sector beyond 2013.

Park and Ride Schemes

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) financial and (b) other support is offered to local authorities who wish to establish park and ride schemes; and if he will make a statement. [134647]

Gillian Merron: Most schemes are funded through the integrated transport block, which the Department allocates to support local transport plans (LTPs). The funding is for local authorities to invest in transport capital works, including park and ride, according to their local plans and priorities. It totals £571 million for 2007-08.

During the first LTP period (2001-06), local transport authorities in England (outside of London) spent a total of £72.5 million of LTP funding on improving 92 existing park and ride facilities and delivering 76 new park and ride schemes. In recognition of this, the Department gave credit in its assessment of delivery of the first local transport plans to those authorities that delivered substantial increases in park and ride facilities.

Railways: Smoking

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure that rail companies inform passengers of the forthcoming smoking ban on stations. [134393]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department of Health (DoH) is conducting a significant communications campaign aimed at the public to ensure maximum awareness of the smoke free legislation before its implementation on 1 July. The Department for Transport has discussed the issue of communication with rail passengers with ATOC and Network Rail and provided advice to DoH on issues such as enforcement and signage arrangements on the rail network.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress the UK has made in meeting its commitment to double aid to Africa by 2010. [134392]

Hilary Benn: The UK Government are party to the European Union (EU) pledge to reach a collective target for the Overseas Development Assistance to Gross National Income ratio (ODA/GNI) of 0.56 per cent. by 2010, estimated to nearly double total aid between 2004 and 2010, with at least 50 per cent. of the increase going to Africa. The UK also announced a timetable to reach 0.7 per cent. ODA/GNI by 2013 and committed to double its bilateral spending in Africa between 2003-04 and 2007-08. The G8 Gleneagles 2005 communiqué stated that the commitments of the G8 and other donors would lead to an increase in ODA to Africa of $25 billion a year by 2010, more than doubling aid to Africa compared to 2004.

The UK Government are on track to honour our commitments. Total ODA/GNI ratio increased from 0.36 per cent. in 2004 to 0.52 per cent. in 2006. Provisional figures show that UK ODA to sub-Saharan Africa increased from £1.2 billion in 2004 to £2.9 billion in 2006, with debt relief accounting for much of this increase. The Department for International Development's (DFID's) bilateral programme of aid to sub-Saharan Africa is set at £1.25 billion for 2007-08.

ODA to sub-Saharan Africa from all donors of the Development Assistance Committee rose by $10 billion, or 59 per cent. in real terms, between 2004 and 2006. We will continue to engage with G8 and EU partners to encourage others also to keep to their aid volume commitments.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department paid to (a) the Adam Smith Institute, (b) Accenture and (c) KPMG for work in each of the last six years. [134628]

Hilary Benn: The information is as follows:

	Adam Smith Institute	Accenture	KPMG
2001-02	473,171	0	5,135,556
2002-03	0	0	2,406,887
2003-04	0	0	40,752
2004-05	0	41,374	0
2005-06	0	15,510	0
2006-07	0	113,750	0

DFID also has contracts with Adam Smith International Ltd., which is a separate self-financing commercial organisation. Data during the same period is as follows:

	Adam Smith International (£)
2001-02	9,139,631
2002-03	7,050,474
2003-04	9,383,626
2004-05	8,786,406
2005-06	13,964,873
2006-07	14,754,673

These organisations have undertaken a range of public service reforms, in accordance with the requirements of development recipients. Examples are support to the South African Government's restructuring of state-owned organisations, and capacity building support for the Afghanistan Ministry of Commerce.

Iraq: Asylum

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contribution the UK Government has made to the UN High Commission for Refugees for aid to assist Iraqi refugees and displaced persons; and if he will make a statement. [134593]

Hilary Benn: DFID has contributed £1.5 million in response to the UN High Commission for Refugees' (UNHCR) appeal for Iraqi refugees and displaced persons. The appeal will provide food, shelter, water and sanitation and legal protection mechanisms for Iraqi refugees across the region. This appeal is now almost fully funded.

Our support to UNHCR's appeal is part of a wider £10 million contribution that DFID has made since January to provide emergency relief and other services to displaced and vulnerable Iraqis. This takes our total humanitarian assistance to over £125 million since 2003.

Overseas Aid

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of bilateral assistance to (a) Malawi, (b) Zambia, (c) Ghana, (d) Uganda, (e) Sierra Leone, (f) Rwanda, (g) Vietnam, (h) Pakistan, (i) Nepal and (j) East Timor was delivered by direct budget support in 2005-06; and what projections he has made for future delivery of direct budget support as a proportion of overall bilateral aid up to 2009-10. [131310]

Hilary Benn: Poverty Reduction Budget Support (PRBS) is DFID's term for aid provided to a partner government to support that government's poverty reduction programmes which is spent using the government's own financial management, procurement and accountability systems. PRBS is also commonly known as direct budget support.

We deliver PRBS in many different ways in different countries, depending on the objectives we are trying to achieve and the particular risks we face.

General budget support is provided to the government to support implementation of the overall poverty reduction strategy. It is allocated and spent by the government across all sectors to achieve overall progress against multiple poverty reduction objectives. General budget support has the advantage of supporting the government's overall policies for addressing poverty and reinforces the role of the Ministry of Finance in allocating resources across government in the most effective way.

Sector budget support is normally provided to the government to support implementation of a particular sector strategy and achieve particular improvements in for example health, education or road infrastructure. In some countries this can be a more effective way of achieving development in particular sectors. Sector budget support can also be a more effective way of delivering aid where there are high fiduciary or political risks—in some countries we track our resources to the sector or sub-sector to ensure that they are spent in that sector.

The proportion of DFID's bilateral assistance delivered as PRBS in 2005-06 and projections up to 2007-08 for each country are given in the following table. Projections are based on PRBS commitments DFID has made to partner governments together with the current allocation of DFID bilateral aid to the relevant countries. Projections beyond 2007-08 will not be available until the comprehensive spending review is concluded later this year. East Timor did not receive any PRBS from DFID in financial year 2005-06 and is not projected to receive any in following years.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will resume aid to the Palestinian territories. [134517]

Hilary Benn: The Government continue their substantial programme of assistance to the occupied Palestinian territories (oPts). In the financial year just ended (2006-07), DFID provided £15 million in assistance to the oPts plus a further £15 million for Palestinian refugees in the West Bank, Gaza, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon. These figures represent a £0.5 million increase on the previous financial year and are in addition to the UK's share of European Community (EC) funding. Overall, European Union (EC and member states) aid was estimated to be 27 per cent. higher in 2006 than in 2005.

Since the formation of a Hamas government in March 2006, DFID has provided the majority of its assistance through the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees (UNRWA) and the EU's temporary international mechanism (TIM). UNRWA and the TIM have enabled DFID and many other donors to provide direct assistance to support the livelihoods of Palestinian people and maintain essential services.

Sudan: Elections

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking (a) to assist the facilitation of elections in the Sudan in 2009 and (b) to ensure that such elections are free, fair and inclusive. [134931]

Hilary Benn: Supporting a free, fair and inclusive election process is a core commitment of the Government of National Unity and the International Community under the Comprehensive Peace Agreement, and it is important that both sides deliver on their commitments. The first step is for the National Constitutional Review Commission (NCRC) to formulate the Election Law and for this to be passed by the National Assembly. The Election Law will establish the National Electoral Commission which will be responsible for the running of the elections. DFID and other donors have provided support to the NCRC to assist in preparation of the Election Law. Once the Election Law is passed a full programme of election support will be provided jointly with other donors. This will include training for the National Assembly in Election Law to ensure effective scrutiny of the Election Bill, and support for a monitoring and observation process to ensure effective oversight of the preparations for elections, and the election themselves.

DFID has already provided support for the consultations around the elections process, nationally and in the South. We have also sponsored a visit for four members of the NCRC to observe the Scottish Elections on 3 May. This will provide an opportunity for Sudanese officials to witness a "mixed" electoral system in operation, a model which may be applicable for Sudan.

DFID is also working with the embassy on a joint programme to boost the capacity of political parties, and to provide training for journalists on the reporting of elections. Together, we have initiated a working group with members from the international community in Khartoum, which meets regularly to ensure that we are approaching this task together.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to ensure that international donors fulfil the pledges for $4.5 billion made at the Oslo conference 2005 for humanitarian assistance and reconstruction in Sudan. [135259]

Hilary Benn: DFID pledged $545 million in Oslo for the period 2005-07. Actual disbursement has been much higher; DFID disbursed over $500 million during 2005-06, and our financial commitment for 2007 is $205 million. We are seeking greater clarity on the exact status of other donors' pledges. From figures available we believe that most donors have also honoured or exceeded their Oslo pledges. At the recent Sudan Consortium held in Khartoum and Juba on 19-21 May, the international community re-iterated its commitment to helping Sudan implement the comprehensive peace agreement. DFID will continue to track closely levels of development assistance to Sudan through effective dialogue with other donors both in-country and at headquarters level.

Unfortunately the ongoing conflict in Darfur has meant that the bulk of donor resources are being used for humanitarian assistance, rather than reconstruction. We have made it clear to the Government of National Unity that a resolution to the conflict in Darfur is essential if international donor assistance is to be directed towards long-term development in Sudan.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Age: Discrimination

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what protection is in place for pensioners who experience age discrimination in the provision of goods and services; and if she will make a statement. [134019]

Meg Munn: There is currently no legal protection from age discrimination in the provision of goods and services. The Government are considering whether there is a case for introducing legislation to prohibit harmful age discrimination in the provision of goods and services as part of the Discrimination Law Review. The proposals emerging from the review will be published for public consultation in May.

Council Tax: Essex

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 31 January 2007, Official Report, column 315W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, on the Valuation Office, how many domestic properties in the local authority area of (a) Epping Forest district council and (b) Brentwood district council are classified with a Value Significant Code of FC. [124362]

Mr. Woolas: As at 3 February 2007 there were (a) 360 and (b) 574 domestic properties classified with a dwelling house code of FC in (a) Epping Forest district council and (b) Brentwood borough council.

Council Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Valuation Office Agency takes to inform neighbouring houses of incorrect council tax banding when a property successfully appeals against an incorrect banding. [127058]

Mr. Woolas: All alterations to bandings are published on the Valuation Office Agency website at www.voa.gov.uk and can also be viewed in the hard copy of the council tax valuation list held by the relevant local authority at their offices.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer of 31 January 2007, Official Report, column 315W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, on the Valuation Office, if she will list the mechanisms by which the Agency gathers and obtains information on whether a property has an outbuilding; [124363]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2007, Official Report, column 1327W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether the photographs of properties which are provided by Rightmove include internal photographs of the property; [124366]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 31 January 2007, Official Report, column 315W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, on the Valuation Office, what the Valuation Office Agency's definition is of a bathroom; and whether a room with a shower but not a bath is classified as a bathroom; [124431]

(4) whether (a) solar panels and (b) a small wind turbine would be considered by the Valuation Office Agency when assessing the capital value of a domestic dwelling for a council tax valuation or revaluation; [124480]

(5) whether the Valuation Office Agency collates information on whether domestic dwellings have (a) double glazing, (b) solar panels and (c) wind turbines. [124534]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2007, Official Report, column 1731W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, on the Valuation Office Agency, if she will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's guidance manual for staff on using the Market Comparable Reporting Tool. [124365]

Mr. Woolas: "Market Comparable Reporting Tool" is the name given by Rightmove.co.uk to its archive database, to which the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) has web-based access under the terms of a contract between Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Rightmove.co.uk plc. Guidance on the use of the bespoke website was contained in Instructions and Advice issued to VOA staff on 18 July 2005. This document was placed in the House of Commons Library pursuant to a question from the hon. Member answered on 26 October 2005, Official Report, column 447W and is available on the VOA website.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Valuation Office Agency has valued for council tax banding purposes the residential development of 68 apartments and houses on the land at the former Renny Lodge hospital, London road, Newport Pagnell. [124412]

Mr. Woolas: I understand a number of developments are taking place on this site. Council tax bandings are entered in the council tax valuation list as and when the dwellings are completed and occupied. One of the developments on this site by Crest Nicholson, which I understand comprises 68 apartments, is not yet ready and has not yet been banded.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1327-28W, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether the information on properties by Rightmove includes information on the number of (a) bathrooms, (b) bedrooms and (c) parking spaces as part of the property. [124656]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) titles and (b) dates of publication were of the council tax instruction and advice notes and associated documents issued by the Valuation Office Agency to assist staff between January 2002 and December 2004. [127043]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons are for the difference between the number of domestic dwellings on council tax valuation lists and the number of households according to the 2001 census. [127055]

Mr. Woolas: The census is a snapshot in time of household numbers. Council tax valuation lists show numbers of dwellings and are constantly changing to reflect new entries and deletions.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134056]

Angela E. Smith: For the last 10 years, Communities and Local Government and its predecessors have used recycled paper for all photocopying and printed publications.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings took place between Ministers and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131036]

Angela E. Smith: This information is available in the Freedom of Information Disclosure Log on the Communities and Local Government website at the following links:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1509991
for meetings in January;

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1509529
for meetings in February; and

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1509989
for meetings in March.

Copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what legal advice she took on whether the current local government restructuring process conformed with the Local Government Act 1992. [134876]

Mr. Woolas: It is not the usual practice for Governments to disclose whether or not they have sought legal advice, or the content of such advice, and it would not be appropriate for me to do so in this case.

Unitary Councils: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for consideration by her Department of North Yorkshire County Council's bid for a unitary authority in North Yorkshire; what recent representations she has received on the bid; what public consultations have been undertaken on the matter; and if she will make a statement. [135007]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to my written statement of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 71-73WS.

Unitary Councils: Referendums

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will assess the merits of referenda as a suitable gauge of public opinion in the stakeholder consultation for suitability of bids for unitary authority status. [134874]

Mr. Woolas: As our invitation makes clear, after the stakeholder consultation we will reassess the proposals against the five criteria, having regard to all the representations and information we receive during the consultation, including information about the results of any local referendums.

Valuation Office Agency

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Valuation Office Agency document Dwellinghouse coding: An illustrated guide was (a) first published and (b) last amended. [128545]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what legislation the Valuation Office Agency have the right to retain photographs of the interiors of people's homes; and if she will make a statement. [124814]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 13 March 2007]: The Local Government Finance Act 1992 gives listing officers of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) the statutory responsibility to compile valuation lists in England and Wales for council tax purposes. Information is necessarily retained in order that the VOA can carry out its functions.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures her Department has in place to ensure that photographs taken by the Valuation Office Agency do not infringe on personal privacy rights; and if she will make a statement. [124815]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 13 March 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2007 to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, Official Report, column 1328W, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether the Information Commissioner has provided advice or guidance on the contract with Rightmove. [127113]

Mr. Woolas: No.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the contract between the Valuation Office Agency and Rightmove. [124472]

Mr. Woolas: The contract is between HMRC, as parent department of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), and Rightmove.co.uk plc. This document is commercially confidential and cannot be placed in the public domain.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reason the Valuation Office Agency decided to sign the contract with Rightmove for a specific period of 34 months with the 12 month option to extend. [124473]

Mr. Woolas: Information connected with the contract between HMRC, parent department of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), and Rightmove.co.uk plc is commercially confidential and cannot be placed in the public domain.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Valuation Office Agency paid to Rightmove.co.uk plc in each year since 2004-05. [124477]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the Valuation Office Agency's published Annual Report and Accounts 2005-06, available on the VOA's website. Total payments for the years 2004-05 and 2005-06 are shown at page 62 under 'Other Operating Costs' against the cost head of 'Data capture'. Information for the year 2006-07 is not yet available.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what area of the UK Rightmove is supplying the Valuation Office Agency with property information. [124478]

Mr. Woolas: Information accessible by the Valuation Office Agency on Rightmove.co.uk's archive database covers England only.

Valuation Office: Electronic Equipment

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on digital cameras and related electronic equipment in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 to date; and how many cameras were purchased in each of those years. [127062]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the earlier answer, 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 587W. No further expenditure took place in that year. Expenditure in 2006-07 will be available once the accounts are finalised.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Culture: Havering

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what cultural events her Department is (a) organising and (b) helping to fund in the London borough of Havering in the next 12 months. [134590]

Mr. Lammy: The DCMS is helping to fund cultural events in Havering through its NDPBs. Arts Council England (ACE) funds the Queens Theatre and a number of poetry events through the Spread The Word Literature Development Agency. ACE is also supporting the development of the Thames Gateway Dance Partnership, the Thames Gateway Arts Framework and 2012 planning for the Gateway boroughs.

The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council are supporting the Libraries for Learners project and are working with the London borough of Havering on the Thames Gateway Cultural Strategy and advising on the establishment of a new museum service for the borough.

The UK Film Council operates two funds, the London Borough Film Fund Challenge and Film London's EAST project, which Havering could directly benefit from, dependent on successful application.

In addition, Havering has received £200,113 in Lottery funding from Arts Council England and £505,265 from the Heritage Lottery Fund since the Lottery began in 1995.

Gambling: Licensing

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications have been received by the Gambling Commission for remote operating licences under the Gambling Act 2005. [134843]

Mr. Caborn: At 27 April, the Gambling Commission had received and classified 95 remote operating licence applications.

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assumptions her Department has made in calculating the Gambling Commission's forecast cost and revenues on the number of remote operating licence applications it expects to be made under the Gambling Act 2005. [134844]

Mr. Caborn: In line with HM Treasury Fees and Charges Guide, the costs of the Gambling Commission undertaking its regulatory activities would include the full direct and allocated costs (including depreciation) of the regulatory and licensing regime allocated appropriately to avoid any cross-subsidisation between categories and types of fees and all costs of enforcement.

Estimates of costs and revenues were generated from the Commission's independently created model which reflected the assumptions used to establish the Commission's initial budget based on the limited information available at that time. These assumptions will be kept under review in the light of actual experience of the operation of the new regulatory and licensing regime.

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assumptions her Department has made on the number of applications for remote operating licences under the Gambling Act 2005 that will be made before 1 September. [134845]

Mr. Caborn: Based on the information available and set out in the consultation document on Gambling Commission fees published in July 2006, the Commission estimated that the average number of operators in each type and category of licensable activity requiring a remote operating licence from 1 September 2007 was 57.

At 27 April 2007, the Gambling Commission had received and classified 95 remote operating licence applications including a larger than expected number of applications for licences from telephone betting operators.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department plans to take to strengthen its use of evidence to inform policy making as recommended in its Capability Review; and what assessment has been made of the use of evidence in developing the regulatory order to implement the Gambling Act 2005. [134853]

Mr. Caborn: The Department's plan for responding to the Capability Review is outlined in the Permanent Secretary's response to the Capability Review (pages 5-8) and in "Transforming DCMS", the transformation action plan. Both are published on the DCMS website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/Reference_library/Publications/

Implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 is based on evidence, including that generated by extensive consultation with stakeholders on a wide range of issues.

Gaming Machines

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 713W, if she will publish the proposals that have already been drafted to ensure that gaming machines comply with sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005. [135074]

Mr. Caborn: The Department's draft proposals under sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005 were set out in a formal consultation paper. I am arranging for copies of the consultation paper to be deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Sport

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the impact of the diversion of funding from the Big Lottery Fund to the 2012 Olympics upon (a) the efforts of statutory agencies to promote physical activity and (b) the Government's target of 50 per cent. of adults meeting the recommended minimum level of physical activity by 2011; and if she will make a statement. [134783]

Mr. Caborn: The Big Lottery Fund will be contributing just over £638 million to the £1,085 million to be transferred, subject to Parliamentary approval, from non-Olympic Lottery proceeds to the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund (OLDF) between 2009 and 2012. Naturally, this will affect the rate at which the Fund is able to commit and spend money in all the areas it supports. The Department has made no assessment of the likely impact on any particular area, as future programmes are for the Big Lottery Fund to design. However, the Government's intention is that no existing lottery project will be affected, and we have also agreed with the Big Lottery Fund that resources for the voluntary sector will be protected. On the basis of the Department's current income projections, the Fund should still receive approximately £2 billion in fresh Lottery income during the four financial years in which the proposed transfers to the OLDF will be made.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how she plans to monitor the level of change in participation in sports and physical activity resulting from London's hosting of the Olympics (a) before, (b) during and (c) after the event takes place; whether the Government have made any predictions of the likely level of changes; and if she will make a statement. [134784]

Mr. Caborn: We currently use the Taking Part survey to monitor sports participation at the national level and to report on our public service agreement (PSA) on sport participation. Sport England's Active People survey is used to monitor participation at the local level. We will continue to use surveys such as these to monitor the level of change in participation before, during and after the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

We have not made predictions about the likely level of change in participation; however the Government have set a very stretching PSA target to increase by 3 per cent. by 2008 the number of people from priority groups who participate in sport. PSA targets beyond 2008 have not yet been set.

Sports: Grants

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much money from (a) the Big Lottery Fund and (b) other lottery distributors, including sports councils, was spent on grassroots sport and other schemes which promote physical activity among adults in each of the last five years. [134757]

Mr. Caborn: Lottery money has always paid for a very wide range of projects from kit for local teams to investments in major stadia and sports halls. There is no accepted definition of what constitutes "grass roots" investment or otherwise in this range.

However total Lottery funds spent by the Big Lottery Fund and the Sports Councils on sport (excluding UK Sport which has a clear high performance remit) in each of the last five years is as follows:

£ million

Lottery funding	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	Grand total
Big Lottery Fund	4,801,339	31,618,846	84,993,116	250,237,156	[1]222,581,300	[1]594,231,757
Sport England	307,958,000	237,400,000	170,700,000	202,100,000	121,400,000	1,039,558,000
Sports Council for Wales	20,632,200	20,769,763	18,888,000	12,662,000	10,649,000	83,600,963
Sport Scotland	17,395,792	33,565,723	28,977,187	23,524,041	21,897,783	125,360,526
Sports Council Northern Ireland	5,665,747	3,904,620	5,939,011	6,651,167	7,975,994	30,136,539
Total	356,453,078	327,258,952	309,497,314	495,174,364	384,504,077	1,872,887,785

[1] Figures from the Big Lottery Fund were only available to 28 February 2007 because of technical problems with accessing the month of March 2007 data.

Notes:

Figures are rounded to the nearest pound.

Figures shown are 'drawdown' which most accurately represents spend on sport in that year. Figures for 'Income' (to distributors from the NLDF) or 'awards' (made to projects in that year) would give a slightly different picture as, for example, cash would not always flow against awards in that same year.

Figures for Sports Councils include contributions to Awards for All.

BLF figures include:

New Opportunities for PE and Sport (NOPES)

Community Sport Initiative (from 2004-05)—A UK wide initiative tailored for each country, for example, in England the Active England programme is a joint initiative with Sport England. Big Lottery Fund contributed £77.5 million and Sport England contributed £31 million.

School Sports Co-ordinators funding (from 2003-04)

Big Lottery Fund figures do not include Awards for All or other Lottery programmes which may have funded sport or physical activity indirectly.

Sports: Young People

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures are being taken to increase participation in competitive sport among young people in (a) Romford and (b) England. [134587]

Mr. Caborn: Through the National School Sport Strategy the Government are revitalising competitive school sport in England.

The 2005-06 School Sport Survey showed the following data for competitive sport for the three School Sport Partnerships (SSPs) which fall within Romford constituency:

Coopers Company & Coborn SSP

All schools held a competitive sports day;

72 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition; and

35 per cent. of pupils from years 4-11 were involved in inter-school competition.

Davenant Foundation SSP

All schools held a competitive sports day;

77 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition; and

43 per cent. of pupils from years 4-11 were involved in inter-school competition.

Emerson Park SSP

All schools held a competitive sports day;

72 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition; and

31 per cent. of pupils from years 4-11 were involved in inter-school competition.

Nationally the 2005-06 survey showed that:

97 per cent. of schools held a competitive sports day;

71 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition; and

37 per cent. of pupils from years 4-11 were involved in inter-school competition, a rise of 12 per cent. on 2003-04.

To continue to improve the quality and quantity of competitive school sport we are implementing a network of Competition Managers across School Sport Partnerships. Currently schools within the Davenant Foundation SSP are benefiting from access to a team of Competition Managers appointed from September 2006.

Sport England advise that in 2006 1,040 young people were engaged in preliminary London Youth Games events in the London borough of Havering. An additional 386 young people went to the finals, 315 of which attended the main games and 71 attended the mini-games at Crystal Palace.

In addition, we have established the UK School Games (UKSG). This is an annual event that will become the pinnacle of competitive school sport. The 2006 UKSG took place in Glasgow with 1,200 young competitors. The 2007 UKSG will take place in Coventry.

Works of Art: Valuation

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, columns 613-4W, on works of art: valuation, what information is required to ensure that a valuation is properly justified; and to what extent the Reviewing Committee can reduce a valuation for a UK purchaser. [134896]

Mr. Lammy: Where an item has been sold at auction, the applicant is required to provide a copy of the entry in the sale catalogue and proof of the price at which the item was sold. Where the valuation represents a private treaty sale or agreement to sell, the applicant is required to provide the written agreement or a certified copy of it, together with any related invoices and to confirm whether the sale agreement represents a single transaction that will not be affected by any other existing or subsequent transactions between the owner and the purchaser. Where the valuation represents an estimate, the applicant is required to provide details of the estimate with background information explaining how the value was reached.

The Reviewing Committee may recommend a valuation different from that proposed by the applicant where it considers that there are reasonable grounds to support such a recommendation. It may also recommend that the Secretary of State seek an independent valuation of the work of art in question.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, columns 613-4W, on works of art: valuation, what the investigative powers are of the Reviewing Committee into valuations. [134897]

Mr. Lammy: The Committee has no formal powers of investigation, but may request the applicant to provide information to substantiate a valuation before, during and after the case hearing. If someone who applies for a licence fails to provide adequate information on valuation as requested by the Committee, the Committee may decline to make a recommendation on valuation and recommend that the Secretary of State seek an independent valuation.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, columns 613-4W, on works of art: valuation, how many times an independent valuation varied from the valuation submitted to the Reviewing Committee in each of the last 10 years; and what steps were taken when this happened. [134898]

Mr. Lammy: Over the last 10 years there has been one occasion where an independent valuation varied from the valuation submitted to the Reviewing Committee. In this case, the Committee took into account all the available evidence and recommended a lower valuation than that provided by the applicant.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what submunitions are contained in the M270 tracked multiple launch rocket system that is being deployed to Afghanistan; whether he classifies these submunitions as dumb or not-dumb; and if he will make a statement. [125033]

Mr. Ingram: The M270 tracked multiple launch rocket launcher will be deployed with the new Guided Multiple Launch Rocket System (GMLRS) rockets.

Each GMLRS rocket has a unitary (single munition) high explosive warhead, it does not employ submunitions.

Ammunition: Iraq

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the percentage of smart cluster munitions which fail to explode immediately. [134773]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 20 April 2007, Official Report, column 800W, to my right hon. Friend the Member for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith).

Armed Forces: Dogs

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average daily cost of feeding a dog in military service was in each of the last three years, broken down by service. [134092]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 26 April 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1648W.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions his Department has been unable to fulfil an agreed whole-time equivalent number of staff in (a) Ministry of Defence hospital units and (b) NHS trusts in each year since 2001; and how much financial compensation has been paid as a consequence. [133147]

Derek Twigg: The number of occasions when the agreed whole-time equivalent numbers have not been achieved, and the costs of meeting these shortfalls, are detailed as follows. The relevant contracts with the NHS trusts have provided for the Department to pay for civilian locum or agency replacements only since financial year 2005-06. Before then the contractual terms provided for lower levels of payment to be made by the trusts to the Department for the agreed service.

In financial year 2005-06 there were 33 occasions when the agreed whole time equivalent numbers to be provided to NHS trusts hosting Ministry of Defence hospital units were not reached. The total sum reimbursed to the NHS trusts concerned was £1.34 million.

To date, 27 such occasions have been identified for financial year 2006-07 and the total cost of reimbursement has been £1.01 million.

There has been no shortfall in either financial year in the provision of agreed whole time equivalent numbers to any other NHS Trusts hosting military medical personnel.

Civilian Global Navigation System

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the potential implications for British national security of European proposals to institute a civilian global navigation system. [134353]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

The UK welcomes the development of Galileo, Europe's civil global navigation satellite system, under civil control, and its many civil applications. We will continue to scrutinise Galileo's development so that any national security implications that could arise from the programme or its applications can be dealt with appropriately.

Defence

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the formal (a) meetings and (b) correspondence which (i) he, (ii) other Ministers in his Department and (iii) officials in his Department have had in an official capacity with representatives from the defence industry since 1 December 2006; when each meeting took place; who attended each meeting; what the subject was of each meeting; and if he will make a statement. [129394]

Mr. Ingram: Defence Ministers have held the following meetings with defence manufacturers between 1 December 2006 and 31 March 2007.

Secretary of State

18 January—Met with representatives of Vosper Thornycroft and Fleet Support Ltd. during a visit to HM Naval Base, Portsmouth.

Minister for Defence Procurement (Minister for Defence Equipment and Support from 6 March 2007)

10 January—Attendance at a BAE Systems Leadership Meeting.

15 January—Meeting with representatives from BAe to discuss UK/FR high level working group.

12 March—Meeting with a representative from BAE Systems to discuss the Maritime Industrial Strategy.

12 March—Meeting with a representative from MBDA to discuss the Maritime Industrial Strategy.

12 March—Meeting with a representative from VT Group to discuss the Maritime Industrial Strategy.

19 March—Meeting with a representative from BAE Systems to discuss the Maritime Industrial Strategy.

19 March—Meeting with a representative from the Carlyle Group to discuss the Maritime Industrial Strategy.

26 March—Meeting with a representative from General Dynamics UK to discuss various equipment programmes.

27 March—Meeting of the National Defence Industry Council.

27 March—Meeting with a representative from the MBDA to discuss the Defence Manufacturers Association.

29 March—Introductory meeting with a representative from Nexter with discussions including FRES and munitions.

29 March—Meeting with a representative from Finmeccanica to discuss a variety of equipment issues including helicopters.

Under Secretary of State for Defence

1 March—Meeting with a representative from Marshalls Aerospace to discuss the relocation of the company to Cambridge airport.

6 March—Meeting with a representative from EDS Ltd. to discuss the introduction of a new Veterans card.

Each of the Defence Ministers may also have met with defence manufacturers on other less formal occasions during the period, including whilst visiting company premises or at party political events.

Details of every meeting between officials and representatives from defence manufacturers is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However there will have been numerous regular and ad hoc meetings since 1 December 2006.

Land: Sales

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1035W, on land: sales, in what circumstances a land quality assessment is not carried out; and how the value of the land is calculated in those circumstances. [134516]

Derek Twigg: It is normal for the MOD to undertake Land Quality Assessments (LQA) on all sites being considered for disposal.

In line with industry best practice, the MOD LQA process adopts a structured phased approach and is tailored to individual site conditions. It is not necessary to carry out every phase for all sites. For example past use may be such that potential risks identified at a LQA preliminary phase may be sufficiently quantified not to warrant proceeding to the next phase. The value of the land will ultimately be determined by the market.

Mercenaries: Iraq

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the rules of engagement for private military companies operating in Iraq. [133528]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 23 April 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

The operation of private security companies in Iraq is regulated by Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA) Memorandum Number 17. CPA legislation remains in force as part of the law of Iraq by virtue of Article 130 of the Iraqi Constitution until amended or repealed by the Iraqi Government. Annex A to CPA Memorandum Number 17 sets out binding rules on the use of force, which apply to all private security companies in Iraq. I will arrange for CPA Memorandum Number 17 to be placed in the Library of the House. It is already available on the following website:

http://www.iraqcoalition.org/regulations/index.html #Regulations

Nimrod Aircraft

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average annual fuel defect rates of the Nimrod fleet per fifty flying hours were in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [132978]

Mr. Ingram: The average annual fuel system defect ('fuel defect' is defined as any reported fault relating to the aircraft fuel system) rate per 50 flying hours for the Nimrod fleet over the last 10 calendar years for which the information is currently available, is as follows:

	Defects per 50 flying hours
1996	3.93
1997	4.61
1998	4.72
1999	4.64
2000	3.83
2001	3.81
2002	3.83
2003	3.99
2004	4.75
2005	3.80

Rigid Inflatable Boats

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the acquisition costs are for each type of rigid inflatable boat used by the Royal Navy and Royal Marines. [134198]

Mr. Ingram: There are 15 types of in-service Rigid Hull Inflatable Boat (RHIB). I am withholding the information about acquisition costs as its disclosure would prejudice commercial interests. Purchase costs do, however, range between approximately £20,000 and £200,000.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to produce a revised edition of the draft guidance on termination of pregnancy in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [134443]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health and Social Services and Public Safety (DHSSPS) issued the draft "Guidance on Termination of Pregnancy in Northern Ireland" to interested parties on 9 January. The response date was extended from 16 March to 20 April due to the high level of interest that it generated.

DHSSPS is currently collating the responses in order to produce a summary response document. The final guidelines will not be issued until after the Assembly is restored.

Arson

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of suspected deliberate fire starting were reported in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; and how many people were (a) arrested, (b) prosecuted and (c) convicted of arson and related offences in each year. [133125]

Paul Goggins: Table 1 outlines the total number of incidents recorded and cleared by PSNI. Table 2 gives prosecutions and convictions for the offences of 'arson' and 'arson endangering life'.

The statistics in the table are drawn from two separate sources—PSNI Central Statistics Unit and NIO Statistics and Research Branch. PSNI statistics include incidents which have been recorded but did not result in prosecution or any further recommended action. The statistics drawn from NIO Statistics and Research Branch detail prosecutions and convictions. Comparison is not possible between the two tables.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134061]

Mr. Hain: This information is not recorded and therefore it could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The NIO policy is to use paper for photocopying, printing and for publications that is derived from at least 70 per cent. post consumer waste. Currently we purchase office paper that is derived from 100 per cent. post consumer waste.

Derelict Land

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what disused public land is available in Northern Ireland; what plans are in place for each such site; and if he will make a statement. [132034]

Mr. Hanson: The following plots of disused public land and the plans in place for each have been identified by Northern Ireland Departments:

	Plans in place
Part of former Dunmurry Golf Course at Upper Dunmurry Lane/Creighton Road, Belfast	Planned use is for social housing subject to successful planning appeal
Land between Blacks Road and Colin Valley Golf Course, Belfast	Current proposal is for development as public open space with children's play areas
Part of lands at Downshire Hospital	May be required for new Downe Hospital
Lands at Drumcoo, Enniskillen	May be required for new hospital in South West
Part of lands at Mid Ulster Hospital, Magherafelt	May be required for hospital use
Part of lands at Musgrave Park Hospital, Belfast	May be required for hospital use
Land at Fairhill Street, Ballycastle	Likely to be disposed of as surplus land in accordance with Land and Property Services guidance
Site of store, Curragh Road, Coleraine	Likely to be disposed of as surplus land in accordance with Land and Property Services guidance
Land adjacent to river bank of Lower Bann River near Kilrea	Likely to be disposed of as surplus land in accordance with Land and Property Services guidance
Land on bank of Faughan River at Drumahoe	Likely to be disposed of as surplus land in accordance with Land and Property Services guidance
Land at Quoile pondage, Downpatrick	Very restricted use due to environmental protection designations. Its future may be determined by DOENI Environment and Heritage Service
Killyleagh Former HS (South Eastern Education and Library Board)	Future development of Killyleagh OEC
Killowen PS/Laurelhill HS, Lisburn (South Eastern Education and Library Board)	Potential reuse of campus for new education provision

969 acres owned by the Department for Social Development at 380 locations	158 acres for transfer to housing associations for social housing

	Plans in place
	292 acres for sale for private housing
	519 acres to be retained for future development

Drumaghlis School: Crossgar School

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions have taken place between the South Eastern Education and Library Board and the boards of governors of Drumaghlis Primary School and Crossgar Primary School on the implementation programme for the amalgamation of both primary schools from 1 September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [134410]

Maria Eagle: The South Eastern Education and Library Board has undertaken a full consultation with the boards of governors of Drumaghlis Primary School and Crossgar Primary School about the proposed amalgamation prior to the publication of the development proposal. The development proposal is currently being considered by the Department of Education.

Pending a decision on the development proposal an interim board of governors for the proposed new amalgamated school, representative of both the existing schools, has been established to progress the effective implementation of the amalgamation and to prepare a Scheme of Management for the new school. A senior officer from the South Eastern Education and Library Board has been appointed as an independent chairman to the interim board of governors to facilitate this work.

Faith Schools

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many private (a) Anglican, (b) Catholic, (c) Evangelical and (d) Jewish faith schools there are in Northern Ireland. [135019]

Maria Eagle: There are currently 10 private evangelical schools in Northern Ireland. There are no Catholic, Church of England or Jewish private schools.

General Practitioners

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department allocated to Western Urgent Care for out-of-hours service provision in each of the last five years. [135249]

Paul Goggins: Following the introduction of the new GMS contract, responsibility for the commissioning of out-of-hours services was transferred to WHSSB on 1 January 2005. Since that date the WHSSB has allocated the following levels of funding to Western Urgent Care:

Period covered	Amount (£ million)
1 January 2005 to 31 March 2005	1.3
1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006	5.3
1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007	5.3

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures his Department has in place to ensure that the proposed five per cent. reduction in the Western Urgent Care budget for the financial year 2007-08 will not reduce the level of patient care provided to patients living in the Derry, Strabane and Limavady areas. [135250]

Paul Goggins: There has been no reduction in the actual budget for the provision of out-of-hours (OOH) care, either for Western Urgent Care specifically, or in Northern Ireland as a whole, nor is such a reduction planned. When the Health and Social Services Boards took over responsibility for the delivery of OOHs from GPs in 2005 following the introduction of the new contract for GPs, the Department agreed to provide bridging finance for a period of three years to assist the boards with the start-up costs of the new service. It was agreed with the Health and Social Services Boards at the time that this bridging finance would decrease in the third year (2007-08) and cease from 1 April 2008. The budget for the service is otherwise unaffected.

Health Professions: Training

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which specialities used the online NHS eportfolio for Medical Training Application Service shortlisting in Northern Ireland. [133695]

Paul Goggins: No specialities used the online NHS eportfolio for MTAS shortlisting.

Irish Language: Pupils

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland in what proportion of schools in Northern Ireland pupils are taught Irish as a second language. [135020]

Maria Eagle: The requested information is not available for primary schools. The following information relates to examination entries in Irish for the 2005-06 academic year in English-medium schools.

Of the 229 English-medium post primary schools:

79 (34 per cent.) post primary schools had entries in GCSE Irish;

49 (21 per cent.) post primary schools had entries in A-level Irish.

Notes:

1. Irish-medium primary and post primary schools have been excluded from this analysis.

2. In the 2005-06 academic year, two post primary schools had pupils being taught in Irish-medium units. It is not possible to exclude these pupils from the analysis.

3. The GCSE and A-level examination data have been taken from the University of Bath dataset.

4. The number of post primary schools is taken from the annual school census.

Junior Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days on average junior doctors were available to provide a service to patients in the Northern Ireland hospital where they work during (a) March 2006 and (b) March 2007. [134979]

Paul Goggins: This information is not held centrally and could be provided by the Health and Social Care Trusts only at a disproportionate cost.

Local Government: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are employed in local government in Northern Ireland. [135045]

David Cairns: The number of people employed in the 26 district councils in Northern Ireland, as at 1 January 2006, totalled 10,912. This figure has been provided from records held by the Local Government Staff Commission for Northern Ireland.

Locums

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost was of locum cover in Northern Ireland for junior doctors during (a) March 2006 and (b) March 2007. [133702]

Paul Goggins: The cost for locum cover in Northern Ireland for junior doctors during March 2006 was £782,605. A final figure for March 2007 is not yet available but the cost to date is £867,297.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost has been of providing locum cover for junior doctors in Northern Ireland attending activities relating to Modernising Medical Careers. [134962]

Paul Goggins: There is no additional cost for providing locum cover for junior doctors attending Modernising Medical Careers activities as cover is provided by other junior doctors in the rota.

Primary Education

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what meetings have taken place between the education boards and primary school teachers on the implementation programme for the revised primary school curriculum for primary 1 and primary 5 classes; [134408]

(2) what training programmes have taken place with teachers in each of the education and library boards on the implementation of the revised primary school curriculum for (a) primary 1 and (b) primary 5 classes. [134409]

Maria Eagle: The education and library boards, as part of the strategic planning by the education partners within the partnership management board (PMB), have provided three days' training for all Year 1 and Year 5 teachers during 2006-07, with follow-up training planned for the next academic year. Year 1 teachers have also been invited to attend local group meetings relating to Foundation Stage, and Year 5 teachers will receive training during the summer term relating to specific aspects of assessment.

The boards have also been engaging directly with primary principals, as school leaders. Every primary principal has had the opportunity to discuss the implementation of the revised curriculum at a series of face to face meetings, in addition to senior management conferences which began in 2005-06. PMB has also established a principals' forum as a further means of engaging directly with schools and every school has a dedicated link officer from the boards.

Recycling

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his policy is on encouraging recycling across Northern Ireland. [135022]

David Cairns: "Towards Resource Management", the waste strategy for Northern Ireland, sets challenging targets for the recycling and recovery of all wastes. I am committed to the development of viable end markets for recycled materials and to supporting the work of WRAP (Waste and Resources Action Programme) and other initiatives that will engage the business sector and encourage recycling. Sustainable procurement and purchasing policies across central Government will help to stabilise these markets. My Department will also be consulting on providing powers for district councils to introduce incentive schemes to reduce and recycle household waste.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government are taking to tackle the number of young drivers killed and injured on Northern Ireland's roads. [134407]

David Cairns: The Northern Ireland Road Safety Strategy 2002-12 reinforces Government's commitment to road safety and includes a range of measures aimed at young drivers.

The Department of the Environment is currently researching the training, testing and licensing of new and young drivers and the future direction for Northern Ireland's "L" and "R" driver schemes. Any proposed changes will be the subject of consultation.

DOE actively promotes Road Traffic Studies and GCSE Motor Vehicle and Road User Studies in post-primary schools, providing support, training and materials to schools. The Police Service of Northern Ireland has developed an NVQ, "Preparation for Driving", which will be made available by September 2007. These courses focus on the attitudes of young adults, many of whom will soon become drivers. The PSNI ran 19 "Roadsafe Roadshows" during the current school year, attended by almost 11,000 young people, depicting how a night out could end in tragedy. DOE also offers, through schools, a driver training scheme to 17 and 18-year-olds with valid provisional licences.

DOE has a portfolio of hard-hitting road safety campaigns targeting the main causes of road deaths and serious injuries. These particularly focus on the 17-24 age group as it is most at risk and most likely to be responsible for serious road collisions.

The PSNI has introduced a Driver Improvement Scheme to improve driving standards and attitudes for first time careless driving offenders as an alternative to prosecution.

Over the past year the PSNI has worked with young motorists through its involvement with a local "cruising club". Approximately 1,000 young people attended a recent event in Ballymena.

The PSNI mounts intelligence-led road safety operations, particularly in relation to young drivers, throughout the year. In 2006, 3,723 fixed penalty notices for speeding were issued to 17 to 24-year-olds.

Special Educational Needs

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much each education and library board spent on defending (a) special education needs tribunal cases and (b) special educational needs judicial review cases in each of the last five years. [124544]

Maria Eagle: It is not possible for the education and library boards (ELBs) to provide the exact costs of defending special educational needs tribunal and judicial review cases in each of the last five years as they do not hold records of the exact amount of time spent by board officers in preparing for and, if necessary, attending tribunals and judicial reviews.

I am advised by the chief executives of the education and library boards that, for both tribunals and judicial reviews, an average cost of £5,000 per case in respect of cases which are eventually heard and £1,000 for all other cases is appropriate.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Africa: Exports

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what support the Government provided to British firms seeking to establish export agreements with African countries in the latest period for which figures are available. [134315]

Mr. McCartney: UK Trade and Investment is the Government organisation that supports UK companies trading internationally. During the past 12 to 18 months it has assisted over 4,600 British companies working in Africa through its range of services. Services offered include helping British companies develop their export strategy, providing support and advice on market entry, advice on local customs, assistance in finding a local partner and understanding ways of doing business. Our ambassadors/high commissioners and senior government officials have helped British companies in their efforts to secure contracts in Africa by extensive lobbying with Ministers and officials. They are also in constant discussions with Ministers and senior officials to promote British expertise and knowledge.

Working with its stakeholders UKTI has arranged 65 inward missions and 62 outward missions to African countries in recent years including South Africa, Nigeria, Ghana and Kenya.

UK exports to Africa in 2006 amounted to £6,194,177 up 7.2 per cent. on the 2005 figure of £5,777,083.

British Sky Broadcasting: ITV

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to make his decision on whether BSkyB's acquisition of a 17.9 per cent. stake in ITV should be referred to the Competition Commission. [135302]

Mr. McCartney: A decision on whether to refer this transaction to the Competition Commission will be made as soon as possible and before the statutory deadline which is 26 May.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received from officials at BSkyB on its stake in ITV; and if he will publish those representations. [135303]

Mr. McCartney: BSkyB has made substantive representations on its shareholding in ITV to the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) and to Ofcom in the context of the respective investigations these bodies have carried out into that matter. The reports submitted by the OFT and Ofcom to the Secretary of State on Friday 27 April contain summaries of the representations they received, including those received from BSkyB. Section 107(3)(b) and 107(3)(a) of the Enterprise Act 2002 require the Secretary of State to publish the reports submitted by the OFT and Ofcom. Section 107(9)(a) of the Enterprise Act 2002 requires that these reports shall be published no later than the publication of the Secretary of State's decision on whether to make a reference to the Competition Commission. In accordance with section 118 of the Enterprise Act 2002, suitable excisions will be made to the reports of the OFT and Ofcom prior to their publication. The excisions will be primarily in respect of the consideration specified in section 244(3)(a) of the Enterprise Act 2002 which concerns the exclusion of commercial information whose disclosure might significantly harm the legitimate business interests of the undertaking to which it relates.

Business: Suffolk

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many firms ceased trading in (a) Bury St Edmunds constituency and (b) the Suffolk county council area in each year since 1997. [134688]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business closures although only 42 per cent of UK businesses were registered for VAT at the start of 2005. DTI data on the number of VAT de-registrations in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (b) Suffolk county council area from 1997 to 2005 are shown in the following table. Data for de-registrations in 2006 will be available in autumn 2007. For comparison, the number of new VAT registrations and the start of year stock of VAT registered businesses are also shown.

Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2005, Small Business Service, available at http://www.dtistats.net/smes/vat/index.htm

In both Bury St. Edmunds constituency and Suffolk county council area the stock of VAT registered businesses has increased each year since 1997, as registrations have exceeded de-registrations throughout this period.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register will not necessarily have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses were registered for VAT at the start of 2005.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many small businesses that began trading since 1997 have subsequently ceased trading in (a) Bury St Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk, (c) the east of England and (d) England. [134689]

Margaret Hodge: While value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business starts and closures only 42 per cent of UK businesses were registered for VAT at the start of 2005. Latest VAT data on the total number of registrations since 1997 and the number of these registrations that subsequently de-registered, covering up to 2005, are shown in the following table for (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk County, (c) the East of England and (d) England. Data for 2006 will be available in winter 2008-09.

China: Wood

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has made to the Government of China on ensuring the sustainability of timber imported to China from (a) South East Asia and (b) Africa; and if he will make a statement. [134597]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

DFID is working on the issue of sustainable timber imports to China from South East Asia and from Africa through a number of channels.

Policy analysis is funded through support to a programme, "China and the Asia-Pacific: forest markets for sustainable livelihoods and forests" managed by the non-governmental organisation (NGO) Forest Trends. Forest Trends, and the data it produces on Chinese timber production and on the timber imports and exports, is well respected by the Chinese Government. They are about to expand this work to cover a selected number of African countries.

DFID contributes to an ongoing project jointly run by the Chinese Ministry of Commerce and the Canadian International Institute of Sustainable Development, whose aim is to integrate sustainable development concerns into Chinese trade/economic policies in three commodities, of which one is the international timber trade.

Finally, forestry is a priority issue within the UK-China Sustainable Development Dialogue, a formal mechanism for ministerial dialogue and projects on key sustainable development issues. DFID is a member of the newly-established UK-China Forestry Working Group, and is lead and co-funder of a project managed by Chatham House to hold a series of participatory stakeholder meetings on international forestry, bringing together Chinese Government, industry representatives and non-governmental organisations.

Corporate Social Responsibility Academy

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 April 2007, Official Report, columns 767-68W, on the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy, what the funding provided to the academy in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06 and (c) 2006-07 was spent on, broken down by main budget heading; [135055]

(2) how much government funding was given to the Academy Programme partners as part of the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy in each year since it began. [135058]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The budget for the academy over its two years was allocated as follows:

CSR Academy budget

	Year 1	£ Year 2
Programme partners	150,000	127,000
Project management	87,200	91,000
Website/ communications	41,400	41,000
Miscellaneous expenses	12,200	20,000
Total	290,800	279,000

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when his Department decided to transfer the running of the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy to Business in the Community. [135059]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The Department was in discussion with Business in the Community about the future of the academy from June 2006 and the agreement to the transfer was concluded in January 2007.

Farmers: Bankruptcy

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of farmers who became bankrupt in England in each of the last five years. [135241]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The closest available estimate for bankruptcies among farmers is the number of bankruptcy orders made under the category "agriculture" according to the Insolvency Trade Classification. Also provided for further information is the number of company liquidations in the agricultural sector. The following table provides the England and Wales figures in 2001-05, figures for 2006 are not available by industry sector:

Bankruptcies and company liquidations in England and Wales for agriculture, 2001-05

	Bankruptcy orders	Company liquidations
2001	183	90
2002	132	76
2003	151	52
2004	204	35
2005	195	35

Financial Services: Marketing

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many organisations marketing individual voluntary arrangements were successfully prosecuted for using advertising that was in breach of the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [134173]

Mr. McCartney: Any enforcement action regarding advertising of IVAs would be from OFT or ASA. Information regarding prosecutions and breaches of the CMARs can be found on the Consumer Regulations website, provided by the Office of Fair Trading, at www.crw.gov.uk. This records six cases since 2003 involving breaches of the CMARs, all of which were dealt with through undertakings by the companies and relevant individuals rather than by prosecutions.

OM Energy

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when his Department expects to cease providing support to OM Energy Ltd. [134230]

Mr. McCartney: The key objective of UK Trade and Investment's Global Entrepreneur Programme is to create self sustaining, high growth UK technology businesses by attracting both worldwide intellectual property and entrepreneurial talent here. The latest phase of the OM Energy project will include the recruitment of a highly experienced global management team to take forward the next stage of the company's strategy. This will limit the need for significant ongoing support from the Global Entrepreneur Programme.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children's Centres: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children's centres he expects there to be in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex by 2010. [130935]

Beverley Hughes: There will be seven Sure Start Children's Centres in Eastbourne and 28 Sure Start Children's Centres in East Sussex by 2008. Local authorities will be planning the number of children's centres up to 2010 once they receive their allocations and targets later this year. There are currently two Sure Start Children's Centres in Eastbourne and 10 Sure Start Children's Centres in East Sussex.

Education: Newspaper Press

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many supplements in newspapers were funded by (a) his Department and (b) the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in the last 12 months; and how much was spent in each case. [132235]

Jim Knight: The number of supplements in newspapers funded by the Department and the QCA in the last 12 months is as follows:

(a) The Department for Education and Skills

Education: Standards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1542W on education: standards, how many maintained mainstream schools there were where (a) more than 20 per cent., (b) more than one third and (c) more than 40 per cent. of 14-year old pupils attained a lower or the same level in Key Stage 3 (i) tests and (ii) teacher assessments in 2006 than they had attained at Key Stage 2. [132128]

Jim Knight: The information requested is summarised in the following table.

Free School Meals

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were known to be eligible for free school meals but were not in receipt of free school meals over the last 10 years. [131798]

Jim Knight [holding answer 17 April 2007]: Information on pupils eligible for free school meals is collected at pupil level via the school census. Pupils should only be recorded as eligible if a claim for free school meals has been made for them or on their behalf by parents and their eligibility has been confirmed by the relevant authority or by provision of necessary documents to the school or local authority.

It is not known how many pupils could be eligible but are not submitting a claim.

The following table shows the number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals; and the number of pupils who took a free school meal on the day of the census.

Maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools[1]: school meal arrangements—as at January 2006, England

	Maintained nursery and primary schools	Maintained secondary schools

Further Education: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students who took A2-level exams in the London borough of Havering went on to further education in each year since 1997. [134622]

Jim Knight: The figures in this answer are for all 16 and 17-year-olds, there is no information solely on those that have completed A2-level exams and local participation estimates are not available for 18-year-olds.

The table gives the number and percentage of 16 and 17-year-olds in the London borough of Havering participating in full-time education at a sixth form college, further education college or school. The latest year for which data are available is end 2004.

Higher Education: Health and Safety Inspections

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the frequency of health and safety inspections in higher education. [116641]

Bill Rammell: No such assessment has been made. It is the duty of governing bodies of higher education institutions, as employers, to ensure that their organisations comply with all legislation including the Health and Safety at Work Act 1976 and subsequent regulations. Inspection and enforcement is a matter for the Health and Safety Executive and local authorities and will depend on the nature of activities carried out in individual higher education institutions.

National Identity Register

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what personal data held by his Department will be entered on to the National Identity Register; and if he will make a statement. [107791]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that the Minister for Children and Families, my right hon. Friend the Member for Stretford and Urmston (Beverley Hughes) gave him on 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 426W.

Information that may be entered in the National Identity Register is specified at section 3 and schedule 1 of the Identity Cards Act. Information will be entered on the basis of fresh applications for registration when individuals apply for identity cards. There will be no bulk transfer of data to populate the Register. The Department has yet to identify any datasets it holds that might be used for verifying information to be recorded about individuals in the National Identity Register.

Outdoor Education: Biology

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average amount of time spent by A-level biology students out of the classroom was in each of the last five years; what the nature of students' activities out of the classroom was; and what assessment he has made of the impact of such activities on students' learning and understanding. [132988]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect information about the amount of time spent by A-level biology students out of the classroom or the nature of students' activities out of the classroom. In 2004, the Department co-sponsored a review carried out by the National Foundation for Educational Research, 'A Review of Research on Outdoor Learning'. The review covered research on outdoor learning published from 1993 to 2003. The report states that "Substantial evidence exists to indicate that fieldwork, properly conceived, adequately planned, well taught and effectively followed up, offers learners opportunities to develop their knowledge and skills in ways that add value to their everyday experiences in the classroom."

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were excluded from school on the grounds of health and safety in each of the last five years. [131191]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally. Pupils may only be excluded from school for disciplinary reasons; they cannot be formally excluded for reasons of health and safety.

Pupils: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils attained a lower or the same level at key stage 3 (a) tests and (b) teacher assessments than what they attained at key stage 2 in each year since 1997. [132231]

Jim Knight: The information requested is summarised in the following table.

Number of pupils at same level or lower at KS3 as at KS2[1]

	English		Maths		Science
	National Curriculum test	Teacher assessment	National Curriculum test	Teacher assessment	National Curriculum test	Teacher assessment

[1] 'Same level or lower' is defined according to National Curriculum test/teacher assessment level and point score. The levels are B (working below the level of the test), N (not awarded a test level) and 2-8 for National Curriculum tests, and W (working towards Level 1) and 1-8 for teacher assessments. Pupils absent or unable to access the tests at either KS2 or KS3 are not included.
[2] The DFES and NAA are currently validating teacher assessment data submitted by schools for KS3 in 2006. As a result of this ongoing work, teacher assessment data for 2006 have not yet been published.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the per pupil cost of a young person (a) studying a new vocational diploma and (b) remaining in school to study GCSEs and A-levels. [131591]

Jim Knight: We are currently reviewing funding arrangements from 2008-09 for schools and post-16 providers including school sixth forms. Our proposals are contained in two funding consultation documents: the 'School, Early years and 14-16 funding consultation' which deals with funding up to the age of 16, and 'Delivering World Class Skills in a Demand Led System' which covers all post-16 learning funded through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The post-16 consultation ended at the end of March and the pre-16 consultation closes at the end of May.

Under the funding methodology proposed for sixth forms, which would also apply to provision delivered in colleges, the estimated per pupil cost of a young person studying a typical programme of five GCSEs or three A levels is £4,000.

Work is under way to develop comparable per pupil cost figures for diplomas but is not yet finalised. This will need to take account of the diploma specifications for the first five diploma lines which should be available this September.

The Department has carried out modelling work based on five local authorities to illustrate what additional per pupil funding schools might need for Diplomas at Key Stage 4. Based on that work the Average Weighted Pupil Unit (AWPU) for a pupil taking up a diploma would be 1.3 times the AWPU of a child not taking up diploma provision.

School: Sports

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what estimate he has made of the number of schools in England which provide (a) less than two hours of sport per week, (b) two to four hours of sport per week and (c) four hours or more of sport per week; [133427]

(2) what estimate he has made of the average number of hours of sport played in each school in England per week. [133428]

Jim Knight: Data are not collected centrally in the format requested. The 2005/06 School Sport Survey found that overall, 80 per cent. of pupils in schools within a school sport partnership took part in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport in a typical week—exceeding the 2006 PSA target of 75 per cent.

In the longer term, the ambition is that by 2010, all young people will be offered at least four hours of sport every week. This will comprise of at least two hours of PE and sport during the school day and at least an additional 2-3 hours of sport beyond the school day (delivered by a range of school, community and club providers).

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools were oversubscribed in the last year for which figures are available. [126014]

Jim Knight: We do not collate this information centrally, but individual local authorities should be able to supply it.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many incidents of violence towards (a) staff and (b) pupils were reported in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in each year since 1997. [126526]

Jim Knight: The number of incidents of violence towards staff and pupils in schools is not collected centrally.

From the academic year 2003/04, information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'physical assault against a pupil' and 'physical assault against an adult'.

The tables provide a breakdown of the number of pupils who have been excluded for a fixed period or permanently from maintained primary and secondary schools for physical assault against a pupil or an adult.

Schools: VAT

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to extend the removal of VAT constraints from academies to all facilities funded through the Building Schools for the Future programme. [131371]

Jim Knight: In the past, new academy buildings have been zero rated due to academies' status as charities. However, this zero rating placed restrictions on the "business use" of the buildings i.e. the community use of the buildings for which a charge is made. The Chancellor's budget announcement statement concerning the removal of VAT constraints for current academies and those planned for the future enables the scope of these buildings' use to be extended and future buildings can now be designed with community use in mind.

These changes will further strengthen the effectiveness and value for money of the academies programme as it continues to move forward.

The Department will continue an open dialogue with colleagues at HM Treasury about VAT policy and other matters. However, we must be mindful that European Union VAT agreements, signed by successive Governments, mean that while the UK can retain existing zero rates, such as that for charitable buildings, it cannot extend these or introduce any new VAT reliefs.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to pilot the new National Curriculum programmes of study being proposed by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority secondary curriculum review. [122036]

Jim Knight: There are no plans to pilot the programmes of study being proposed by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority secondary curriculum review. There will be a phased roll out beginning with all Year 7 pupils in September 2008.

The programmes of study have been developed in consultation with teachers, academics, subject specialists and a wide range of curriculum experts. They take into account best practice developed in schools and current research on the principles of effective teaching. They will be further informed by the results of the national consultation.

The impact of the programmes of study will be monitored by Ofsted as part of its regular school inspections, and by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority as part of its ongoing curriculum monitoring activity.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1025W, on secondary education: curriculum, on what occasions the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority met (a) teachers and head teachers, (b) officers from local authorities and (c) parents, governors and pupils in developing the new secondary curriculum. [124853]

Jim Knight: In developing the revised secondary curriculum, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) held 13 conferences and subject seminars for teachers, head teachers and officers from local authorities. QCA has an ongoing programme of events to engage with parents, governors and pupils on a range of issues, including the secondary curriculum review.

Teachers: Foreigners

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many non-EU nationals were employed as (a) primary school and (b) secondary school teachers in England in each of the last five years. [132863]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Community Development: Grants

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many community groups have applied for a Connected Fund Round 6 grant; [135144]

(2) how much he expects to be allocated in grants from the Connected Fund in each of the next two financial years; [135145]

(3) what plans his Department has to increase publicity for the Connected Fund in future years; [135146]

(4) when the application process will open for grants in the Connected Fund Round 7; [135147]

(5) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Connected Fund grants in reducing the levels of gun crime in areas where grants have been made. [135148]

Mr. Coaker: 363 applications for grants have been received under Round six of the Connected Fund. An Assessment Panel will assess these applications on 3-4 May. A further Round may be held later this year, but a firm decision on this has not yet been taken.

Budgets for 2008-09 and 2009-10 have not yet been confirmed, so it is not possible to give any figures on funding that may be allocated to the Connected Fund in these years at this stage.

We publicise the Fund through direct mailing to community groups, through the Government Offices for the Regions, and through local media reporting. This has worked well, with each round of the Fund substantially over-subscribed.

The Home Office is currently developing an evaluation of the effectiveness of project funding on guns, gangs and knives, covering both the Connected Fund and wider project funding. The Fund supports one part of our strategy to tackle gun crime, which focuses on policing, powers and prevention. Many of the grants from the Connected Fund are for projects to support young people as part of the long-term prevention strand.

Figures released on 26 April show a reduction of 16 per cent. in overall gun crime in England and Wales in the 12 months to December 2006.

Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Bill

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received on the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Bill. [134191]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As the Minister responsible for the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Bill, I discuss the Bill with a wide range of colleagues in Government and in Parliament and with stakeholders. The Department also receives a range of correspondence relating to the Bill.

DC Stephen Oake

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will recommend DC Stephen Oake for a posthumous George Cross. [107856]

John Reid [holding answer 7 December 2006]: I was deeply saddened by the tragic circumstances of DC Oake's death. His courage will inspire officers young and old for years to come. The sacrifice he made in the line of duty is appreciated by us all, especially me.

There are a range of honours to recognise bravery. Recommendations on a George Cross are made by the senior officials on the George Cross Committee and not by the Home Secretary or any other Minister. Any recommendations by the George Cross Committee to award a George Cross is submitted to Her Majesty the Queen by the Prime Minister.

Departments: Contracts

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the value of contracts signed by his Department with Mapeley Abi was in each of the last three years. [125936]

Joan Ryan: A contract has been signed with Mapeley Abi Provider Ltd. to provide IPS with premises and facilities management services. The contract value is £55 million for a contract period of three years.

Dispersal Orders

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dispersal orders were issued by each police force in each year since they were introduced. [134215]

Mr. Coaker: Data provided by police forces shows that between 1 January 2004 and 31 March 2006 1,065 areas were designated with dispersal powers in England and Wales. The following table provides a breakdown of this total by police force. Data for the period since 1 April 2006 are not yet available.

Entry Clearances

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his Department expects to issue entry clearance to Mr. Mohammed Shabir (reference S1329282). [134298]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

According to our High Commission in Islamabad a letter inviting Mr. Shabir to submit his passport was sent out on 27 April. As soon as the passport has been received the entry clearance can be issued.

Milan Spanovic

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons Milan Spanovic has not been extradited to Croatia; and if he will make a statement. [134970]

Joan Ryan: On 20 March 2007, Mr. Spanovic was discharged from extradition proceedings by a District Judge at City of Westminster Magistrates Court. This was entirely a matter for the court. The Crown Prosecution Service has lodged an appeal on behalf of the Government of Croatia. As the matter remains before the courts, I cannot comment further.

Miscarriages of Justice

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what support is provided to persons released from prison after a successful appeal in court. [134805]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Office established in 2003 the Royal Courts of Justice advisory service to help those who have been successful on appeal. Help is provided on things like documents to establish identity, finding accommodation, signing up for social security benefits, getting onto a GP's list, how to obtain legal assistance as well as practical advice on day-to-day matters, such as obtaining a bank account. In some cases the service also provides longer term casework support and counselling. Successful appellants may also be able to claim compensation from the Home Secretary depending on the circumstances of the case.

Offences

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, to Question 131083, on Leyhill Open Prison, for what reasons it was not possible to provide the same level of information on offence details as that given in the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 1134W, on prisons. [133136]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since answering the hon. Gentleman's PQ in June 2006 the Prison Service has adopted new procedures to provide such statistics. These procedures employ a smaller data set which is validated more rigorously. This follows errors in some figures supplied last year. These data do not include offence details which could be provided now only at disproportionate cost.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what accredited alcohol treatment programmes with ring-fenced funding there are in prisons in England and Wales. [133974]

Mr. Sutcliffe: NOMS is piloting two alcohol treatment programmes in prisons with a view to accreditation. While no accredited programmes targeted solely at alcohol misuse are currently in place, prisons deploy a range of measures to support those with an alcohol problem:

detoxification is available in all local and remand prisons;

where alcohol is part of a wider substance misuse problem the full range of drug interventions are available;

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) run groups in about 50 per cent. of prisons;

some prisons run alcohol awareness courses;

an alcohol information pack and awareness video is available for all prisoners; and the young persons substance misuse service for 16 to 18-year-olds has a particular focus on alcohol.

Funding for alcohol treatment is not ring fenced.

Offenders: Unemployed

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his most recent estimate is of the (a) number and (b) proportion of people (i) charged with a crime and (ii) imprisoned who were unemployed; and what the equivalent figures were (A) 10 years ago and (B) 20 years ago. [134137]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform is unable to provide the number and proportion of people charged and imprisoned who were unemployed, as the individual circumstances of offenders is not centrally held.

Police Cautions

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place for reviewing the appropriateness of the local use of conditional cautions for criminal offences; and if he will make a statement. [134947]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Conditional cautions are a statutory pre-court disposal which must be administered in line with the Code of Practice for Conditional Cautions and the Director of Public Prosecution's Guidance on Conditional Cautioning. The conditional cautioning scheme is currently being rolled out on a national basis. Criminal justice areas must demonstrate they have met all the implementation criteria, including adequate training before the scheme can be introduced.

The use of conditional cautions is monitored centrally and locally on the basis of monthly data. In addition, area implementation teams have been asked to engage with local judiciary, to provide them with feedback on the operation of the scheme and to enable them to raise any issues of concern.

Police Custody

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1637W, on police custody, how many police officers were involved in the deployment of Operation Safeguard between (a) 12 October and 22 December 2006 and (b) 22 January and 9 March 2007; and which police forces were involved in each case. [133151]

John Reid: Staffing requirements for police cells being used as part of Operation Safeguard are a matter for individual police forces. These figures are not collected centrally.

Prison Service: Managers

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms exist (a) to monitor and (b) to compare the performance of area managers within HM Prison Service; when each Prison Service area manager was appointed; what assessment he has made of the performance of the area manager for each Prison Service area; and if he will make a statement. [134539]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All area managers are managed by the deputy director general in HM Prison Service who is accountable for operational performance. The deputy director general has a wide range of management information against which to compare establishments and areas. Information performance is published in the annual report and is available via the Prison Service website.

Area managers are members of the senior civil service (SCS) and are subject to the SCS performance appraisal system.

Prisoners

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners were serving an indeterminate sentence in each of the last three years, broken down by category of offence. [132348]

John Reid: Figures by offence group for the numbers of prisoners serving life and indeterminate sentences in England and Wales between 2003 and 2005, the last year for which figures are available, can be found in the following table. These figures are taken from table

8.25 of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics for these years, copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Population of Prisoners serving life and indeterminate sentences in prison establishments in England and Wales, at June 30, 2003-2005

Prisoners: Release

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of prisoners were granted early release under the home detention curfew scheme in each year since its introduction. [133344]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures on the numbers of prisoners granted early release under the home detention curfew scheme between 1999 and 2005 can be found in the table. This table is also published as table 10.3 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which is available online at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1806section10.xls

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for how many foreign prisoners in prisons in England and Wales no country of origin was known on 31 March. [132930]

Mr. Sutcliffe: At the end of February 2007, the last date for which the information is available, there were 879 out of a total prison population of 79,582 (or about 1 per cent. of the prison population) prisoners detained in all prisons in England and Wales whose nationality was listed on the IT system as "unrecorded". This figure includes instances where the prisoners' nationality is unknown, where they have refused to give it, and where they are stateless.

The figure has been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2007, Official Report, columns 546-7W, on prisons, what his assessment is of the relative significance of each of the six main drug supply routes into prison; what policies are in place to close off each of the routes; what steps he has taken to ensure that these policies are operating as standard in each prison in England and Wales; and on what date these policies were introduced. [134075]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The supply of drugs into prisons does not take place within a static environment. The supply route of choice will vary between prisons and at a particular prison over a period of time, depending on the demand for illicit drugs by prisoners and the effectiveness of supply reduction measures in place. The relative significance of supply routes therefore changes frequently.

The comprehensive range of supply reduction measures available to prisons is designed to address the key routes of supply. Decisions about which measures should be deployed are a matter for individual establishments, based on local need.

The Supply Reduction Good Practice Guide, issued in October 2003 and currently being updated, provides a benchmark for supply reduction policy.

Supply reduction performance is monitored by Area Managers during routine visits to prisons and bilateral meetings with Governors and the Deputy Director General. Area Drug Co-ordinators receive monthly data on performance targets from establishments.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners are subject to (a) closed visits and (b) extra monitoring arrangements at each prison establishment due to drug-related concerns; and if he will make a statement. [134708]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not collected centrally.

Prisons: Telephones

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to implement the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman's recommendation that the cost of telephone calls in prisons be reduced. [133987]

John Reid: I am satisfied that in the majority of cases calls made by prisoners from prisons are cheaper than an equivalent call made from a public phone box. There are therefore no plans to reduce the cost of these calls.

Probation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe) requested his private office to draw up a list of the chief officers of probation and chairs of probation boards who were thought to be positive supporters of the Offender Management Bill; for what purpose this list was intended; and whether any persons named on the list were subsequently appointed probation area chairman as of 1 April 2007. [134014]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is entirely normal and appropriate for a Minister to seek the views and opinions of stakeholders throughout the progress of legislation. This can seek to identify positive supporters of the legislation and I requested information on stakeholders throughout the legislation process. This is in line with the ministerial code. The process for appointment of chairs of probation area boards was one of free and open competition following the best practice of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Probation: Greater London

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received on the conduct of the new chairman of the London probation board previous to receiving her current appointment; and if he will make a statement. [134598]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Office has received no representations on the conduct of the new chairman of the London probation board, previous to receiving her current appointment.

Rape: Detection Rates

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has conducted into conviction rates for rape in different areas of England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [130605]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office undertakes occasional research which covers regional variations in conviction rates.

The Home Office-commissioned study "A gap or a chasm? Attrition in reported rape cases" (Kelly, Lovett and Regan, 2005) focused on the general process by which rape cases are "lost" from the criminal justice system but did include a statistical analysis of conviction rates by police force area using routinely collected administrative data.

The Home Office is currently concluding a study of rape attrition in eight force areas in England and Wales which is more explicitly aimed at improving our understanding as to why conviction (and detection) rates vary across the country. This study will be published in 2007.

Weare Prison

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 975W, on Weare prison, how much expenditure, and on what, would have been required to keep HMP Weare open. [133778]

Mr. Sutcliffe: An investment appraisal undertaken in January 2005 identified that a number of significant shortcomings would prevent the continued effective operation of the Weare as it lacked the necessary space for workshop, education and exercise facilities and required extensive refurbishment. In addition the living accommodation was unsuitable and much of it had limited access to natural light. The review estimated that to continue operation for another seven years with an improved regime would have cost around £60 million on a net present value (NPV) basis.

Young Offenders: Rape

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many youths aged 18 years or under were convicted of rape in England and Wales for each year since 1997. [133790]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The table shows data extracted from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform in respect of convictions for rape committed by youths in England and Wales from 1997 to 2005.

Number of defendants aged 18 years or under convicted of rape at all courts, England and Wales, 1997 to 2005[1,2]

	Age
	10 to 15	16 to 18	Total
1997	25	52	77
1998	16	28	44
1999	26	51	77
2000	16	43	59
2001	19	39	58
2002	12	36	48
2003	16	34	50
2004	23	33	56
2005	32	74	106

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

WALES

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135165]

Mr. Hain: None.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135163]

Mr. Hain: None.

Health Services: Wales

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on cross-border issues affecting health services in Wales. [134446]

Mr. Hain: I regularly meet with the First Minister when we discuss a range of issues, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Wales, my hon. Friend the Member for Carmarthen, West and South Pembrokeshire (Nick Ainger) regularly meets with the Assembly Minister for Health and Social Services, when he discusses issues including cross border matters in the health service in Wales.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations the Better Regulation Executive has made to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005; and if she will make a statement. [134856]

Mr. McFadden: Ministers attend many meetings as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not the normal practice of Government to disclose details of such meetings.

Regulatory Reform Act 2001

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on how many occasions and for what purposes the extended powers given to Ministers by the Regulatory Reform Act 2001 have been used since it received Royal Assent. [134985]

Mr. McFadden: 30 Regulatory Reform Orders (RROs) have been passed under the Regulatory Reform Act and five further RROs are currently before Parliament. RROs were for purposes as diverse as amending Sunday trading rules, simplifying fire safety legislation and removing game licensing requirements. Comprehensive information can be found on the Cabinet Office's Better Regulation Executive website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation/reform/orders/proposals.asp

The Regulatory Reform Act 2001 was repealed by the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act which came into force on 8 January 2006.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Poverty

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children were living in a household with neither parent in employment in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [131281]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The available information is in the following tables.

Children in workless households—UK

	Number (Thousand)

Note:
Because of the small sample size, the data provided above should be considered as indicative rather than exact.
Source:
Labour Force Survey, Spring 2006.

To measure progress relating to children in workless households (CIWH) the Department uses the Household Labour Force Survey (HLFS). However, it is not possible to disaggregate this data below Government office region.

The information in the following table uses administrative data to provide the number of children dependent on workless benefits in the Jarrow constituency and South Tyneside. A timeline has been provided from 2004 onwards, the first year where the data are available.

Number of children in workless households

	April
	2004	2005	2006
Jarrow parliamentary constituency	4,145	3,840	3,585
South Tyneside local authority	9,020	8,405	7,895

Notes:
1. The official definition of a CIWH is a child aged under 16 in a working-age household where no adult works. The administrative data are an inexact proxy for this as they chart all children under 16 in a working-age household who have at least one parent claiming workless benefits (IS, JSA, IB/SDA, and PC). 2. The administrative data do not incorporate in their definition workless adults who do not claim benefits. The definition used also differs from the standard CIWH definition in that it includes children in households with both working and non-working adults, as opposed to a household with no working adults. 3. Furthermore adults working part-time may also be eligible for IS, and such claimants may be included in the administrative data.
4. The information on those claiming income-related social security benefit is not available.

Employment Schemes

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what response he has made to David Freud's recommendation that back to work support for the hardest to help claimants should be provided by contracted organisations. [131829]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government are considering David Freud's recommendations carefully and will respond in the summer.

Income Support: Disqualification

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many sanctions were imposed on lone parents claiming income support in each quarter since 1997. [123580]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 26 February 2007]: Other than sanctions in relation to work focused interviews, the information is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

For the available information on sanctions in relation to work focused interviews, I refer my right hon. Friend to the written answer I gave him on 25 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1147-48W.

Industrial Health and Safety: Factories

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether there were any (a) incidents involving and (b) prosecutions in which proceedings are not ongoing related to harmful emissions at the Sonae factory in Kirkby in each of the last four years. [133311]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Knowsley borough council is responsible for regulating emissions to the atmosphere from this factory under part I of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and the Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations 2000.

The council advises that the number of incidents (both complaints and reported incidents) and prosecutions relating to this factory in the last four years are as follows:

	Complaints	Reported incidents	Prosecutions
2004	278	49	3
2005	311	152	0
2007	104	8	0

The subject of complaints against Sonae include odour, dust, smoke, fumes, and noise from the Kirby factory. Knowsley borough council advises that a small proportion of the complaints were subsequently found to be unconnected with Sonae. The company has also challenged an unspecified number of complaints.

The number of incidents shown in the above table reflects the formal reports which Sonae has submitted. In accordance with their authorisation requirement, Sonae is required to report incidents likely to have an effect on the community. The three prosecutions in 2004 concerned a failure to monitor emissions, failure to comply with an enforcement notice, and failure to comply with an information notice. In total, these resulted in £13,000 worth of fines.

Factories such as this have the potential to emit various substances including oxides of sulphur and nitrogen, particulate matter, lead, volatile organic compounds, isocyanates, and aldehydes.

Industrial Injuries Benefits

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to reply to question 126417, on industrial injuries benefits, tabled by the hon. Member for Bradford North on 6 March 2007. [132548]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 19 April 2007]: Question number 126417 relating to industrial injuries benefits was tabled on 7 March 2007 and a reply was given to my hon. Friend on 14 March 2007, Official Report column 371-72W.

Jobseeker's Allowance/Incapacity Benefit

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of people who made a new claim for incapacity benefit in the most recent year for which figures are available in (a) Pathways to Work pilot areas and (b) other areas were in work (i) six months and (ii) one year later; and how many there were (A) in total, (B) aged 25 to 49 and (C) aged over 50 years. [114623]

Mr. Jim Murphy: In estimating the impact of Pathways to Work, independent evaluation by the Institute for Fiscal Studies found a 9 percentage point increase in the proportion of those who are employed 10.5 months after claiming incapacity benefit.

The information in the table comes from data in the National Benefits Database and the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS) which are likely to underestimate the numbers and proportions of people who satisfy the given criteria. Rollout of Pathways to Work has been a staged process and the figures therefore only represent the first two phases which rolled out on 24 October 2003 and 5 April 2004.

	Proportion (percentage)	Total	Aged 25-49	Aged 50 and over
New claims to incapacity benefit in Pathways to Work pilot areas: April 2004-March 2005
In work six months later	22	11,560	5,950	3,400
In work one year later	26	13,830	7,190	4,040
New claims to incapacity benefit in other areas: April 2004-March 2005
In work six months later	20	110,100	57,880	31,190
In work one year later	24	129,310	68,180	36,500

Notes:

1. Data on employment are available to 26 November 2006. As such, the latest operational year of new claimants for which (a) and (c) are answerable is April 2004 to March 2005, and the latest operational year of claims reaching their first anniversary for which (b) and (d) are answerable is April 2003 to March 2004 (and thus relates to people making a new claim during April 2002 and March 2003).
2. The figures quoted in this response come from data in the National Benefits Database and the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS).
3. Figures in this response are based upon periods of employment measured from the WPLS, which is based on data from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC). The figures given can only be taken as a minimum for the following (not necessarily comprehensive) reasons:

(i) Some records show that a person started or ended employment at some point in the year, but the exact date on when they started or left their job is unknown, and therefore we do not know if they were employed at the points in time specified in this query.
(ii) If a person's earnings are sufficiently low that they fall below the lower income tax threshold and so are not required to pay PAYE income tax on their earnings then there is no requirement to inform HMRC of their employment (although some employers declare these jobs anyway).
(iii) These data do not include the self-employed.
(iv) Poor quality personal data may lead to missed matches with benefits data.
(v) No 'HMRC sensitive and secure' information is supplied by HMRC (for example, HMRC employees, members of the security services).

National Identity Fraud Unit

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the budget was of the National Identity Fraud Unit and its forerunners in each year since 1997; how many staff the unit employed in each year; and what the Government's performance targets were for the unit in each year. [124084]

Mr. Plaskitt: As a result of organisational and other changes it is not possible to separately identify National Identity Fraud Unit (NIFU) budgets prior to 2006-07. For 2006-07, the budget allocation for NIFU was £508,092.

Information regarding the number of staff employed in NIFU is not available prior to 2003-04. In 2003-04 it employed 24.8 full-time equivalent staff. In both 2004-05 and 2005-06 it employed 19.1 full-time equivalent staff and in 2006-07 it employed 20 full-time equivalent staff.

NIFU did not have separate performance targets prior to 2005-06. The available information is in the following table.

National Identity Fraud Unit performance targets

	Number of arrest packs to be produced[1]	Number of flags to be put on national insurance number accounts[2]
2005-06	500	3,600
2006-07	550	4,000

Notes:
1. Arrest Packs
From the documents sent to NIFU for examination and identified as being false/fraudulent, arrest packs containing the document and supporting evidence from the national insurance number (NINO) interview, an initial statement from the document examiner, a visual copy of the anomalies found and all relevant paperwork required by Fraud Investigation Service (Organised) are produced. The pack is then sealed and sent to FIS (O) for consideration of prosecution.
2. Flags Part of NIFU's remit is the protection of NINO accounts. Where NIFU have found a NINO account to be vulnerable or believed to have fraudulent activity occurring on it then an electronic (flag) marker is put onto the account. Any benefit activity on the NINO account is reported within three working days by a reactivation report. This is then passed by NIFU to the relevant office for investigation, or confirmation that the person the NINO account belongs to is actually the person making the claim to the benefit.

National Insurance

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 641W, on national insurance, how many national insurance numbers (a) are allocated to adults not resident in the UK and (b) have been allocated to 16-year-olds since 2001. [131691]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Information is not available as to how many national insurance numbers are in issue to adults not resident in the UK.

Information regarding the number of national insurance numbers allocated to 16-year-olds is not available in the format requested.

The vast majority of national insurance numbers are issued to people at the age of 15 years and 9 months under the Juvenile Registration Process. The available information is that between January 2004 and March 2007, 2,604,757 national insurance numbers were issued under the Juvenile Registration Process.

Remploy: Manpower

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the reports produced by consultants to his Department since 2001 relating to Remploy; and what changes in staff numbers were recommended by each. [133553]

Mrs. McGuire: The reports produced by consultants are listed in the following table.

	Consultant	Purpose
2003-04	KPMG	External assurance and analysis of Remploy's commercial performance as a non-departmental public body
2004-05	KPMG	External assurance and analysis of Remploy's commercial performance as a non-departmental public body
2005-06	KPMG	External assurance and analysis of Remploy's commercial performance as a non-departmental public body
2006-07	PricewaterhouseCoopers	External review of the future business options for Remploy

The Department has not sought recommendations from consultants concerning changes in staff numbers, but the report from PricewaterhouseCoopers looked at various options for the future of the business.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to improve access to information on financial support for families with disabled children. [131825]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government are committed to improving the life chances of disabled people, including disabled children, so that they have opportunities and choices that enable them to participate fully in society. We also want to ensure that every parent of a disabled child or young person has access to, and is aware of, the financial support available to contribute towards extra cost benefits, the principal one among these being Disability Living Allowance.

The Office for Disability Issues (ODI) will be working across Government to drive forward the development and implementation of policy to improve the lives of disabled people, including disabled children. It has a project looking specifically at strategic and inclusive ways of improving information provision to disabled people, with an emphasis on recommending and developing ways to involve the users of information in designing and tailoring it to their needs.

The Disability and Carer's Service (DCS) is an agency that continues to focus on delivering improved services to disabled people and carers in Great Britain. This includes improving the information provided to customers and their representatives.

DCS has established the Family Carers Group. This is a forum which allows DCS to engage and involve voluntary and community organisations in representing the needs of children and young people who are customers of Disability Living Allowance, as well as their families and carers, in the transformation of DCS services.

DCS actively promotes services to children through a number of outreach events specifically aimed at children to raise awareness about the benefits to which disabled children may be entitled. These included 'Kidz up North' on 30 November 2006 and 'Kidz South' on 15 March 2007. Both of these were events aimed at families of children with disabilities and on each occasion DCS provided an exhibition stand with staff to answer questions and provide literature on benefits available to disabled people.

Written Questions

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to reply to Question 116900, on benefits sanctions on lone parents, tabled by the hon. Member for Bradford North on 16 January 2007 for answer on 19 January 2007. [126415]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 9 March 2007]: A reply was given to my hon. Friend on 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 784W.

Young People: Employment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many 18 to 24-year-olds who were neither in education, employment and training, nor claiming jobseeker's allowance nor engaged in the new deal for young people there were in each quarter since 1996; [121232]

(2) how many 18 to 24-year-olds were not in education, employment and training in each quarter since 1996. [121233]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 19 February 2007]: The information requested is in the following table.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 114W, on accident and emergency (A and E) departments, what assessment she has made of the reasons behind the increase in the number of admissions via type 1 A and E departments referred to. [131887]

Andy Burnham: Demand management, including the number of patients admitted as an emergency via accident and emergency departments, is something that we would expect the local national health service to look at and monitor.

Data trends do suggest that there has been a particular increase recently in the number of very short stay admissions nationally. This is good patient care. Patients requiring more than four hours of care are entitled to the same levels of comfort and care as any other hospital patient. Patients may be admitted to assessment units or sometimes specialist wards where the next stages of investigation and care can take place in appropriate surroundings.

Cancer

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were referred for the urgent treatment of cancer in each quarter since the quarter beginning January 2005. [131946]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The NHS Cancer Plan contained the target that from the end of 2005 all cancer patients would wait a maximum of two months (62 days) from urgent general practitioner referral to first cancer treatment. Not all cancer patients are referred urgently by their general practitioner (GP), so the NHS Cancer Plan also contained the target that all cancer patients would be treated a maximum of one month (31 days) from diagnosis of cancer. The number of patients treated against these targets is shown in the following table.

	Quarter	Total number of patients referred for urgent cancer treatment within 62 days by their GP	Total number treated within of cancer of patients to be 31 days of diagnosis
2004-05	4	9,114	37,122
2005-06	1	11,021	42,576
	2	12,908	45,532
	3	14,371	47,872
	4	16,755	49,746
2006-07	1	17,884	50,167
	2	19,147	51,582
	3	19,605	51,268

Further information on cancer waiting times performance is published at:

www.performance.doh.gov.uk/cancerwaits

Cancer: Drugs

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was to the NHS of drugs used in the treatment of cancer in each of the last 15 years. [133667]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely collect figures on the cost to the national health service of cancer treatment drugs.

In 2005, the Department completed a tracking investment exercise which showed that between 2000-01 and 2003-04 spending on drugs for cancer treatment increased by £192 million, but we do not know the baseline figure.

Total NHS expenditure on cancer services, which includes drugs, was £4.3 billion in 2005-06, which equates to 5.4 per cent. of all NHS spending.

Coeliac Disease

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support her Department has provided for research into coeliac disease in each of the last three years. [134394]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual NHS supported research projects including a substantial number concerned with coeliac disease are available on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research

The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the NHS and through its Health Technology Assessment Programme has funded research into coeliac disease as part of a study concerned primarily with the use of cognitive behavioural therapy in the treatment of irritable bowel syndrome.

The Hammersmith and St. Mary's and Imperial College Biomedical Research Centre formed as part of the implementation of the Government's research strategy "Best Research for Best Health" proposes to undertake research on the prevalence of coeliac disease and its histological definition as part of its hepatology and gastroenterology research theme.

In addition, the Food Standards Authority has commissioned a systematic review of the literature on thresholds for reactivity to gluten that will lead to benefits for people who need to follow a gluten free diet.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress has been made in improving the (a) diagnosis and (b) treatment of coeliac disease. [134395]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Diagnosis of coeliac disease can be difficult for general practitioners as the symptoms are common to many other conditions. Improvements in diagnosis have therefore concentrated on raising awareness of this condition among health professionals and the general public. The PRODIGY website www.prodigy.nhs.uk contains specific information useful for health professionals and people who have been newly diagnosed with the disease.

There is no specific treatment for those living with coeliac disease. However, symptoms can be kept under control with a strict gluten-free diet. Most people with coeliac disease receive advice from their general practitioner (GP) on self-management of their condition, and specifically on the exclusion of foods containing gluten from their diet. A wide range of gluten-free foods are available on national health service prescription and these may be prescribed where a GP considers it necessary to ensure effective self-management of the condition.

Dental Health: Children

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number and percentage of children under the age of five with tooth decay in (a) Shropshire, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. [133320]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not available centrally, but data from a survey conducted in 2005-06 by the British Association for Study of Community Dentistry of children who were five years old are as follows.

Five-year-old children with tooth decay

	Total number	Percentage
Shropshire	891	31.0
West Midlands	15,866	26.9
England	170,032	33.3

Dental Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much patient charge income for delivering NHS dentistry (a) her Department and (b) the NHS Business Services Authority estimates each primary care trust received in 2006-07. [131882]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Neither the Department nor the NHS Business Services Authority is in a position to make a reliable estimate of patient charge revenue ahead of receiving final outturn data for the full financial year. Dentists have up to two months after the end of the financial year to submit final details of charges collected.

Dental Services: Contracts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) general dental services contracts and (b) personal dental services contracts signed by, or on, 1 April 2006 on an in dispute basis remain in dispute, broken down by strategic health authority (SHA) area; and what proportion of contracts signed in each SHA area this represents. [131936]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The most recent available information on dental contracts that were in dispute (as at 31 January 2007) is set out in the following table. This information is not collected in a form that can be broken down into general dental services and personal dental services contracts.

New SHA	Total number of dental contracts signed in April 2006	Number of dental contracts in dispute as at 31 January 2007	Percentage of dental contracts signed in April 2006 that remained in dispute as at 31 January 2007
East Midlands	595	88	14.8
East of England	925	64	6.9
London	1,380	133	9.6
North East	355	6	1.7
North West	1,171	54	4.6
South Central	639	45	7.0
South East Coast	756	56	7.4
South West	832	58	7.0
West Midlands	1,020	98	9.6
Yorkshire and the Humber	704	108	15.3
England	8,377	710	8.5

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists in (a) England, (b) each strategic health authority and (c) each primary care trust (i) rejected the new dental contract on 1 April 2006, (ii) disputed the contract, (iii) disputed but have now accepted the contract and (iv) have not yet resolved their disputed contract; and what percentage of those who were offered the contract these numbers represent in each case. [129896]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Dental Services: Funding

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much Dental Service Increment for Teaching funding was made available to each strategic health authority for the year 2006-07; what proportion of this has been spent by each strategic health authority on dental education; and how this expenditure has been accounted for; [133054]

(2) whether the expenditure by strategic health authorities of their Dental Service Increment for Teaching funding is ring-fenced for the stated purpose of the funding; [133055]

(3) what steps she is taking to ensure that the Dental Service Increment for Teaching budget is being used by strategic health authorities for its planned purpose. [133056]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No funding was allocated to strategic health authorities (SHAs) in 2006-07 in respect of the dental service increment for teaching (dental SIFT). All the dental SIFT funding was allocated to the national dental workforce unit, hosted by the Yorkshire and the Humber SHA who allocated this funding directly to the national health service trusts that host dental hospitals linked to dental schools.

Dental Services: Manpower

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to increase the number of NHS dentists. [132869]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest available data show there were 20,887 dentists eligible to provide national health service dental services or listed on NHS contracts in England as at 31 December 2006. This is around 1,500 more than in March 2005 and over 4,000 more than in 1997. Under the dental reforms introduced in April 2006, primary care trusts (PCTs) are commissioning an increasing volume of NHS dental services, which is likely to result in further workforce increases. In 2005, the Government expanded the number of dental school places by 25 per cent. in order to support longer-term increases in the dental workforce.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of dentists who qualified in the last 15 years who are still practising in England. [133400]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not available.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of dentists who practise in the NHS who were trained abroad. [133401]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The available information is for England. The latest information available is as at 31 March 2006. As of that date, there were 4,163 dentists reported as eligible to provide national health service services in England who had qualified outside the United Kingdom.

Fuller information including a breakdown by country of qualification is available in table 8 of "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006", which has been placed in the Library.

The report, published by The Information Centre for health and social care, is also available online at: www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists qualified in the UK in each of the last 15 years. [132728]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the number of dentists who have graduated from dental schools in the United Kingdom is available from 1992.

	Dental graduates
1992-93	783
1993-94	730
1994-95	649
1995-96	650
1996-97	722
1997-98	768
1998-99	782
1999-2000	798
2000-01	815
2001-02	800
2002-03	749
2003-04	779
2004-05	800

Dental Services: Pay

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the average NHS income of NHS high street dentists in each year since 1997. [131860]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The gross remuneration paid to providers of national health service dental services covers both the practice expenses incurred in providing services and the dentists' net income. Estimated average annual net incomes for general dental service (GDS) dentists with a reasonable commitment to the NHS, after taking account of the proportion of their gross income committed to meeting practice expenses, are shown in the table.

The data cover dentists working under the terms of the former GDS, which represented the majority of dentists working in primary dental care during the years in question.

Estimated average GDS net income for dentists with a reasonable GDS commitment[1], 1997-98 to 2005-06, England and Wales

Financial year	Estimated average net income[2,3] (£)
1997-98	51,200
1998-99	54,300
1999-2000	55,700
Break in series[3]
2000-01[2]	59,200
2001-02	60,500
2002-03	63,300
Break in series[3]
2003-04	72,000
2004-05	71,600
2005-06	76,500

[1] Dentists with a reasonable commitment to the GDS are defined as dentists with GDS gross earnings equivalent to at least £40,000 in 1993-94 in fees for treatments and patient capitation. This equivalent is calculated each year by adjusting figures to take into account the effect of fee increases. The equivalent figure for 2005-06 is £62,200.

[2] Average net income is estimated using the ratio of expenses to gross GDS fee income for principals who worked for the full 12 month period.

[3] The ratio of expenses to gross income is estimated using HMRC tax data on the overall earnings and expenses of non-associate dentists. Average net income prior to 2003-04 is estimated by multiplying the average gross GDS payment in that year (based on BSA payment data) by the most up to date profit ratio available for that year (based on HMRC data). For 2003-04 and 2004-05, net income has been estimated using GDS payment data for each year multiplied by the profit ratio for dentists with a high commitment to the NHS for the respective year. The net income estimate for 2005-06 is based on the profit ratio of high-commitment dentists in 2004-05 (the latest currently available).

[4] Figures since 2000-01 use a different methodology to calculate the contribution from other non-fee/capitation payments.

Dental Services: Wiltshire

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what additional funding she expects the Wiltshire and Swindon primary care trust to receive in 2007 to pay for additional NHS dentistry; and if she will make a statement. [133168]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The primary dental service allocations for the Wiltshire and Swindon primary care trusts (PCTs) in 2006-07 and 2007-08 are set out in the following table. The table includes the indicative assumptions made before the start of each year about gross budgets and patient charge income. A number of factors will affect the actual levels of gross expenditure and patient charge income, including the levels of dentistry commissioned by PCTs, the time needed for new dental services to be commissioned and come into operation, and changes in the mix of charge-paying and charge exempt patients treated. PCTs may direct additional funding to dentistry from their general national health service resources if they consider this appropriate in the light of local circumstances and priorities.

2007-08	11,366	4,439	15,805	4,781	2,135	6,916

Notes:
1. The allocation for Wiltshire PCT for 2006-07 represents the aggregate of the primary dental service allocations initially allocated to the Kennet and North Wiltshire, South Wiltshire, and West Wiltshire PCTs before their amalgamation to form the Wiltshire PCT on 1 October 2006.
2. Allocations exclude any supplementary funding awarded by the South West strategic health authority to fund the placement of dental vocational trainees.

Diabetes: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of people identified as having diabetes in England were offered screening for the early detection of diabetic retinopathy in (a) each year since 2003-04 and (b) the most recent period for which figures are available. [131925]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the number and percentage of people with diabetes offered screening for diabetic retinopathy, broken down by years.

	Number of people with diabetes offered screening for diabetic retinopathy[1]	Percentage of people with diabetes offered screening for diabetic retinopathy[1]
2003-04	835,900	52.7
2004-05	1,076,400	61.3
2005-06	1,478,223	78.4

[1] Data from local delivery plans returns

Latest data for December 2006 show that 1,477,359 people, 81.1 per cent. of people with diabetes, have been offered screening for diabetic retinopathy.

Drugs: Prisons

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many detainees began clinical drug treatment in prisons in (a) detoxification programmes and (b) extended prescribing programmes in the most recent year for which figures are available. [133340]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In the year 2005-06, 53,773 prisoners entered prison detoxification and drug maintenance programmes.

This figure is an aggregation of detoxification and extended prescribing programmes. These two interventions will be reported separately from April 2007.

Note:

P Simon data can fluctuate as prison establishments finalise their entries.

Eyesight: Diseases

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she made of the number of sufferers from macular degenerative disease in Hartlepool; and what steps she plans to take to provide sufferers with treatment to alleviate the condition. [133598]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of sufferers of macular degenerative disease in Hartlepool is not collected centrally.

In September 2003, the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE) recommended the use of Visudyne in photodynamic therapy for the treatment of wet age-related macular degeneration in some patients. All primary care trusts (PCTs) are funding this treatment in accordance with NICE's guidance.

NICE is currently appraising two new drug treatments that have been developed for treating age-related macular degeneration—Macugen and Lucentis. NICE is expected to publish guidance in September this year. We have made it quite clear to the national health service that treatment should not be withheld simply because NICE has not issued guidance. Until NICE issues final guidance NHS bodies should continue with local arrangements for introducing new technologies, based on an assessment of the available evidence.

Eyesight: Testing

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Government has spent to provide free eye tests to pensioners in each year since 1997. [132909]

Ms Rosie Winterton: An estimate of national health service expenditure on sight tests for patients aged 60 and over is set out in the following table.

	NHS expenditure on sight test provision for adults aged 60+ (£ million)
1999-2000	52.2
2000-01	60.7
2001-02	66.5
2002-03	70.0
2003-04	76.3
2004-05	80.2
2005-06	84.9

Free sight tests were extended to all those aged 60 and over from 1 April 1999. Prior to that, a number of patients of pensionable age would have qualified for NHS sight tests on other grounds, such as low income or because they had been diagnosed with diabetes or glaucoma, but data collected centrally did not differentiate such groups by age.

The figures in the table are based on the number who claimed entitlement by virtue of their age. The totals are likely to include those who might otherwise have qualified for sight tests on grounds such as low income.

Expenditure on sight test provision includes expenditure on domiciliary visit fees, employers' superannuation costs, and help given to certain patients towards the cost of private sight tests.

Folic Acid

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her most recent estimate is of the take-up of folic acid in women of child bearing age in socio-economic groups C2 and DE; and if she will make a statement. [134891]

Caroline Flint: The most recent information available on folate intakes is from the 2000-01 National Diet and Nutrition Survey of adults aged 19-64 years. In this survey households in receipt of income-related state benefits can be used as a broad indicator of socio-economic group. The survey shows that mean folate intake from food sources in women of child bearing age (19-49 years) living in households in which someone was in receipt of benefits was 214 micrograms/day. When the contribution of folic acid supplements was included mean intake in this group increased to 221 micrograms/day. This level of intake is below the recommendation for women who could become pregnant to take a 400 micrograms/folic acid supplement.

The Food Standards Agency has undertaken a survey of diet and nutrition in low income/materially deprived consumers in the United Kingdom. Results, to be published later this year, will include folate intakes.

Health Services: East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the impact on the finances of the East Riding of Yorkshire Primary Care Trust of the number of temporary residents. [132462]

Andy Burnham: Arrangements are in place to enable payment for emergency treatment for those patients who are not normally resident in the area. For English patients who are treated as emergencies, their responsible primary care trust (PCT) is invoiced for the activity directly by the national health service organisation concerned ensuring that the host PCTs are not burdened with the payment for material costs of hospital activity. This guidance also covers the payment arrangements for charge-exempt overseas visitors. This includes all those visitors who are covered under international bilateral healthcare agreements, including European Economic Area arrangements.

Health Services: Equality

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date the Race Equality Impact Assessment for part II of the Health and Social Care Act 2001 (Patient and Public Involvement in Health and Social Care) was prepared. [132877]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Race Equality Impact Assessment for patient and public involvement in health and social care was published as part of the regulatory impact assessment for the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill on 11 December 2006.

Heart Diseases: Staffordshire

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) Tamworth constituency, (b) the West Midlands and (c) Staffordshire have been treated for heart disease in each of the last five years. [132741]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available in the format requested.

However, information relating to finished consultant episodes (FCE) with a primary diagnosis of heart disease for the relevant organisations for 2001-02 to 2005-06 is shown in the following table.

National health service hospitals England

	Tamworth, Burntwood and Lichfield Primary Care Trust	Staffordshire	West Midlands
2001-02	1,829	12,411	68,596
2002-03	1,834	12,294	74,248
2003-04	1,775	12,519	74,337
2004-05	1,886	12,663	74,429
2005-06	2,069	12,855	78,540

Notes:

Finished consultant episode (FCE)

An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

Diagnosis (primary diagnosis)

The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.

Primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) data quality PCT and SHA data were added to historic data-years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of Treatment and SHA of Treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of GP practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.

Data quality

Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. Whilst this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Hospital Closures: Media Interests

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1787W, on hospital closures: media interest, what methodology was used to arrive at predictions of media interest as indicated on the heat maps released by her Department on 7 November 2006. [131875]

Andy Burnham: As was stated in the earlier answer, the Department uses a range of methods to monitor media activity. The maps were produced following routine discussions with strategic health authorities (SHAs) and gave an indication of possible future local media coverage of health issues by SHA.

Hyperactivity: Medical Treatments

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations her Department has received on the use of diet and brain exercise to control developmental conditions such as Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder. [132313]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No such representations have been received.

The Department is not aware of any satisfactory research into the effects of stimulatory exercises in the treatment of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

There is some limited evidence for the value of elimination diets that seek to exclude foods to which intolerance exists, but an elimination diet will only help a minority of children and can be difficult to apply. A study on the impact of food supplements on the incidence of aggressive behaviour among young people in custody has demonstrated positive results but further research is required and the study was not specifically focused on attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

Maternity Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates she has made of the cost of (a) increasing medical research into preventing premature birth and (b) caring for babies who are born prematurely. [132259]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None. The National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit at the University of Oxford, set up and supported by the Department, is however undertaking a study on the long-term economic costs of pre-term birth financed by an award from the charity Tommy's.

Medical Equipment: VAT

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will extend the range of reduced rate reliefs for VAT on goods and services normally intended to relieve or treat disability for the exclusive personal use of people with disabilities under the sixth EC Directive. [134429]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

There is a wide range of goods and services supplied to disabled people for their personal use on which VAT is not chargeable. This includes certain building alterations to a disabled person's home, wheelchairs and mobility scooters, and equipment designed solely for use by a disabled person.

Under the VAT agreements with our European partners, signed by successive Governments, we can retain our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT from additional goods and services purchased for the exclusive personal use of a disabled person.

More generally, the Government are carefully considering evidence presented in the recent Low Incomes Tax Reform Group's report 'VAT and disabled people' - the changes, including new reduced rates, would be consistent with our European VAT agreements and well-targeted and cost-effective when compared with the range of support already provided for people with disabilities.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Minister of State, Department of Health, the hon. Member for Don Valley (Caroline Flint) expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 27 February 2007, on GP prescriptions and labelling by pharmacists. [134603]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 27 April 2007]: I regret the letter was not received by the Department. The hon. Member has now forwarded a copy. I will arrange for it to be dealt with urgently.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent assessment she has made of the use by the NHS of the computerised cognitive behavioural therapies (a) Beating the Blues, (b) COPE, (c) Overcoming Depression, (d) FearFighter and (e) OCFighter; and whether the packages are supplied to the NHS through the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency in each case; [131866]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of referrals for computerised cognitive behavioural therapies in the NHS in the latest period for which figures are available. [131867]

Ms Rosie Winterton: These computerised cognitive behavioural therapies (cCBT) packages were reviewed by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), in Technology Appraisal 097 in February 2006. NICE recommended the use of Beating the Blues in the management of mild to moderate depression and FearFighter as an option for delivering cognitive behavioural therapy in managing panic and phobia.

NICE decided that there was insufficient evidence for it to recommend the use of COPE and Overcoming Depression as clinically or cost-effective options for managing depression, except as part of ongoing or new clinical trials that are designed to generate robust, relevant data on the clinical effectiveness of these specific cCBT packages.

OCFighter (previously known as BTSteps) was not recommended for delivering cognitive behavioural therapy in managing obsessive compulsive disorder. Where people are currently using OCFighter, whether as routine therapy or as part of a clinical trial, they should be allowed to choose to continue this therapy until the patient, general practitioner and/or specialist, consider it appropriate to stop. NICE will consider reviewing this guidance in September 2008.

We have worked with suppliers and the National Health Service Purchasing and Supplies Agency in negotiating a framework agreement and tariff to ensure that the NHS can provide Beating the Blues and FearFighter in a cost effective and value for money way.

Information on the number of referrals made for cCBT is not collected centrally. However, as part of the implementation guidance which we launched on 28 March, a demand estimate tool has been developed which helps commissioners to establish the likely demand for cCBT in their local areas. This calculates the number of people who are likely to have mental heath conditions which will respond to cCBT, like depression or phobias and also estimates the number who might want to use this technology.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the adequacy of the delivery of mental health in-patient and day care in the NHS. [133627]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since the publication of the "National Service Framework for Mental Health" in 1999, mental health services in England have seen significant improvements, particularly in access to specialist community-based services that aim to reduce unnecessary hospital admissions and the length of in-patient stays. However, in-patient services remain a key element of mental health service provision and a national acute in-patient mental health programme, which is hosted by the Care Services Improvement Partnership and supported by its regional infrastructure, is helping local services in implementing the Department's policy implementation guidance published in 2002. The Department has also announced that over 2006-07 and 2007-08, £130 million of extra capital investment would be targeted to upgrade the mental health estate, particularly in improving psychiatric intensive care units and places of safety for assessment under the Mental Health Act 1983 and enhancing the sexual safety of women.

In recognition of the important role they play in promoting and facilitating social inclusion, the Department published a good practice guidance on commissioning of day services in 2006. The aim of this guidance is to improve access to mainstream opportunities for people with mental health problems in closer partnership with other agencies and organisations including the voluntary and community sector. The national social inclusion programme, also hosted by the Care Services Improvement Partnership and supported by its regional infrastructure, is helping local services in implementing this guidance in line with their assessment of local need.

Mental Health Services: Acute Beds

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many acute mental health beds there were in the NHS in each of the last 10 years. [134156]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton) on 5 February 2007, Official Report, columns 804-05W.

Mental Health Services: Sexual Offences

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of in-patients accessing mental health services who made allegations of rape or sexual assault (a) were offered and (b) received specialist counselling in the latest period for which figures are available. [132530]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not centrally available.

Mentally Ill: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each London borough were diagnosed as having a mental health disorder in each of the last 10 years. [132920]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

Mentally Ill: Young People

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) males and (b) females between the ages of 16 and 25 were diagnosed with a mental illness in England in each of the last five years. [132861]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

Midwives: Recruitment

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were (a) trained and (b) recruited in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [133139]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The table shows the number of students who entered training to be a midwife in each of the last three years. The Department does not collect centrally information on how many of these found employment as a midwife.

On 3 April 2007, the Department published "Maternity matters: choice, access and continuity of care in a safe service" highlighting the Government's commitment to developing and enhancing national health service maternity services and the role of the work force, including midwives, in improving maternity services.

Pre-registration midwifery training commissions

Quarterly Monitoring Returns

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost of delivering an equivalent episode of care was in (a) 1979, (b) 1997 and (c) the most recent period for which figures are available, at constant prices. [131930]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not available.

NHS: Foreign Workers

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-EU nationals were employed in the NHS in each of the last five years. [132862]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

NHS: Private Sector

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her policy is on providing an independent sector treatment centre for North Essex; and if she will make a statement. [133375]

Andy Burnham: The Department is working with the East of England strategic health authority to deliver independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) services in Essex. It is currently anticipated that there will be three ISTCs in the region located in Braintree, Basildon and Southend.

The aims of the Department's ISTC programme are to:

- help provide capacity to deliver swift access to treatment for national health service patients;
- support the implementation of patient choice;
- stimulate innovative models of service delivery and drive up productivity; and
- introduce contestability between providers of healthcare services for NHS patients.

Pregnant Women: Depression

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support is provided by the national health service to pregnant women who are suffering depression during pregnancy; what research has been (a) funded and (b) carried out by her Department on whether there is a link between depression in pregnant women and (i) premature births, (ii) infant death and (iii) severe childhood illness; when her Department last undertook an evidence review on the issue that drew on (A) UK and (B) international research; and if she will make a statement. [132651]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Women who experience mental health problems during or after pregnancy can access the full range of mental health services available in primary and secondary care. The Department has issued guidance, "Mainstreaming gender and women's mental health: implementation guidance" (DH, 2003), that highlights the need for effective perinatal psychiatric care, specifically the need to develop local care pathways, maternity and psychiatry protocols, access to perinatal psychiatric assessment and adequate mother and baby unit provision based on assessment of local need. Care services improvement partnerships' national programme on gender equality and women's mental health is helping local services to implement the recommendations of this guidance. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) also made recommendations in its recent guidance, "Antenatal and postnatal mental health" (NICE, 2007) to improve services for women who experience mental health problems during or after pregnancy.

The Department has not funded any such research. However, the Medical Research Council (MRC), which is one of the main agencies through which the United Kingdom Government supports medical and clinical research, has recently funded a study entitled "Comparison of the hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal axis in depressed and healthy pregnant women". The study was led by Dr. Veronica Keane at the Institute of Psychiatry and received MRC funding of £157,700. It was completed in 2006.

The study found results suggesting that depressed women had higher cortisol stress hormones, particularly a hormone produced by the placenta during pregnancy (corticotropin releasing-hormone) and that this was associated with earlier delivery of babies in the depressed women. The applicants intend to submit follow up studies to the MRC.

The Government do not routinely and systematically compare the research they fund in different disease areas with equivalent research in other countries.

Resource Allocation

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2219W, on resource allocation, for what reasons she excludes any measure of ill health in those aged 75 and over in her measure of the burden of disease. [127923]

Andy Burnham: The definition of burden of disease used for the previous reply is one of a number of possible definitions. It includes one element, diabetes prevalence, which is not age related, and therefore does include persons aged 75 and over. The other three measures are premature mortality rates for major killer diseases. They reflect the current public service agreement targets to reduce cancer and circulatory disease death rates in people aged under 75 by 2010. It is in the under 75 age group where the earliest signs of progress are likely to be seen, although the health interventions to reduce mortality in this age group will also have a beneficial effect on people aged 75 and over.

Smoking: Public Places

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken to inform owners of restaurants, hotels and pubs of the smoking ban coming into place on 1 July. [134391]

Caroline Flint: Through the Smokefree England campaign, the Department is delivering a major communications campaign to support businesses to be prepared for the implementation of smokefree legislation on 1 July 2007. Recent surveys by the Department show extremely high levels of awareness among the hospitality industry and customers.

Information on the new law is available from the freephone Smokefree England information line on 0800 169 169 7 and on the Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk

The website has received nearly 250,000 visits to date.

The Department has developed a range of guides on the new law. A guidance pack, including a guide, no-smoking signs and other support materials is being sent to all businesses in England that employ staff during April. Guidance documents can be downloaded from the Smokefree England website, and will be available in a range of different languages and formats, including a downloadable MP3 audio version.

A Ministerial Reference Group comprised of key stakeholders was created last year to facilitate dialogue between business groups including representatives from the hospitality industry, local government and the Department, and has met regularly. The Department also continues to work closely with organisations that represent the hospitality industry to increase awareness of the new legislation among their constituents.

Local councils are also working to build compliance in their communities. Local businesses are advised to contact their local council for advice and support in implementing smokefree legislation.

TREASURY

11 Downing Street: Costs

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the costs of running No. 11 Downing street were in 2005-06. [104602]

John Healey: By long-standing arrangement, the Treasury pays a contribution to the Cabinet Office for the rent and service charge of the space used by HM Treasury and by the Chancellor of the Exchequer within the Downing street estate, including the No. 11 state rooms and offices and the No. 10 residence. This comprises 14.4 per cent. of the total estate. For 2005-06, this contribution totalled £318,338.

Bank Services: Fees and Charges

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints the Financial Ombudsman Service received on bank charges in each of the last five years. [134020]

Ed Balls: The Financial Services Ombudsman (FOS) is operationally independent of the Government. I understand that over the past five years the FOS has collated data on the basis of current account complaints, not specific complaints on bank charges. The number of complaints relating to current accounts to year-end March was:

	Number of complaints
2006	3,543
2005	2,521
2004	2,106
2003	1,602
2002	1,280

Data on inquiries relating specifically to bank charges were collated from September 2006. The number of inquires received relating to bank charges from September 2006 to March 2007 was 150,917.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps have been taken to reduce the charges to customers of high street banks. [134021]

Ed Balls: The Office of Fair Trading, which is an independent body, is currently carrying out an inquiry into these charges under the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations (1999). It would not be appropriate for Government to comment.

Child Benefit: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland are eligible for child benefit; and how many are lone parents in each case. [134767]

Mr. Timms: Figures showing the number of families receiving child benefit (CB), at regional and parliamentary constituency level for the UK are published on the HMRC website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_benefit/geographical.htm

Figures showing the number of families eligible to claim CB are not available at these levels of geography.

Whether or not a CB recipient is currently a single parent or part of a couple is not recorded on the CB system as after 5 July 1998 it did not affect the level of award.

Child Trust Fund: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of children in (a) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland and (b) the Tees Valley have received a Child Trust Fund account since 1 September 2002. [134655]

Ed Balls: All children born on or after 1 September 2002 are eligible for the Child Trust Fund as long as they are in receipt of child benefit, live in the UK and they are not subject to any immigration restrictions. Special arrangements are in place for looked-after children. All eligible children will receive a Child Trust Fund account whether opened by parents or the Government on their behalf.

Constituency and regional data on Child Trust Fund accounts were published on 11 January 2007 and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/stats.htm

Crossrail Line: Finance

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to take a final decision on the funding of Crossrail. [134400]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 625W.

Deborah Mattinson

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what role Deborah Mattinson played in arranging his recent speeches to (a) the Equal Opportunities Commission and (b) the Green Alliance. [129772]

John Healey [holding answer 23 March 2007]: The Chancellor's speeches were organised by the Treasury. The events themselves were organized by the EOC and Green Alliance.

Debts

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he introduced in the 2007 Budget to reduce public debt. [134553]

John Healey: The Budget forecast for public sector net debt incorporates the impact of all the Budget measures. Public sector net debt is projected to be low and stable over the projection period, stabilising below 39 per cent. below the 40 per cent. ceiling set out in the sustainable investment rule.

Departmental Trips: Eurostar

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many trips by Eurostar have been undertaken by staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [105589]

John Healey: Information on the number of Eurostar train tickets purchased is normally not held, because the Treasury's accounting system records the costs of travel but not the number or type of tickets bought. However, for financial year 2005-06, the Treasury's travel management company had provided information on the number of tickets purchased through them.

The number of Eurostar train tickets bought through the travel management company in 2005-06 was 2,750 costing £463,455. Tickets bought but subsequently refunded are excluded; round trips by train are counted as two tickets; tickets bought and subsequently exchanged for another journey are counted as one ticket.

Some tickets are bought directly by the traveller, so this information is not a complete record of all travel tickets bought by the Treasury.

Departments: Buildings

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many buildings are owned by his Department; and how each is grade listed. [134560]

John Healey: The Treasury owns one building, 1 Horse Guards Road, which is subject to a private finance initiative contract. Details of the contract can be found in HM Treasury's 2005-06 Resource Account HC 1344. The building is grade II* listed.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department has spent on external consultants in the 2006-07 financial year. [123842]

John Healey: For the purposes of this answer, this question is taken to refer to all contracted out professional services and professional staff substitution. In the first 10 months of 2006-07, the Treasury spent £4.93 million on these services. This includes fees paid to Partnerships UK for their work providing project and policy support to the Treasury and other public bodies on the development, procurement and implementation of public private partnerships.

Departments: Electricity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on electricity consumption in 2006-07. [133297]

John Healey: The total spent on electricity consumption in 2006-07 by HM Treasury was approximately £450,000.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total cost has been of appealing against Freedom of Information Act requests submitted to HM Treasury since 1 January 2005, including appeals to the Information Commissioner, broken down by (a) internal costs and (b) external legal costs; [133200]

(2) what the (a) date, (b) value and (c) recipient was of each payment for external legal advice, support or representation in response to the Freedom of Information Act request by The Times newspaper that was released on 30 March 2007; [133201]

(3) what estimate he has made of the total amount of staff time spent on the Freedom of Information Act request by The Times newspaper that was released on 30 March 2007, broken down into time spent on (a) internal reviews, (b) contesting the application with the Information Commissioner and (c) appealing against the Information Commissioner's rulings; [133202]

(4) what estimate he has made of the total cost to the public purse of opposing the Freedom of Information Act request by The Times newspaper that was released on 30 March 2007, broken down into costs associated with (a) internal reviews, (b) contesting the application with the Information Commissioner and (c) appealing against the Information Commissioner's rulings. [133203]

John Healey [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The cost of legal counsel in all Treasury cases taken to the Information Commissioner and the Information Tribunal to date is £3,715, of which £2,399 was due to the case referred to. Information on staff time spent on individual cases is not held centrally.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 982W on Departments: official hospitality, what definition the Department uses of casual drinks. [134447]

John Healey: The definition of casual drinks used by the Treasury in determining eligibility for official hospitality is drinks taken without food.

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 982W on Departments: official hospitality, at what functions with external guests present other than lunch or dinner the Department has (a) spent hospitality funds and (b) provided alcohol. [134448]

John Healey: The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Poverty

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to lift children and families from below the poverty line. [134573]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury contributes to the strategy for halving and eradicating child poverty as set out in the Child Poverty Review, published alongside the 2004 Spending Review White Paper (Cm 6237). Across the UK, these measures have helped lift 600,000 children out of poverty since 1998-99.

Budget 2007 announced a package of further reforms to the tax and benefit system that will:

benefit families by an average of £200 per year; benefit families in the poorest fifth of the population by an average of £350 per year; and lift 200,000 children out of poverty.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [135004]

John Healey: All the energy purchased by the Treasury is purchased from renewable sources. In 2006-07, the Treasury purchased 7,089,501 kwh of electricity from renewable sources.

Departments: Stationary

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on (a) branded and (b) non-branded stationery in 2006-07. [133436]

John Healey: The Treasury's accounting systems do not differentiate between branded and non-branded stationery. The total spent by HM Treasury on stationery supplies in 2006-07 was £289,000.

Departments: Written Questions

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many written parliamentary questions his Department took longer than 10 days to answer in 2006-07. [133442]

John Healey: 10 days has no particular significance in relation to the answering of parliamentary questions. As any period of 10 days will include at least one weekend and may also include other days on which the House of Commons may not be sitting and questions cannot be answered, it is a meaningless yardstick against which to measure performance in answering questions. In 2006-07, questions tabled shortly before the Christmas, February and Easter recesses did not fall for answer until after the 10-day point.

In the present session, 80.4 per cent. of the written questions to the Treasury have been answered within the timescales set by the House—that is to say, on the nominated day in the case of named day questions and within a working week of tabling for ordinary questions.

Drugs: Death

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many drug-related deaths were recorded in (a) Suffolk, (b) Bedfordshire, (c) Cambridgeshire, (d) Essex, (e) Hertfordshire and (f) Norfolk in each year since 1997. [134654]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 1 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many drug-related deaths were recorded in (a) Suffolk, (b) Bedfordshire (c) Cambridgeshire, (d) Essex, (e) Hertfordshire and (f) Norfolk in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (134654)

Available figures relate to the number of deaths from poisoning with any drug or medicine or certified as drug abuse or dependence. They do not include deaths which may be indirectly related to drug use, such as blood-borne viral infections or transport accidents. The most recent year for which figures are now available is 2005. The table below shows the number of deaths for which the underlying cause was drug-related poisoning, by selected county for the years 1997 to 2005.

ONS recently revised statistics on drug poisoning deaths to include all deaths registered in the calendar year,* instead of deaths occurring in the year. This takes account of late registrations which would otherwise be excluded.

[2] Usual residents of the county.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Economic Situation

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his forecasts are for non-oil gross value added growth in each year to 2012; and what the (a) lowest and (b) highest projections are to a (i) 0.5 per cent., (ii) 1 per cent., (iii) 2 per cent., (iv) 5 per cent., (v) 10 per cent., (vi) 25 per cent. and (vii) 50 per cent. level of statistical significance. [134132]

John Healey: HM Treasury sets out its economic forecasts twice a year in Budget and pre-Budget reports. The Treasury does not publish frequency distributions around its forecasts. However, it does provide average absolute errors over the past 10 years. These are shown in Table B10 of "Chapter B: The economy" of Budget 2007 (HC 342) for spring forecasts, and Table A10 of "Annex A: The economy" of the 2006 Pre-Budget Report (Cm 6984) for autumn forecasts.

Economics: Teaching Aids

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on Welsh language versions of his Department's Red Box (a) website and (b) teaching packs in each year since 2002. [133430]

John Healey: Expenditure on Welsh language versions of the Red Box was as follows:

(a) Website
2002	8,000
2007	8,000
(b) Teaching packs
2002	7,735
2005	8,900

No expenditure was incurred in other years.

Employment

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the size of the (a) working age and (b) economically active population in each of the last 30 years, broken down by gender. [134616]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 1 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the working age population and the economically active population over the last thirty years. I am replying in her absence. (134616)

The attached table gives the working age population by gender from 1978 to 2005 which are based on mid-year population estimates. Mid-2005 population estimates are the latest available. The table also shows the numbers and rates of economically active people of working age by gender for the three months ending February of each year. The ONS uses the Labour Force Survey (LFS) to measure economic activity and this data is seasonally adjusted. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The LFS publishes numbers of economic activity each month in the Labour Market First Release, in summary table 1. The latest Release can be found at:

Excise Duty: Alcoholic Drinks

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the reasons were for the recent change in the rate of duty on (a) beer and (b) wine. [134570]

John Healey: Duty on beer and wine was increased in line with inflation at the Budget to maintain revenue levels and support the Government's spending priorities.

Four Wheeled-drive Cars

Jane Kennedy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will visit the Halewood site of the production of the Land Rover Freelander 2 to discuss with managers and trade union representatives the impact of green taxes on the production of high-performance and four wheeled-drive motor cars with managers and trade union representatives. [129847]

John Healey: The Chancellor and I meet with representatives of the vehicle manufacturing industry and trade unions on a regular basis, on a range of issues of common interest. We will happily continue to meet representatives of the motor industries to discuss these issues.

Gambling: Taxation

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total receipts from betting and gaming duties were in 2002-06; and what his Department's forecasts are for total gaming duty receipts in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; [133997]

(2) what his Department's forecasts are for total remote gaming duty receipts in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; [133998]

(3) what proportion of forecast total gaming duty receipts are expected to be accounted for by remote gaming duty in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [133999]

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the effect on Exchequer revenues of the introduction of a remote gaming duty of 15 per cent., broken down by (a) internet, (b) telephone and (c) interactive television gambling; and if he will make a statement. [134170]

John Healey: Revenues from gambling taxes are published in the HM Revenue and Customs Betting, Gaming and Lottery Duties Bulletin, available at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullbett

Revenue estimates of the Budget changes to gambling taxation were published in the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the tax burden on (a) bookmakers, (b) bingo clubs and (c) casinos; and what his policy is on the harmonisation of gaming tax across different forms of gaming. [134484]

John Healey: Revenues from gambling taxes are published in the HM Revenue and Customs Betting, Gaming and Lottery Duties Bulletin, available at http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullbett. Bookmakers, bingo clubs and casinos are also subject to the usual taxes imposed on business.

The Government take all relevant factors into consideration when establishing and maintaining fair regimes for the gambling taxes.

Gift Aid

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, columns 983-84W, on Gift Aid, (1) whether the predicted increase of £0.4 billion in Gift Aid in 2007-08 takes into account the reduction of two per cent. in the basic rate income tax; and if he will make a statement; [134699]

(2) what the evidential basis was for the assumption that Gift Aid would increase by 5.6 per cent. in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [134700]

Mr. Timms: The figures provided relate to the year 2007-08. The change to the basic rate of income tax announced in the Budget, takes effect from 2008-09.

The estimate of 5.6 per cent. increase for 2007-08 is informed by the Treasury's latest projections for average earnings growth and employment growth, which are consistent with the assumptions for trend output growth published in chapter B of Budget 2007.

As announced by the Chancellor in his recent Budget speech, the Government will consult with the charitable sector on measures to increase take-up of gift aid.

Government Services

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average (a) lifetime incomes, (b) lifetime tax revenues and (c) lifetime consumption of Government services of (i) men and (ii) women born in (A) 2000, (B) 1990 and (C) 1980. [134617]

John Healey: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) tax revenues paid by, (b) income and (c) consumption of Government services, broken down by type, of (i) a representative man and (ii) a representative woman born in (A) 2000, (B) 1990 and (C) 1980, with reference to the assumptions outlined in Chapter 4 of Long Term Public Finance Report 2006. [134618]

John Healey: The spending and revenue projections given in the long-term public finance report are purely forward looking. The report does not include the type of historical analysis of lifetime tax revenues, income or consumption of government services that would be required to make the estimations outlined in the question.

Health Services: Private Sector

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the level of private spending on health care in each year since 1997 (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms and (c) as a proportion of gross domestic product. [133994]

Mr. Timms: The Office for National Statistics provides information on health spending, including private spending on health care up until 2002, on its website (http://www.statistics.gov.uk/healthaccounts/experimental.asp). The ONS series on private health spending is now discontinued.

Internal Treasury estimates for later years, based on a number of assumptions for discontinued data series, are in the following table.

	Percentage
2003-04	1.3
2004-05	1.3
2005-06	1.3
2006-07	1.2
2007-08	1.2

HM Revenue and Customs: Contracts

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of the contractors used by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) in the last 12 months operated via (a) a personal service company and (b) a managed serviced company; and how much was paid by HMRC in fees to such companies in that period. [133973]

John Healey: This information is not available.

HM Revenue and Customs: Wales

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much he expects to make in efficiency savings from changes to the HM Revenue and Customs Service in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [133718]

John Healey [holding answer 24 April 2007]: HMRC is structured around customers and business functions rather than geographically. Each of HMRC's business directorates is required to contribute to HMRC's overall efficiency savings across the spending review 2004 period, but the requirement is not defined by geographical region.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much he expects to pay in redundancy payments to staff who lose their jobs through HM Revenue and Customs efficiency savings cuts in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [133719]

John Healey [holding answer 24 April 2007]: HMRC is on track to achieve its 2004 spending review efficiency targets, including net staffing reductions of 12,500 full-time equivalent posts, by April 2008 without recourse to redundancy. HMRC has a no redundancy agreement with the trade unions lasting until at least September 2007. Its aim is to avoid future redundancies if at all possible, principally by continuing to restrict recruitment and to offer approved early retirement schemes.

Housing: Pollution Control

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the oral answer by the Chief

Secretary to the Treasury of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 662, on zero-carbon homes, if he will quantify the number of zero-carbon homes in the UK. [134665]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer the Economic Secretary to the Treasury gave to the hon. Member for Cambridge (David Howarth) on 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1511W.

Income Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, columns 985-6W, on income tax: tax rates and bands, how the figures quoted for the cost of changes in the rate of income tax relate to those on line 22 of table A1, page 208 of the Budget 2007; and whether the same assumptions have been used. [134661]

Ed Balls: The answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, columns 985-6W, on income tax: tax rates and bands were provided on an accruals basis as stated in the reply. The figures quoted for the cost of changes in the rate of income tax shown on line 22 of table A1, page 208 of the Budget 2007 are based on the same assumptions but have been converted on to a national accounts basis. Paragraph A2.8 of the Financial Statement and Budget Report explains how accruals basis figures are converted on to a national accounts basis.

Income Tax: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland paid the basic rate of income tax in the 2006-07 tax year. [134766]

Ed Balls: The latest estimates for the number of individual income taxpayers by country and region can be found in table 2.2 "Number of individual income taxpayers by country and region" on HM Revenue and Customs website.

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income tax/menu.htm

Information on the number of basic rate taxpayers at constituency level is unavailable. Available estimates for the number of individual income taxpayers by constituency be found in table 3.15 "Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency" on HM Revenue and Customs website.

http:/www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm#315.

The information is based on the Survey of Personal Incomes, of which 2004-05 is the latest available, and projected in line with Budget 2007 assumptions.

Sample sizes at constituency level are small and estimates can demonstrate a large variability from year to year, therefore any inference from the information in the table for 2004-05 should take into account the confidence intervals in table 3.15a "Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency, Confidence Intervals".

Income Tax: Overpayments

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people claimed overpayments in their income tax payments in each year since 1997; and how many of these claims were successful. [134310]

Ed Balls: The total number of repayments made by HM Revenue and Customs in each financial year since 2001-2002 (the data are not held for earlier years) is as follows (this may include more than one repayment to an individual within the same financial year).

	Number
2001-02	6,005,339
2002-03	6,451,203
2003-04	6,594,199
2004-05	6,812,662
2005-06	6,310,385
2006-07	5,926,786

HM Revenue and Customs does not hold information on the number of people who have claimed overpayments.

Inflation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps he plans to take in response to recent trends in the rate of inflation; [134567]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the effects of recent trends in the rate of inflation on the British economy. [134574]

John Healey: The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Bank of England has operational responsibility for the conduct of monetary policy. Under the Chancellor's remit for the MPC, the operational target for monetary policy is an underlying inflation rate (measured by the 12-month increase in the CPI) of 2 per cent. The remit was last confirmed on 21 March 2007.

The Treasury's latest assessment of the economy was published in Budget 2007 (HC 342). Since then, Consumer Price Inflation turned out at 3.1 per cent. in March, This prompted an open letter from the Governor of the Bank of England and a reply from the Chancellor which further discussed recent developments and prospects for inflation.

For its part, the Government will continue to be vigilant and disciplined in the fight against inflation. To that end, the Chancellor announced to Parliament on 1 March 2007 overall headline settlements for public sector workforces covered by Pay Review Bodies are to be less than the 2 per cent. inflation target in 2007-08.

Managed Service Companies

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will publish the research which led his Department to conclude, in "Tackling Managed Service Companies" of December 2006, that there are 240,000 workers employed by managed service companies; [134758]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the research that led him to conclude in the Red Book 2007 that the measures on managed services companies set out in Schedule 3 of the Finance Bill 2007 will yield £350 million to the Exchequer in 2007-08, £450 million in 2008-09 and £250 million in 2009-10. [134759]

John Healey: The Government set out their analysis of the problem of workers operating through Managed Service Companies in the consultation document "Tackling Managed Service Companies". This was published at the 2006 pre-Budget report. Evidence was gathered from a wide range of businesses and other interested parties during the consultation process. This evidence was incorporated into the regulatory impact assessment published alongside the Finance Bill and set out in "Tackling Managed Companies: summary of consultation responses".

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to respond to the hon. Member for Billericay's letter dated 5 March on Northlands Park Surestart. [133760]

John Healey [holding answer 24 April 2007]: The correspondence was transferred to the Department for Education and Skills on 16 March and the hon. Member was notified by letter on that date.

National Income: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross domestic product was per head of the resident population in Darlington in each year since 1992. [135015]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 1 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question about Gross Domestic Product (GDP) per capita for the resident population of Darlington in each year since 1992. I am replying in her absence. (135015)

The Office for National Statistics publishes regional Gross Value Added (GVA) rather than regional GDP. GVA is the same as GDP except for excluding taxes and subsidies on products. Estimates of GVA for Darlington on a consistent basis are only available for the period 1995 to 2004. These data are shown in table 1.

Prior to 1995 regional estimates of GDP were produced on a different accounting basis using different methodology and cannot be used to produce a consistent time series with the later data. GDP on this basis only exists for Darlington for the years 1993 and 1994 and these data are shown in table 2.

Both data-sets are at current prices, therefore the effects of inflation are not taken into account.

Pension Credit: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the proposed increase in the pension credit guarantee to £130 by 2010 will be financed. [134566]

Ed Balls: The figure of £130 is an estimate of the rate of the pension credit guarantee informed by the Treasury's latest projections for average earnings growth, which are consistent with the assumptions for trend output growth published in chapter B of the 2007 FSBR. The precise rate will be set in the usual way in due course by the annual uprating order, which is subject to affirmative resolution with debates in both Houses. The White Paper, "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system" (May 2006) set out the Government's intention to uprate the pension credit guarantee in line with earnings over the long-term and factored this in to the overall projected costs of state pension reform. The Government's spending commitments will be financed in line with the fiscal rules.

Pension Funds

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total assets of UK pension funds were in each of the last 30 years in (a) cash terms and (b) real terms at today's prices; [134081]

(2) what the annual income of pension funds was in each of the last 30 years; and if he will make a statement. [134082]

Ed Balls: The Office for National Statistics' survey of self-administered pension funds collects information on incomes, investment flows by and holdings of self-administered pension funds. The data are published by the ONS in its "Investment by insurance companies, pension funds and trusts (MQ5)", available at:

www.statistics.gov.uk

Pensions: Compensation

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the percentage of mis-sold pensions which have been the subject of completed compensatory procedures over the last 20 years; and if he will make a statement. [134080]

Ed Balls: This information is not held centrally. The Financial Ombudsman Service publishes figures on the number of cases it deals with each year. In addition, figures issued by the Financial Services Authority show that 1.7 million people have had their cases reviewed in a programme of reviews by authorised firms of personal pensions sold between April 1988 and June 1994.

Pensions: Gurkhas

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect of proposals in the 2007 Budget on the pensions of (a) serving and (b) retired Gurkhas; and if he will make a statement. [134490]

Ed Balls: Budget 2007 announced a rebalancing of taxation on to polluting activities, and tackling avoidance. This has allowed the Government to simplify the tax system for all and to offer more support for work, families and pensioners.

The overall effect on Gurkhas resident in the UK will be dependant on the interactions between the different elements of all the reforms contained in the Budget, and the household circumstances of each individual.

Personal Savings

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how many people in (a) the north east and (b) Middlesbrough south and east Cleveland have individual savings accounts. [134868]

Ed Balls: Latest estimates of the number of people in the north-east holding an ISA are provided in Table 9.12 (Market value of ISA funds: By country and region) on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/isa/table9_12.htm

Estimates are not available below Government Office Region level.

Population

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people came to live in the UK in the last 10 years; and how many people have emigrated in that period. [133221]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 1 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question concerning how many people have come to live in the UK in the last decade; and how many people have emigrated in that period. I am replying in her absence. (133221)

The Office for National Statistics uses the UN definition of an international migrant as someone who changes their country of usual residence for at least a year so that the country of destination effectively becomes the country of usual residence.

Total International Migration (TIM) estimates show that for the most recent 10 year period for which data are available (1996-2005), a total of 4,624,000 people migrated to the UK for a year or more and a total of 3,174,000 people emigrated.

Premium Bonds

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value is of premium bond prize money awarded following the death of the holder held by HM Treasury in non-interest bearing accounts. [134246]

Ed Balls: NS&I only become aware of the death of a customer if they are notified of it as part of the settlement of the estate of the deceased. Where this happens, the normal practice is for the value of the bonds and any unpaid prizes to be repaid as part of the settlement process. For the remaining unpaid prizes, NS&I are unable to distinguish between money which is unclaimed due to a death of which they have not been notified, and that which is unclaimed for other reasons.

In general terms, however, any premium bond prizes which are unclaimed following three months of the draw are classified as "unpaid" and are held by NS&I for a further 21 months (making a total of two years) on a non-interest bearing basis. NS and I currently hold £5,954,984 on this basis, if the prize is still unclaimed two years after the draw it is transferred to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt (CRND).

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what the total value was of premium bond prizes won following the death of the holder (a) in each of the last three years for which figures are available and (b) in total over the last 30 years. [134247]

Ed Balls: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of premium bond prizes is that were awarded following the death of the bond holder and which were transferred to the National Loans Office in circumstances in which he was authorised to make use of the funds in the last (a) five years, (b) 10 years and (c) 30 years. [134248]

Ed Balls: NS&I only become aware of the death of a customer if they are notified of it as part of the settlement of the estate of the deceased. Where this happens, the normal practice is for the value of the bonds and any unpaid prizes to be repaid as part of the settlement process. For the remaining unpaid prizes, NS&I are unable to distinguish between money that is unclaimed due to a death of which they have not been notified, and that which is unclaimed for other reasons. It is therefore impossible to give an accurate answer to this question.

In general terms, however, any premium bond prizes which are unclaimed following three months of the draw are classified as "unpaid" and are held by NS&I for a further 21 months (making a total of two years) on a non-interest bearing basis. If the prize is still unclaimed two years after the draw it is transferred to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt (CRND—formerly part of the National Investment and Loans Office).

The values for the five, 10 and 30 years periods requested are:

Transferred in last 5 years:	5,726,400
Transferred in last 10 years:	13,764,586
Transferred in last 30 years:	25,947,211

Private Finance Initiative: Tax Avoidance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will bring forward proposals for legislation under which companies bidding for private finance initiative contracts would be required to state publicly that they are not using tax havens to avoid UK taxes; [133554]

(2) if he will bring forward proposals for legislation under which companies avoiding UK taxes would not be eligible for private finance initiative contracts. [133555]

John Healey: The Government have no plans to change current procurement procedures. In developing PFI contracts, Departments are required to apply Treasury guidance set out in the letter of 22 May 2003 to Departments (DAO/Gen 03), which is on the Treasury website at:

Public Expenditure

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the proportions of transfer payments which were payments from the lifetime rich to the lifetime poor in (a) 1992, (b) 1997, (c) 2001 and (d) 2006. [134131]

Mr. Timms: No such estimate has been made.

Social Security Benefits: Children

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax has been collected under Chapter 8 of Part 2 of the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 since the introduction of the legislation; and how many taxpayers have been liable for tax as a result of being in deemed employment within the meaning of that chapter. [134808]

Ed Balls: Those covered by the Intermediaries legislation are required to register with HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) as employers and to operate PAYE/NIC on actual and deemed payments of employment income to workers. HMRC does not routinely collect data in respect of specific types of employer from PAYE/NIC returns. As such it is not possible to isolate data relating solely to this legislation.

Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many personal visits were made by officials to tax credit claimants prior to court summons being issued for the recovery of overpayments in each (a) year, (b) quarter and (c) month since April 2003. [133996]

John Healey: The information requested is not available centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost, but HMRC's policy is to attempt to make personal contact in all cases before legal proceedings are considered including at least one visit to the last known address of the claimant.

Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax repayment claim forms were sent (a) automatically and (b) after case review by officials to regular claimants in each year since 1997. [134635]

John Healey: The total number of tax repayment claim forms issued automatically by HM Revenue and Customs, to customers who have claimed repayment in the previous year, since 2000-01 (the data are not held for earlier years) is as follows.

	Number
2000-01	567,302
2001-02	524,140
2002-03	442,579
2003-04	380,033
2004-05	368,103
2005-06	357,889
2006-07	324,601

The reduction in the numbers of claim forms issued reflects an increase in the number of eligible people who have completed an R85 form to receive their bank and building society interest without any tax deductions.

In addition, HM Revenue and Customs also issue tax repayment claim forms on request (no data are held on the number issued each year).

Taxation: Aviation

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the risk of going into liquidation for small tour operators as a result of costs imposed by air passenger duty; and what steps he is taking to prevent this. [131432]

John Healey: No formal assessment has been conducted. Some small tour operators have written to the Chancellor about the Government's decision, but I am not aware that any have expressed a risk of insolvency.

No provision exists to extend Government help in these specific circumstances and it is doubtful whether it would be legal to distinguish between operators in this way or to offer assistance to the sector under EU state aid rules.

Taxation: Quarrying

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what fiscal incentives are in place to discourage quarrying and promote the use of alternative raw materials to protect the environment. [134646]

John Healey: The aggregates levy ensures that the external costs associated with exploitation of aggregate are reflected in the price of aggregate. The price increase reduces demand for and encourages efficient use of freshly quarried aggregate materials.

The levy is also structured to promote use of alternatives to virgin aggregates from more sustainable sources, such as recycled demolition waste and slate waste, by granting these materials exemption from the levy.

The levy is part of a package of environmental measures (including the landfill tax and climate change levy) designed to encourage more efficient processes, environmental awareness and sustainable development. Research shows the levy, as part of this package, is helping to meet the Government's policy aims. For example, Great Britain has seen a reduction in sales of virgin aggregate by around 18 million tonnes between 2001 and 2005 and an increase in the use of recycled aggregate in England of around 5.5 million tonnes.

Taxation: Small Businesses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the reasons were for the change in small and medium companies' tax rates in 2008 announced in the last Budget; and what assessment he has made of the impact of those changes on their competitiveness. [134568]

John Healey: Paragraphs 3.11 to 3.39 in Chapter 3 of Budget 2007 available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/budget/budget_07/report/bud_budget07_repindex.cfm outline the rationale for the major business tax reforms announced at the Budget, including those that impact on small and medium companies, and details how these reforms will help to boost the growth, productivity and international competitiveness of businesses in the UK.

Teenage Pregnancy: Suffolk

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in (i) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (ii) Suffolk county council area in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. [134691]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 1 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in (i) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (ii) Suffolk County Council area in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. I am replying in her absence. (134691)

Numbers of conceptions in Suffolk County for the years 1996-2005 (the most recent year for which figures are available) are shown in the table below. Figures for 2005 are provisional.

Figures on under 16 pregnancies are estimated using the number of conceptions that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or legal termination.

Information on conceptions is routinely published for local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by parliamentary constituency because of the risk of disclosing individual's information, due to small differences between the parliamentary constituency and local authority boundaries.

ONS does not publish figures by single year of age below the age of 16 by either local or health authority because of the risk of disclosing individual's information.

Numbers of maternities in Suffolk County for the years 1996-2005 are shown in the table below.

Maternity counts are for girls aged under 16 in each year at which either one or more live birth or stillbirth occurred.

Birth figures cannot be provided for Bury St. Edmunds parliamentary constituency for the same reason as provided for conceptions.

Number of conceptions and maternities to girls aged under 16, Suffolk, 1996-2005

	Conceptions	Maternities
1996	82	12
1997	89	12
1998	71	12
1999	58	14
2000	62	5
2001	73	12
2002	75	13
2003	93	19
2004	73	12
2005[1]	73	9

[1] Conceptions for 2005 are provisional.

VAT

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the impact on VAT receipts of the changes set out in schedule 3 of the Finance Bill 2007. [134702]

John Healey: The net yield from the changes set out in schedule 3 of the Finance Bill 2007 is set out at Table A2 of the Budget 2007 book.

VAT: Disabled

Roger Berry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to make goods and services for the exclusive personal use of disabled people eligible for VAT relief. [134425]

John Healey: There is a wide range of goods and services supplied to disabled people for their personal use on which VAT is not chargeable. This includes certain building alterations to a disabled person's home, wheelchairs and mobility scooters, and equipment designed solely for use by a disabled person.

Under the VAT agreements with our European partners, signed by successive Governments, we can retain our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT from additional goods and services purchased for the exclusive personal use of a disabled person.

More generally, the Government are carefully considering evidence presented in the recent Low Incomes Tax Reform Group's report "VAT and disabled people—the case for removing the barriers", and will assess whether any of the recommended VAT changes, including new reduced rates, would be consistent with our European VAT agreements and well-targeted and cost-effective when compared with the range of support already provided for people with disabilities.

VAT: Turbines

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has any plans to remove VAT from domestic wind turbines generating green energy. [133470]

John Healey [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Under the VAT agreements with our European partners, signed by successive Governments, we can retain our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT entirely from domestic wind turbines.

Under the same European agreements, a reduced rate of VAT of not less than 5 per cent. is available for the construction, renovation and alteration of housing provided as part of a social policy. We have used this provision to introduce a reduced rate of VAT for the installation by contractors of a range of energy-saving and energy-efficient products and microgeneration technologies, including solar panels and wind turbines, in houses and other residential accommodation.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how may tax credit recipients have not received one or more payments as scheduled in April 2007 as a result of renewing awards in the new tax year 2007-08; [133629]

(2) whether guidance has been circulated to HM Revenue and Customs staff centrally and in local HM Revenue and Customs offices on issuing interim manual payments to tax credit recipients who have not received one or more payments as a result of renewing awards in the new tax year 2007-08. [133631]

Mr. Timms: I am not aware of any claimants not receiving payments scheduled in April 2007 as a result of them renewing their tax credit award for the tax year 2007-08.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how may tax credit recipients did not receive one or more payments in (a) April 2006, (b) April 2005 and (c) April 2004 as a result of renewing awards at the beginning of each new tax year. [133630]

Mr. Timms: This information is not available.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether people of whom HM Revenue and Customs have no records and who illegally pay no tax are included within the estimates of those entitled to receive tax credits in the Family Resource Survey cited in HM Revenue and Customs' Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit Take-up rates 2004-05; [133749]

(2) whether the figures in the HM Revenue and Customs document Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit Take-up rates 2004-05 take account of an estimate of (a) the amounts which were fraudulently claimed and (b) the number of couples fraudulently claiming to be lone parents. [134396]

Mr. Timms: The methodology used by HMRC in producing the child and working tax credits take-up statistics is detailed in pages 13 to 17 of the HMRC publication "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit Take-up Rates 2004-05", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

The number of recipients of tax credits is drawn from HMRC administrative data. HMRC have a range of compliance processes in place to ensure that only claims from those eligible for tax credits are put into payment. This includes cross checking income information from the tax credit claim form against other HMRC systems.

The number of entitled non-recipients of tax credits is estimated from the Family Resources Survey and the British Household Panel Survey. Survey data received by HM Revenue and Customs are anonymised. It is not therefore possible to establish whether particular families are non-compliant with respect to tax or tax credits.

The methodology minimises the effect of non-compliance on the take-up rate figures as the recipient population is included both in the numerator and denominator of the calculation.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Climate, Energy and Security

11. Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the levels of support among the permanent members of the UN Security Council for discussing the relationship between climate and energy security. [134742]

Mr. McCartney: Without support from all the permanent members of the Security Council the debate on climate, energy and security could not have taken place. There was some procedural opposition, based upon perceptions of the role of the Security Council versus the General Assembly, but there is growing international acceptance of the relationship between climate, energy and security, as shown by China's recognition during the debate that climate change had security implications.

Iran

15. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on Iran's nuclear programme. [134748]

18. Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on Iran's nuclear programme. [134752]

Dr. Howells: We remain very concerned about Iran's nuclear programme. The United Nations has imposed sanctions on Iran to persuade them to suspend their proliferation-sensitive activities and return to negotiations on the basis of proposals we presented to Iran last June. This would give Iran everything it needs to develop a state of the art civil nuclear industry, and wider benefits, in a way that addresses the concerns of the international community.

Darfur

16. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the security situation in the Darfur region. [134750]

Mr. McCartney: Security remains precarious. Humanitarian agencies face increasing banditry. The Sudanese Government resumed bombing villages in Darfur last week, resulting in a number of civilian injuries and deaths. We condemn these attacks, which show little regard for human life. They violated UN Security Council Resolution 1591 and must cease immediately. All sides to the conflict must commit to the peace process or face further measures in the Security Council. The Government remain actively engaged on this issue at the highest levels. I raised our concerns with the Sudanese Justice Minister while at the Human Rights Council in March.

19. Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the security situation in the Darfur region. [134753]

Mr. McCartney: Security remains precarious. Humanitarian agencies face increasing banditry. The Sudanese Government resumed bombing villages in Darfur last week, resulting in a number of civilian injuries and deaths. We condemn these attacks, which show little regard for human life. They violated UNSCR 1591 and must cease immediately. All sides to the conflict must commit to the peace process or face further measures in the Security Council.

Iraqi Kurdistan

17. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the social, political and economic development of Iraqi Kurdistan since 1990; and if she will make a statement. [134751]

Dr. Howells: The social, political and economic development in the Kurdish region since 1990, following the establishment of the no-fly zone and the formation of the Kurdish Regional Government and National Assembly, has helped to foster a more developed economy than in other parts of Iraq.

The provinces of Erbil, Dohuk and Suleymaniyah that the Kurdish regional government administers enjoy moderate stability. Security is better than in the rest of Iraq.

EU Foreign Minister

20. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what discussions she has had with the German Chancellor on proposals for an EU Foreign Minister. [134754]

Mr. Hoon: I have had regular discussions with my German colleagues during their presidency. So too has my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, who met Chancellor Merkel most recently on 24 April.

Our discussions cover many issues, including the way forward on institutional reform. There is no consensus at present among EU partners on this issue. We will discuss it at the European Council in June.

Sheikh Hasina

21. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what representations she has made to the Bangladeshi Government on the position of Sheikh Hasina. [134755]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave her today (UIN 134701).

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects the European Union Security and Defence Policy policing mission to Afghanistan to be launched; and what decisions have been made about the UK contribution to the mission. [132710]

Margaret Beckett: The European Union Security and Defence Policy policing mission to Afghanistan is scheduled to be launched in June. The mission will be staffed by approximately 160 personnel, of which the UK plans to contribute about 10 per cent.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what role she expects the European Union Security and Defence Policy policing mission to Afghanistan to play in the field of counter-narcotics; and if she will make a statement. [132711]

Margaret Beckett: The European Union Security and Defence Policy policing mission to Afghanistan aims to raise the quality of policing in Afghanistan. The mission contains an objective to integrate the Counter-Narcotics Police of Afghanistan into the wider police force in order to factor counter-narcotics into all law enforcement efforts.

Business: Corruption

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK officials attended the last three meetings of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Working Group on Bribery in International Business Transactions. [134650]

Mr. McCartney: Each meeting of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Working Group on Bribery takes place over three days. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) leads the UK delegation and not all UK officials attend every session of each meeting. In total, the following UK officials attended the last three meetings:

The October 2006 meeting was attended by one official from the FCO; one from the City of London Police; one from the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS); one from the Serious Fraud Office (SFO).

The January meeting was attended by three officials from the FCO; one from the Attorney General's Office; three from the SFO; one from the Ministry of Defence (MOD) Police; two from the CPS; one from the City of London Police; one from the Home Office (HO).

The March meeting was attended by four officials from the FCO; one from the Attorney General's Office; two from the SFO; one from the CPS; one from the MOD Police; two from the City of London Police; one from the HO; one from the Department for International Development.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the (a) Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and (b) OECD member states on the publicisation of the work of the OECD Working Group on Bribery in International Business Transactions as it affects investigations in the UK. [134652]

Mr. McCartney: The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Working Group on Bribery regularly publicises aspects of its work, for example by press statements on the group's country monitoring reports. Such press statements are discussed and agreed in plenary by all members of the group. However, the group operates under an understanding that the country being monitored has the right to comment on the text, but foregoes its right to block the final text.

As the hon. Member is aware, recent meetings of this group in January and March have discussed, among other subjects, the circumstances surrounding the discontinuance of the Serious Fraud Office's investigation into allegations about BAE Systems' activities in Saudi Arabia. At the end of both the January and March meetings, the group agreed a press statement on the UK under the established procedure described above. In the run-up to and during these meetings, British officials discussed with the OECD Secretariat and partner OECD Governments various relevant aspects including possible options for press communications, and how those might be organised. This included proposals for a formal press briefing at the end of the March meeting.

Since the March meeting of the Working Group, there have been no formal press communications proposed. British officials have therefore made no further representations concerning the group's media activities.

Chad: Peacekeeping Operations

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the proposals for a United Nations peacekeeping force in Chad and the Central African Republic. [135261]

Mr. McCartney: We remain very concerned about the humanitarian and security situation in Eastern Chad and the Central African Republic (CAR) and the spill over of violence from Darfur. On 16 April my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for UN Security Council agreement to a UN peacekeeping operation in Chad, as called for under UN Security Council Resolution 1706.

We are working with the UN and partners on the Security Council to seek to address any concerns raised by the Governments of Chad and CAR about the possible deployment of a UN peacekeeping force. We continue to urge the Government of Chad to improve regional security and work actively with non-governmental organisations operating in the region.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 April 2007, Official Report, columns 564-65W, on Departments: official hospitality, how much the Government Hospitality Advisory Committee for the Purchase of Wine has advised her Department to be a suitable expenditure on stock for (a) the Government cellar and (b) other hospitality for which her Department is responsible in each of the last three years. [133991]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 14 July 2006, Official Report, columns 2137-38W. The Government Hospitality Advisory Committee for the Purchase of Wine (GHACPW) advises Government Hospitality according to the requirements of the Government cellar, wine market prices, the availability of individual wines and vintages and their quality. The GHACPW does not determine the level of expenditure on wines and spirits; that is the responsibility of the head of Government Hospitality. The GHACPW does not provide advice on expenditure for the purchase of wine for other hospitality carried out by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134044]

Mr. Hoon: 100 per cent. of copier paper purchased by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) through contracts is from recycled sources. This was the case in each of the last three years.

In each of the past three years, one hundred per cent of paper used in printed publications purchased through contracts used by the FCO was from recycled sources.

Statistics are not available for paper that was not purchased through contracts. This is because the FCO's overseas missions have the ability to procure their paper locally where this offers the best overall value for money.

Dhabihu'llah Mahrami

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the expropriation of the home of Mr. Dhabihu'llah Mahrami, who died in prison in Iran on 15 December 2005; and if she will make a statement. [134442]

Dr. Howells: We have not received reports of the expropriation of the home of Mr. Dhabihu'llah Mahrami, but we are prepared to take further action as appropriate.

We understand that Mr. Mahrami died in custody on 15 December 2005. Mr. Mahrami's case had previously appeared on the EU list of cases of concern used in the EU-Iran Human Rights Dialogue. The EU raised the death of Mr. Mahrami in a meeting with the Iranian authorities on 31 January 2006 and handed over a note verbale requesting further information.

We continue to have concerns about the situation of religious minorities in Iran and treatment of the Baha'i community in particular. We often receive reports of discrimination against Baha'is in Iran.

We continue to press the Iranian authorities to take seriously their international human rights obligations, uphold the right to freedom of religion and belief, as described in Article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and address the discrimination suffered by Iranian Baha'is. The UN General Assembly Resolution about the human rights situation in Iran, adopted in December 2006 and co-sponsored by the EU, expressed serious concern at "the disregard of property rights, including through de facto expropriation, as noted in the report of the Special Rapporteur on adequate housing"

and

"the escalation and increased frequency of discrimination and other human rights violations against members of the Baha'i Faith".

Embassies: Closures

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK (a) embassies and (b) consulates have been closed in each of the last three years. [134627]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has closed nine embassies and high commissions over the last three years. Fifteen consulates have been closed over the same period of time. These missions are listed in the following table. In addition, six commercial and information offices, staffed by locally engaged staff were also closed.

The FCO continuously reviews the deployment of its resources and aligns them flexibly in line with UK interests to the benefit of the British taxpayer.

Missions closed

Year: 1 April to 31 March	Embassies/High Commissions	Consulates
2004-05	—	Douala[1], Tarawa[1] and Oporto
2005-06	Nassau, Abidjan[2], Maseru, Antananarivo, Asuncion, Mbabane, Nuku' alofa and Port Vila	Frankfurt, Stuttgart, Fukuoka[1], Dallas, San Juan[1] and Aden[1]
2006-07	Dili	Adelaide[1], Hamburg, Nagoya, Kingstown[1], Gothenburg and Seattle[1]

[1] Consulates staffed by locally engaged staff only.
[2] Operations at this embassy have been suspended due to the uncertain security situation in the Ivory Coast.

Ethiopia: Arms Trade

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what responses she has received on Ethiopia's arms trade with North Korea; what assessment she has made of whether that trade is compliant with UN Security Council Resolution 1718; and if she will make a statement; [132419]

(2) what discussions she has had with her US counterpart on Ethiopia's arms trade with North Korea; what the outcome was of those discussions; and if she will make a statement. [132420]

Margaret Beckett: We are in contact with US and other counterparts about issues relating to the enforcement of UN Security Council Resolution 1718, including Ethiopia's arms trade with North Korea. We continue to support vigorous implementation of the measures in the resolution and the work of the Security Council's Sanctions Committee for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea in monitoring implementation and compliance.

Foreign Policy

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what units, working groups or task forces her Department has established in the last 12 months on the future direction of the Government's foreign policy; which officials have been appointed to those groups; and if she will make a statement. [133231]

Margaret Beckett: No such units, working groups, or task forces have been established in the last 12 months in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). We have, however, reconstituted the FCO's Policy Planning Staff, a strengthened successor to the Strategic Policy Team. They, and others in the FCO, contributed significantly to the Britain in the World exercise, part of the Pathways to the Future Policy Review, which examined the challenges we face internationally and considered how we can be more effective in achieving our international objectives going forward.

Iran: Discrimination

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the adverse treatment by teachers and school administrators in Iran of children belonging to the Baha'i faith; and if she will make a statement. [134440]

Dr. Howells: We continue to have concerns about the situation of religious minorities in Iran and treatment of the Baha'i community in particular.

We have received some reports from the National Assembly of the Baha'is of the United Kingdom about persecution of Baha'i school children and are currently trying to find out more information about these serious claims. We will take further action as appropriate.

We continue to raise the situation of religious minorities bilaterally, and through the EU, and have pressed the Iranian authorities on many occasions to take seriously their international human rights obligations, uphold the right to freedom of religion and belief as described in Article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and address the intimidation and discrimination suffered by Iranian Baha'is. We also take action at the UN and in December 2006, we along with all EU countries, co-sponsored a resolution on human rights in Iran which expressed serious concern at

"the escalation and increased frequency of discrimination and other human rights violations against members of the Baha'i Faith".

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government have made representations to the Iranian authorities on the treatment of the Baha'i faith and the Baha'i community by leading Iranian media outlets; and if she will make a statement. [134441]

Dr. Howells: We continue to have concerns about the situation of religious minorities in Iran, and treatment of the Baha'i community in particular. We regularly receive reports of intimidation and discrimination against Baha'is in Iran.

We remain concerned about reports that Iranian newspapers including Keyhan have been carrying out a propaganda campaign against the Baha'i community. We raised our concerns about this in an EU demarche on 11 April 2006, and on 10 April 2006, EU Foreign Ministers underlined their "continued concerns about the human rights situation in Iran, in particular regarding the situation of the Baha'is".

We continue to raise the situation of the Baha'is with the Iranian authorities, bilaterally and through the EU. We also take action at the UN and in December 2006, we along with all EU countries, co-sponsored a resolution on human rights in Iran, which expressed serious concern at

"the escalation and increased frequency of discrimination and other human rights violations against members of the Baha'i Faith".

Iraq: Casualties

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British civilians are known to have suffered injury in Iraq since the beginning of March 2003. [134478]

Dr. Howells: Our consular records show that at least 47 civilians entitled to consular assistance have been hospitalised, reported as injured and medivaced since March 2003. This is not a definitive figure as records include only those cases where consular assistance has been sought.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made on the Government's discussions with the Iraqi government on the release of accurate and up-to-date figures on civilian deaths in Iraq. [132538]

Margaret Beckett: The Government do not collate figures for civilian casualties in Iraq. Both the Iraqi Ministries of Interior and Health published figures in January, but there is no 100 per cent. reliable and accurate assessment of casualties in Iraq. Estimates of the numbers of civilian deaths vary according to the methods used. We continue to press the Iraqi government to release the most up-to-date figures.

According to figures released by the Iraqi Ministry of the Interior on 2 January, 12,320 civilians were killed during 2006. The UN Assistance Mission for Iraq estimates that 34,452 civilians were killed in 2006, on the basis of information obtained through the Iraqi Health Ministry, hospitals and the Medico-Legal Institute in Baghdad. No further figures are currently available.

Iraq: Police

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made since July 2006 on achieving the milestones for police reform in the Iraqi provinces of (a) Al Basrah, (b) Al Muthanna, (c) Dhi Qar and (d) Maysan; and if she will make a statement. [132518]

Margaret Beckett: Since my reply to the hon. Member on 25 July 2006, Official Report, column 1267W, the following progress has been made against milestones.

In Basra, there has been progress against milestones for police training, infrastructure and operational capability. 87 per cent. of police are now trained (increase from 63 per cent.) and the majority of training is now carried out by the Iraqis. Over 80 per cent. of police stations in Basra city are assessed as being largely or fully capable of carrying out their duties. The notorious 'Serious Crimes Unit' was disbanded by the December 2006 operation and a functioning Department of Internal Affairs has been established to investigate, arrest and prosecute corrupt police officers. Significant challenges do remain with the Basra police and we will continue to engage in reform activity.

The provinces of Dhi Qar[1] and Maysan have been approved for transfer to Provincial Iraqi Control and were transferred on 21 September 2006 and 18 April 2007 respectively. The police forces in these provinces are now fully equipped and are judged by the National Civilian Policing Assistance Training Team as being largely capable.

[1] The Italian contingent of Multi-National Force-Iraq has always had responsibility for police assistance in Dhi Qar province.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 1 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Dr. Elizabeth Thomas. [132486]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

A reply was sent on 30 March 2007.

Ministerial Changes

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether her Department has undertaken work in preparation for a change of Prime Minister; and if she will make a statement. [134000]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's objective is to deliver the foreign policy priorities of the elected Government over the course of a Parliament, and that is what it is focusing on.

North Korea: Arms Trade

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the extent of North Korea's arms trade; which countries North Korea (a) exports arms to and (b) imports arms from; what discussions she has had with her United Nations counterparts on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [132422]

Margaret Beckett: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) does not publish details of its arms exports and imports. However, independent organisations publish estimates, for example the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, which gives estimates of the DPRK's arms imports and exports for 1995-2005.

The DPRK is considered to be the world's most prolific supplier of ballistic missiles and related technology to countries of concern. During negotiations for the adoption of UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1718, the UK discussed with international partners in the UN ways to curb the DPRK proliferation of missiles and weapons of mass destruction-related materials around the world. UNSCR 1718, adopted in October 2006, imposes a ban on the export to the DPRK of nuclear and ballistic-missile goods and technologies, a ban on the export of arms to the DPRK, a ban on technical assistance and advice related to all these items and a ban on the export by the DPRK of proliferation-sensitive goods and technologies. The UK and its partners will continue to urge the DPRK to comply with UNSCR 1718 and resume its obligations under the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

North Korea: UN Resolutions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of international compliance with UN Security Council Resolution 1718, on North Korea; and if she will make a statement. [132421]

Margaret Beckett: The UN Security Council's Sanctions Committee for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea meets regularly, in accordance with its mandate under UN Security Council Resolution 1718. Part of its mandate is to seek information from all states on implementation. On 16 April the Committee reported to the Security Council that 68 countries had submitted reports on their progress on implementation of the resolution. We continue to support the work of the Sanctions Committee in monitoring implementation of, and compliance with, the resolution.

Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was allocated to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development by the Government in each of the last three years; what commitments regarding future funding have been entered into; and if she will make a statement. [134651]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) contributed:

2006	11,190,557.70
2005	10,994,179.04
2004	10,515,959.77

to the Part I (core) budget of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), which funds the work of OECD committees and to which all member states contribute. As agreed with the OECD, the FCO pays these contributions quarterly, though the cost in sterling varies, owing to exchange rate fluctuations. The FCO contributes separately to budgets to cover the redevelopment costs of the OECD's Paris headquarters, pensions, and publications.

In 2007, UK assessed contributions for Part I amount to €11,354,731.20. As the OECD's budget is agreed bi-annually, we are committed to paying the same amount as in 2007 plus a nominal 1 per cent. increase in 2008. However, the exact figure will only be known in January 2008 as it depends on the UK's share of the overall OECD budget, which is calculated annually based on the size of member states' gross domestic product.

These totals exclude UK contributions to Part II organisations, such as the International Energy Agency or the Sahel Club, as well as voluntary payments for specific areas of OECD work, which individual Government Departments pay directly periodically. The figures in the table denote the total voluntary contributions to Part I of the OECD budget by all UK Government Departments:

	(€)	Contributions
2006	3,850,246	38
2005	2,705,040	31
2004	3,103,409	27

Pakistan: Frontiers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her counterpart in Pakistan on the landmining of the country's border with Afghanistan. [134402]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed this subject with President Musharraf in Pakistan on 26 February. The UK recognises the efforts being made by Pakistan to curb cross-border infiltration across the Afghanistan-Pakistan border. The UK position on the use of landmines, however, is well known and we urge Pakistan to find solutions with less destructive long-term humanitarian consequences. We note that President Musharraf announced on 2 February that he has decided for the time being not to mine the border.

Panjab Singh

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken on behalf of British citizen Panjab Singh following his complaint of ill-treatment by the Indian authorities during his arrest and detention. [134749]

Dr. Howells: We are aware of the allegations of ill-treatment Mr. Singh has made. We take all such allegations by British nationals very seriously. We are obtaining the specific details of the allegations from Mr. Singh and will be taking these forward with the Indian authorities.

Shiekh Hasina

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to clarify with the Government in Bangladesh the position of Sheikh Hasina. [134701]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised the position of Sheikh Hasina with Dr. Iftekhar Chowdhury, Bangladesh Foreign Affairs Adviser on 19 April. I note that the caretaker Government have since lifted the restriction on Sheikh Hasina's return to Bangladesh.

Sudan: Human Rights

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the recommendations of the UN Human Rights Council High Level Mission to Sudan. [135260]

Mr. McCartney: The High Level Mission on Human Rights in Darfur reported gross and systematic violations of human rights and breaches of international humanitarian law in Darfur. The report recommended more effective protection through: the deployment of the UN/African Union peacekeeping force and more human rights monitors; a ceasefire and negotiated peace; effective delivery of humanitarian assistance and on-going donor support; and tackling impunity, including through Government of Sudan co-operation with the International Criminal Court.

Following the report's publication I, and the UK Permanent Representative to the Human Rights Council (HRC), called on the Council to take effective action on Darfur and support the report's recommendations. I made clear to the Sudanese Justice Minister that it was unacceptable that Sudan had not co-operated with the High Level Mission.

The UK, with our EU Partners, played a key role in getting the HRC to adopt a resolution on 30 March supporting the implementation of the Mission's recommendations. The resolution created a mechanism to ensure the Government of Sudan implement all existing UN recommendations on human rights in Darfur, and for a further report on human rights in Darfur to be presented to the fifth session of the HRC, 11-18 June.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely levels of co-operation of the Government of Sudan with the UN/AMIS peacekeeping force for Darfur. [134745]

Mr. McCartney: The Government of Sudan have agreed to the Heavy Support Package of United Nations' support to the African Union (AU). But this is only a step towards the joint UN-AU hybrid operation needed to provide protection to Darfur's citizens. The Government of Sudan must agree to the hybrid force and co-operate fully with its implementation. If they do not honour their commitments we are prepared to introduce tougher measures.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will discuss the setting up of an AU-UN force operational within Darfur with the Chinese Government. [134925]

Mr. McCartney: We regularly discuss Darfur with the Chinese Government including at the UN. We want China to use its considerable influence with the Sudanese Government to help ensure Khartoum supports deployment of the joint African Union/UN peacekeeping in Darfur, as well as a ceasefire and renewed political process. We gave this message to the Chinese Government before President Hu's visit to Africa earlier this year. My right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister also raised Darfur on 23 April, during his recent visit to China.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the capacity of the French air force in Chad to monitor a no-fly zone over Darfur. [134930]

Mr. McCartney: We have not made a military assessment of the French air force's capacity in Chad to monitor a no-fly zone over Darfur. The French military have long-standing ties with Chad and any such measure would also require the Chadian Government's consent.

We remain deeply concerned by the situation in Darfur. We are discussing new measures in the UN Security Council. They could include measures to allow better air monitoring of the violence in Darfur and the possibility of imposing a no-fly-zone.

UN Human Rights Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact of the decision in March by the UN Human Rights Council to end its scrutiny of Iran and Uzbekistan; and whether the UK has made representations to the Council on the decision. [132713]

Margaret Beckett: At its fourth session, 12-30 March 2007, the UN Human Rights Council discontinued consideration of specific cases relating to Iran and Uzbekistan under its confidential complaints procedure. The confidential nature of that procedure prevents us from commenting on any details of the cases, and on the position taken by the UK. We do, however, emphasise strongly our deep concern over persistent violations of human rights in both Uzbekistan and Iran, and our corresponding belief that the UN should address these situations. For that reason, the UK co-sponsored the resolution passed by the UN General Assembly last autumn on the human rights situation in Iran; and the attempted resolution on the human rights situation in Uzbekistan, which unfortunately failed to pass a vote in the General Assembly's Third Committee, also last autumn. The independent UN Special Rapporteurs on human rights questions have frequently commented on issues in Iran and Uzbekistan in the course of their work; that work continues.

Whales: Conservation

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to promote internationally the publication "Protecting Whales: A Global Responsibility" from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. [134006]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office initially distributed copies of the publication to 57 posts, in countries identified as being particularly important in the run-up to the International Whaling Commission (IWC) 59. In consultation with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, we shall be distributing more widely to include posts accredited to all IWC member countries and others where there may be value in doing so.

World Bank

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her international counterparts concerning the World Bank president; and if she will make a statement. [133812]

Dr. Howells: UK policy on the World Bank is the responsibility of the Department for International Development. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development is the UK representative on the World Bank Board of Governors.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 2 May 2007

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance the Government are providing to projects promoting human rights and democracy in Burma. [135640]

Mr. Thomas: DFID provides significant support to projects to help the people of Burma access their human rights and build the foundations for sustainable democracy. Our programme includes a wide variety of activities, such as capacity-building for local non-governmental organisations (NGOs), training for journalists, work to involve poor people in decision-making about issues that affect them, and support for the empowerment of poor women. In addition, the British embassy in Rangoon is carrying out extremely valuable work to build local capacity.

DFID is about to start work on the implementation of a £3.0 million programme designed to expand and strengthen DFID's work to support increased prospects for a successful transition to democracy and respect for human rights in Burma. The programme will increase opportunities for Burma's people to engage in political decision-making processes at local level affecting their welfare, livelihoods and governance.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135158]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's grievance procedure is fully compliant with UK legislation and applies to civil servants working in the UK and overseas. We also apply it, unless local law dictates otherwise, to staff appointed in country (SAIC) who work under local contracts. In the last year, 13 grievance procedures were initiated in DFID, as set out in the following table.

	Number
Number of cases	13
Number upheld	3
Not upheld	8
Cases currently under way	2
Appeals	2
Appeals upheld	0

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134825]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's grievance procedures are fully compliant with UK legislation and apply to civil servants working in the UK and overseas. We also apply them to our locally appointed staff overseas, who work under local contacts, unless local law dictates otherwise.

DFID investigated less than five complaints of bullying in the last 12 months. Due to the small number, a breakdown by number, employment status and outcome is not made public on the grounds of confidentiality.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [135000]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is committed to meeting the new sustainable operations on the Government Estate targets including the mandatory requirement to source at least 10 per cent. of energy from renewable sources.

During 2006-07 DFID consumed 6,991,124 kilowatt hours of electricity; approximately 95 per cent. of which was from renewable sources. From the start of 2007 the proportion from renewable sources is 100 per cent.

International Assistance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if his Department will assess the merits of reporting against the underweight indicator in the public service agreement as one of the agreed indicators for millennium development goal 1. [135630]

Hilary Benn: DFID is currently developing the indicators for the new public service agreement (PSA) on international poverty reduction which will cover the period April 2008 to March 2011. The final indicators will be subject to approval by the Treasury and will be dependent on wider discussions across Government.

The elimination of poverty in poorer countries through the achievement of the millennium development goals still remains our overarching goal. The PSA will therefore draw indicators from the set of millennium development goals and the inclusion of a specific indicator covering the prevalence of underweight children under five years of age is part of our current proposal.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Climate Change

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 766W, on climate change, what the publication date is for the final report of the independent review into the activities of the Meteorological Office Hadley Centre. [134591]

Ian Pearson: The final report on the independent review into the activities of the Meteorological Office Hadley Centre is due to be published by early summer.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will make it his policy that, at the forthcoming Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change in Bangkok, temperature data be made available as part of the summary for policy makers; and if he will make a statement; [135052]

(2) why temperature data over the last 10,000 years were excluded from the Final Draft International Panel on Climate Change Summary for Policy Makers. [135053]

Ian Pearson: [holding answer 1 May 2007]: The forthcoming meetings of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) in Bangkok will comprise the ninth session of IPCC Working Group III and the 26th session of the IPCC. The first meeting will accept the Working Group III contribution to the IPCC Fourth Assessment Report (AR4) and approve its Summary for Policymakers (SPM). The second meeting will accept the actions by the sessions of IPCC Working Groups I, II and III, review the IPCC terms of reference and discuss future work.

The reports of the IPCC are written by hundreds of scientists from across the world and provide an assessment of peer-reviewed scientific and technical literature on climate change. The IPCC does not carry out new research. As such, all the data contained within the IPCC's reports are already available in published literature and are independent of Government.

The SPM summarises the findings of the underlying report. The SPM is drafted by scientists and agreed by all Governments at the IPCC plenaries. The agreement of the SPM helps to communicate the IPCC outputs to Governments. No one Government, organisation or individual has sole responsibility for any part of the report.

Livestock: Waste Disposal

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps he is taking to mitigate the adverse environmental effects of fallen stock collection and incineration and the associated carbon dioxide emissions; [134334]

(2) how much carbon dioxide was released into the environment as a result of (a) fallen stock collection, (b) the burning of fallen stock and (c) the rendering of fallen stock in each year between 2004 and 2006. [134336]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department has made no assessment on the amount of carbon dioxide released as a result of fallen stock collection and disposal. However, total UK greenhouse gas emissions from agriculture fell by 16.4 per cent. between 1990 and 2005—the latest year that estimates are available.

The Animal By-Products Regulation (EC) No. 1774/2002 prohibits the burial, dumping or open-burning of fallen stock (with few exceptions) and is in place to protect public and animal health. Incineration and rendering provide a safe and controlled way of dealing with the disposal of animal carcasses.

There are various animal health and environmental controls that incinerator operators must follow when disposing of fallen stock. These can be found on the DEFRA website.

Sewage: Renewable Energy

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) supported into energy production through (i) fermentation, (ii) microbial fuel cells, (iii) anaerobic digestion, (iv) gasification and (v) pyrolysis of sewage. [134790]

Ian Pearson: My Department has not commissioned or supported any research into these methods of energy production, as they are well established and successful technologies.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what incentives are in place to encourage water companies to invest in energy production from sewage waste. [134792]

Ian Pearson: The Government's key mechanism for encouraging renewable electricity generation is the renewables obligation (RO) which will provide around £1 billion per year of support to the renewables industry by 2010. Sewage gas and (subject to certain conditions) biomass waste, which could be sewage or sewage sludge, are eligible under the RO.

Water Charges

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) standing charges, (b) cost per litre and (c) other charges levied by each water company in England and Wales are on individual households (i) with and (ii) without water meters. [134672]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat is the economic regulator of the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales. It approves companies' charges schemes each year and provides detailed information in its water and sewerage charges report. Ofwat will publish its 2007-08 report on 16 May.

The volumetric rate for metered customers is calculated on the basis of cost per cubic metre. The following tables summarise the charges that are levied by water companies for 2007-08 on households both with and without water meters.

Unmetered water and sewerage tariffs for household customers 2007-08

WALES

Supermarket Practices

7. Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues in the Department of Trade and Industry on encouraging Welsh farmers to submit evidence to the Competition Commission's inquiry into supermarket practices. [134265]

Nick Ainger: I have regular meetings with ministerial colleagues at the Department of Trade and Industry to discuss a variety of issues.

Policing

8. Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Home Secretary on policing in Wales. [134267]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on all matters affecting Wales, including policing.

12. Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, what recent discussions he has had with the Home Secretary on policing in Wales. [134271]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on all matters affecting Wales, including policing.

Antisocial Behaviour

9. Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Minister on measures to tackle youth nuisance, graffiti and vandalism in Wales. [134268]

Mr. Hain: I regularly meet the First Minister to discuss a range of issues in Wales, including matters affecting our local environment.

Bilingual Juries

10. Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on the consultation on bilingual juries in Wales. [134269]

Nick Ainger: The Government have consulted on this issue and an announcement on the outcome of that consultation will be made in due course.

Out-patient Departure Closures

11. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on cross-border issues relating to the closures of out-patient departments. [134270]

Nick Ainger: I regularly meet with the Assembly Minister for Health and Social Services to discuss a range of issues, including cross-border issues.

Health Services

13. Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on cross-border issues affecting health services in Wales. [134272]

Nick Ainger: I regularly meet with the Assembly Minister for Health and Social Service when we discuss a range of issues, including cross-border issues affecting health services in Wales.

DEFENCE

Anglo-French Battle Groups

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the status is of the proposed UK/French/German Battle Group referred to in the answer of 27 February 2004, Official Report, column 614W, on Anglo-French battle groups; and if he will make a statement. [135418]

Mr. Ingram: There are no plans to form a UK/French/German Battle Group, nor have there been in the past.

The UK, France and Germany have however been instrumental in developing the EU Battlegroup concept, which achieved full operational capability in January 2007. EU Battlegroups are small, mobile self-sustaining forces (approximately 1,500 troops) intended for rapid intervention in a crisis, typically in response to a UN request. There are two EU Battlegroups on standby at any time. The UK provided a national Battlegroup on standby during the first half of 2005 and will do so again in 2008. With the Netherlands we have also offered an amphibious Battlegroup in 2010. Each Battlegroup will be on standby for a period of six months.

Armed Forces: Gibraltar

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British troops are stationed in Gibraltar. [125807]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 8 March 2007]: As at 31 March 2007, some 350 regular forces personnel were stationed in Gibraltar.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many uniformed (a) doctors, (b) dentists, (c) nurses and (d) medical and dental support staff are employed by each armed service. [132852]

Derek Twigg: The number of uniformed doctors, dentists, nurses and medical and support staff who are employed by each single service is shown in the following table:

Service	Medical officers (which include primary consultants, secondary consultants and GPs)	Dental officers	Nurses (not including health care assistants)	Allied Health Professionals, medical dental support staff
RN	130	51	290	890
Army	240	130	620	2550
RAF	130	61	430	980

Note:
Figures over 100 are rounded to the nearest 10.
Source:
DMSD

Numbers are correct as of 1 January 2007, and include fully qualified service personnel only.

Army: Northern Ireland

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether (a) general service soldiers, (b) full-time members of the Royal Irish Regiment Home Service, (c) part-time members of the Royal Irish Regiment Home Service, (d) full-time soldiers who served with the Ulster Defence Regiment and (e) part-time soldiers who served with the Ulster Defence Regiment have their pay adjusted by the Armed Forces Pay Review Body to take into account the relevant benefits of the Armed Forces Pension Scheme. [128630]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 19 March 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 751W.

Defence Communication Services Agency: Pay

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the (a) last pay raise was and (b) next pay raise will be for the staff of the Defence Communication Services Agency. [135361]

Derek Twigg: In line with the Ministry of Defence pay award, the last pay rise awarded to staff within Information Systems and Services—formerly the Defence Communication Services Agency—was on 1 August 2006. This was paid in February 2007 and fully backdated to 1 August 2006. The next pay rise will be due as of 1 August 2007.

Departments: BAE Systems

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons security passes were issued by his Department to (a) BAE Systems chief executive Mike Turner, (b) former BAE Systems chairman Sir Richard Evans and (c) BAE Systems group marketing director Mike Rouse; and if he will list for each of these individuals (i) on which date their current security pass was issued, (ii) on which date their current security pass is due to expire, (iii) to which premises they are given access with their current security pass and (iv) the dates on which any previous security passes were issued by his Department. [132894]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 20 April 2007]: In respect of MOD's main London buildings (main building, old War Office and St. George's Court) contractor security passes (valid for one year) have not been issued to any of those individuals listed in the question.

MOD passes are issued locally at establishment, business unit, or budget area level. Details of passes issued are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Complaints

Miss Begg: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to establish (a) a military complaints commission and (b) an office of a military ombudsman. [134455]

Derek Twigg: The Armed Forces Act 2006 introduced a package of improvements to the service complaints process including the establishment of an independent Service Complaints Commissioner (SCC). The recruitment process for the position will begin shortly.

In formulating changes to the complaints process, the objective was to introduce independence into the system without undermining the chain of command and its overall responsibilities for the welfare of those under command. While there are no plans to establish a military complaints commission or an office of a military ombudsman, the powers available to the SCC, combined with the other improvements, will offer service personnel a better overall system.

Departments: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what databases are controlled by his Department and its agencies; and what percentage of the data in each database he estimates is inaccurate or out of date. [124022]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilian personnel are employed by his Department in the north-east. [135292]

Derek Twigg: As at 1 January 2007 there were 510 (FTE) civilians employed by this department in the north-east.

Full-time equivalence (FTE) counts part-time staff by the number of hours they work as a proportion of their full-time conditioned hours.

Departments: Publications

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of Joint Service Publication 530 for 2007-08. [133146]

Derek Twigg: Yes. I will provide a draft copy of JSP 530 for financial year 2007-08. The draft contains all the resource account codes for financial year 2007-08, but awaits an update of the textual part of the document describing the usage of the resource account codes. I plan to place the full version of JSP 530 in the Library of the House in June 2007.

European Council

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many EU Council meetings he has attended since taking up his post; and who represents him if he is unable to attend. [133753]

Des Browne [holding answer 30 April 2007]: During each six-month presidency, EU Defence Ministers meet once in the format of the General Affairs and External Relations Council. I have attended both such meetings since taking office. Another Minister or senior official would represent me if I were unable to attend.

HMS Cornwall: BBC

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what time and by what means the BBC crew (a) were scheduled to leave and (b) left HMS Cornwall on 23 March 2007. [134194]

Des Browne: The two BBC personnel and one journalist from The Independent left HMS Cornwall, as planned, on the morning of 24 March. They travelled by seaboat to the USS Underwood and then by helicopter to Bahrain, also as planned.

Iran: Territorial Waters

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether all coalition personnel involved in the boarding of vessels in Iraqi waters are briefed on the rules of engagement with Iranian forces; and by whom. [132455]

Des Browne: All UK forces deployed on operations in the Operation Telic joint area of operations are briefed on the UK rules of engagement applicable to national and coalition operations, including those involved in the boarding of vessels in Iraqi waters. Personnel are briefed by Commanders both in-theatre and prior to deployment as part of their pre-deployment training.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which country's territorial waters the service personnel detained by the Iranians in 2004 had been captured. [133820]

Des Browne [holding answer 24 April 2007]: As was made clear at the time, the service personnel who were detained by the Iranians reported that they were operating inside the Iraqi border and were forcibly escorted into Iranian territorial waters.

Lynx Helicopters: Procurement

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the decision to procure the new Lynx helicopter was made; and on whose advice Ministers made the decision. [129447]

Mr. Ingram: The decision to procure the new future Lynx helicopter was taken by MOD Ministers on the basis of advice and recommendations from the MOD Investment Approvals Board. Ministerial approval of the decision was announced on 22 June 2006.

M/V Al Hanin

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what type of boarding ladder the M/V Al Hanin used on 23 March 2007. [134195]

Des Browne: The merchant vessel Al Hanin's own pilot ladder was used.

Peace Keeping Operations: Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the joint operations which UK forces have undertaken with US forces in Iraq since March 2003; and where each such operation took place. [134480]

Des Browne: Operation Telic is the UK contribution to a coalition operation in Iraq which involves a number of countries, including the US and UK, working together to help the Iraqis build a stable, democratic and secure nation. As part of this wider operation UK and US forces regularly operate closely together.

Service Personnel: Media

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 21WS, on Iraq, whether he expects the review team considering issues of media access to serving military personnel (a) to investigate and (b) to report on the sequence of events leading to the decision to allow some sailors to sell their stories; and whether the identities will be disclosed of the individuals in his Department who took that decision; [134730]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2007 to question 132019, Official Report, column 1013W, on service personnel: media, if he will give an example of an instance of which his Department is aware of a relative of a serving serviceman or woman selling a second-hand account to a media outlet. [134499]

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role the Department played in managing the bids by media organisations for the stories of naval personnel recently seized by the Iranians. [134203]

Des Browne [holding answers 27 April and 1 May 2007]: I refer my right hon. Friend and the hon. Member to the statement I made to the House on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26, and my further written statement of 24 April 2007, Official Report, columns 21-22WS. While the independently-led review of media access to personnel is under way, it would be inappropriate for me to comment further on the issues involved.

Sonar

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with which sonar systems (a) HMS Daring and (b) HMS Dauntless are being fitted. [134726]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 1 May 2007]: Both HMS Daring and HMS Dauntless will be fitted with the Medium Frequency Sonar 7000 system.

Trident Submarines

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make an assessment of the evidence submitted to the Defence Select Committee in its inquiry into the future of the UK's strategic nuclear deterrent by Professor Richard Garwin, on the timetable for replacement of Trident subenarines. [135012]

Des Browne: The rationale for the timetable for the replacement of the Vanguard-class submarines was set out in the White Paper: The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent (Cm 6994) published on 4 December 2006. The Ministry of Defence provided further detail on the expected life of the Vanguard-class in a letter to the Defence Select Committee dated 1 February 2007, which the Committee published in Volume II of its Ninth Report of Session 2006-07 (Ev 122) on 27 February 2007. I also covered this issue in detail during my evidence session with the Committee on 6 February, a transcript of which was published in the same Report (Ev 57).

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bankruptcy

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much and what proportion of the total personal consumer debt was written off as a result of the use of individual voluntary arrangements in each of the last five years. [134338]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The extent of any debt written off by means of an individual voluntary arrangement (IVA) is a matter for agreement between the debtor proposing the arrangement and the creditors who must approve it. Such information is not held by Government.

Cuba: Sanctions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations the Government has made to the US authorities on the impact on UK tourists and businesses of the expansion of extra-territorial financial measures against Cuba. [134653]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission has responsibility within the European Community for dealing with extraterritorial measures taken by third countries against EU member states. Council regulation EC2271/96 (the 'EU blocking statute') was introduced by the EU in 1996 to offer protection to EU individuals and companies against certain specific extraterritorial legislation, including the US Helms/Burton Act which applies sanctions against Cuba.

My officials are in discussion with the European Commission in relation to recent cases of US extraterritoriality in the context of UK trade with Cuba, and the commission is considering how best to take these issues forward.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132193]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Heads of management units are responsible for ensuring that the principles governing hospitality and rules concerning expenditure are followed in their management units and, as is the case for all other expenditure, that an effective system is in place for dealing with claims and accounting for expenditure.

Expenditure on alcohol at public expense is governed by the general principles of financial propriety set out in Government accounting and further guidance is set out in the Department's staff handbook.

Housing: Internet

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to ensure that (a) existing and (b) new housing stock has access to high speed broadband; and if he will make a statement. [131149]

Margaret Hodge: The information is as follows:

(a) While the Government believe that the delivery of higher bandwidth broadband services is best left to the market, we are working with Ofcom and the industry-led Broadband Stakeholders Group to understand the potential barriers to further investment and how these might be addressed.

(b) DTI works closely with DCLG and built environment stakeholders, including English Partnerships and the Building Research Establishment, to raise awareness of the benefits and practicalities of digital connectivity. Examples of this work include the 'Data Services—Connecting to Homes' guidance for developers, currently in preparation, and the digital access provision (DAP) forum, producing best practice for digital connectivity at the earliest stages of the construction process.

Recycling

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what monitoring his Department undertakes of the eventual disposal of materials exported to China for recycling. [111649]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

There are a range of controls in place to safeguard human health and the environment from exports of waste. All exports of waste from the UK for disposal are generally prohibited. However, certain non-hazardous wastes such as paper, glass and plastic can be exported for recovery or recycling, including to China, provided the wastes are destined for genuine and environmentally sound recovery operations. It is in the Chinese authorities' interest to ensure that imported recyclables are tracked and properly processed in an environmentally sound manner.

It is for waste producers, including local authorities and waste management contractors, to ensure that their waste is properly managed throughout the steps in the recycling chain, including at its final destination. They should assure themselves that exported waste is in compliance with the relevant environmental legislation, including that which applies to waste exports, and the duty of care. In support of this, the Environmental Services Association in the UK recently launched a compliance scheme for exports of recyclable materials, which the Government welcome. The code of practice, which is part of the scheme, includes requirements on members of the scheme to have documented control systems to demonstrate that waste recyclables are recovered under standards broadly equivalent to EU standards.

The Environment Agency (EA) is the competent authority in England and Wales responsible for the regulation and control of transfrontier shipments of waste. The EA has a programme of inspections of sites exporting waste and has taken part in joint enforcement projects with other EU regulators as part of the Sea Ports Projects, which includes detailed monitoring of waste exports from the EU.

In addition, in March 2005, DEFRA wrote to all waste collection and disposal authorities in England reminding them of their responsibilities regarding the export of waste to the EU and other countries.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Ballot Papers

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what criteria were used by the Electoral Commission to select appropriate printers for their approved list to produce ballot papers for the local elections 2007. [135048]

Peter Viggers: Selection of a printer for the production of ballot papers is a responsibility of the relevant Returning Officer. The Electoral Commission informs me that it does not produce an approved list of printers, but its guidance manuals for Returning Officers offer advice on how to approach outsourcing of the production of ballot papers.

Ballot Papers: Derwentside

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission if he will place in the Library a copy of the advice issued to Derwentside district council by the Electoral Commission following the issuing of faulty ballot papers for the local elections 2007; and if he will make a statement. [135047]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has provided no such written advice. The Commission did, however, provide oral advice to Derwentside district council following the discovery of errors in the instruction sheets in the postal ballot packs for the 16 wards with multi-member vacancies. The Commission concurred with the council's proposed response, which was to inform immediately all electors registered as postal voters in the relevant wards, and to offer a replacement ballot pack to any who considered themselves to have been confused by the error.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what involvement the Electoral Commission had in the recent local government restructuring proposals. [134875]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it had no involvement with the Government's original invitation to local authorities to bid for unitary status, nor with the drawing up by the Government of a shortlist of local authorities that it considered likely to meet the criteria. However, as with a number of other organisations, the Commission has since been consulted by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government over the shortlist.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Drinking Water

Mr. Speller: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many (a) glass and (b) plastic bottles of water were bought by the House in 2006; and how many were returned to the supplier for re-use. [134878]

Nick Harvey: The House of Commons Refreshment Department purchases water in 500ml and one litre bottles for resale and for use in Committees and other meetings. The number of bottles purchased in the financial year 2006-07 was as follows:

Type of bottle	Number of bottles
Glass bottles (one litre)	73,813
Plastic bottles (500ml)	159,475

None of these bottles was returned to the supplier for re-use. They are, however, recycled and in the financial year 2006-07 the House sent 174.2 tonnes of glass and 2.7 tonnes of plastic bottles for recycling.

Other Departments purchase 18.5 litre bottles for use in chilled water dispensing machines. These are returned to the supplier for re-use. The number purchased during 2006-07 was 651.

Portcullis House: Energy

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how often Portcullis House has been assessed for its (a) energy efficiency and (b) carbon emissions; what the trends in performance were; what plans the Commission has to assess Portcullis House in this way; and if he will make a statement. [134645]

Nick Harvey: Portcullis House is assessed on a regular basis both for energy efficiency and carbon emissions. There is a reducing trend for both as can be seen from the following table:

	kWh	kWh/m2	C tonnes
2003-04	7,493,419	361.7	652.8
2004-05	7,102,707	342.9	623.8
2005-06	7,230,601	349.1	630.2
2006-07	6,882,342	332.2	537.4

All electricity consumed on the parliamentary estate has come from renewable sources since 1 February 2007, therefore there will be no carbon emissions resulting from electricity consumption in future. This has contributed to the reduction in carbon emissions for the year 2006-07.

The Board of Management will consider again next month whether the House should seek to achieve ISO14001 and then eco-management and audit scheme accreditation (EMAS).

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Office was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134060]

Mr. Straw: In the last three years, 100 per cent. of paper used by the Leader of the House of Commons Office for photocopying has been from recycled sources.

Paper used for printed publications complies with the Government's sustainable procurement "quick wins" agenda, which states that "coated papers must contain a minimum of 60 per cent. recycled fibre and uncoated papers 100 per cent. recycled fibre". In practice most papers used comprise at least 75 per cent. recycled fibre for coated and 100 per cent. for uncoated.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many people took sick leave for stress in his Office in the last 12 months; and what percentage of the total staff number this represents. [135467]

Mr. Straw: None. They all enjoy working here so much. It is a stress free environment.

TRANSPORT

Aviation

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect of plans by the National Air Traffic Services for new holding stacks for aircraft in relation to flights from (a) Stansted, (b) Luton and (c) City airport. [135308]

Gillian Merron: No definitive plans have been submitted by NATS for new holding stacks for aircraft in relation to flights from (a) Stansted, (b) Luton and (c) London City airport. Plans for such changes, following full consultation by NATS as the change sponsor, would be submitted to and assessed by the independent aviation regulator, the Civil Aviation Authority, in accordance with the Airspace Change Process:

www.caa.co.uk/docs/33/CAP725.PDF

Aviation: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of the percentage contribution of aviation, based on emissions by all aircraft departing from UK airports, and including the radiative forcing effect, to UK climate change emissions. [134036]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 26 April 2007]: International aviation is not included in the UK's climate change inventory as there is no internationally agreed method for allocating such emissions among states. In 2005 aviation represented 6.3 per cent. of UK emissions, calculated as a proportion of emissions in the UK inventory plus emissions from international aviation and shipping departing the UK. Detailed data may be viewed at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/index.htm.

As the "Future of Air Transport Progress Report" (December 2006) noted, aviation emissions arising from the combustion of kerosene include carbon dioxide, water vapour, nitric oxide and nitrogen dioxide, particulates and other compounds. These give rise to "radiative forcing" impacts. The total radiative impacts were estimated by the EC TRADEOFF project to be approximately twice those of carbon dioxide (excluding cirrus cloud formation).

Using a radiative forcing multiplier of two, emissions from flights departing the UK contributed approximately 13 per cent. of total UK emissions in 2005. However, the figures for non-aviation sources do not include any radiative forcing attributable to them, as conclusive figures are not available.

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent estimate is of the percentage of total climate change impact from UK sources contributed by the UK aviation sector, as defined by the Transport White Paper 2004, as a result of radiative forcing; and how that estimate was derived. [133982]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. and learned Gentleman to the response I have given to the hon. Member for East Surrey (Mr. Ainsworth) today (UIN 134036).

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the percentage contribution of aviation to the overall UK climate change impact is, calculated on the basis of emissions attributable to UK citizens on outward and return flights from UK airports, including the radiative forcing effect. [134097]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 1 May 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to my answer given today to his related question (UIN 134036).

There are no equivalent data which relate emissions attributable to UK citizens' travel. The Office for National Statistics International Passenger Survey provides information from surveys of overseas visits by UK residents but this information is not directly related to emissions.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link: Greater London

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what effect he expects the opening of the high speed Channel Tunnel Rail link into St. Pancras to have on capacity on the domestic network. [134789]

Mr. Tom Harris: Opening the Channel Tunnel Rail link into St. Pancras will improve the capacity of the domestic rail network by freeing up train paths used by Eurostar in South London, between Fawkham junction and Waterloo. The international platforms at Waterloo will also be available for domestic use from December 2008 and the new depot at Temple Mills will free up capacity on the west London line, previously used by Eurostar to access the international depot at North Pole. Additionally the Channel Tunnel Rail link itself will provide new capacity for high speed domestic services into London from North and East Kent, which are expected to be introduced in 2009.

Crossrail: Finance

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what shortfall in funding exists between current financial provision for Crossrail and actual project costs; [133403]

(2) when his Department plans to submit its final proposal to HM Treasury for the funding of Crossrail. [133404]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Crossrail project has been allocated a total of £408 million in funding to date, including an additional £154 million that has been recently agreed for ongoing project development. The full cost of the project is projected to be around £15-16 billion in cash prices.

The Department has regular discussions with HM Treasury on many matters. This includes the funding and financing of Crossrail, which will be considered further in the context of Sir Michael Lyon's recommendations on local government finances and wider spending pressures and priorities. However, the affordability challenge represented by the scheme remains significant.

Departments: India

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which Ministers in his Department have visited India in the last 12 months; on how many occasions each Minister visited India; and what the length was of each visit. [135547]

Gillian Merron: This Government publish an annual list of Cabinet Ministers' travel overseas costing over £500 along with the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2005-06 was published on 24 July 2006 and is available in the Library of the House. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as it is ready.

All travel is in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

None of my ministerial colleagues from the Department for Transport have visited India in the last 12 months.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134052]

Gillian Merron: The following tables show the percentage of paper containing recycled content used in each of the last three years:

Percentage of photocopier paper with recycled content

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
DfT(C)	98.01	95.48	95.19

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [135003]

Gillian Merron: The Department purchased 36,615,981 kilowatt hours of energy from renewable sources in financial year 2005-06.

East Coast Main Line: Standards

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what performance measures his Department has in place to monitor the quality of service provided on the East Coast Mainline. [135653]

Mr. Tom Harris: GNER measures service quality in terms of both train punctuality and also areas such as train cleanliness, station condition and customer service. Punctuality is monitored on a daily basis by Network Rail, with statistics published by the Office of Rail Regulation. Other areas are audited by GNER and the results reviewed by the Department against Key Performance Benchmarks set for the franchise. The Department also takes note of National Passenger Survey results in order to be assured that GNER service quality to the rail traveller is maintained.

Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether bids to the Transport Innovation Fund will be assessed on their potential contribution to reducing greenhouse gas emissions as well as their effectiveness in reducing congestion. [135113]

Dr. Ladyman: The environmental impacts of Transport Innovation Fund proposals, including carbon dioxide emissions, will be considered as part of the assessment of TIF bids.

Parking: Fixed Penalties

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the implications of the recent High Court judgment on the issuing of parking tickets by post in London for the extension of the postal penalty notice system throughout the UK. [134873]

Gillian Merron: Although the official transcript of the judgment in TfL v. PATAS (interested party—Simeon Ademolake) is not yet available, the Secretary of State is considering the amendments that could be made to the wording of the draft regulations to implement the parking provisions in Part 6 of the Traffic Management Act 2004 to cover such a situation.

Petrol: Silicon

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will seek to establish a British Standard for the amount of silicon included in unleaded petroleum; and if he will make a statement. [135111]

Dr. Ladyman: There is no reason to expect a repeat of the recent incident in which fuel was contaminated with silicon. However we will be asking the British Standards Institution to consider, in concert with its European partners, whether revision of EN228, which is the industry standard for premium unleaded petrol, would be appropriate.

Railways: Energy

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the relative energy consumption of trains at different speeds. [134879]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department is involved in several research projects assessing how trains use energy. In particular this includes a project commissioned by the Rail Safety and Standards Board into rail traction energy which will compare the energy consumption of different train types that operate at different speeds. I expect the results to be published in the summer.

Railways: Overcrowding

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the degree of overcrowding on UK trains and the resultant effects on those passengers involved; and if he will make a statement. [134556]

Mr. Tom Harris: In 2005 the Rail Safety and Standards Board (RSSB) published a report entitled "The health and safety effects of crowding", which is available on its website, rssb.co.uk. The Office of Rail Regulation's Railway Industry Advisory Committee asked RSSB to consider further the issues identified in the report and this work is under way.

Railways: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what proportion of train stations in Wales have manned ticket kiosks; and if he will make a statement; [135268]

(2) what proportion of train stations in Wales have automated ticket machines; and if he will make a statement. [135269]

Mr. Tom Harris: All railway stations in Wales are operated by Arriva Trains Wales ('ATW'). Under the Welsh rail devolution arrangements, the Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the management of the ATW franchise.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many ticket inspectors were operating on Welsh railway lines in each year since 1992; and if he will make a statement. [134913]

Mr. Tom Harris: The information requested could not be provided without disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many train stations in Wales have manned ticket kiosks; and if he will make a statement; [134914]

(2) how many train stations in Wales have automated ticket machines installed; and if he will make a statement. [134915]

Mr. Tom Harris: All railway stations in Wales are operated by Arriva Trains Wales ('ATW'). Under the Welsh rail devolution arrangements, the Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the management of the ATW franchise.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train carriages were in use by train operating companies on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992; and if he will make a statement. [134916]

Mr. Tom Harris: The information requested could not be provided without disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail passengers there were in Wales in each year since 1992; and if he will make a statement. [134917]

Mr. Tom Harris: Statistics on number of passengers on the railway network for 2003-04 and 2004-05 are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook editions, which are available in the House Library or from their website: www.rail-reg.gov.uk. Figures for earlier years are not held by the Department in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Roads: Construction

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions there are in the transport analysis guidance rules for taking tax implications of new road plans into account. [134636]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department requires an appraisal of the impact of a proposal on public accounts. The relevant guidance document is Transport Analysis Guidance (TAG) Unit 3.5.1, available at www.webtag.org.uk, with more technical detail contained in TAG Unit 3.5.3.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much central Government funding has been allocated to (a) Suffolk County Council and (b) each local authority for road improvements in each year since 1997. [134669]

Gillian Merron: The Department placed in the Library of the House detailed information on the funding allocated to local authorities in the local transport capital settlements between 1997-98 and 2005-06 (inclusive) in response to a written parliamentary question in the other place on th.. 18 January 2006, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA122. Similar information was summarised per mile of road in a written response in the other place on 2 February 2006, Official Report, House of Lords columns WA77-79.

I also refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, columns 7048-50W, which provided further details of the capital funding provision for Suffolk and a number of other authorities in the Eastern Region.

The local transport capital settlement allocations for all transport authorities in England for 2006-07 are posted on the Department's website:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/ltpdec2005

Those for 2007-08 are posted on the site too:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/ltpsettle06allocationspreadsheet

Rolling Stock: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when his Department expects additional rolling stock to be provided for train services between Bedfordshire and London; and if he will make a statement; [134361]

(2) what plans his Department has to increase capacity on train services between Bedfordshire and London; and if he will make a statement; [134362]

(3) what representations he has received on proposals to provide additional rolling stock on train services between Bedfordshire and London; and if he will make a statement. [134363]

Mr. Tom Harris: This summer, the Government will be publishing their High Level Output Specification (HLOS) for rail services for the period to 2014. This HLOS will include the specification for capacity on the three main routes that serve Bedfordshire—the East Coast, West Coast and Midland main lines.

Traffic Lights

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will investigate the effect on the flow of traffic of a flashing yellow traffic light during off-peak hours. [134877]

Gillian Merron: The Department has no plans to consider adopting flashing yellow traffic signals during off-peak hours. Removing the protection afforded by a red signal leads to concerns for the safety of pedestrians, especially blind or partially sighted pedestrians. The preferred method is for more traffic responsive operation of traffic signals which should lead to reductions in unnecessary delays.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Community Support Officers: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many police community support officers have been stationed in Great Yarmouth since 1997; [135214]

(2) how many police officers have been stationed in Great Yarmouth in each year since 1997. [135215]

Mr. Coaker: Data are not collected for the borough of Great Yarmouth; the available data for the requested dates are for the Norfolk police force, and are given in table 1.

Additionally, data are collected for the Eastern Basic Command Unit (BCU) of Norfolk police which contains North Norfolk and Great Yarmouth. These data are available for police officers from 2003 onwards, and are given in table 2; and for police community support officers from 2005 onwards, and are given in table 3.

Police strength data are published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales". The latest publication (data as at 31 March 2006) can be downloaded from:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb1306.pdf

Custodial Treatment: Courts

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions (defined as one prisoner night) prisoners were housed in court cells between 1 January 2006 and 1 April 2007. [133975]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Court cells were used on 33 occasions between 1 January 2006 and 1 April 2007.

Drugs: Crime

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his estimate is of the number and proportion of offences that were drug-related in (a) Darlington, (b) County Durham and (c) England in each of the last five years. [135013]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available. Data collected centrally on recorded crime do not identify whether any offences (other than drug offences as defined by law) are drug related. The recorded crime series does include the number of specific drug offences and these are given in the following table.

Table 1: drug offences recorded by the police 2001-02

	Number of offences
Darlington	229
Durham	1,317
England	111,968

Table 2: drug offences recorded by the police—2002-03 to 2005-06

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Darlington	211	220	230	302
Durham	1,289	1,205	1,062	1,299
England	130,825	131,551	133,140	165,842

Note:
The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced in April 2002. Figures before and after that date are not directly comparable.

Extradition

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give details of each extradition request by a foreign Government which has been (a) granted and (b) refused in each of the last five years. [134971]

Joan Ryan: For the purposes of this reply a copy of the table has been placed in the Library. The table has assumed that the details required in the question are the requesting country and the year of extradition, or the year in which the case was closed for other reasons. The figures exclude:

(i) any requests which may have been closed before arrests for extradition took place;

(ii) any requests made to Scotland or Northern Ireland, which are matters for the Scotland Office and Northern Ireland Office respectively; and

(iii) any requests made under the European Arrest Warrant (EAW) mechanism as these are made by the judicial authorities of other European Union member states rather than by foreign governments.

European Union member states entered the EAW on the following dates:

1 January 2004—Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom;

27 July 2004—Austria, Cyprus, France, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherlands, Poland, Slovenia;

1 March 2005—Czech Republic, Estonia, Germany, Greece, Slovakia; and 28 July 2005—Italy.

Finally, it should be noted that the requests to which the figures relate will in many cases have been made in earlier years than those in which the resulting extraditions took place or in which the cases were closed.

HM Prison Coldingley

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the recovery of (a) drugs and (b) pornographic material at HM Prison Coldingley earlier this month; what estimate he has made of the street value of the recovery of each; what mechanism was used in the transportation of this contraband into the prison establishment; what steps he plans to take to tighten (i) searching and (ii) monitoring arrangements at the prison establishment; and what assessment he has made of the (A) competency of staff and (B) adequacy of resources in the security department at the prison establishment in preventing contraband from being transported into the establishment. [135106]

Mr. Sutcliffe: On 15 March a quantity of drugs, mobile phones and DVDs were found following an intelligence led search. This find was as a result of a joint operation with Surrey police. The police estimate the street price of the drugs at £6,000 to £7,000. The staff involved in this operation have been commended for their actions and the resources available to ensure a positive response to the supply of controlled drugs are kept under review. For reasons of security, and to maximise the possibility of future finds, it would not be appropriate to comment further.

Identity Cards: Fraud

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of companies advertising and selling fake identity cards over the internet; and if he will make a statement. [132134]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are aware that there are certain websites which offer to sell fake identity cards, and that there is a concern that young people may try and use them to purchase alcohol unlawfully. It is, of course, illegal to sell alcohol to under-18s. It is the responsibility of retailers to have adequate procedures in place and appropriate training for staff, if they wish to have a licence to sell alcohol.

Many retailers have now adopted a 'Think 21' policy, where anyone appearing to be under 21 should be asked for identification prior to any sale of alcohol, which will prevent an offence being committed. Valid forms of identification include a passport or a driving licence with a photo. The Home Office also supports the Proof of Age Standards (PASS) scheme, which establishes a common standard for issuing the various proof of age cards that are available. PASS accredited cards carry a secure hologram which helps retailers to identify genuine proof of age cards. Following on from the success of the Alcohol Misuse Enforcement Campaigns, in May 2007 we will be conducting a national Tackling Under Age Sales of Alcohol Campaign, which will test whether or not retailers ask for valid identification from potential underage purchasers of alcohol.

Naturalisation Test

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of people were successful in the Life in the UK naturalisation test in each month since November 2005. [130020]

John Reid: The number and percentage of candidates who have been successful in the Life in the UK test in each month since November 2005 is set out in the table.

Success in the test does not guarantee that an applicant will be granted citizenship (or, from 2 April 2007, settlement) as other factors will be taken into account in making a decision.

	Passes	Pass rate (percentage)
November 2005	2,066	72.7
December 2005	2,926	69.0
January 2006	5,042	69.2
February 2006	6,933	70.1
March 2006	8,781	69.1
April 2006	7,526	69.2

	Passes	Pass rate (percentage)
May 2006	8,436	67.9
June 2006	8,575	67.3
July 2006	8,527	67.4
August 2006	9,417	67.9
September 2006	11,764	67.1
October 2006	11,501	66.7
November 2006	10,856	66.1
December 2006	8,055	65.8
January 2007	11,754	67.8
February 2007	14,282	70.0
Total since November 2005	136,441	68.0

Offenders: Employment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his most recent estimate is of the (a) number and (b) proportion of (i) men and (ii) women leaving prison who had a job to go to; and what the equivalent figures were (A) 10 and (B) 20 years ago. [134012]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is not currently available in the specific format requested. HM Prison Service collects the total number of prisoners who have education, training or employment (ETE) secured upon release. This data are supplied in the following table for the last two financial years, broken down by gender, along with the prison system target for this measure. ETE information was not collected in the current format before April 2002.

Total ETE outcomes for 2005-06 and 2006-07

	Total ETE outcomes			System ETE target
	Female	Male	Total
2005-06	1804	41074.5	42878.5
2006-07[1]	1642.5	37244.05	38887

[1] Data for 2006-07 are provisional

Outcomes include those who attended Freshstart appointments at Jobcentre Plus, whereby prisoners who do not have a job or training place to go to on release are linked into employment, training and benefits advice and support immediately after release.

Freshstart interview attendance data for February and March 2007 have not yet been received.

HM Prison Service is implementing new systems to ensure the specific information requested is available for the 2007-08 financial year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his most recent estimate is of (a) the re-offending rates of those who find a job on leaving prison and (b) those who do not. [134013]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No assessment has been made to date of the re-offending rates of those who find a job on leaving prison or of those who do not have a job on release. However, work is currently underway to analyse the findings of three resettlement surveys of prisoners conducted at the point of release and this will provide such an assessment. Findings from this work should be available by the autumn of 2007 and published on the RDS NOMS website.

Prison Service: Corruption

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the value of fraudulent expense claims made by HM Prison Service staff in each of the last 24 months for which figures are available; what disciplinary action was taken against individuals involved; and if he will make a statement. [134706]

Mr. Sutcliffe: During the 24 months to 31 March 2007, there were seven cases of fraudulent expense claims formally investigated, detailed in the table

Fraudulent Expense Claims

During the 24 months to 31 March 2007, there were 7 cases of fraudulent expense claims formally investigated, detailed in the table below.

Month	Number of cases	Amount Investigated (£)	Disciplinary outcome
April 2005	1	69.05	Dismissal
February 2006	2	1,967.95	2 Resignations
July 2006	2	677.00	1 Written warning 1 Dismissal
October 2006	1	195.50	Final written warning
March 2007	1	1,972.11	Disciplinary hearing being conducted

Prison Service: Standards

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 1 March 2007, Official Report, column 1520W, on prison service: standards, how many (a) area professional standards managers, (b) local professional standards managers and (c) their deputies are in post; what proportion of them were fully trained by February; and if he will make a statement. [134760]

Mr. Sutcliffe: 13 area professional standards managers and 128 local professional standards managers were in post in February 2007. It is not mandatory to appoint a deputy local professional standards manager, although many establishments have a deputy in post. By February 2007 all 13 area professional standards managers had received training along with 216 prison staff.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 1 March

2007, Official Report, column 1520W, on prison service: standards, in what circumstances an HM Prison Service commissioning officer may withhold (a) the investigation report and (b) parts of the investigation report from an individual being charged under the disciplinary code; and if he will make a statement. [134809]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The commissioning authority may withhold all or part of a report if disclosure to an individual facing allegations under the code of discipline is considered to threaten the safety of staff or prisoners, or the good order of an establishment. The specific circumstances under which a report, or part of a report, may be withheld are listed in PSO 1300 Investigations paragraph 3D 8.1.

Prisoners: Medical Treatments

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his most recent estimate is of the average waiting time between assessment of a prisoner and subsequent transfer to a hospital for physical or mental care. [133978]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Prisoners who are assessed as requiring treatment in hospital under the Mental Health Act 1983 should be so transferred within 12 weeks of the responsible national health service organisation receiving the referral. A reduced waiting time standard of two weeks is currently being piloted.

For hospital appointments, Prison Service Order 3050, continuity of care for prisoners, sets out what prison governors must do to ensure prisoners receive timely clinical interventions and treatment. A copy has been placed in the Library. It is also available on the HM Prison Service website at:

http://pso.hmprisonservice.gov.uk/PSO_3050_continuity_of_healthcare_for_prisoners.doc

Prisons: Greater London

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been received by the new London area manager of HM Prison Service from staff about (a) corruption, (b) misconduct and (c) management failure; and if he will make a statement. [134722]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The area manager for London has received three complaints from staff about alleged managerial failures since taking up post.

Prisons: Misconduct

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the conclusions of the inquiry into misconduct of senior officers in the segregation unit at HM Prison Wormwood Scrubs were considered during the process of appointing the new governor at HM Prison Whitemoor; and if he will make a statement. [135105]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The conclusions of the inquiry into the misconduct of senior officers in the segregation unit at HM Prison Wormwood Scrubs were not considered during the process of appointing the Governor of HM Prison Whitemoor.

Prisons: Security

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what resources he has made available to each (a) prison establishment and (b) the Professional Standards Unit to reduce the level of trafficking of contraband in the financial year 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [134709]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are 13 Area Professional Standards Managers, 128 Local Professional Standards Managers, a central Professional Standards Unit of 13 staff. In addition, there are ongoing developments to the types of equipment and training available to staff to detect contraband or improve the use of intelligence.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the (a) competency and experience of staff and (b) adequacy of resources of security departments within prison establishments in the (i) prevention and (ii) detection of contraband; and if he will make a statement. [134841]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is the responsibility of HM Prison Service (for public sector prisons) and individual providers (for contracted sector prisons) to ensure that security departments are appropriately staffed and operate effectively. It is the responsibility of the National Offender Management Service to monitor the performance of providers (both contracted and public sector) and to ensure that this is acceptable across all areas of work involving security.

Prisons: Surveillance

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average number of Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act (a) requests and (b) authorisations was in each prison establishment in England and Wales per week for targeted surveillance of (i) social visits and (ii) other activity in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [134756]

Mr. Sutcliffe: For operational security reasons, it would be inappropriate to provide the information requested.

Rape: Convictions

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the conviction rate was for rape cases in 2006; [132240]

(2) how many rape prosecutions where DNA or other forensic evidence was used led to (a) a conviction and (b) an acquittal in each of the last three years. [132241]

John Reid: Court proceedings (including rape convictions) for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Information on whether DNA evidence was used to bring about a conviction to court is not available as the individual circumstance of a case are not held centrally.

Tasker Inquiry

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions the terms of reference of the Tasker inquiry have been (a) amended and (b) altered; how many interim reports have been produced during the lifetime of the inquiry; when the most recent interim report was produced; what the reason is for the most recent delay to the completion of the inquiry; how many extensions to the inquiry have been authorised; and if he will make a statement. [134695]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The commissioning authority has formally amended the terms of reference once, at the request of one of the complainants.

No interim reports have been published. A partial report has been submitted to the commissioning authority. The delay in completion of the investigation has been caused by the breadth of the terms of reference, and the scale and complexity of the ensuing investigation.

No formal extensions have been granted. The commissioning authority has been kept informed of the progress of the investigation throughout, and has accepted the revised timeframe.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) target completion date was when first commissioned and (b) actual completion date is expected to be of the Tasker inquiry; and if he will make a statement. [134719]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The initial target date for completion was March 2006. This proved to be unrealistic given the scale of the investigation, and the investigation is now due to be completed in the near future.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which member of HM Prison Service Board will have responsibility for (a) considering the content, (b) overseeing appropriate disciplinary action and (c) addressing the issues that may arise from the report by Mr Ron Tasker into the conduct of the previous Governor at HM Prison Wandsworth; and if he will make a statement. [134840]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service area manager for London is the commissioning authority and as such will have responsibility for considering the content of the report, overseeing any disciplinary action that may be deemed necessary, and addressing any other issues that may arise. The area manager for London may seek to discuss these matters with his line manager who is the Deputy Director General of the Prison Service.

Terrorism: Birmingham

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether an individual in his Department was responsible for briefing journalists that two soldiers had offered to entrap the suspects at the centre of the Birmingham counter-terrorism operation of 31 January. [135399]

John Reid: I have no knowledge of who provided this information. It was not released by me, nor my special advisers nor anyone close to me, nor anyone else with either my knowledge or acquiescence.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Council Tax Benefits: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much council tax benefit was unclaimed in each London borough in each of the last five years. [135008]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up are not available below the level of Great Britain. The latest estimates of the take-up of the main income-related benefits: income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and jobseeker's allowance (income-based) in Great Britain can be found in the DWP report entitled "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2004/2005". Copies of the publication are available in the Library.

Departments: Handbooks

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 630W, on departments: handbooks, if he will place in the Library a CD-Rom containing the details of the terms and conditions of service for staff of his Department. [133922]

Mrs. McGuire: Development of Conditions of Service policies in DWP is a continuous evolutionary process. A number of the corporate policies also take the form of policy frameworks, stating broad principles within which individual DWP businesses are permitted to develop their own Conditions of Service policies according to the services they deliver.

The effect of this is that a CD-Rom of the Conditions of Service material would only be accurate, relevant and up-to-date on the day it was created, and would not have the functionality to link to other sources of information referred to within the policy material or to business specific policy material.

Therefore while there are no plans to place a CD-ROM in the Library Members who want access to specific Conditions of Service policies should contact: Kevin White, DWP's Human Resources Director General about corporate policies or the relevant business Chief Executive in constituent specific cases, and request a CD-ROM of the specific policy material.

Departments: India

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Ministers in his Department have visited India in the last 12 months; on how many occasions each Minister visited India; and what the length was of each visit. [135545]

Mrs. McGuire: There were no visits made by any of the Department's Ministers to India in the last 12 months.

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134818]

Mrs. McGuire: The information currently held centrally by the Department is the number of complaints of bullying investigated by the Departments central team of investigators.

During the last 12 months (for the period April 2006 to March 2007) the Department for Work and Pensions central team of investigators has received 102 complaints of bullying of which 32 were upheld.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [135005]

Mrs. McGuire: On 12 June 2006 the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs announced a set of sustainable operations targets for the Government Estate. These targets included mandating Government Departments to source at least 10 per cent. of electricity from renewable sources, such as wind, wave, tidal, solar, thermal and photovoltaics (PVs), by March 2008.

During 2005-06 DWP sourced 206,087,269 kilowatt hours of electricity from renewable sources. This equates to 62.9 per cent. of the total DWP consumption of 327,460,763 kilowatt hours of electricity during the year.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135384]

Mrs. McGuire: The information currently held centrally by the Department is the number of complaints of sexual harassment investigated by the Department's central team of investigators.

During the last 12 months (for the period April 2006 to March 2007) the Department for Work and Pensions central team of investigators has received 20 complaints of sexual harassment of which 13 were upheld.

Departments: Statistics

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the quarterly statistical summary costs to produce in each of the last four quarters. [133902]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on the cost of producing the quarterly statistical summary is not available.

Estimates for the annual costs of national statistics are contained in the relevant national statistics annual report and accounts, which are available on the national statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=1051.

The last year these were produced was 2004-05.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the results of each staff survey in his Department in each of the last five years. [133900]

Mrs. McGuire: Over the last five years, DWP has routinely published its staff survey results within the public domain. Survey results have been supplied to main Libraries in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland as well as those in Oxford and Cambridge. Last year, following a request from Nicola Beckford, BBC Political Programmes, Cabinet Office arranged for direct access to all main Government Departments' survey results through the civil service website. DWP Survey 2004 and 2005 results can already be accessed there. Results for DWP Survey 2006 will also appear there shortly. In addition, DWP is making separate arrangements to place its staff survey results, since 2002, on the DWP website.

Grandparents: Parental Responsibility

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 April 2007, Official Report, column 866W, on grandparents: parental responsibility, for what reasons the information is not available; and if he will take steps to make it available. [135112]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information about the family relationship between a claimant and any dependant children is not needed for the assessment of income-related benefit claims, so it is not recorded. We have no plans to change this.

Housing Benefit: Homelessness

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1180W, on housing benefit, what amendments were made to his proposed changes to the housing benefit subsidy arrangements for homeless households following his Department's meetings with the local authority associations in August, November and December 2006 and January 2007. [133735]

Mr. Plaskitt: The changes were a short-term measure to address the very large increase in expenditure on temporary accommodation and longer term proposals to change the funding scheme for temporary accommodation in the future. No amendments were made to the changes after meeting with Local Authority Associations.

Housing Benefit: Temporary Accommodation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1238W, on housing benefit, what the average cost was of non-housing revenue account expenditure on each homeless household in temporary accommodation in each year since 1997-98 (a) in cash terms and (b) at 2006-07 prices. [133736]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

IT Projects

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Twickenham of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1239W, on IT projects, what the purpose was of the benefits processing replacement programme (BPRP); how it was related to the customer accounting and payment strategy; and through what new programme he expects some of the spend on the BPRP to be of future value. [134149]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Gentleman with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 2 May 2007

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the benefits processing replacement programme (BPRP) and the customer accounting and payment strategy (CAPS). This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

BPRP was launched in November 2004 to develop a replacement for our legacy IT systems, which calculate benefit payments in Jobcentre Plus and the Disability and Carers Service. CAPS was a much earlier Departmental IT programme with the aim of developing and implementing a replacement for the order book payment system. This would have provided customers with a single payment account and a smart card to access their benefit payments through the Post Office network. There is no connection between the two programmes.

We expect that a substantial part of the investment in BPRP will be of future benefit to the Department. For example, software licences and a testing and development environment have already been of benefit to other IT projects in Jobcentre Plus, and will be of use as we develop IT support for the employment and support allowance. Additionally, some of the planning and design work undertaken by BPRP will be of value to Jobcentre Plus in taking forward our IT Strategy.

I hope this is helpful.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to reply to the letter of 13 March from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on the Disability Discrimination Act. [134724]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 30 April 2007]: I replied to the hon. Gentleman's letter on 26 April 2007.

New Deal Schemes: Self-employed

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what projection he has made of the number of people likely to go through the new deal self-employment programme in the next 12 months; and how many went through it in each of the last three years; [125884]

(2) what the cost is to the public purse of an unemployed person returning to work under (a) the new deal self-employment programme and (b) other employment programmes. [125893]

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people completed the new deal self-employment programme in the last three years for which figures are available. [126061]

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people are expected to participate in the new deal self-employment programme in 2007-08; and how many people participated in the programme in each of the last three years; [126537]

(2) what assessment he has made of the cost to the public purse for an unemployed person to return to work under the new deal self-employment programme compared with other employment programmes; [126538]

(3) whether his Department has assessed the relative rates at which participants return to work under the new deal self-employment programme compared with other employment programmes. [126618]

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people are expected to pass through the new deal self-employment programme in 2007; and what the figure was in each of the last three years; [124686]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the relative merits of returning to work under the new deal self-employment programme compared with other employment programmes. [124687]

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the relative benefits to (a) Government and (b) unemployed people of returning to work under the new deal self-employment programme and other employment programmes; [125769]

(2) how many people he expects to go through the new deal self-employment programme in 2007-08; and how many went through in each of the previous three years; [125772]

(3) how much it costs the public purse on average for an unemployed person to return to work under (a) the new deal self-employment programme and (b) other employment programmes. [125779]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of an unemployed person returning to work under (a) the new deal self-employment programme and (b) other employment programmes; [126843]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people likely to go through the new deal self-employment programme in 2007; and how many went through the programme in each of the last three years; [126844]

(3) whether his Department has assessed the relative effectiveness of returning to work under the new deal self-employment programme and other employment programmes. [126874]

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether he has estimated the cost to the public purse of assisting an unemployed person to return to work under the (a) new deal self-employment programme and (b) other employment programmes; [127435]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people likely to participate in the new deal self-employment programme in the next 12 months; and how many people participated in each of the previous three years. [127436]

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the new deal self-employment programme at returning people to work compared with other employment programmes. [129256]

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the new deal self-employment programme; and if he will make a statement. [130400]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Members to the written answer I gave on 23 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1184-86W.

Personal Capability Assessments

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2007, Official Report, column 1056W, on personal capability assessments, who owns the LiMA software. [134249]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Logic integrated Medical Assessment (LiMA) computer program is used by Atos Origin Medical Services and supports doctors carrying out disability assessments on behalf of the Department for Work and Pensions. The DWP hold copyright and intellectual property rights over the program and license a third party—Atos Origin Medical Services—to use, customise, distribute, incorporate, market, maintain, support, sell and sub-license LiMA in return for payment of a royalty to the DWP.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support his Department plans to provide to (a) A2 and (b) A8 nationals in 2007-08; and what the estimated cost is of providing this support. [134317]

Mr. Jim Murphy: For details of the support available to A2 and A8 nationals, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the written answer given on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 274W.

The information on cost is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Correspondence

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many mail items were sent by those bodies that award (a) pension credit, (b) housing benefit, (c) income support, (d) jobseeker's allowance, (e) incapacity benefit, (f) council tax benefit and (g) state pension for each of the last five years; how many of these were sent to deceased individuals; what arrangements are in place to ensure that the databases of these organisations are updated with details of individuals who have moved house; and if he will make a statement. [132016]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information requested is listed in the following table. Housing and council tax benefit are awarded by the claimant's local authority and therefore, are not included in the table. The information is extracted from management information held by the Department's two Regional Delivery Centres and does not include numbers of mail items sent from the Department's local offices about these benefits as this information is not held centrally and could be obtained only by disproportionate cost.

Volume	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
(a) Pension credit	3,053,168	9,601,349	16,826,461	14,595,985	11,694,195
(c) Income support	40,579,060	36,211,335	25,970,123	21,882,796	21,575,397
(d) Jobseeker's allowance	36,731,443	33,285,018	26,238,083	19,584,809	19,806,068
(e) Incapacity benefit	15,082,958	12,306,938	11,357,700	9,214,905	9,860,895
(g) State pension	26,305,633	25,399,385	24,973,194	19,251,923	26,755,872

The information about how many mail items were sent to deceased individuals is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The Department has processes in place to collect death notifications from the Office for National Statistics (for England and Wales), the General Registrar (Scotland) and the General Registrar (Northern Ireland) on a weekly basis in order to update records. However, many notifications are received from the next of kin in advance of the notification from the Registrars. As part of the Office for National Statistics Modernisation Programme, dates of death will be notified to the Department on a daily basis from March 2008 which should ensure the level of notifications sent to deceased individuals by the Department is minimised.

The Department received over 18.5 million notifications of change of address in 2006, relating to the actual number of individuals who have moved. For example if a family consisting of man, wife and two children changed address, we would expect to receive four changes to personal details, if the children were the subjects of a child benefit claim. Every effort is made to ensure databases are updated with change of address details as soon as they are received.

Temporary Accommodation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1180W, on housing benefit: homelessness, if his Department will require local authorities to increase their General Fund contribution to the costs of placing homeless households in temporary accommodation. [133734]

Mr. Plaskitt: There is no requirement for local authorities to increase the contribution from the General Fund when placing homeless households in temporary accommodation.

Temporary Accommodation: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1180W, on housing benefit: homelessness, whether his Department has assessed Westminster city council's ability to procure short-term leased temporary accommodation for homeless households within its area following the introduction of his proposed changes to housing benefit subsidy arrangements in 2007-08. [133733]

Mr. Plaskitt: No assessment was done of the procurement of short term leased accommodation in Westminster city council's area. The changes introduced in April 2007 to the subsidy scheme for temporary accommodation were a modest reduction in the available subsidy and should not have an impact on an authority's ability to secure temporary accommodation.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arts: Grants

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking through the spending review to improve provisions for the arts in Northern Ireland following the reduction in Lottery funding from 2009. [134813]

Maria Eagle: Negotiations on the comprehensive spending review are at an early stage. The outcome will be known later this year.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what in-year financial monitoring returns and adjustments for the Northern Ireland departments were made in 2006-07; and what (a) slippages, (b) easements and (c) pressures identified and re-allocations have been made. [132491]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested has been placed in the Library of the House.

Health Professions: Training

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applicants in Northern Ireland are in the process of applying for posts via modernising medical careers; how many posts are available in Northern Ireland; and how many such posts in the 2007 round are for (a) specialist training and (b) fixed-term specialist training appointments. [135535]

Paul Goggins: Current figures show that there have been 2,559 applications for posts in Northern Ireland. Many applicants have applied for more than one post A detailed breakdown of applications per applicant is not currently available.

By August 2007 there will be:

(a) 406 Specialist training posts; and

(b) 211 Fixed term specialist training posts.

Hospitals: Hygiene

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, columns 891-92W, on hospitals: hygiene, how much of the £400,000 funding provided in 2006-07 each hospital trust in Northern Ireland accessed to run hand hygiene/clean care campaigns; what the nature was of each campaign; and what assessment has been made of their effectiveness. [134892]

Paul Goggins: I have placed a detailed report on the matter raised by the hon. Gentleman in the Library.

Housing: Low Incomes

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to provide affordable housing in Northern Ireland. [135036]

Mr. Hanson: Government are dealing with the issue of affordable housing principally through the social housing development programme, the co-ownership shared equity scheme, the house sales scheme for social tenants and the housing benefit system.

The social housing development programme last year provided an additional 1,625 new homes, funded by Government grant of some £132 million supplemented by housing association private borrowing.

The co-ownership shared equity scheme has assisted almost 19,000 households into home ownership since 1978; with more than half a billion pounds of public and private funds invested. Recent changes, such as increasing the property value limits and reducing the rental charge on the shared equity portion of the property, have made the scheme more accessible for those on low incomes.

The right to buy scheme, offering social houses for sale to tenants at a discount, has facilitated some 120,000 tenants into home ownership.

Last year, over £386 million was paid to those in receipt of housing benefit. Over 70,000 of recipients were in social housing and almost 62,000 were in private housing.

In April 2007, I received Sir John Semple's review into affordable housing. This report made a series of practical suggestions across a range of policy areas. These proposals are now being considered.

Junior Doctors: Unemployment

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of junior doctors working in the NHS in Northern Ireland who will be unemployed in August. [134957]

Paul Goggins: It is not possible to determine at this stage how many doctors working in Northern Ireland will not obtain post in NI.

Junior Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding was available before August 2006 for the provision of additional doctors to ensure that junior doctors' working rotas would be compliant with the European Working Time Directive. [134961]

Paul Goggins: In 2006-07 the Department allocated funding to the Junior Doctors Implementation Support Group (ISG). ISG assigned £5.5 million of this budget to assist Boards and HPSS Trusts in achieving European Working Time Directive (EWTD) compliance. This included provision for the recruitment of additional doctors.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to ensure that sufficient junior doctors are employed in Northern Ireland to enable all their working rotas to be compliant with the European Working Time Directive in August 2007. [134966]

Paul Goggins: The revised recruitment arrangements agreed in April are aimed at ensuring foil recruitment to all junior doctors' posts for August 2007 thus ensuring the maintenance of codes of compliance with the European Working Time Directive (EWTD).

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the career structure for junior doctors in Northern Ireland from August 2007 on (a) waiting lists for outpatients appointments and (b) waiting lists for elective surgery. [134967]

Paul Goggins: An assessment on the impact of the career structure for junior doctors and its impact on outpatient and elective surgery waiting lists has not been made.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps were taken to ensure that sufficient medical staff would be available to maintain a high standard of patient care during the first round of Medical Training Application Service interviews in Northern Ireland. [134978]

Paul Goggins: Trust chief executive, medical and clinical directors and HR directors were notified of the timeline for recruiting doctors to speciality training, in order to ensure that arrangements could be made for the release of panel members and candidates to attend interviews.

Maze Project

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his estimate is of what further expenditure on the Maze project will be before the end of 2007; and how much will be spent on (a) consultancy fees, (b) staff costs and (c) facilitating the work of the Maze Panel. [134072]

Mr. Hanson: Estimated expenditure in 2007-08 on the full Maze/Long Kesh programme (including stadium costs) is some £7.6 million.

Of this, £4.1 million is estimated for consultancy fees and £0.4 million for staff costs. The costs of the Maze/Long Kesh Monitoring Group are limited to travel and attendance fees, which last year cost around £2,000.

All expenditure post 8 May will be a matter for the local Executive.

Medical Training Application Service

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the outcome of the first round of Medical Training Application Service interviews in Northern Ireland to be known. [134955]

Paul Goggins: The last date of speciality interviews is 31 May. All job offers for speciality training programmes and fixed term speciality training appointments will be made by 7 June 2007.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he will take to provide assistance to junior doctors in Northern Ireland who are not successful in the round 1 Medical Training Application Service interviews. [134956]

Paul Goggins: Career advice and support will be offered to all candidates not successful in round 1.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) whether doctors in Northern Ireland who have completed a 12-month fixed term specialty training appointment at year 1 may apply for a specialist training year 1 post in the same specialty in August 2008; [134958]

(2) what estimate he has made of the percentage of doctors appointed to a fixed term specialty training appointment year 1 post in August 2007 in Northern Ireland who are expected to progress to a specialist training year 2 post in the same specialty and unit of application in August 2008. [134959]

Paul Goggins: Doctors who are appointed to fixed term training appointments from August 2007 will be able to apply for speciality training programmes where vacancies occur and in keeping with the 2008 person specification.

Opportunities to progress will be determined by posts becoming available either through vacancies or a reconfiguration of training opportunities.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the proportion of junior doctors' time which has been used for (a) activities related to modernising medical careers and (b) providing a service for patients in the last 12 months. [134960]

Paul Goggins: A series of workshops were organised to advise experienced SHOs and foundation trainees about MMC and the new recruitment process. These were run outside normal working hours to ensure least disruption to the service. Year 2 foundation trainees are required to attend a 10 day regional generic skills programme, which is deducted from their study leave entitlement.

Trainees are entitled to study leave and annual leave in accordance with the terms and conditions of service and consistent with maintaining essential services. On-site training of doctors and the provision of a service to patients are inextricably linked therefore it is not possible to extract this information.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what criteria other than interview performance are used in Northern Ireland to select doctors for run through training to become consultants; [134963]

(2) what the average duration has been of Medical Training Application Service round 1 interviews in each speciality in Northern Ireland; [134964]

(3) whether candidates' Medical Training Application Service application forms will be taken into account when selecting individuals for speciality training and fixed term speciality training appointments for August 2007. [134965]

Paul Goggins: For selection to the run through training programme, candidates complete a 30 minute interview, in addition to providing copies of references, a training portfolio and evidence of acquired clinical and academic skills. Panel members will have access to all relevant documentation including the candidate's application form.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps were taken to ensure that applicants in Northern Ireland would not be aware of clinical scenarios raised in the first round of Medical Training Application Service interviews prior to their interview in March. [134977]

Paul Goggins: All interview questions and clinical scenarios were kept secure and confidential by panel members and the small number of deanery staff involved in the interview process.

Out-Patients: Attendance

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many missed (a) hospital and (b) general practitioner appointments there were in each of the health boards in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [135351]

Paul Goggins: The total number of missed hospital appointments in each financial year 2001-02 to 2005-06 is provided in the following table. These figures represent the number of outpatient appointments where a patient did not attend and failed to give advanced warning to the hospital.

Health board	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
EHSSB	131,449	128,293	128,766	123,672	125,143
NHSSB	23,587	23,019	22,677	22,472	23,355
SHSSB	31,624	29,066	28,812	26,879	24,617
WHSSB	25,153	23,592	24,554	24,715	26,893
NI Total	211,813	203,970	204,809	197,738	200,008

Note:
Data for the financial year 2006-07 will be published in July 2007.
Data are disaggregated by Health Board of provider Trust.
Source:
Departmental Return KH09.

The Department does not hold information on missed appointments at GP surgeries. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pension Credit

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications for pension credit were made in Northern Ireland between 1 April 2004 and 31 March 2007; how many have been processed; and how many are outstanding. [135341]

Mr. Hanson: The Pension Service received 18,335 claims for pension credit between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2007. A separate figure for pension credit claims for the period 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005 is not available. Management information systems were not available at this time.

The Pension Service processed 19,088 applications between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2007. This figure includes some applications, which were carried forward from the previous year. A separate figure for pension credit claims processed for the period 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005 is not available. Management information systems were not available at this time.

At 30 April 2007 the total number of pension credit claims outstanding was 1,854. This includes claims which have to be previewed to check all information has been received, those where we have asked customers for further information and those with all the required information to enable a decision to be taken.

Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his estimate is of the number of people in Northern Ireland making (a) no provision and (b) insufficient provision for retirement pension; and what percentage of the workforce these figures represent. [134812]

Mr. Hanson: Results from the Family Resources Survey 2005-06 show that 28,500 people (4.2 per cent. of the Northern Ireland work force) have no provision for state pension, 337,500 people (49.4 per cent. of the work force) have no provision for private pensions and 21,500 people (3.1 per cent. of the work force) have no provision for either state pension or private pensions.

The figures to enable an estimate to be made of the percentage of the work force in Northern Ireland making insufficient provision for retirement pension are not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Notes:

1. Figures refer to persons from working age 20 to state pension age who are either full or part-time employed (whether employees or self-employed) and do not include those not working.

2. Estimates are taken from the Family Resources Survey 2005-06 which is the latest year for which data are available. The estimates of numbers are less robust than the estimates of percentages.

3. Members who are contributing to a private pension scheme include those who are building up rights within a salary related scheme, those who are currently contributing to a scheme or whose employer makes a contribution on their behalf. Private pension refers to an occupational, personal or stakeholder pension scheme.

4. Individuals who contribute to both occupational and personal schemes are counted only once in these estimates.

Pensions: Information Services

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of work undertaken by Social Security Agency pension advisers; if he will take steps to retain the pension advisers employed by the Social Security Agency; and if he will make a statement. [135340]

Mr. Hanson: While no formal assessment has been undertaken of the Social Security Agency's pension advisers, they successfully met their performance targets for 2006-07. The agency is currently assessing the resources required to ensure that the needs of older people are met.

The agency recognises that older people are a vulnerable customer group and that pension advisers play an important role in meeting their needs. The agency remains committed to ensuring that older people can access information and advice on benefit related issues and will continue to offer a pension adviser service.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many attacks on school teachers there were in schools in each education and library board area of Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [135352]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not collect the information requested.

However, from the 2002-03 school year, statistics on the reasons for suspension have been gathered annually from each education and library board and relate to the number of individual suspensions, not to the number of pupils suspended.

The following table details the number of suspensions[1] for physical attacks on staff, in each education and library board, in the 2002-03—2004-05 school years.

[1] The count of occasions is based on each incidence of suspension, where an incident is defined as a count from the first day a pupil was suspended until the last day suspended. Prior to 2004-05, the count of occasions was based on each record of suspension identified by the education and library boards, and in some instances longer periods of suspension may have had more than one record. This change is due to an improvement in the data collection systems for suspensions in the education and library boards, which has enabled better analysis of the data. As a result, the number of occasions pupils were suspended in 2004-05 has decreased from previous years. However, care should be taken when comparing the number of occasions in 2004-05 with the number of occasions in previous years.

Physical attacks on staff

Education and library board	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Belfast	75	73	84
Western	99	72	49
North Eastern	91	49	51
South Eastern	64	79	57
Southern	36	47	21
NI Total	365	320	262

Reasons for expulsion were first collected in 2003-04. The numbers involved are relatively small and are not disaggregated between education and library boards because of the risk that a school/pupil may be identifiable.

The following table shows the total number of pupils expelled for physical attacks on staff for the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years.

Physical attacks on staff

	Number
2003-04	7
2004-05	7

The suspension and expulsions statistics for 2005-06 school year are currently being analysed by our statistics branch and will be placed on the DE website when this has been completed.

Sewage

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to ensure that the spillage of raw sewage on to the main Londonderry to Limavady road close to BallyKelly Primary School will not recur. [135149]

David Cairns: The Water and Sewerage Services (NI) Order 2006 transferred responsibility for the delivery of water and sewerage services from the Department's Water Service Agency to a statutory water and sewerage undertaker. A Government-owned company, Northern Ireland Water (NIW) has been appointed as the undertaker and the issue raised is an operational matter for it. I have asked the chief executive of NIW (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of (a) HIV, (b) chlamydia, (c) gonorrhoea, (d) syphilis, (e) genital warts and (f) genital herpes there have been in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [134890]

Paul Goggins: The number of cases of sexually transmitted diseases in Northern Ireland in the past 12 months is not available. However, the number of new episodes of sexually transmitted diseases that were recorded at Genito-Urinary Medicine clinics across Northern Ireland during 2006 is presented in the following table.

Condition	Number of new episodes
(a) HIV	55
(b) Chlamydia	2,686
(c) Gonorrhoea	292
(d) Syphilis	82
(e) Anogenital Warts	3,100
(f) Anogential Herpes Simplex	418

Notes:
1. Figures relate to the period 1 January 2006 to 31 December 2006. The figures are currently provisional and may subsequently change.
2. These figures relate to episodes of diagnosis and/or treatment of infection or disease and not individual people. Thus one individual may contribute to more than one episode.

Unemployment Benefits

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were on unemployment benefit in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [135046]

Mr. Hanson: Jobseeker's allowance replaced unemployment benefit in October 1996. The average number of people claiming jobseeker's allowance between 1997 and 2006 is shown in the following table.

	Average number of claimants
1997	55,665
1998	56,897
1999	48,978
2000	42,959
2001	40,627
2002	39,965
2003	37,885
2004	34,528
2005	31,889
2006	29,902

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many grievance procedures have been initiated in her Department in the last 12 months. [135167]

Mr. Lammy: There were no reports of the grievance procedures being initiated formally in DCMS in the last year. The Department's policy is to seek to resolve any problems or concerns raised by staff informally through contact with line management, staff counsellors, trade union representatives or HR as appropriate. Only those cases where the matter cannot be resolved quickly or to the complainant's satisfaction, are recorded and dealt with under the formal grievance procedures.

Departments: EU Council

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many EU Council meetings she has attended since taking up her post; and who represents her if she is unable to attend. [133752]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 30 April 2007]: Ministers and civil servants attend many meetings as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not usual practice to disclose details or attendance at such meetings. However, I can confirm that the British Government are always represented at EU Council meetings.

Digital Broadcasting: Broadcasting Programmes

Lynda Waltho: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the public interest in ensuring plurality in (a) the broadcasting of sports rights and (b) the supply of digital multi-channel television. [134483]

Mr. Woodward: The information is as follows:

(a) It is Government policy to ensure that key sporting events can be made available to all television viewers. Therefore some events are protected by law as "listed events". Beyond these arrangements, sports bodies are free to sell their rights to whomever they please, subject to competition law.

(b) The Government believe there is a strong public interest in securing a dynamic and competitive market for broadcasting—including digital TV—in the UK. This was one of the key policy objectives underpinning the Communications Act 2003.

Digital Switchover

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1551-52W, on digital switchover, whether persons registered as blind or partially sighted but not included in the Department for Work and Pensions records were included in her estimate of eligible persons for the targeted assistance scheme. [135229]

Mr. Woodward: The estimates take account of people who are registered as blind and partially sighted but who are not on DWP records and so cannot be allocated to any particular parliamentary constituency or ITV region.

Equality: Grants

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what grants have been made to institutions in (a) the UK and (b) the North East for events marking the bicentenary of the first Act to abolish the transatlantic slave trade. [134772]

Mr. Lammy: The Heritage Lottery Fund has made 115 awards totalling over £11 million to projects related to the bicentenary of the abolition of the slave trade and the slave trade generally.

Five of these have been in the North East (one completed project and four approved projects). They are:

£40,300 to Durham University Archives for Learning for a larger project which includes an element on the slave trade. (Completed)

£50,000 to Tyne and Wear Museums for Remembering Slavery; an exhibition showcasing objects, photographs, paintings and documents from the Museum's collections related to the trans-Atlantic slave trade. (Approved)

£49,400 to Stockton Museums Service for 'Manacles and Money'. (Approved)

£49,000 to the Black History Consortium for their Commemoration of the Bicentenary of the Abolition of Slavery in 2007. (Approved)

£17,500 to Identity on Tyne for 'Mapped Roots'. (Approved). This project was funded in collaboration with Arts Council England, which has awarded a further £20,000.

So far, Arts Council England has made a total of 40 grants to bicentenary projects totalling £1,282,354. Two of these projects are in the North East: the Mapped Roots project and Changing Perspectives, a two year study of Black families and their stories of migration into the North East, which has received £5,000 for its first stage.

The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) have so far made 17 grants totalling £81,900 across the UK. These include two MLA North East Strategic Commissioning Grants. The first for £10,000 to the Literary and Philosophical Society to conduct a mapping exercise to identify and list slavery related archives and documents held by four key record offices and libraries in the region. The second for £10,000 to the Northumberland Museum Archives and Country Park and Durham University Library Archives Special Collections to create a number of e-learning packages focusing on slavery for use in schools across the North East region.

The Awards for All grants programme funded by the Big Lottery Fund with the Arts Council, Heritage Lottery Fund and Sport England have so far made 23 grants totalling £151,641 to projects to mark the bicentenary across England and Wales. None of these have been in the North East.

Film

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to foster and develop the growth of the British film industry. [134576]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are fostering the growth of the British film industry through their strategic agency the UK Film Council. This was set up in 2000 to create a sustainable film industry and to promote the widest possible enjoyment and understanding of cinema throughout the nations and regions of the UK. The Government have also introduced generous new fiscal incentives to support the production of British films by delivering benefit directly to producers and by stimulating inward investment into the UK film industry from overseas.

Following extensive consultation, the UK Film Council has recently submitted its next three year plan to my Department. This sets out the Council's future strategic and funding priorities and details the initiatives it will be running to deliver these objectives.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what the investment returns were for the Film Council from National Lottery funding in August 2006; [134836]

(2) how much the Film Council received from the National Lottery in August 2006. [134837]

Mr. Woodward: The following table shows the UK's Film Council income from the National Lottery Distribution Fund in August 2006, and in the entire financial year 2006-07.

Period	Operator -related income to nearest £1,000	Investment income to nearest £1,000	Total to nearest £1,000
August 2006	2,367,000	142,000	2,509,000
Financial year 2006-07	24,513,000	1,776,000	26,289,000

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department plans to take to make more effective the delivery networks identified in its Capability Review. [134855]

Mr. Lammy: My Department is fully committed to improving the effectiveness of the delivery networks identified in its Capability Review. Details of how this will be achieved are outlined in the Permanent Secretary's response to the Capability Review (pages 5-8) and in "Transforming DCMS", the transformation action plan. Both are published on the DCMS website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/Reference_library/Publications/

Internet: Regulation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with (a) the Chancellor of the Exchequer and (b) Ofcom on the introduction of the new regulatory system for internet sites referred to by the Chancellor in a speech on 7 March; and when these discussions took place. [135218]

Mr. Lammy: There have been no discussions between my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and the Chancellor on the regulation of internet sites.

The independent regulator, Ofcom, does not regulate content on the internet, but does have a statutory duty to promote media literacy under the Communications Act 2003. In pursuit of that duty, Ofcom has been working to raise people's awareness of how to use web browsers, electronic programme guides and other tools in order to navigate safely and effectively. It is currently developing proposals for the management of audio and visual content using content labelling and tools such as internet filtering and firewalls. DCMS and Ofcom officials have had periodic discussions about Ofcom's plans in this area.

Joint Creative Economy Programme

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what invitations she has issued to her Department's Fashion Summit to inform the Joint Creative Economy Programme; and to whom. [135011]

Mr. Woodward: To inform the further development of the joint DCMS/DTI Creative Economy Programme we have held a number of industry summits, including one for the fashion industry.

For each summit, we invited members of the relevant industry giving them an opportunity to comment on the analysis underpinning our work and on the areas we had identified for further action.

Invitations to the fashion summit—held on 16 April at the London College of Fashion—were issued to the following people.

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will publish the supporting papers provided for the industry summits held to inform the further development of the Joint Creative Economy Programme. [135018]

Mr. Woodward: It is not possible to release the supporting papers provided for the industry summits as this would inhibit the formulation or development of Government policy. The papers were intended to inform the development of policy underpinning our approach to supporting the creative economy. We will publish the outcome of our discussion in the forthcoming Creative Economy Green Paper, planned for the summer.

Mass Media

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the new text-based labelling system of media content to be introduced by Ofcom referred to by the Chancellor in a speech on 7 March, will be applied to the print media. [135219]

Mr. Woodward: The independent regulator, Ofcom, has a duty to promote media literacy under the Communications Act 2003. In pursuit of that duty, Ofcom has been developing proposals for a common labelling framework which would extend to material either broadcast or found on electronic communications networks.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she expects London council tax payers to receive a refund following the sale of land after the Olympic games have been held. [133290]

Tessa Jowell: Decisions on the London council tax are a matter for the Mayor of London.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the revised memorandum of understanding with the Mayor of London on the costs of the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympic games; and if she will make a statement. [134171]

Tessa Jowell: My statement to the House on 15 March, set out that the Mayor of London and I have agreed to rewrite our memorandum of understanding to put in place profit sharing arrangements to enable the lottery and future regeneration needs of the local area to benefit from the returns on the investment that we are making in the Olympic park.

Work on this has begun; when it is completed I will have a copy of the revised memorandum placed in the Library of the House.

Radio: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the licensed commercial radio stations in (a) Romford, (b) Essex and (c) London. [134581]

Mr. Woodward: I understand that the following are the licensed commercial analogue and digital radio services in each area:

(a) Romford-Time 107.5

(b) Essex—Essex FM, Classic Gold, Dream 107.7 (Chelmsford), Chill, Dream 100 (Tendring), Fun Radio, Kiss 100, Our Kind of Music, Passion for the Planet, SGR Colchester, Ten 17 (Harlow), XFM.

(c) London—Capital Disney, Capital Gold, Capital Radio, Chill, Choice FM, Classic Gold Digital, Club Asia, Easy Radio, Fun Radio, Heart 106.2, Heat, Galaxy Digital, Gaydar, Kerrang, Kismat Radio, Kiss 100, LBC 97.3 FM, LBC News 1152 AM, London 94.9, London Greek Radio (Haringey), London Turkish Radio (north London), Magic 105.4 FM, Panjab Radio, Passion, Premier Christian Radio, Radio Jackie (Kingston-upon-Thames), Real Radio Digital, Smash Hits, 102.2 Smooth FM, Spectrum Radio, Sunrise Radio, The Arrow, The Hits, Time 106.8 (Thamesmead), Time 107.3 (Lewisham), UCB UK, Virgin Radio 105.8 FM, Virgin Radio Groove, Virgin Classic Rock, Virgin Radio Xtreme, Xfm, Yarr Radio.

Radio: Regulation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to reduce the regulatory burden on analogue commercial radio. [134580]

Mr. Woodward: The regulatory regime for analogue commercial radio is established under the Communications Act 2003 and the Broadcasting Acts. Detailed implementation is the responsibility of the independent communications regulator Ofcom. Ofcom are currently consulting on phase 3 of their review of the future of radio and, subject to the outcome of that consultation, Ofcom and the Government will consider the case for reducing regulatory or legislative burdens on analogue commercial radio.

Sports: Scotland

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much National Lottery money was paid to sports-based causes in Scotland via distributors other than SportScotland in each of the last five years. [134698]

Mr. Caborn: The Big Lottery Fund has supplied the following information about grants to physical activity and sport by it and its predecessor bodies. The information covers the last five complete financial years.

Television: Telephone Services

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is on dealing with the recent television premium rate phone call incidents. [134579]

Mr. Woodward: Responsibility for the regulation of these services rests with the independent regulators, Ofcom and ICSTIS. In response to recent concerns, ICSTIS has set out a range of actions aimed at restoring public trust in premium rate services. This includes the introduction of a licensing regime for all premium rate service providers operating participation TV services. In addition, Ofcom is now undertaking an inquiry into these services and will examine consumer protection issues. It will report to the Ofcom Board in early summer. In the meantime, Ofcom is investigating specific allegations. Where this exposes serious failures of compliance, or failures to protect the interests of consumers, Ofcom has the power to impose statutory sanctions and intends to use them.

Tourism

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to increase the number of people holidaying in the UK from (a) overseas and (b) the UK. [135205]

Mr. Woodward: The forthcoming tourism strategy for the 2012 games, which my Department will publish in partnership with VisitBritain and Visit London, will set out the framework under which the public and private sectors can work to increase (a) the numbers of inbound visitors to the UK, and (b) the numbers of domestic residents holidaying (or visiting attractions) within this country.

The strategy will build on my Department's existing policies for promoting and supporting the tourism industry through marketing at UK and England levels, and support for the domestic industry in areas including product quality and workforce skills.

I expect the strategy to be published before the end of July.

Tourism: North-east Region

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of likely revenues from tourism in the North East of England over the next five years; and if she will make a statement. [134453]

Mr. Woodward: No forecasts have been made for the revenues from tourism in the North East.

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the value of tourism to the North East in each year since 2002. [134454]

Mr. Woodward: The table shows the total spend in the North East from (i) UK residents (with an overnight stay) and (ii) overseas residents, since 2002.

Domestic overnight spend[1]

North East	£ million
2002[2]	868
2003	824
2004	700
2005	822

[1] The methodology for the UKTS changed in 2005 meaning that comparisons with previous years should be treated with caution. This change occurred as a result of concerns with the quality of 2004 data, which are thought to be an under-representation of the true position.
[2] For 2002, data relate to Northumbria only.

North East	£ million
2002	169
2003	213
2004	194
2005	206

In addition, account should be taken of the total spend of day visitors to, or within, the North East. The Leisure Day Visits Survey in 2002-03 recorded a total spend of £800 million to destinations in the North East. It is not possible to provide a time series for this information as the surveys are run intermittently.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) responsibilities and (b) functions are of the UK's role as (i) G8 lead nation for the counter narcotics campaign as set out in the Joint Declaration of an Enduring Relationship between the UK and Afghanistan and (ii) partner nation in the field for counter narcotics, as set out in the Enduring Relationship Action Plan 2006-07. [134005]

Margaret Beckett: The UK took on lead G8 responsibility for counter narcotics following the Bonn Agreement in 2001. In 2006 it was agreed that the concept of 'lead nation' was redundant, as the Afghan Government now had lead responsibility for all aspects of security sector reform. The UK therefore became Afghanistan's 'partner nation' on counter narcotics.

Signed in July 2005, the Joint Declaration of An Enduring Relationship between the UK and Afghanistan is a bilateral agreement between the UK and Afghanistan. The Enduring Relationship Action Plan 2006-07 sets out the commitments between the two Governments under the 2005 Joint Declaration. Both are available in the Library of the House. Under both the Joint Declaration and the Action Plan, the UK agreed to help Afghanistan mobilise and co-ordinate international efforts to end the drugs trade, in support of the four national priorities identified in the Afghan Government's national drug control strategy (NDCS) - targeting the trafficker, strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods, reducing demand and developing state institutions. We are spending £270 million over three years in support of the NDCS.

Bolivia

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a Minister from her Department last visited Bolivia. [134125]

Mr. Hoon: The then Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister, the late Nicholas Ridley, visited Bolivia in 1980. Since then a number of other Ministerial visits to Bolivia have taken place. The then Minister for Trade, right hon. Brian Wilson, visited in May 1999 and the then Secretary of State for International Development, the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood (Clare Short), visited in August 1999. Most recently, the then Minister for Energy, right hon. Brian Wilson, visited in 2002.

China: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she has raised the matter of the provision of assistance by British consular officials to British nationals of Chinese ethnic origin in China, Hong Kong and the Macao Special Administrative Regions with the Chinese Government in the last 12 months; and whether she plans to take up this matter with the Chinese Government in the future. [133593]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not raised the matter of consular assistance to British nationals of Chinese ethnic origin in China, Hong Kong and the Macao Special Administrative Regions in the last 12 months, and has no plans to do so in the immediate future. Consular officials continue to make representations when appropriate.

Cuba: Political Prisoners

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her estimate is of the number of political prisoners in Cuba. [134521]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to him on 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 835W.

We will continue to press the Cuban authorities for the immediate release of all political prisoners.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by her Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [134998]

Mr. Hoon: In the UK, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office purchased 7,069,812 kilowatt hours of energy from renewable sources in the financial year April 2006 to March 2007.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of progress in the political, economic and social conditions in the Iraqi provinces of (a) Al Basrah, (b) Al Muthanna, (c) Dhi Qar and (d) Maysan. [132537]

Margaret Beckett: Political tension in Basra has increased following the recent withdrawal of the Fadila political party from the United Iraqi Alliance (the main Shi'a coalition). This has on occasion erupted into violence. The challenging security situation and the legacy of a distorted command economy have slowed economic development in Basra and unemployment is high. The Government are working to build the capability of local institutions, including through the work of the provincial reconstruction team (PRT). Basra's elected provincial council was the first to write its own provincial development strategy—the key to unlocking central Government investment. The Basra Development Forum has also been an important step towards building a closer co-operation between provincial authorities in Basra and central authorities in Baghdad to help improve the situation.

Muthanna and Dhi Qar were transferred to Iraqi security control last year. Both provinces remain stable and their local authorities have shown themselves capable of managing the challenges they face. Unemployment is high in Dhi Qar, as well as in Muthanna. The Dhi Qar PRT is pursuing a range of projects, from basic infrastructure, water purification and electrical sub-stations, through to an amusement park and museum in Nasiriyah, and support for Dhi Qar artists' groups to improve the quality of life for local citizens. The Muthanna PRT is working with the provincial government to carry forward projects aimed at the province's most pressing problems: unemployment, agricultural reform, water, electricity and transport. In both al-Muthanna and Dhi Qar, the PRTs are working with the provincial authorities to build their budgetary planning capacity.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 914W, on Iraq: peace keeping operations, if she will make it her policy to provide assistance from British overseas posts to Iraqi nationals who have left Iraq after threats of violence because of their work as interpreters with the British Army. [135141]

Dr. Howells: We already consider requests for assistance from British overseas posts to Iraqi nationals who have left Iraq after threats of violence because of their work as interpreters with the British army. As I said in my response to my hon. Friend on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 914W all such requests for assistance are dealt with on a case by case basis, taking account of individual circumstances.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to reply to the letter of 14 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. T.L. Pun. [132490]

Margaret Beckett: The letter sent from my right hon. Friend was received without his constituent's responses to the reasons for refusal provided by the entry clearance officer, preventing my providing a meaningful reply. My officials contacted my right hon. Friend's constituency office on 5 and 20 April to obtain a copy of the paperwork. When officials have received the paperwork from my right hon. Friend's office I will be able to send an appropriate reply.

Nigeria: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she has made representations to the Nigerian Government following the recent presidential and gubernatorial elections on strengthening (a) the Anti-Corruption Commission and (b) the Independent Electoral Commission. [134511]

Mr. McCartney: Immediately after the 21 April presidential elections our high commissioner in Abuja and my hon. Friend the Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullin) made representations to President Obasanjo and President-elect Umaru Musa Yar'Adua, making clear that we were disappointed by the violence, corruption and the Independent National Electoral Commission's management of the elections, and that the Government of Nigeria must address these shortcomings and return to the path of reform, including the fight against corruption.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement on 23 April. The text of the statement is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029391629&a=KArticle&aid=1176969243828&year=2007&month=2007-04-01.

We will continue to make such representations, including on the role of the Independent National Electoral Commission and the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission, until the Government address our concerns.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she expects to receive reports from international observers following the recent presidential and gubernatorial elections in Nigeria. [134512]

Mr. McCartney: The main international observer missions have published preliminary statements. The EU election observation mission published a Statement of Preliminary Findings and Conclusions on 23 April, which is available on the EU website at: www.europa.eu/index_en.htm. The EU mission will publish a final report within two months of the conclusion of the entire electoral process. The chairman of the Commonwealth Observer Group issued an interim statement on 22 April available at: www.thecommonwealth.org/. The final report of the Observer Group will be submitted to the Commonwealth Secretary-General, who in turn will forward it to the Government of Nigeria, the Independent National Electoral Commission, political parties and then to all Commonwealth Governments. The National Democratic Institute issued a preliminary statement of observations and recommendations on 23 April (www.ndi.org). The International Republican Institute issued a statement of Preliminary Findings on 22 April (www.iri.org) and the observer mission of the Economic Community of West African States published Preliminary Declarations on the state elections on 15 April and on the federal elections on 23 April (www.ecowas.int).

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received from European Union election observers on the extent of (a) tampering with ballots and (b) voter intimidation in the recent presidential and gubernatorial elections in Nigeria. [134519]

Mr. McCartney: In its preliminary conclusions on the elections published on 23 April (www.eueomng.org), the EU election observation mission reports that in the state elections, EU observers witnessed incidents of hijacking of ballot boxes. In almost one fifth of polling stations visited, attempts to influence voters were witnessed. Disorder inside polling stations was witnessed in 15 per cent. of polling stations visited during closing and counting. In almost 30 per cent. of collation centres EU observers had indications of proof that polling results were fraudulently changed. EU observers witnessed cases of fraud, such as that in five wards in Zamfara state, where no elections took place but fake results were included in the governorship elections for the wards concerned. On election day disruption, sometimes violent, of the polling and counting processes by groups of thugs was observed in several states.

In the federal elections EU observers witnessed examples of ballot box stuffing, alteration of official result forms, stealing of sensitive polling materials, vote buying and under age voting. In 14 per cent. of observed polling stations attempts were made to influence voters. Cases of vote buying were observed in Niger and Jigawa states. Disorder was observed in 24 per cent. of the result transfer and collation centre processes observed. A number of fraudulent practices were observed. In many polling stations unused ballot papers were marked and stuffed into the ballot box resulting in almost 100 per cent. voter turnout, as observed in Kwara, Gombe, Edo and Niger states.

Violence was judged to have been a major concern and incidents increased as the elections drew nearer. The EU observers state that credible reports indicate a total of at least 200 people were killed in election-related incidents before and during the elections. The widespread use of thugs by a number of political parties created a significant degree of fear and intimidation. Numerous violent incidents were reported by EU observers, often involving destruction of campaign material and party offices, harassment, intimidation and violent clashes between party supporters. Political sponsorship, recruitment and use of thugs was witnessed by EU observers in Borno, Abia, Taraba, Gombe, Bauchi, Kaduna, Zamfara, Niger, Oyo, Osun, Kogi and Edo states. Assaults, assassination of candidates and attempted assassinations of candidates were reported in the pre-election period. A heavier security presence contributed to a reduction in violent incidents in the federal elections. But turnout of women for the federal elections on 21 April appeared to be lower than for the state elections on 14 April, which could have been due, at least in part, to violence during the state elections.

These observations have been confirmed in most respects by my hon. Friend the Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullin) who undertook an observation mission on behalf of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Occupied Territories

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department has taken to ensure that no products emanating from settlements built in occupied territory in breach of the Fourth Geneva Convention are purchased by her Department and its overseas missions. [132723]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not currently have a policy precluding the purchase of goods emanating from the settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. The FCO's policy on the procurement of goods is based on value for money, having due regard to propriety and regularity and ensuring full compliance with the EU consolidated Public Procurement directive, implemented in the UK by the Public Contracts Regulations 2006, where applicable. However, in practice the FCO in London and FCO Posts do not purchase goods from the settlements.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will instruct overseas missions not to purchase and consume products emanating from settlements built in Occupied Territories in breach of the Fourth Geneva Convention. [132724]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave her today (UIN 132723). There is no provision in either the EU consolidated Public Procurement directive or the UK Public Contracts Regulations 2006 (SI 2006 No. 5) to instruct the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's overseas missions in this way and I do not therefore intend to do so.

Occupied Territories: Taxation

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations have been made to Israel and the Palestinian authorities on the release of Palestinian tax and customs revenues collected by Israel. [134525]

Dr. Howells: We welcome Israeli Prime Minister Olmert and Palestinian President Abbas' meeting on 23 December 2006, and the resulting release of US$100 million in Palestinian tax revenues.

At the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 April, EU Foreign Ministers repeated their call for Israel to immediately resume the transfer of withheld Palestinian tax and customs revenues, directly or through the Temporary International mechanism. We support this. Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office raised this issue with the Israeli Embassy in London on 18 April.

We have not made any formal representations to the Palestinian authorities, as it is the Palestinian Authority's money that is being withheld. However, we have discussed the issue with the Palestinian Authority on a number of occasions.

Parliamentary Scrutiny

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which occasions the Government overrode the scrutiny reserve resolution in each of the last five years. [135187]

Mr. Hoon: The following table provides information on the number of overrides in each House since the Government began sending twice-yearly lists to the chairpersons of the House of Commons European Scrutiny Committee and the House of Lords European Union Committee. Details of each case are included in these lists. In each case a Minister overrides the Scrutiny Reserve Resolution, they account for their action in writing to the chairperson of each Scrutiny Committee.

Period	House of Lords	House of Commons
January to June 2003	30	26
July to December 2003	34	33
January to June 2004	13	16
June to December 2004	20	22
January to June 2005[1]	28	52
July to December 2005	17	19
January to June 2006	15	12
July to December 2006	24	29

[1] Figures for the first half of 2005 include a period when Parliament was dissolved and a period immediately after the opening of Parliament, before the European Union Committee in the House of Lords and the European Scrutiny Committee in the House of Commons could be appointed.

Somalia: Terrorism

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to seek a ceasefire by Islamic insurgents in Somalia. [134520]

Mr. McCartney: The UK does not have contact with the Islamist insurgents in Somalia, but we have called for an immediate end to all fighting and publicly urged all parties to commit to a truce and agree a lasting ceasefire.

We have repeatedly made clear that all parties in Somalia need to reject violence and allow the Transitional Federal Government (TFG) to do their job. Any differences that some groups in Mogadishu might have with the TFG should be pursued through the National Reconciliation Congress and dialogue with the TFG rather than by resorting to violence. We condemn any attacks on the TFG, which is the only legitimate route through which governance, peace and stability can be restored to Somalia. At the same time, we have repeatedly made clear to the TFG that they must make genuine attempts to reach out to all groups in Somalia that credibly reject violence.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the government of Sudan on Janjaweed militia activity in Darfur. [134339]

Mr. McCartney: We have pressed the Government of Sudan to act on its obligations under UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1706 (2006). This requires implementation of an effective ceasefire and of the Darfur Peace Agreement, including its provisions for the disarmament of the Janjaweed/armed militias; and a renewed political process between the Government of Sudan and the rebel groups.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary condemned the most recent Government of Sudan bombing raids in North Darfur, between 19 and 21 April, which resulted in a number of civilian injuries and deaths.

To maintain pressure on the Government of Sudan to implement their commitments to the international community, we are currently discussing the elements of a new UNSCR with international partners and the UN.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the need for a no-fly zone over Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [135252]

Mr. McCartney: We utterly condemn the recent bombings in North Darfur by the Sudanese Government. They are in direct violation of UN Security Council Resolution 1591 and demonstrate a lack of commitment to the peace process.

The Sudanese Government must commit to an immediate ceasefire. If they do not, we will be forced to press for tougher measures. We are considering all options, including measures to allow better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government plan to take at United Nations level following recent reports by the United Nations Panel of Experts that the Government of the Sudan are operating aircraft with United Nations markings in Darfur. [135253]

Mr. McCartney: We are very concerned by reports that the Government of Sudan are operating aircraft with UN markings in Darfur. The Sudanese Government resumed bombing villages in Darfur last week, resulting in a number of civilian injuries and deaths. We condemn these attacks, which show little regard for human life.

We supported the report by the Panel of Experts and its recommendations at the UN Sanctions Committee. It has not yet been transmitted to the UN Security Council, nor has its contents been made public. Our Ambassador to the UN, Sir Emyr Jones Parry, reports developments regularly to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary. We continue to discuss the case for further sanctions in the UN.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the steps taken by the US Administration to block transfers by US commercial banks of oil payments to the Government of Sudan; and if she will make a statement. [135254]

Mr. McCartney: We are aware of the steps taken by the US Administration to block transfers by US commercial banks of oil payments to the Government of Sudan. We are keeping the situation in Sudan under close review. If the Sudanese Government do not co-operate with the international community, we are prepared to consider further sanctions. We are discussing the elements of a new UN Security Council Resolution with international partners, which would include further targeted sanctions against individuals engaged in violence or responsible for authorising it; an extension of the arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan; and, measures to allow better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she has received evidence of breaches of the sanctions regime in the Darfur region of Sudan. [134926]

Mr. McCartney: The Sudanese Government resumed bombing villages in Darfur last week, resulting in a number of civilian injuries and deaths. We condemn these attacks, which show little regard for human life. We supported the report by the Panel of Experts and its recommendations at the UN Sanctions Committee. It has not yet been transmitted to the UN Security Council nor has its contents been made public.

Uganda: Arrests

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the welfare of the recently arrested leaders of the Ugandan Opposition Beatrice Atim and Hussein Kyanjo; and if she will make a statement. [134144]

Mr. McCartney: Ugandan Opposition MPs Beatrice Atim and Hussein Kyanjo were arrested on 16 April, following demonstrations in Kampala on 12 April protesting about plans to give away parts of Mabira forest to the Sugar Corporation of Uganda Ltd. They have been charged with participating in a riot. They were granted bail and released on 18 April. Their case will be heard on 15 May. Our high commission in Kampala has been in contact with Hussein Kyanjo to check on the welfare of both MPs, which we understand is satisfactory.

We condemn the violence that erupted on the streets of Kampala on 12 April resulting in the deaths of three people. We call on all sides to uphold full respect for human rights and to respect the rule of law.

Uganda: Human Rights

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to monitor the human rights situation in Kampala; and if she will make a statement. [134146]

Mr. McCartney: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer I gave to the hon. Member for Moray (Angus Robertson) on 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 1260W.

Our high commission in Kampala continues to closely follow the human rights situation in Kampala and in Uganda as a whole.

Most recently the plans to give away parts of Mabira forest to private ownership have resulted in violent street protest and deaths in Kampala. In our contacts with the Ugandan Government we will continue to stress the importance of the police acting responsibly and proportionately when policing demonstrations.

Uganda: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to monitor the newly established ceasefire agreement between the Lord's Resistance Army and the Ugandan Government; and if she will make a statement. [134138]

Mr. McCartney: The Cessation of Hostilities Monitoring Team is responsible for monitoring the recently revised and extended Cessation of Hostilities Agreement between the Lord's Resistance Army and the Ugandan Government. We welcome the decision by the African Union to deploy two additional monitors from each of the five official observer countries—Mozambique, Tanzania, Kenya, the Democratic Republic of Congo and South Africa.

UN Resolutions: Frontiers

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many notifications have been received by the UN Security Council Committee established pursuant to UN Resolution 1737 (2006) since 23 December 2006 from states reporting the entry into or transit through their territories of designated persons. [132783]

Margaret Beckett: The UN Security Council Committee established, pursuant to Security Council Resolution 1737 (2006), has received two notifications from member states of travel by individuals designated in the Annexes to resolutions 1737 (2006) and 1747 (2007). Russia notified the Committee in March of the pending travel to Moscow of General Zolqadr for bilateral talks and Indonesia notified the Committee in March of the pending travel to Jakarta of Mohammad Reza Assadi, an employee of the Atomic Energy Organisation of Iran, for a regional conference.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Development: Religion

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. [134939]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 April 2007]: Two reports have so far been published. The first, the Survey of Parties in the Application Process, was published in May 2006. This survey evaluated the processes of application that occurred in the first round of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund (FCCBF). The fund is administered by the Community Development Foundation (CDF) and the report is available on the CDF website at: http://www.cdf.org.uk.

The second report on the first survey into the impact of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund was published in March 2007. This report is available on the CDF website.

Departments: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding her Department and its predecessors provided to Great Yarmouth borough council in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available. [135204]

Mr. Woolas: Complete figures are readily available only for the last five years. Payments made to Great Yarmouth borough council by Communities and Local Government and its predecessors since 2002-03 were as follows.

£ million

	Formula grant	Other payments	Total
2002-03	9.0	9.6	18.6
2003-04	9.0	12.1	21.1
2004-05	8.2	5.0	13.2
2005-06	8.5	4.7	13.2
2006-07	9.8	6.3	16.1

Home Information Packs

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the conclusions and recommendations of the Better Regulation Commission's report Energy Performance Certificates and Residential Property; and whether home information packs will be introduced on 1 June; [129048]

(2) whether her Department is proceeding with the requirement that energy performance certificates be included in home information packs following the report by the Better Regulation Commission, Energy Performance Certificates and Residential Property, published on 26 February; and if she will make a statement. [129047]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have considered the views of the Better Regulation Commission (BRC) as well as the views of a wide range of stakeholders and organisations. We believe that home buyers need up to date energy information on their new home rather than energy information which is up to ten years out of date as the BRC have proposed.

Home Information Packs including Energy Performance Certificates that are no more than three months old at the point of first marketing will be introduced on 1 June. The relevant regulations and supporting regulatory impact assessments were laid before the House on 29 March and came into force on 19 April.

Housing: Income

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total amount was of capital receipts from shared owners staircasing up their equity share in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and to how many units these receipts related. [135073]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 1 May 2007]: When shared owners increase their equity share, the registered social landlord is required to reinvest the part of the receipt which represents any grant provided by the Housing Corporation for the provision of the property. In (a) 2005-06 this grant represented £48 million arising from the sale of further shares in 2,410 units. Data for (b) 2006-07 are not yet available.

The remaining receipts are retained by registered social landlords and details are not held centrally.

Public Houses: Closures

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research she has commissioned on the impact of pub closures on local communities; and if she will make a statement. [132717]

Mr. Woolas: I have not commissioned any specific research on the impact of pub closures on local communities.

Regeneration: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much departmental funding has been allocated to regeneration projects in Great Yarmouth in each year since 1997. [135178]

Mr. Woolas: Information is only available on allocations made directly by Communities and Local Government and its predecessors to Great Yarmouth borough council since 2002. All of these allocations were made under the European Regional Development Fund Objective 2 programme. These do not correspond to payments in the years concerned.

The amounts allocated were as follows:

	£ million
2002-03	0.2
2003-04	3.0
2004-05	1.4
2005-06	1.6
2006-07	1.5

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Postal Voting: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what percentage of the electorate has registered for a postal vote in each local authority in Lancashire. [134078]

Bridget Prentice: The Government only hold information on registration figures as of 1 December 2006, and the number of postal voters as of 1 January 2007. Using this information provides the following percentages for the local government electorate in Lancashire:

	Percentage
Burnley	10.72
Chorley	24.69
Fylde	11.72
Hyndburn	11.4
Lancaster	9.14
Pendle	11.31
Preston	13.34
Ribble Valley	5.25
Rossendale	12.38
South Ribble	13.46
West Lancashire	15.2
Wyre	19.15

Updated information may be obtained directly from local authorities.

Bankruptcy: Suffolk

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people were declared bankrupt in Suffolk in each year since 1997. [134670]

Ms Harman: A bankruptcy order is made on the petition of the debtor or one of his creditors when the court is satisfied that there is no prospect of the debt being paid. The following table shows the number of bankruptcy orders made at either Bury St. Edmunds or Ipswich county courts since 1998, the earliest year for which statistics are available. Bury St. Edmunds and Ipswich are the only two county courts in Suffolk which deal with insolvency matters.

Bankruptcy petitions should be presented in the court that deals with the area where the debtor has lived or traded for the longest period in the previous six months. However, the insolvency jurisdictions of particular county courts are not directly comparable with standard geographies such as counties or parliamentary constituencies. For these reasons, figures shown in the table will not be an exact measure of bankruptcies in Suffolk.

Number of bankruptcy orders made at Bury St. Edmunds or Ipswich county courts: 1998 to 2006

	Number of bankruptcy orders made in Bury St. Edmunds county court	Number of bankruptcy orders made in Ipswich county court	Total for Bury St. Edmunds and Ipswich county courts

Constituencies

Mr. Cash: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will publish maps showing the precise new boundaries of parliamentary constituencies in England following the recent Boundary Commission report. [134488]

Bridget Prentice: Volumes 3 and 4 of the Boundary Commission for England's Fifth Periodical Report set out in some detail, on maps produced by Ordnance Survey, where the proposed new boundaries for parliamentary constituencies in England would lie.

The draft order to implement the new constituencies, which is currently before Parliament, mirrors in full the recommendations of the Boundary Commission for England.

We have no current plans to make more detailed constituency maps available. However, once the current draft order is made we will be exploring with the Boundary Commissions and Ordnance Survey the possibility of producing more detailed constituency maps.

Courts: Interpreters

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent by the court system on interpreters in the latest period for which figures are available. [134420]

Ms Harman: The information requested is not collected centrally (and could be provided only at disproportionate cost) for interpreters used in the Crown court and criminal hearings in the magistrates courts. In each of the last five years the costs of interpreters for civil and family hearings are as follows:

	Cost (£)
2002-03	181,000
2003-04	204,000
2004-05	250,000
2005-06	494,000
2006-07	[1]208,000

[1] As at end September.

Changes to the financial systems used to pay interpreters have taken effect in the last couple of years and the figures quoted are therefore approximate. Her Majesty's Courts Service is currently undertaking some analysis of interpreters booked in the last year to try to identify trends in the increase of bookings and subsequent cost.

Departments: Buildings

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what effect she expects the forthcoming reorganisation of her Department to have on the allocation and organisation of Government buildings; and if she will make a statement. [134343]

Ms Harman: In accordance with normal practice for machinery of Government changes, responsibility for those buildings wholly occupied by staff transferring to the Ministry of Justice will also be transferred. Arrangements for building(s) that will be shared between the Home Office and the Ministry of Justice will be managed in accordance with normal practice for jointly occupied buildings that form part of the Government's civil estate.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what Government buildings the planned Ministry of Justice will share with the Home Office. [134344]

Ms Harman: The Ministry of Justice will share 2 Marsham street with the Home Office.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether the 50 Queen Anne's Gate building will be home to the Ministry of Justice; and if she will make a statement. [134345]

Ms Harman: 50 Queen Anne's Gate will become the headquarters of the Ministry of Justice.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the status of the old Home Office building at 50 Queen Anne's Gate. [134347]

Ms Harman: The building is currently being refurbished by the landlord and will become the headquarters of the Ministry of Justice following refurbishment of the building.

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134834]

Ms Harman: During the last 12 months (for the period April 2006 to March 2007) the Department for Constitutional Affairs has received 16 official complaints about bullying, of which two were upheld and two were partly upheld.

Electoral Systems

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when the Government will publish its review of electoral systems currently in use in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [135191]

Bridget Prentice: The review is currently under way in the Department for Constitutional Affairs. The review will include information on the recent elections for the Northern Ireland Assembly in March 2007 and the up-coming elections for the National Assembly for Wales and the Scottish Parliament this week. It is anticipated that the review will be completed within the lifetime of this Parliament. Ministers will take decisions on any next steps, if necessary, after the review is completed.

Freedom of Information: Complaints

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many complaints under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have been awaiting allocation to a case officer of the Information Commissioner's Offices (ICO) for (a) three months, (b) six months, (c) nine months and (d) longer, broken down by ICO (i) regional offices and (ii) teams; and if she will make a statement: [134506]

Ms Harman: As of 31 March 2007 the number of complaints under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 awaiting allocation to a case officer at the Information Commissioner's Office, broken down by time and team, was as detailed in the following table.

Time period/team	Belfast	Cardiff	Team 1	Team 2	Team 3	Team 4	Team 5	Team 6	Total

Immigration

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs on what date the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal notified (a) the Home Office and (b) HM High Commission, Islamabad, of its decision in the case of Mrs. K. U.N., wife of Mr. I. G. of Aylesbury (reference OA/26058/2006), which was heard on 7 February and promulgated on 19 February. [134377]

Bridget Prentice: Information shows that the immigration judge determination for appeal reference OA/26058/2006 was served upon the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) of the Home Office on 19 February 2007.

In entry clearance and family visitor appeals the determination is served upon the Border and Immigration Agency (formerly the Immigration and Nationality Directorate) who will arrange for the forwarding of the determination to the entry clearance post that made the original refusal.

The Border and Immigration Agency have confirmed that they forwarded a copy of the determination to the high commission in Islamabad on 26 April 2007.

Lord Chancellor's Dept: European Council

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many EU Council meetings the Lord Chancellor has attended since taking up her post; and who represents her if she is unable to attend. [133756]

Bridget Prentice: The Department for Constitutional Affairs is represented at EU Justice and Home Affairs Council meetings by my right hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland as she is the Minister responsible for EU and international business. She attends all such Council meetings unless there is no business relevant to the Department. Baroness Ashton has attended 16 Council meetings since taking up her post.

Orders and Regulations: Public Libraries

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that copies of statutory instruments are made available in public libraries in England. [134255]

Ms Harman: Individual public libraries determine the contents of their own stock holdings based on the demands of their users.

A diminishing number of public libraries take printed copies of legislation, although most libraries allow users to access legislation on the official legislation website at:

www.opsi.gov.uk

Repossession Orders: Suffolk

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many court orders were issued for the repossession of homes in (a) Bury St Edmunds constituency and (b) Suffolk county council area in each year since 1997. [134690]

Ms Harman: The following table shows the number of mortgage possession orders made at each of the Suffolk county courts (Bury St. Edmonds, Ipswich and Lowestoft) since 1997.

The civil procedure rules provide that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, these county courts cover areas that are not necessarily consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore for instance repossessions at Bury St. Edmunds county court may relate to properties in other constituencies besides Bury St. Edmunds.

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all orders result in the properties actually being repossessed.

[2] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

TREASURY

Business: Taxation

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will introduce a unique business reference number for the purposes of allocation, collection, storage and verification of information relating to businesses for the purposes of the payment of taxation; and if he will (a) bring forward proposals for and (b) discuss with Cabinet colleagues the use of a single business reference number for firms accessing services delivered across all departments. [134631]

John Healey: HMRC is working towards the introduction of a customer index which could provide the basis for a unique business reference number, and which would enable HMRC to bring together a business's tax affairs. Following the recommendations of the Hampton report, the issues relating to services across a range of departments are under consideration by a cross-departmental group of officials.

Cancer

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) England and (b) Great Yarmouth died from cancer in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available, broken down by cancer type. [135202]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 2 May 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died from cancer in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available in (a) England and (b) Great Yarmouth, broken down by cancer type. (135202)

Figures for Great Yarmouth can only be calculated from 1981 onwards. The attached tables provide the numbers of deaths where cancer was the underlying cause of death in (a) England from 1976 to 2005 (the latest year available) and (b) Great Yarmouth from 1981 to 2005, by cancer site.

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Eighth Revision (ICD-8) for the years 1976-78, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) for the years 1979 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) for 2001 onwards. The introduction of ICD-9 in 1979 and ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from specific causes are not completely comparable across the whole period. The ICD codes for each cancer site are given in the following table.
[2] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) for the years 1981 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) for 2001 onwards. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from specific causes before 2001 are not completely comparable across the whole period. The ICD codes for each cancer site are given in the following table.
[2] Based on local authority boundaries as of 2007.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) England and (b) Great Yarmouth were diagnosed with cancer in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available, broken down by cancer type. [135203]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 2 May 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people were diagnosed with cancer in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available in (a) England and (b) Great Yarmouth, broken down by cancer type. [135203]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases (incidence) of cancer in England are for the year 2004. Figures for (a) England from 1975-2004 are given in Table 1 and (b) Great Yarmouth local authority from 1990-2004 are given in Table 2. Earlier figures for Great Yarmouth are not readily available.

Child Trust Fund

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 689W, on the child trust fund, how much time Sheree Murphy spent (a) giving interviews and (b) participating in photoshoots to promote child trust funds. [134703]

Ed Balls: Sheree Murphy was contracted for four and a half days to give interviews and participate in photoshoots to promote Child Trust Funds.

Corporation Tax

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the potential reductions in (a) corporation and (b) income tax avoidance from the increase in the rate of corporation tax announced in the Budget 2007. [135230]

John Healey: The increase in the small companies' rate of corporation tax will reduce the tax advantage for a self-employed person to incorporate and receive labour income as dividends. This impact increases corporation tax collected but reduces income tax and national insurance collected.

The measure will increase the corporation tax paid by those who have incorporated for tax reasons and will reduce the incentive for others to engage in this behaviour. The reduction in overall tax advantage depends on income level. For a self-employed person earning £30,000, the incentive to incorporate and take labour income as dividends will reduced by around £1,000 by 2009-10.

As the Chancellor noted in his Budget speech, if the tax-motivated incorporation is not tackled, it could cost the rest of the tax-paying population billions of pounds.

Cabinet Office Capability Review

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a Cabinet Office Capability Review is planned for HM Treasury. [134397]

John Healey: I refer to the answer given to the hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 13 September 2006, Official Report, column 2335W.

Departments: Africa

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 407W, on Departments: Africa, where (a) he and (b) his officials stayed in each country for each trip in January 2005. [134401]

John Healey: The Chancellor visited Africa in January 2005 in preparation for the G7 focus on development which, under the UK presidency, led to a pledge to double aid to Africa by 2010. The delegation stayed in the following cities:

Dar Es Salaam (Tanzania)
Maputo (Mozambique)
Johannesburg (RSA) and Cape Town (RSA).

Departments: Consultants

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many external consultants are employed by his Department; [134563]

(2) how much his Department spent on external consultants in each year since 1997. [134564]

John Healey: HM Treasury controls consultancy spending by cost, and not by headcount. Information on the total number of consultants engaged at any point in time is not held. The provisional outturn for the total spent on external consultants in 2006-07 by HM Treasury is £5.14 million. I refer to the answers given to my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, Central (Mr. Cousins) on 14 March 2006, Official Report, column 2128W and the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 721W, which detail consultancy costs for the financial years 2000-06. Figures for the years prior to 2000-01 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In line with Office of Government Commerce guidance, in 2006-07 HM Treasury changed its definition of 'consultancy' to include advice on design and development of services, but exclude delivery of services on a longer term contracted out basis. Figures for prior years have not been restated.

Departments: Grievance Procedures

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld; [134820]

(2) how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months; [135164]

(3) how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135382]

John Healey: In the last 12 months fewer than five grievances have been raised and investigated. No complaints of bullying or of sexual harassment have been upheld. As the number of complaints of bullying and of sexual harassment was fewer than five, the exact number cannot be disclosed on grounds of confidentiality.

Departments: India

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Ministers in his Department have visited India in the last 12 months; on how many occasions each Minister visited India; and what the length was of each visit. [135546]

John Healey: The Chancellor of the Exchequer visited India in January 2007. All ministerial visits are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers". Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 and the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134051]

John Healey: For details of the percentage of such paper used for photocopying and publications issued in the year 2004-05, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 21 October 2005, Official Report, column 1306W. Our policy has not changed.

From 2005 to present, the Treasury's Publishing Unit used recycled paper for all standard format publications and printed materials.

Departments: Plants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on the supply and maintenance of plants and flowers in 2006-07. [133298]

John Healey: The provisional outturn for the Treasury's expenditure on the supply and maintenance of plants and flowers is £15,000 in 2006-07. The Debt Management Office spent £2,000.

Departments: Press

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on newspapers and periodicals in 2006-07. [133439]

John Healey: The provisional outturn for the Treasury's expenditure on newspapers and periodicals in 2006-07 was £109,000.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on overseas travel in each year since 1997. [134554]

John Healey: The provisional outturn for the total spent by the Treasury on overseas travel in 2006-07 was £1,573,000. For the earlier years, I refer to the answers given to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 719W, and to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 19 July 2004, Official Report, column 44W.

Duty Free Allowances

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent progress has been made by the European Commission on his proposal to increase the duty free allowance to £1,000; what recent representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [134444]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 402W, to my hon. Friend the hon. Member from Cannock Chase (Dr. Wright).

HMT and HMRC Officials met stakeholders during negotiation of the new tax free allowance for travellers returning from outside the EU. We have also received a small number of letters regarding implementation of the higher allowance since it was agreed.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised through vehicle excise duty in each year since 1997. [134565]

John Healey: The Department for Transport publish statistics of Vehicle Excise Duty revenues which are broken down into vehicle category in their annual transport statistics bulletin. This is available at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics

Group of Seven

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on his Department's delegation to attend the last G7 Finance Ministers' meeting in Washington DC. [134571]

John Healey: All ministerial visits are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers". Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 and the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year.

Managed Service Companies

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, if he will place in the Library a copy of the responses to the consultation tackling managed service companies of December 2006. [134711]

John Healey: The Government have received a Freedom of Information request for the same information from the hon. Member.

The Treasury is actively considering issues around the confidentiality of the information provided by the respondents to the consultation and will reply to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Middle East

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when a Minister in his Department last visited (a) Bahrain, (b) Kuwait, (c) Oman, (d) Qatar, (e) Saudi Arabia, (f) the United Arab Emirates and (g) Yemen on official business. [131352]

John Healey: All ministerial visits are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers". Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 and the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year. I can confirm that the Chancellor attended the International Monetary and Financial Committee meetings in Dubai in September 2003 and passed through Dubai in March 2007. The Chancellor visited Riyadh in November 2005 and passed through Abu Dhabi en route. The Chancellor also passed through Kuwait in November 2006. The Economic Secretary visited the United Arab Emirates in November 2006 and the Paymaster General visited the United Arab Emirates in January 2007.

Money Laundering

Mark Durkan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to establish a new unit within HM Revenue and Customs to deal with cases of money laundering. [135251]

John Healey: HMRC already has units responsible for dealing with money laundering. Action to combat money laundering is an integral part of HMRC's operational efforts to counter fiscal fraud against the UK's tax and duty systems and to protect the integrity of the UK's frontier controls. In addition, a unit is being created to deal with HMRC's specific regulatory responsibility relating to the licensing regime that becomes mandatory in December 2007 under the Third Money Laundering Directive.

Multiple Sclerosis

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people died from multiple sclerosis in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [135315]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 2 May 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died from multiple sclerosis in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. (135315)

The table attached provides the number of deaths where multiple sclerosis was the underlying cause in (a) Jarrow parliamentary constituency, (b) South Tyneside local authority, (c) North East government office region and (d) England, from 1997 to 2005 (the latest year available).

Number of deaths with multiple sclerosis as the underlying cause of death[1], Jarrow parliamentary constituency, South Tyneside local authority, North-east Government office region, England[2], 1997 to 2005[3]

Deaths (persons)

	Jarrow	South Tyneside	North East	England
1997	1	3	30	661
1998	0	0	38	698
1999	0	1	39	723
2000	1	1	31	659
2001	1	1	44	849
2002	0	0	35	861
2003	1	2	61	935
2004	2	4	49	838
2005	1	3	50	900

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) code 340 for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) code G35 for 2001 onwards. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from this cause before 2001 are not completely comparable with later years.

[2] Based on local authority boundaries as of 2007.

[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 485W, on national insurance contributions, what steps he has taken to rectify letters relating to the non-payment of national insurance contributions in the 2004-05 tax year sent in error. [131409]

John Healey: During 2006-07, HM Revenue and Customs sent 4.7 million letters to customers advising them of a potential shortfall in their National insurance contributions for the 2004-05 tax year. The majority of these letters were correct but some contained incorrect information.

HMRC contacted many of the employers involved and also worked closely with representative bodies to inform their members. The vast majority of the 2004-05 end of year information has now been processed successfully. Where a letter had been sent in error, HMRC has either sent, or is in the process of sending, a follow-up letter explaining that sufficient NI contributions have been paid and that 2004-05 is now a qualifying year for benefit purposes.

Any employees who are still waiting for a follow-up letter, or are unsure of their NI position, can send a copy of their 2004-05 P60 to the address on the deficiency notice and HMRC will investigate their case.

Patients: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions the Office for National Statistics has had with Dacorum Primary Care Trust on the number of patients registered in Hemel Hempstead constituency. [135326]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 2 May 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question regarding what discussions the Office for National Statistics has had with Dacorum Primary Care Trust on the number of patients registered in Hemel Hempstead constituency. (135326)

I can confirm that we have had two data requests from Dacorum PCT with regards to population estimates. Other than this I am not aware of Dacorum PCT contacting ONS with regards to the number of patients registered in Hemel Hempstead constituency.

Revenue and Customs: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs staff were employed in Great Yarmouth in each year since 1997. [134318]

John Healey: Before HM Revenue and Customs was created in April 2005, HM Customs and Excise and Inland Revenue both had offices at Great Yarmouth. The following table shows the total staff employed at Great Yarmouth for HM Revenue and Customs (and for the component Departments prior to 2005) as at 1 April each year from 2001. No records exist for previous years.

	Staff numbers (headcount)
2001	210
2002	197
2003	193

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has been made of the cost implications caused by rent charges of moving HM Revenue and Customs staff from Great Yarmouth to Norwich. [134320]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is undertaking a review of all its accommodation to bring it into line with business requirements, and expects to make substantial savings on its accommodation running costs.

The review of the cluster of HMRC offices comprising Great Yarmouth, Norwich and East Dereham is planned to take place later this year. No such estimate has yet been made. No decisions on the future of any of these offices will be made until the review process is completed.

Revenue and Customs: Pay

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, whether any HM Revenue and Customs inspectors receive incentive payments related to their collection of revenue. [135182]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs inspectors do not receive payments related to the collection of revenue.

Robert Shrum

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what work Robert Shrum has undertaken for HM Treasury since 1997. [134405]

John Healey: None. HM Treasury has not contracted Robert Shrum to do any work.

Sequestration of Assets: Iran

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will sequester appropriate assets of the government of Iran as compensation for Ministry of Defence equipment seized and not returned in (a) 2004 and (b) 2007; and if he will make a statement. [133581]

Des Browne: I have been asked to reply.

We will continue to press the Iranian authorities for the return of the boats and equipment seized by Iran in 2004 and 2007.

Small Businesses: Government Assistance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to foster the growth and development of small and medium sized enterprises. [134569]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 26 April 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement I made to the House on 26 October 2006, Official Report, column 95WS. As my statement indicated, a wide range of activity is in hand and if any particular area interests the hon. Member I will be happy to update him.

Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what steps his Department takes to inform people that they may be eligible to reclaim tax; and if he will make a statement. [134634]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1370-71W.

VAT: Bingo

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much was received in VAT on participation fees for games of bingo in each year since its introduction; [134478]

(2) what assessment has he made of the impact on bingo clubs of (a) the imposition of VAT on participation fees, (b) the changes introduced in the 2007 Gaming Act and (c) the ban on smoking in public places. [134477]

John Healey: Total VAT receipts are published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report 2007. It is not possible to give the breakdown requested, or to assess the specific impact of the Budget changes on bingo clubs. However, the forecast total yield from the Budget changes to Gaming Duty was published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report.

The effect of the smoking ban was incorporated into the forecast of total gambling receipts, which includes bingo duty receipts, and was published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to question 128930 on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 421W, if he will publish figures showing the number of notices of warning of legal proceedings if payment is not made which were sent to individuals claiming tax credits who were in dispute with HM Revenue and Customs in each month from April 2003 to March 2007. [133656]

Mr. Timms: It is HMRC's policy to suspend the recovery of overpayments while a dispute is being considered, and therefore should not issue notices of warning of legal proceedings while this is taking place.

Working Tax Credit

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claims for working tax credits for households without children there were in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what the total expenditure on those claims was in that period. [133844]

John Healey: Estimates of the number of families without children claiming working tax credits in 2004-05, including information on total expenditure on these claims, is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-annual-0405.pdf

Figures for 2005-06 are due to be published on 22 May.

Youth for Europe

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Youth for Europe projects have been financed by the EU in the UK in the last 12 months. [133095]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Business Link

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding was given to Business Link in each of the last three years. [134432]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

In each of the last three years, the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) have provided the following levels of funding for the Business Link service:

	£ million
2004-05	140
2005-06	140
2006-07	140

Source:
The Small Business Service Agency Annual Accounts and Reports

The budgets from the DTI are made available through the "single pot" of money allocated to Regional Development Agencies.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the 2007-08 Budget is for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service; and what the budget was in each of the last five years. [134251]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave her on 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 719W. The information requested in respect of 2003-04 and 2002-03 is in the table.

2003-04	95,000,000 (on a resource basis, plus 2,500,000 provision for transition to resource accounting)[1]
2002-03	84,500,000 (on a cash basis)[1]

[1] Includes the budget for CAFCASS Cymru

Children in Care

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children are in local authority care in England, broken down by ethnic background. [132749]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The number of children who are in local authority care in England broken down by ethnic background at 31 March 2006 is shown in the following table.

Children looked after at 31 March 2006 by ethnicity[1, 2], England

Ethnic origin	All children looked after at 31 March 2006 (Number)
All children[1, 2]	60,300
White	47,200
White British	45,100
White Irish	450
Any other White background	1,600
Mixed	5,000
White and Black Caribbean	1,900
White and Black African	420
White and Asian	730
Any other mixed background	2,000
Asian or Asian British	2,000
Indian	300
Pakistani	610
Bangladeshi	270
Any other Asian background	870

Children looked after at 31 March 2006 by ethnicity[1, 2], England

Ethnic origin	All children looked after at 31 March 2006 (Number)
Black or Black British	4,900
Caribbean	1,600
African	2,400
Any other Black background	920
Other ethnic groups	1,200
Chinese	120
Any other ethnic group	1,100

[1] Figures exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements.
[2] To preserve the confidentiality of each individual child, figures at national level have been rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 and to the nearest 10 otherwise.

Children in Care: Missing Persons

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many looked after children who went missing from care were victims of a crime against the person while missing in each of the last five years; [122375]

(2) how many children who went missing from care in each of the last five years subsequently disclosed abuse as the reason for running away. [122376]

Mr. Dhanda: Information on:

(1) the number of looked after children who went missing from care in each of the last five years who were victims of a crime against the person while missing; and

(2) the number of looked after children who went missing from care in each of the last five years who subsequently disclosed abuse as the reason for running away is not collected by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

City Academies

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total construction cost was of each completed academy. [133036]

Jim Knight: There are 26 academies open where construction work has been completed. The cost of each is detailed in the following table. These figures presented are as at March 2007 and are subject to change as final accounts have yet to be agreed.

	Academy	Cost (£ million rounded to nearest half million)
1	Bexley Business Academy[1]	38.5
2	Walsall City Academy	17.5
3	Greig City Academy, Haringey	16.5
4	Capital City Academy, Brent	27.0
5	Lambeth Academy	25.5
6	King's Academy, Middlesbrough	22.5
7	Unity City Academy, Middlesbrough	22.0
8	The West London Academy, Ealing	31.0
9	Stockley Academy, Hillingdon	28.0
10	Djanogly City Academy, Nottingham	23.5
11	The Academy at Peckham, Southwalk	30.0
12	Bristol City Academy	27.5
13	Manchester Academy	20.0
14	Mossbourne Community Academy, Hackney	28.5
15	The Academy of St Francis of Assisi, Liverpool	21.0
16	Northampton Academy	27.5
17	City of London Academy, Southwark	33.5
18	Trinity Academy, Doncaster	25.0
19	Marlowe Academy, Kent	28.0
20	London Academy, Barnet	31.5
21	Sandwell Academy	27.0
22	Grace Academy, Solihull	31.5
23	Salford City Academy	16.5
24	David Young Community Academy, Leeds	23.5
25	Dixons City Academy, Bradford[2]	6.5
26	Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham Academy, Lewisham[2]	7.0

[1] The Business Academy, Bexley is an "all through" academy catering for pupils from age three to 19. This cost includes the cost of both the primary school and secondary school.
[2] Dixons and Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham are both conversions from city technology colleges.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of governors on the governing body of each academy are local authority governors. [133037]

Jim Knight: The composition of each academy governing body is described in its memorandum and articles. However, as the academy trust is able to co-opt additional members, the precise composition of each governing body at any point in time is not known by the Department, and we are unable to say how many local authority governors there are, or what proportion they represent of academy governing bodies.

While the size and precise composition of an academy governing body is not prescribed by the Department, like other state-funded schools, academies have stakeholder governors. Departmental policy is that each academy should have a local authority appointed governor and a parent governor. Academy governing bodies may also include the Academy principal (as an ex-officio member), a teacher governor (either elected or appointed); a staff governor (either elected or appointed), and may include community representatives.

Classroom Assistants: Pay and Manpower

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much was paid in salaries to (a) learning support assistants and (b) teaching assistants in (i) pupil referral units, (ii) special needs units attached to mainstream schools, (iii) resourced provision, units and special classes in maintained mainstream schools and (iv) maintained special schools in each year between 1997 and 2007; [132388]

(2) how many teaching assistants were employed in (a) pupil referral units, (b) special needs units attached to mainstream schools, (c) resourced provision; units and special classes in maintained mainstream schools and (d) maintained special schools in each year between 1997 and 2007; [132389]

(3) how many learning support assistants there were in (a) pupil referral units, (b) special needs units attached to mainstream schools, (c) resourced provision, units and special classes in maintained mainstream schools and (d) maintained special schools in each of the years between 1997 and 2007. [132390]

Jim Knight: Information on the salaries paid to learning support assistants, teaching assistants and other school support staff is not collected centrally.

"The Deployment and Impact of Support Staff in Schools" is an ongoing research project commissioned by the Department. It started in 2004 and will run to 2009. One strand of the project is a survey conducted in 2004 with a sample of support staff. The sample was not representative but the results were weighted to account for any bias in the sample. Amongst other things, the questionnaire asked about their pay. Support staff in special schools reported a mean hourly wage of £9.06. This compared with £7.90 and £9.55 for support staff in primary and secondary schools respectively. Teaching assistant equivalent staff across the maintained sector reported a mean hourly wage of £8.66. "Teaching Assistant Equivalent" includes teaching assistants, learning support assistants for SEN pupils, nursery nurses and therapists. The full wave one report can be found at: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/research/data/uploadfiles/RR776.pdf and the next interim report is due during summer 2007.

Information on learning support assistants is collected within the overall number of teaching assistants but is not available as a separate category. Numbers of special needs support staff are however available separately. In addition numbers cannot be provided separately for units and classes within mainstream schools.

The following table provides the number of full-time equivalent teaching assistants employed in pupil referral units, maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools and maintained special schools in England from January 1997 to 2006 and is the latest information available. The number of those who are special needs support staff are also provided.

Community Champions Fund

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which organisations have received funding from the Community Champions Fund since its inception; what plans he has for the future budget of the Community Champions Fund in forthcoming financial years; and if he will make a statement. [133640]

Mr. Dhanda: Community Champions funding supports individuals rather than organisations. Individuals can apply for up to £2,000 to run innovative projects in their community. The total number of awards in 2005-06 was 1,769; the average award was £1,250. Funding is currently available until the end of March 2008.

The purpose of the comprehensive spending review settlement for this Department is to deliver key priorities for children, young people and learners over the period 2008-11. Decisions to be taken over the coming months will permit more detailed announcements to be made in due course about the allocation of resources, but it is unlikely that extension of the Community Champions Fund will be given priority over programmes that more directly impact on outcomes for children and young people.

Child Care: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland are eligible for financial support for child care. [134867]

Beverley Hughes: All three and four-year-olds can benefit from 12.5 hours a week free early years provision, irrespective of the employment status of their parents. This will rise to 15 hours a week by 2010.

The Office for National Statistics shows the North East region having a population of 52,100[1] three and four-year-olds, and the 2006 Early Years and Schools Censuses show the number of part time early education places funded by the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds in the North East region as 50,900[2]. The number of part time early education places funded by the free entitlement for three and four year olds in Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland parliamentary constituency area was 1,900[1].

A pilot scheme for disadvantaged two-year-olds offering 7.5 hours per week free early years provision is also available in Middlesbrough, Sunderland, Durham and South Tyneside until March 2008. This will benefit a total of 1,200 children in the North East.

The child care element of working tax credit (WTC) is available for meeting up to 80 per cent. of the cost of registered or approved childcare to a maximum cost of £175 a week for one child and £300 a week for two children or more. The average number of families in each constituency benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit in 2004-05 is available in the HMRC statistical publication "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics. Finalised Awards 2004-05. Geographical analyses", which is available on the HMRC website at: www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm. Estimates for 2005-06 are due to be published in May.

In addition to the child care element of working tax credits, child care used by parents can be subsidised in a variety of ways including local authority subsidies, Jobcentre Plus new deals, care to learn, learner support funds and NHS child care allowances. Wider data on eligibility for financial support for child care are not however available centrally.

[1] As at December 2005. ONS population estimates are aggregated to age groupings of at least five years. Figures based on a single year of age at the sub-national level are therefore of limited reliability.

[2] The number of children benefiting from some form of free early education can exceed the number of free part-time early education places taken up by children as a place may be taken up by more than one child.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on hospitality by his Department in the financial year 2006-07. [133248]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's rules on hospitality adhere to the principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety. Approval must be sought in advance from the appropriate director or Board member for all hospitality expenses. The Department's provisional outturn for such expenditure in 2006-07 was £4,372.

Diplomas for England

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which schools in the London borough of Havering have been selected as pilot schools for the introduction of the new diplomas for England. [134551]

Jim Knight: On 28 March I announced the first 145 consortia (groups of schools, colleges and training providers) across 97 local authorities that have been given approval to offer one or more of the first five 14 to 19 diplomas from September 2008. We have always been clear that the bar was set high so that although there were a lot of assessments submitted with good elements, only those consortia who demonstrated they were able to provide high quality delivery across all the criteria from September 2008 were included in the first group. Consortia from the London borough of Havering were not approved for delivery from September 2008, but we have provided a support package to help them prepare for a future gateway.

Educational Psychology

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will make a statement on the role of educational psychologists in the Every Child Matters scheme; [133873]

(2) how many educational psychologists qualified in each year since 1997; [133874]

(3) what the reasons were for reductions in funding for educational psychologists' training; and if he will make a statement; [133875]

(4) what steps he is taking to ensure that enough educational psychologists are being trained to meet demand; [133876]

(5) what progress has been made in retrieving funding provided to local councils that was allocated to the training of educational psychologists; and if he will make a statement. [133881]

Mr. Dhanda: Educational psychologists (EPs) play an important role in assessing special educational needs and in helping to formulate support arrangements for children with a wide range of needs, including those with behavioural, emotional and social difficulties. The value of their contribution was confirmed by a recent independent study, conducted by the School of Education, University of Manchester, published by the DfES on 31 August 2006. A copy of the report, "A Review of the Functions and Contribution of Educational Psychologists in England and Wales in light of "Every Child Matters: Changes for Children", Research Report No 792", was placed in the House of Commons Library, and can also be accessed via the Department's research website:

www.dfes.gov.uk/research

Information on the number of those who qualify annually as EPs is not collected centrally.

With regard to EP entry training arrangements, and associated funding, I would refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 25 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1181-82W.

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many educational psychologists qualified in each of the last 10 years for which data are available; and how many he expects to qualify in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; [135192]

(2) how many training places for educational psychologists were funded in each year between 2000 and 2006; how many he expects to be funded in 2007; and if he will make a statement on the level and allocation of funding by the Local Government Association. [135193]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 30 April 2007]: Information on the number of those who qualify as educational psychologists, and the number of funded EP training places, is not collected centrally.

With regard to funding arrangements for the training of EPs, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 25 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1181-82W.

EU-Canada Joint Committee on Higher Education Training and Youth

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the agenda of the last meeting of the EU-Canada Joint Committee on Higher Education, Training and Youth. [133076]

Bill Rammell: The agendas of meetings of the EU-Canada Joint Committee on Higher Education, Training and Youth are internal documents of the European Commission and are not held by my Department. An application can be made with the European Commission to release the requested document.

Further Education: Finance

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what funding was available for further education colleges to support (a) NVQ Level 2, (b) NVQ Level 3 and (c) NVQ Level 4 in upholstery and soft furnishing in each year between 1996 and 2006; [132091]

(2) what funding was provided to further education colleges to enable students to undertake qualifications in upholstery and soft furnishing in each year between 1996 and 2006; and if he will make a statement. [132093]

Bill Rammell: We have increased public investment in further education by 48 per cent. in real terms between 1997-98 and 2005-06. Adult education funding will increase by 7 per cent. between 2005-06 and 2007-08, with funding for young people increasing by 13 per cent. over the same period. This means that overall in 2007-08, through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) we will invest £11.2 billion, an increase of £716 million compared with 2006-07.

Information on course subjects that learners are undertaking is only available from the LSC at the broad sector level. This does not allow for discrete subjects such as upholstery and soft furnishings to be identified, therefore it is not possible to provide details on the level of funding for these courses.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the availability of traditional upholstery skills courses in further education colleges in each year between 1996 and 2006. [132092]

Bill Rammell: Colleges have benefited from our 48 per cent. real terms increase in further education funding between 1997-98 and 2005-06. We have realigned funding to support our priorities and as announced on 15 March we have met our interim adult Level 2 target with a million more adults in the workforce with essential employability skills. Also more than 1.6 million learners have achieved Skills for Life qualifications in literacy, language and numeracy.

The structure and delivery of courses is the responsibility of the individual providers which means that we do not hold information on this centrally. It is therefore not possible to report on the number of traditional upholstery skills courses delivered by colleges in any given year.

Further Education: Standards

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many notices to improve were issued to further education colleges in each of the last three years; how many of these have been made public; and if he will make a statement. [134417]

Bill Rammell: Nine Notices to Improve (Notices) have been issued to further education colleges in the last three years. Four were as a result of an Ofsted inspection judgement of overall inadequate. The remaining five were issued as a result of the colleges failing to meet the minimum levels of performance.

Notices were introduced in 2006 following the commitment to eliminate failure set out in the White Paper, Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances. Notices are a process for setting additional conditions of funding to address underperformance within a specified time frame.

The LSC have not made any notices public and do not intend to do so.

A Level: Standards

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students entering English universities for the first time in 2006 did not have two grade E A levels or better A level qualifications. [133226]

Bill Rammell: In 2005/06, there were 2,620 entrants (2 per cent.) with one or more A levels who had fewer than 80 tariff points from these qualifications. The figures relate to 18-year-old English domiciled entrants to full time first degree courses at English higher education institutions who have obtained one or more A levels. A grade E at A level is worth 40 tariff points.

Tariff points are not to be the only factor universities consider in assessing potential to succeed in HE. In 2004, Professor Steven Schwartz conducted an independent review of admissions to HE. The report makes clear that while prior educational attainment data (e.g. 'A' levels) remain the best indicator of success at undergraduate level, equal exams results may not represent equal potential to succeed in HE, and that universities can usefully consider other factors. The Schwartz Group recommended an 'holistic assessment' of applicants which included consideration of contextual factors, given the variation of learners' opportunities and circumstances.

Graduates: Qualifications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of university graduates qualified in (a) physics, (b) engineering and (c) mathematics in each of the last 15 years. [134411]

Bill Rammell: The latest figures are shown in the tables. Data from the Higher Education Statistics Agency are only available from 1994/95 onwards; figures for the previous years are taken from published sources which do not separately identify Physics and Mathematics.

Number and proportion of students obtaining first degree qualifications by subject area, UK higher and further education institutions, years[1] 1991 to 1993

[1] In 2002/03 the coding frame and the method of recording subject of study was changed. The Joint Academic Classification Scheme (JACS) was introduced which although similar to the previous coding frame, is not directly comparable. Additionally, figures are on a full person equivalent basis whereby a student is apportioned between each of their subjects of study.
[2] From 2000/01 students qualifying from a dormant mode of study are included in the figures; they are excluded in all previous years. Incoming exchange students are excluded from the figures from 2000/01 onwards; they were included in all previous years.

The latest figures from UCAS for students applying to enter full-time undergraduate courses in 2007 show that applications for these subjects have risen significantly: Physics is up by 12 per cent., Mathematics by 10 per cent. and most of the engineering subjects are also up including chemical engineering (by 16 per cent.), Civil engineering (by 13 per cent.) and Mechanical engineering (by 8 per cent.).

Higher Education: Scholarships

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many and what percentage of UK higher education institutions spent their full budgeted levels on income-assessed non-repayable bursaries for undergraduate students in each year since 1996; [131418]

(2) what estimates have been made of the total value of unclaimed non-repayable bursaries and scholarships for students at higher education institutions in each year since 2001. [131427]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Department does not have these figures. Prior to 2006/07 bursaries were solely a matter for individual HE institutions and information was not collected centrally.

However, we are aware that following the introduction of access agreements in 2006, Higher Education Institutions have budgeted to spend in excess of £300 million on bursaries and scholarships benefiting students from low-income backgrounds and other underrepresented groups by 2010/11. The Office for Fair Access (OFFA) is responsible for the annual monitoring of access agreements from academic year 2006/07 and will report on the outcome in autumn/winter 2007.

As I said in the Higher Education debate on 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 483, I am aware that some concerns have been raised about a potential underspend on bursaries in some universities. I am monitoring that situation very closely and encourage any universities forecasting a genuine underspend on bursaries to invest in other measures to improve social inclusion. However, I am also aware that the scale of the underspend has been exaggerated in some reports.

Higher and Further Education: Student Numbers

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many young people were in (a) higher education and (b) further education in each of the last 20 years. [133356]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The latest available information on young students is given in the tables.

(a) Higher education

Number of young[1] UK domiciled students enrolled on higher education courses at higher and further education institutions[2] in Great Britain academic years 1986/87 to 2005/06

Higher Education: Student Wastage

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students started an undergraduate degree course which they then failed to complete in each year since 1997. [131643]

Bill Rammell: The latest available figures are shown in the table.

Proportion of UK-domiciled entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who are projected to neither obtain an award nor transfer to another course.

"Performance Indicators in Higher Education" published by HESA.

The figure for 2004-05 will become available by the end of July 2007.

According to figures published by the OECD, the overall completion rate in UK universities and colleges of higher education is amongst the highest in the OECD countries.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the drop-out rate from degree level courses was in 2006. [133215]

Bill Rammell: Drop-out rates from degree level courses are given in table T5 of the performance Indicators in Higher Education, published by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA). In 2003/04, the proportion of UK-domiciled entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who were projected to neither obtain an award nor transfer to another course, was 14.4 per cent., compared to a figure of 15.0 per cent. in 2000/01.

The 2003/04 figure is the latest available: the 2004/05 figure will become available in July 2007.

According to figures published by the OECD, the overall completion rate in UK universities and colleges of higher education is among the highest in the OECD countries.

Home Start: Cotswolds

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding is available for Home-Start in the Cotswolds; and if he will make a statement. [133888]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not directly fund Home-Start in the Cotswolds. The DfES has supported the national body, Home-Start UK since 2001 and is providing a strategic grant of £2.73 million in the current 2007-08 financial year. The grant to Home-Start UK is specifically to support capacity building activities of Home-Start UK services in England including national and regional staffing, training, and dissemination of resources to support the coverage of local scheme home visiting services.

Jean Monnet Programme

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the budget is of the European Union's Jean Monnet programme for 2007-08. [133549]

Bill Rammell: The European Union uses the calendar year for its financial calculations. For 2007, the European Commission's ex ante (forecast) budget for the Jean Monnet programme is €4,411,044.

Pupils: Age

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will make a statement on the rules regarding school starting age for children; [133767]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that parents are informed that it is not compulsory for a child to attend school until the term after his or her fifth birthday. [133768]

Jim Knight: Children become of compulsory school age at the start of the school term after they reach the age of five. Admission authorities may allow children to start school before they reach compulsory school age but, if they do so, parents offered a place at the school may ask that the date that their child is admitted be deferred until later in the school year or until he or she reaches compulsory school age in that school year. Where parents choose this option the place offered to them must be kept open and cannot be offered to another child. The school admissions code requires that this be made clear in published admission arrangements

Local authorities have a duty to provide advice and assistance to all parents in their area when they are choosing schools for their children and are required to publish a composite prospectus for parents each year with information about all the admission arrangements of all schools in their area. This includes admission to reception classes and the right parents have to request that admission be deferred.

School Milk

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many litres of milk were provided by the free school milk scheme per eligible pupil in England over the last 12 months. [128382]

Mr. Dhanda: This Department does not collect data on school milk provision in schools.

Local authorities (LAs) are not obliged to provide milk, but where they do so they must provide it free of charge to pupils entitled to receive a free school lunch.

LAs are free to make use of the EU school milk subsidy scheme (the subsidy), which reduces the cost of milk purchased in nursery and primary schools. Use of the subsidy makes milk more affordable to those parents who purchase school milk and reduces the cost to LAs of free milk provision.

Special Needs Education

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent assessment he has made of special needs education in mainstream schools in England. [134768]

Mr. Dhanda: In October 2006 the Government published their response to the report from the Education and Skills Committee on special educational needs (SEN). The response referred to Ofsted's report

"Inclusion: does it matter where pupils are taught?" (July 2006) which showed significant improvements in SEN provision since publication of Ofsted's 2004 survey "Special Educational Needs and Disability: towards inclusive schools?"

Ofsted's 2006 report found that there was little difference in the quality of provision and outcomes for pupils across primary, secondary and special schools. It added, however, that mainstream schools with additionally resourced provision were particularly successful in achieving high outcomes for pupils academically, socially and personally. High quality, specialist teachers and a commitment by leaders to create opportunities to include all pupils were the keys to success but the report noted that pupils in mainstream schools where support from teaching assistants was the main type of provision were less likely to make good academic progress than those who had access to specialist teaching.

The Government's response to the Select Committee noted that Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Schools had been asked to review progress on SEN provision in 2009/10. Her review will include reporting on the progress made under the Government's SEN strategy, "Removing Barriers to Achievement", in building teachers' skills in providing for children with SEN.

Special Educational Needs: Autism

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what statutory provisions are in place to ensure that children with autistic spectrum disorder have access to a teacher with a formal qualification in teaching children with autistic spectrum disorder; [132880]

(2) how many teachers in (a) mainstream maintained schools, (b) maintained special schools and (c) non-maintained special schools have a formal qualification in teaching children with autistic spectrum disorder; [132881]

(3) what funding the Government provided to assist teachers in gaining higher qualifications to teach children with autistic spectrum disorder in each year from 1997 to 2006. [132882]

Mr. Dhanda: There is no statutory requirement for children with autistic spectrum disorders (ASDs) to have access to a teacher with a formal qualification in teaching children with ASDs.

The non-statutory ASDs Good Practice Guidance (DfES/DH, 2002) advised that "all those who plan or provide for children with an ASD should have some knowledge and understanding of autism". The Department does not keep records centrally of how many teachers have a formal qualification in teaching children with ASDs.

Between 1997-98 and 2003-04 the value of the special educational needs (SEN) grant under the standards fund totalled £364.4 million (this figure includes Government grant and local authority matched funding). Training was one of the main sub-heads under the fund. It was for local authorities to decide how to use the funding. The fund guidance in 1999-2000, 2000-01 and 2002-03 specifically highlighted training in ASDs as one of the areas local authorities may have wished to support.

Since 2004-05 £81 million for SEN has been included in the baseline for the school development grant, which all maintained schools receive, and this increased by 4 per cent. per year in 2004-05 and 2005-06. The school development grant can be used for in-service training. It is a matter for individual teachers and their schools to determine their own training and development needs, including training in ASDs. Local authorities may retain a proportion of this grant, under certain circumstances, to provide specific training in SEN.

In 2002-03 £1 million was made available for higher education institutions to bid for projects to increase training and development opportunities for teachers, learning support assistants and school governorsunder the SEN training and development fund. Three grants were awarded for autism-related projects: £100,000 to Sheffield Hallam university (training initiatives aimed at raising the achievement of children with ASDs); £95,150 to the university of Birmingham (development of an ICT-supported module at masters level); and £50,000 to the university of Greenwich (collaborative project between the university and an ASD outreach service).

Student Loans Company

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills for what reasons the Student Loans Company uses the retail price index as its preferred inflation index. [134375]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 27 April 2007]: The Government's policy is to apply an interest rate to student loans which maintains the value of the loan in real terms. Borrowers therefore receive an appreciable interest rate subsidy compared to commercial loans. The retail price index is used as the interest rate because it reflects a range of relevant factors including mortgage interest and council tax.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how long transfers of student loan repayments from the Treasury's consolidated account remain with his Department before being transferred to the Student Loans Company. [132897]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 April 2007]: Student loans repayments are not transferred to the Student Loans Company. They reduce the net assets, representing outstanding loans, on the Department for Education and Skills balance sheet. It is only information about repayments made by individual borrowers that is passed to the company to allow it to issue annual statements. Once that information is received by the company, repayments are attributed to each month of the tax year in which they were made by the borrower and monthly interest is calculated accordingly. This ensures that even if there is a delay in repayment details reaching the company, the borrower does not pay any additional interest.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much of the student loan repayment transfers received by his Department from the Treasury's consolidated account in each of the last four quarters was (a) repayment of the principal component and (b) interest accrued. [132898]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 April 2007]: The Student Loans Company updates accounts with repayment details as they are received from HM Revenue and Customs. Repayments are taken from the total balance owed by the borrower. The Student Loans Company does not break down either outstanding amounts or repayments into principal and interest components.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much interest his Department earned on student loan repayments collected before annual transfer to the accounts in each of the last five years for which records are available; [131618]

(2) what representations he has received regarding the timing of the transfer of repayments of student loans into accounts; and if he will make a statement; [131619]

(3) if he will change the repayment methods employed by his Department on student loans so that repayments are made monthly. [131620]

Bill Rammell: I am aware that there is a petition on the No. 10 website based on the mistaken premise that borrowers overpay interest on their student loans because the Student Loans Company (SLC) only credits repayments annually. I have received correspondence relating to this.

Although borrowers' accounts are only updated as an annual exercise, the total annual repayment received from each borrower is credited to their account as 12 equal monthly payments, and the interest is calculated on a daily basis on the remaining balance in that month. No borrower pays too much interest as a result of the time lag in updating their account, and nor does the Department gain any additional income.

Student Numbers

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his estimate is of the likely number of (a) UK and (b) foreign students studying at universities in England in each of the next five years. [132867]

Bill Rammell: Estimates of likely numbers of students have not yet been made for this period. Over the last five years, the number of UK based students at English higher education institutions increased by 200,000 (14 per cent.) to 1.67 million and the number of overseas students at such institutions increased by 80,000 (40 per cent.) to 275,000.

Against that background, we expect many more students from both the UK and abroad to participate in higher education over the next five years.

Under the second phase of the Prime Minister's initiative, a target has been set for an extra 70,000 non-EU international higher education students and 30,000 non-EU international further education students to be recruited to UK higher education institutions and further education colleges by 2011.

Universities: Northern Cyprus

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the application by the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus for recognition of its six universities under the Council of Europe's Bologna process; and if he will make a statement; [134981]

(2) what representations his Department has made to the Council of Europe in respect of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus's application for recognition of its six universities under the Council of Europe's Bologna process; [134982]

(3) what representations he has received on the financial implications for the Turkish-Cypriot universities of their continued non-membership of the Bologna process. [134983]

Bill Rammell: The Government's assessment, which is generally shared by other countries in the Bologna Process, is that the application in question, along with those being considered from Israel, Kosovo and the Kyrgyz Republic, does not meet the criteria for membership of the Process. This is because those criteria require member countries to have ratified the European Cultural Convention. The final decision on this issue will be taken when Ministers meet at the Bologna Process Ministerial Conference in May. The Bologna Process is not a Council of Europe initiative but an independent intergovernmental agreement. The Government have not therefore made any representations to the Council of Europe on this matter. My officials have received representations from Professor Tahir Celik, chair of the Higher Education Board in the 'Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus', concerning his assessment of the potential economic impact of non-membership on universities in the 'Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus'.

Diplomas

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which diploma consortia have been approved to run diplomas in each subject area in 2008. [131232]

Jim Knight: On 28 March I was pleased to announce the first 145 consortia (groups of schools, colleges and training providers) across 97 local authorities that have been given approval to offer one or more of the first five 14 to 19 diplomas from September 2008. A total of around 40,000 places are forecast across the country. Approved consortia delivering the diploma from 2008 were banded into two categories.

Category 1: recommended to go through for 2008 delivery with no conditions;

Category 2: recommended to go through for delivery from September 2008 with conditions that will need to be met within three months.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Labelling

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to bring forward measures to introduce health warnings on alcoholic drinks. [131901]

Caroline Flint: The Department has been working with the alcohol industry for a voluntary agreement on sensible drinking messages and unit information to include on labels.

Alcohol and Drugs: Strategy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she made an assessment of the potential for fiscal incentives to contribute to the promotion of responsible drinking prior to the 2007 Budget. [131939]

Caroline Flint: Tax decisions are made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, taking account of a range of factors, including health.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timetable is for the review of the (a) alcohol and (b) drugs strategy; and what consultation is taking place in relation to each such strategy. [135228]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

The Home Office is leading the cross-Government effort on the development of a new Drug Strategy. The existing, and successful, 10-year strategy runs until March 2008. A consultation document is planned to be issued alongside details of the consultation process in May/June 2007. The intention is to consult interested groups and individuals, including service providers and those affected by drugs—users, families and local communities. Subject to cross-Government agreement, the new strategy is likely to be published in late 2007.

The Home Office and Department of Health are jointly leading a review of the Alcohol Harm Strategy for England 2004 and the development of a new Alcohol Strategy with support from the Department for Education and Skills. A series of detailed discussions have been held with key stakeholders from the health, police and young people's sectors and the alcohol industry to inform the development of the new Alcohol Strategy. The new strategy is due to be launched in summer 2007. A formal consultation is not planned prior to launch, but consultation is likely to be required on implementation of key aspects of the strategy.

Blood Transfusions

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken to ensure that blood transfusions are avoided wherever possible. [133584]

Caroline Flint: The Department has taken a number of measures to ensure the most appropriate use of blood, and to encourage the national health service to use less blood. Some of the key measures are set out as follows.

In 1998, the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) launched the Better Blood Transfusion initiative to promote and encouraged better/appropriate use of blood and alternatives to transfusion.

In July 2002, Health Service Circular (HSC) 2002/009 "Better Blood Transfusion—Appropriate Use of Blood" was issued. This has been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Lettersandcirculars/Healthservicecirculars/DH_4004264

This circular asked NHS trusts and primary care trusts to review and explore the use of effective alternatives to donor blood, and also using the patients own blood.

The CMO's National Blood Transfusion Committee was established in 2002 to advise hospitals and the National Blood Service on best practice and performance monitoring, improving the safety and appropriateness of blood transfusion practice, listening to and informing patient concerns and promoting high quality and consistent transfusion practice.

The Department and the United Kingdom blood services produced a toolkit for practitioners on better blood transfusion, safe practice, appropriate use, education and training, and monitoring and traceability. The toolkit, which is available at www.transfusion guidelines.org.uk/, aims to help NHS trusts to make the most appropriate use of blood and its alternatives where possible.

A seminar was held on 16 March 2007 to discuss progress and identify ways to maintain or improve the safe and appropriate use of blood over the next three to five years. An HSC will be issued to the NHS on the outcomes.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to prevent unnecessary blood transfusions which can be prevented through the use of erythropoietin. [133585]

Caroline Flint: The type of treatment offered to patients is a matter of individual clinical judgment and discussion with the patient concerned.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is currently appraising erythropoietin for the treatment of anaemia induced by cancer treatment and expects to publish final guidance to the national health service in November 2007.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what alternatives are made available to people who choose not to receive blood transfusions on religious grounds. [133586]

Caroline Flint: Patients have the right to refuse a blood transfusion and this will be respected. However, before refusing a blood transfusion, patients need to fully understand the consequences of doing so. Information is available at www.transfusion guidelines.org.uk/ on alternatives to blood transfusion.

Blood: Contamination

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of haemophiliacs who were infected with HIV and hepatitis C through blood transfusions when they were children, but are unable to receive hardship funds through the Macfarlane Trust and the Skipton fund; and if she will make a statement. [132463]

Caroline Flint: The Macfarlane Trust was set up in 1988 to provide financial help to patients with haemophilia infected with the HIV virus and their families.

The Skipton fund was set up in 2004 to administer an Ex-gratia Payment scheme for patients infected with hepatitis C following national health service treatment with blood or blood products. Haemophilia patients who were infected with hepatitis C are eligible for a payment under the Skipton fund.

Anyone eligible for payments should have received them. The Department is examining two cases where individuals claim that they have not received payments they may be entitled to.

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 120W, on chlamydia infection: screening, what percentage of primary care trusts participated in the chlamydia screening programme in the most recent period for which figures are available; and which primary care trusts are not participating in the programme. [131888]

Caroline Flint: To the end of December 2006, we had 45 per cent. of primary care trusts reporting data to the Health Protection Agency (HPA). This is an additional 2 per cent. to the 43 per cent. I gave in my reply on 12 March 2007 and covers 35 programme areas. More programme areas have started screening since then. The data for the January to March 2007 quarter will be reported to the HPA at the end of April.

The primary care trusts that have not reported data to the HPA are given in the following list.

Cholesterol

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diagnoses of high cholesterol there were in England in each year since 1997-98; and how many such diagnoses were made in those under the age of 18 years. [131913]

CJD

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans she has to test blood donors for vCJD; [131864]

(2) what estimate she has made of the annual cost of testing blood donors for vCJD. [131865]

Caroline Flint: There are no current suitable tests for testing blood donation for variant Creutzfeld-Jakob disease (vCJD), and therefore no current plans to test blood donors. However we are aware of a number of companies developing vCJD blood tests and, if such tests become available and after consulting with the appropriate advisory bodies, we will consider their utility in testing blood donations with the National Blood Service.

There are no reliable current estimates of the cost of testing blood donations for vCJD, which could only be accurately calculated once a suitable test for testing donations is available, and the cost of such a test is known.

Co-Proxamol

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the reasons were for the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency's decision to implement a phased withdrawal of co-proxamol; and if she will make a statement; [128931]

(2) when co-proxamol will be withdrawn from general use in the relief of pain for sufferers of (a) osteoarthritis and (b) fibromyalgia; and what alternative drugs will be able to be prescribed.; [128932]

(3) what (a) discussions she has had with and (b) representations she has received from (i) Arthritis Care, (ii) the Arthritis Research Campaign, (iii) the National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society and (iv) the Fibromyalgia Association on the phased withdrawal of co-proxamol. [128933]

Caroline Flint: There has been growing concern about the safety of co-proxamol, prompted by United Kingdom research showing that co-proxamol alone accounts for almost one-fifth of drug related suicides and is second only to tricyclic antidepressants as an agent of fatal drug overdose. Furthermore, co-proxamol is involved in 300-400 self-poisoning deaths each year.

Many deaths involve people taking co-proxamol that had not been prescribed to them. Co-proxamol is potentially very toxic, and toxic overdose can occur with only a few tablets more than the recommended daily dose. Unlike paracetamol there is very limited opportunity for effective treatment of co-proxamol poisoning and sadly victims often die before they reach hospital.

As a result of these concerns, in 2004 the Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM) conducted a rigorous review of all the available evidence regarding the risks and benefits of co-proxamol. The review highlighted that there is a lack of evidence that co-proxamol is any more effective than full dose paracetamol, either for short term use or for chronic conditions. During the review a public call for evidence on the risks and benefits of co-proxamol was also conducted. The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) wrote to a large number of organisations representing healthcare professionals, patient groups and other stakeholders. The information gathered provided no new objective evidence concerning the risk and benefits of co-proxamol.

The CSM noted that previously strengthened warnings to doctors and patients on the hazards of co-proxamol had proved ineffective. After considering all the available evidence the CSM determined that the risks of co-proxamol outweigh the benefits of allowing the medicine to remain on the market and advised that co-proxamol should be withdrawn over a period of up to 36 months.

The marketing authorisations for co-proxamol will be withdrawn at the end of 2007. Some manufacturers have already withdrawn co-proxamol and a few will phase the withdrawal until the end of 2007. This extended withdrawal period allows long-term co-proxamol users an opportunity to move to suitable alternatives. There are a number of such alternatives and the MHRA has issued CSM pain management guidance to help doctors find the best options for individual patients. This is available on the MHRA's website at www.mhra.gov.uk.

The MHRA recognises that there is a small group of patients who are likely to find it very difficult to change from co-proxamol or for whom there is an identified clinical need, and for whom alternatives appear not to be effective or suitable. For these patients, continued provision of co-proxamol through normal prescribing may continue until the cancellation of the licences at the end of 2007. After this time there will be provision for the supply of unlicensed co-proxamol, on the responsibility of the prescriber.

The MHRA has met with Arthritis Care, the British Society for Rheumatology, the National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society and the British Pain Society to discuss the withdrawal of co-proxamol. As a result of these discussions, an article on the risk and benefit of co-proxamol was agreed for publication in the MHRA's/CSM's drug safety bulletin, 'Current Problems in Pharmacovigilance'. Arthritis Care, the British Pain Society and the British Society for Rheumatology also responded to the public call for evidence. As is usual for MHRA public consultations, the responses to consultation are available on request.

The outcome of regulatory action to withdraw co-proxamol is being carefully monitored. It is encouraging to see that the latest figures on suicide show that the national suicide rate continued to fall in 2005 and stood at its lowest ever level. Furthermore a recent report from the national programme on substance abuse deaths based at St George's Hospital in London shows that the number deaths involving co-proxamol had declined since the CSM took action.

Dental Services

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2098W, on dental services, how many dentists were operating on open NHS contracts in Somerset in each of the last 10 years, broken down by primary care trust. [135262]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of NHS dentists in Somerset from 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2006 are available in Annex E of the NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006, which is available in the Library.

The report, published by the information centre for health and social care, is also available at:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity.

Information on the dental work force under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, is published at every quarter by the information centre for health and social care. These data are not comparable with the historical data in the link above. The latest information available is as at 31 December 2006 by the new primary care trusts (PCT) boundaries (PCT boundaries as at 1 October 2006) published on 23 March 2007—NHS Dental Statistics for England Quarter 3: 31 December 2006 and is available in the Library.

The report, published by The Information Centre for health and social care, is also available at:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental06q3.

Departments: Research

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) to what extent preferences shown by members of the public influence the research priorities set by her Department's research and development division; [132218]

(2) what (a) process and (b) decision-making criteria will be used to set research funding priorities for her Department's research and development division in each of the next three years; and what the timetable is for the setting of those priorities in each year; [132221]

(3) what formula is used to set funding allocations for different medical research specialties for her Department's research and development. [132257]

Caroline Flint: The Department funds National Health Service Research and Development through the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR). Information on the priority setting processes for each NIHR programme is available through the NIHR website at www.nihr.ac.uk. The Government's strategy for health research 'Best Research for Best Health' was subject to open public consultation.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence and the United Kingdom National Screening Committee also act as customers for departmental research, and advisory bodies, research funders groups and topic review groups play a role in identifying research gaps and requirements.

The Department's Policy Research Programme (PRP) commissions research to support the development, implementation and evaluation of policy in public health, health services and adult social care. Priorities for the PRP are determined by the Department's strategic objectives and public service agreements, and through discussion between officials and with Ministers.

The NIHR national advisory group INVOLVE promotes and supports active public involvement in all aspects of NHS, public health and social care research. Its website (www.invo.org.uk) and its publications give both researchers and the public information and advice on the range of opportunities for such involvement that exist.

More specifically, any individual or organisation can submit a suggestion for consideration by the NIHR Health Technology Assessment (HTA) programme. An electronic form is available on the HTA website at www.hta.ac.uk/suggest.

Drugs: Counselling

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in London were referred to (a) counselling and (b) other advice services for help with drug related problems in each of the last 10 years, broken down by (i) health trust and (ii) borough. [132922]

Caroline Flint: We do not hold data on the numbers of people who were referred for counselling (structured psychosocial interventions) for drug related problems prior to 2003-04.

The following table shows the number of people broken down by Drug Action Team boundaries in London for the years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 who were referred for counselling (structured psychosocial intervention) for drug related problems in 2003-04. We do not have these figures on a health trust basis.

These figures are based on returns to the National Drug Treatment Monitoring System.

We do not collect data on the numbers of people referred to other advice services for drug related problems.

Epilepsy and Multiple Sclerosis

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of NHS services available for patients with (a) epilepsy and (b) multiple sclerosis. [134190]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no recent assessment of the effectiveness of national health service services available for those living with epilepsy, or with multiple sclerosis.

Genito-Urinary Medicine: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of attenders at genito-urinary medicine (GUM) clinics was recorded as not having been given an appointment within two weeks in each audit of GUM clinic waiting times undertaken by the Health Protection Agency up to and including the February 2007 audit. [131963]

Caroline Flint: The percentage of attendees at genito-urinary medicine (GUM) clinics in England who were seen in 14 days or more, May 2004 to February 2007 is given in the following table.

Audit	Number seen in 14 or more days	Total seen	Percentage seen 14 or more days
May 2004	2,268	13,683	17
Nov 2004	1,928	13,892	14

Notes:
1. The table gives the data for two weeks or more, rather than more than two weeks, as these are the data that are available.
2. The audit is based on quarterly one-week samples of new and rebooked attendees (a rebook attendee is defined for this audit as someone who has not been into the clinic for six weeks or more) who self complete a standard brief questionnaire.
3. All tables exclude responses that do not include a valid answer to the waiting time question (Q6 in February 2007 and Q5 in previous audits). From May 2006, responses that do not include a valid appointment day are also excluded.
4. See full methodology for details: www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hiv_and_sti/epidemiology/Waiting_times_Introduction_Method_Feb2007.pdf

Haemophilia

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department undertook between 1980 and 1990 into (a) haemophilia and (b) haemophilia linked to HIV; and what the (i) date and (ii) aims were of each project. [133791]

Caroline Flint: The Department's principal funding for and expenditure on research and development in the years from 1980 to 1990 was undertaken on a regional basis and the information needed to answer the hon. Member's question is not held centrally. The information that is available gives no indication that research in the areas in question was centrally commissioned during that time.

The Medical Research Council's (MRC) report 'AIDS Research, 1990' gives an account of a body of MRC-funded research that includes projects concerned with haemophilia and AIDS. A copy of the report is available in the Library.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why funding for the Haemophilia Society has been withdrawn. [133792]

Caroline Flint: The Haemophilia Society has received core funding under the Section 64 General Scheme of Grants for a number of years. We have not withdrawn Section 64 funding. In line with the criteria for the Section 64 scheme we recently informed the Haemophilia Society that we will be reducing their funding and provided an explanation for the reduction in funding well in advance to allow them to plan for this change.

The following level of funding will be provided over the next three years:

2007-08	60,000
2008-09	30,000
2009-10	30,000

Local Improvement Finance Trust

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Local Improvement Finance Trust centres are planned for (a) Staffordshire, (b) the West Midlands and (c) Tamworth constituency. [132866]

Andy Burnham: There are currently six Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) schemes within the NHS West Midlands strategic health authority area. The Department of Health is able to confirm that one of these schemes is located in the North Staffordshire primary care trust (PCT) area. However, there are no current LIFT schemes in the South Staffordshire PCT area, which includes Tamworth.

Each LIFT Scheme is comprised of a number of individual LIFT centres and the number of these is shown in the table, broken down by the geographical areas requested and their current status.

Hearing Impairment: Audio Equipment

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of people using iPods who will suffer hearing impairment as a result. [133852]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no estimate of the number of people using iPods who will suffer hearing impairment.

HIV Infection: Greater London

Mike Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were diagnosed with HIV in each London borough in each of the last five years. [133350]

Caroline Flint: The HIV caseload for each London borough from 2001 to 2005 is shown in the table.

This corrects the information given in my answer to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Lynne Featherstone), on 5 March 2007, Official Report, col. 1686-87w.

Survey of Prevalent HIV Infections Diagnosed (SOPHID), 2001-05.
SOPHID collects residential and epidemiological information on individuals accessing HIV care within a calendar year in England, Wales or Northern Ireland. All figures exclude infants born to HIV-infected women in the survey year but who were uninfected or whose infection status was indeterminate. At least 98 per cent. of indeterminate infants will subsequently be confirmed as uninfected.

Homeopathy

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether a patient wishing to choose NHS homeopathy and other forms of complementary medicine will be able to access such services from one of the four NHS homeopathic hospitals; and how many other hospitals plan to offer such services. [133931]

Caroline Flint: The homeopathic hospitals in the United Kingdom fall under the jurisdiction of the national health service in the area in which they are based. Any decisions on the services any of these hospitals provide are the responsibility of those NHS healthcare organisations.

The Government consider that decision-making on individual clinical interventions, whether conventional or complementary/alternative treatments, have to be a matter for local NHS service providers and practitioners as they are best placed to know their community's needs. In making such decisions, they have to take into account evidence regarding safety, the clinical and cost-effectiveness of any treatments, the availability of suitably qualified practitioners, and the needs of the individual patient. Clinical responsibility rests with the NHS professional who makes the decision to refer and who must therefore be able to justify any treatment they recommend. If they are unconvinced about the suitability of a particular treatment, they cannot be made to refer.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate she has made of the proportion of patients in each group whose health is deemed at risk from seasonal influenza who received their seasonal influenza immunisation for the 2006-07 winter. [131848]

Caroline Flint: Data collected by the Health Protection Agency for influenza vaccinations for 2006-07 show as follows:

Those under 65 years of age and in a medical risk group:

	Percentage
Chronic respiratory disease	41
Chronic heart disease	54
Chronic renal disease	40
Chronic liver disease	32
Immunosuppression	34
Diabetes	69

Those aged 65 years and over—74 per cent.

Maternity Services: Death

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many maternal deaths there were whilst receiving maternity care in (a) Yorkshire and (b) England in each of the last three years. [132967]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the confidential enquiry into Maternal and Child Health (CEMACH)'s report on maternal death for the three-year period 2000-02 showed that there were 106 direct maternal deaths in that period, representing 5.3 deaths per thousand of the two million births. The next CEMACH report (for 2003-05) will be published at the end of the year.

Mental Health Services: Gloucestershire

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to make a final decision on the reconfiguration of mental health services provided by Gloucestershire Partnership NHS Trust. [135423]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The case has been referred to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel and the panel will provide advice to the Secretary of State by 27 July. Following receipt of the panel's report, the Secretary of State will then make a final decision on the case.

Modernising Medical Careers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her oral statement on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 41, on modernising medical careers, how many members of the independent review chaired by Professor John Tooke were members of the review group which dealt with this year's recruitment process. [135060]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 April 2007]: Professor Sir John Tooke has not yet confirmed the membership of his review group, although this is being considered as a matter of urgency so that the independent review can commence its business as soon as possible.

National Midwifery Council: Funding

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was provided by her Department to support the establishment of the National Midwifery Council. [133572]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: According to our records, the Department granted funding between April 2002 and April 2004 totalling £3,656,382.81 to support the establishment of the Nursing and Midwifery Council. Figures prior to April 2002 are currently unavailable without extensive research.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what annual funding is provided by her Department to the National Midwifery Council. [133573]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: According to our records no funding has been paid to the Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC) by the Department since April 2004. The NMC is an autonomous organisation funded by registration fees and does not receive funding from the Department.

NHS Direct

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the number of callers to NHS Direct who ring more than once a week; and whether individuals have been banned from calling NHS Direct. [134116]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the NHS Direct national health service trust.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what her new policy is on providing an independent sector treatment centre for South East Essex; and if she will make a statement; [132603]

(2) how much has been spent to date on securing an independent sector treatment centre for South East Essex. [132605]

Andy Burnham: The Department is working with the NHS East of England SHA to deliver independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) services in Essex. It is currently anticipated that there will be three ISTCs in the region, located in Braintree, Basildon and Southend.

The aims of the Department's ISTC programme are to:

help provide capacity to deliver swift access to treatment for national health service patients.

support the implementation of patient choice.

stimulate innovative models of service delivery and drive up productivity, and;

introduce contestability between providers of healthcare services for NHS patients.

The ISTC programme comprises central resources which work across all schemes and the programme in general. These resources are not disaggregated by individual scheme.

In wave 1 of the ISTC programme ex-gratia payments were made in relation to the South Essex scheme. The amounts paid are commercially sensitive.

NHS: Choose and Book System

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of general practitioner referrals to first consultant-led out-patient services were made through the choose and book system by 1 April. [133826]

Andy Burnham: During March 2007 a total of 283,149 general practitioner referrals to first consultant-led out-patient services were made through the choose and book system. This equates to 38 per cent. of first out-patient referrals nationally, and represents a range of between 8 per cent. and 91 per cent. for different primary care trusts.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 318W, on patient choice schemes, what the total costs of (a) preparing, (b) implementing and (c) rolling out the Choose and Book system have been since the system was first proposed. [134619]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 317W.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what budget was set for each local trust for the implementation of the Choose and Book system for each year in which the system has been in operation. [134624]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the response given on 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 141-42W.

NHS: Public Participation

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of (a) the winding-up costs of (i) the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health and (ii) PPI forums and (b) the start-up costs for local involvement networks; and if she will make a statement. [135300]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 1 May 2007]: The precise cost of winding-up the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health (CPPIH) is not yet known as some costs such as those for making staff redundant will not become clear until later in the year. However, we do know that all costs associated with the wind-up of the CPPIH will be covered from within its existing funding allocation. There will be no costs associated with the wind-up of PPI forums as all associated costs for forums are contained within limited contracts between the CPPIH and forum support organisations.

The cost of establishing local involvement networks (LINks) will depend on locally relevant factors including size of the network, nature of the population, resource structure of the host, and other variables. Funds to cover LINk establishment and their running costs are currently being bid for as part of the spending review process.

Obesity: Children

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made towards meeting the public services agreement target of July 2004 that by 2010 the increase in obesity among children aged under 11 years will be halted. [131947]

Caroline Flint: Despite the very challenging nature of the public service agreement (PSA) target we have made good progress. For example:

OFCOM has announced restrictions to ensure no high fat, sugar and salt (HFSS) products are broadcast advertised to pre-school children; in programmes specifically made for children; or in programmes of particular appeal to children up to 16 years old.

The 2005-06 school sport survey found that overall 80 per cent. of pupils participate in at least two hours of high quality physical education and school sport a week, meeting our PSA target early.

New, tougher nutritional standards for school food have been announced and those for school lunches have been in place since September 2006.

We launched the Top Tips for Top Mums campaign, in March 2007, to help parents tackle the four key barriers to children eating fruit and vegetables (cost, fussy eaters, limited time/cooking skills, and a lack of structured meal occasions). This was the first in a series of campaigns using social marketing approaches.

Obviously tackling obesity is a complex issue, requiring action on a number of fronts and working closely with families and individuals to change behaviour. It is extremely positive that internationally our approach is regarded as good practice, informing for example, the World Health Organisation Europe Charter on Counteracting Obesity, published in November last year.

Patients: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent per head by the NHS on care and treatment for (a) all people, (b) children, (c) young people, (d) those aged 65 years and over and (e) those aged 80 years and over in the most recent period for which figures are available. [134112]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows hospital and community health services (HCHS) expenditure per head of population in 2003-04. The table shows the available age group breakdown, which differs from that requested.

Age group	Expenditure per head (£)
All births	2,742
Age 0-4	1,046
Age 5-15	210
Age 16-44	459
Age 45-64	586
Age 65-74	1,416
Age 75-84	2,371
Age 85+	4,077
Average	765

Note:
2003-04 is the latest year these data are available.

Smoking: Railway and other Stations

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she has taken with (a) train, bus and coach operators and (b) Network Rail to inform passengers of the introduction of a ban on smoking at railway and other stations. [133929]

Caroline Flint: The smokefree provisions within the Health Act 2006 will apply to virtually all enclosed and substantially enclosed public places and workplaces, as well as to public transport vehicles. Many forms of public transport are already smokefree. London Underground ended smoking on all its trains and stations 20 years ago.

The Department has met Network Rail and organisations representing all train operators, bus and coach operators in an effort to support the transport industry in their preparations for the implementation of smokefree legislation on 1 July 2007.

All smokefree premises and vehicles will be required under smokefree legislation to display no-smoking signs that meet specified requirements. Signs will allow clear communication with smokers so they are clear where smoking is not permitted under the new law. Signs will also make it clear to non-smokers where they have a right to expect a smokefree environment, as well as helping to demonstrate that people who manage premises are taking reasonable steps to prevent smoking from taking place. The Government has drafted smokefree regulations to ensure that much of the pre-existing no-smoking signage displayed in public transport vehicles will meet requirements.

Smoking: Social Clubs

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she has taken to ensure working men's clubs are aware of the forthcoming ban on smoking. [130101]

Caroline Flint: The Department is providing a range of information and support to businesses to help them be ready for the implementation of smokefree legislation on 1 July 2007.

On 23 March 2007, the Department published the guide "Everything you need to prepare for the new smokefree law on 1 July 2007", with comprehensive information on smokefree legislation for businesses. The guide will be included within a pack that was posted to all employing and trading businesses in England, including working men's clubs, during April and is also available to download on the Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk.

The guidance packs that businesses have received also include no-smoking signs and other support materials.

A Smokefree England ministerial reference group comprised of key stakeholders was created last year to facilitate dialogue between business groups (including representatives from the hospitality industry), local government and the Department, and has met regularly. The Committee of Registered Clubs' Associations (CORCA), representing working men's clubs, is a member of the reference group.

Through the Smokefree England campaign, the Department been working with CORCA to help communicate how the new law will affect members clubs, and has met with CORCA representatives regularly. The Department will continue to provide CORCA and working men's clubs with assistance and advice to support their preparations for the implementation of smokefree legislation.

Businesses can also contact their local council for information and advice on getting ready for the implementation of smokefree legislation.

Surgery: Cancellations

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Hull and East Yorkshire NHS trust patients had their operation cancelled up to 14 days before the operation in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many such operations were for (a) knee surgery, (b) hip replacements, (c) ophthalmology surgery and (d) urology surgery. [133930]

Andy Burnham: Data collected centrally cover cancellations for non-clinical reasons on the day the patient is due to arrive or after arrival in hospital, and for non-clinical reasons on the day of surgery. The data are available by provider but not by speciality. There were 744 such cancellations in the period January to December 2006 at Hull and East Yorkshire national health service trust. This equates to 1.1 per cent. of elective admissions.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Local Councillors

20. Mr. Khan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on steps to increase the diversity of local councillors. [135450]

Meg Munn: The independent Commission on Local Councillors, announced by my right hon. Friend the Member for Bolton, West (Ruth Kelly) on 8 February, has been set up to consider how a more diverse range of people, including more women, can be encouraged and supported to become councillors so that communities are better represented. The Commission is looking at the range of barriers preventing women, and other under represented groups such as from the BME community and younger people, from standing, including for example time requirement and public perception of the role of councillors. The Commission is expected to report to the Secretary of State with its recommendations in the autumn.

Age Discrimination

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what plans she has to prevent age discrimination in the provision of goods and services. [135449]

Meg Munn: The Government are considering whether there is a case for introducing legislation to prohibit harmful age discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services as part of the Discrimination Law Review. The proposals emerging from the review will be published for public consultation later this month.

Women and Work Commission

David Taylor: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what progress has been made in the last 12 months in taking forward the recommendations of the Women and Work Commission; and if she will make a statement. [135451]

Meg Munn: On 2 April we launched a report setting out the comprehensive programme of action being taken forward by Government to reduce the gender pay and opportunities gap one year on from the Women and Work Commission's recommendations. This included: details of a £500,000 fund to create more quality part-time work; the development of an Equality Check Tool to allow employers to see where they could improve their practices in relation to gender equality issues. I will also continue to chair a project board of Whitehall officials to drive forward the women's economic participation agenda.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 307W, on the Rural Payments Agency, (1) when he expects analysis by constituency of claimants and payments made under the single payment scheme to be published; and where the information will be made available; [133135]

(2) when he expects analysis by constituency of claimants and payments made under the Single Payment Scheme to be published; and where the information will be made available. [135419]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 2 May 2007]: Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the 2005 single payment scheme is not yet available. Once the remaining 2005 scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Bees

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value was of (a) UK honey production and (b) pollination services provided by beekeepers in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006. [133562]

Barry Gardiner: The value of honey production in the UK in 2004 was £17.3 million and in both 2005 and 2006 was approximately £18 million per year. On the basis of an economic evaluation in 2001, the estimated economic value of crops grown commercially in the UK that benefit from bee pollination is £120 million to £200 million per year.

Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the reduction required in UK carbon dioxide emissions by 2050 if the UK is to meet its share in an international goal of stabilising greenhouse gases in the atmosphere at between 450 and 550 ppm of carbon dioxide equivalent. [131737]

Ian Pearson: There is no simple relationship between a long-term stabilisation goal and the pathways required to get there. The most recent science indicates that to stabilise at between 450 and 550 ppm CO_2 equivalent, global greenhouse gas emissions would need to fall by between 10 per cent. and 65 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2050.

The UK's target of a 60 per cent. reduction in carbon dioxide emissions is consistent with this approach. However, we recognise that we will need to keep this goal under review in the light of emerging scientific evidence and other developments.

Coastal Areas

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he intends to take in response to the Communities and Local Government Committee's report on Coastal Towns. [135211]

Barry Gardiner: My Department is considering the issues and contributing to the Government's Response.

Coastal Erosion

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much coastal erosion occurred on the UK's coastline in each of the last 30 years for which figures are available. [135210]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA has overall policy responsibility for coastal erosion risk in England and grant aids local authority improvement projects to reduce this risk, but does not build defences, nor direct the authorities on which specific projects to undertake. Management of coastal erosion risk and associated monitoring is the responsibility of the relevant local authority in each area.

DEFRA does not measure the extent of coastal erosion or hold these figures centrally. Erosion risk will vary around the coastline depending on local conditions and defences in place. DEFRA has encouraged the relevant authorities to produce Shoreline Management Plans (SMPs) which provide large-scale assessments of the risks associated with coastal processes and present long term policy frameworks to manage them in a sustainable manner. In 2001, DEFRA funded a national study of information on long term coastal processes and evolution over the next century (Futurecoast). This is designed to be used by coastal authorities to inform their current revisions of SMPs.

The then Office of Science and Technology's Foresight Future Flooding report, published in 2004, also considered possible rates of coastal erosion under different scenarios over the next 80 years.

Darwin Initiative

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding and other resources have been (a) spent in each of the last three financial years and (b) allocated for each of the next three financial years for the Darwin Initiative fund. [132432]

Barry Gardiner: The information is as follows:

(a) Expenditure on the Darwin Initiative in each of the last three years was as follows:

	£ million
2003-04	3.7
2004-05	4.5
2005-06	6.7

It is still too early to provide accurate and verified figures for expenditure under the Darwin Initiative for the 2006-07 financial year.

(b) The budget is £7 million for this financial year (2007-08). The allocation for future years will be determined in light of the outcome of the comprehensive spending review.

Departments: Climate Change

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department were employed on matters relating to climate change in each year since 2000. [135049]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 1 May 2007]: The information requested cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff are employed by the Office of Climate Change, broken down by salary band. [135050]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 1 May 2007]: The number of staff employed in the Office for Climate Change on 31 March 2007 taken from the central HR Database was as follows:

	Number of staff
AO	3.00
HEO	10.00
SEO	1.00
Grade 7	5.00
Grade 6	2.00
SCS	4.60
Total	25.60

The numbers shown are full-time equivalents and exclude employment agency temporary staff, consultants and contractors.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what meetings took place between Ministers and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date of each such meeting was. [131030]

Barry Gardiner: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Ministers and officials meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [134997]

Ian Pearson: The Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs purchased a total of 45,968,886 kilowatt hours from renewable sources in 2005-06. This equates to 63 per cent. of its total electricity and 27 per cent. of its total energy consumed.

Cross Government targets mandate Departments to source at least 10 per cent. of their electricity from renewable sources by 2008.

Farmers: Resignations

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of farmers who left the agricultural sector in Suffolk in each year since 1997. [134674]

Barry Gardiner: Figures from the Agricultural and Horticultural Survey indicate labour on registered holdings at June each year. These figures therefore show net change only in the numbers of farmers.

Agricultural labour force in Suffolk

	Total farmers, partners, directors and spouses (if working on the holding)	Total labour
1997	4,895	11,791
1998	4,815	12,160
1999	4,641	11,173
2000	5,476	11,211
2001	5,830	11,582
2002	5,637	10,785
2003	5,498	10,208
2004	5,699	10,683
2005	5,635	10,621
2006	5,778	10,293

Notes:
(a) Figures prior to 2000 are for main holdings only. Figures from 2000 onwards include all holdings. A minor holding has to meet all of the following conditions:
(i) the total area less than six hectares
(ii) the labour requirement is estimated to be less than 100 standard person days
(iii) there is no regular full time farmer or worker
(iv) the glasshouse area is less than 100 square metres
(v) the occupier does not farm another holding
(b) Since the annual June Survey is now based on a sample estimates have been made for those not surveyed.
(c) Due to the introduction of new labour questions in 1998 figures prior to this year are not directly comparable with earlier year's results.
(d) Due to a register improvement exercise in 2001 labour figures prior to this are not directly comparable with later results.

Government Departments: Combined Heat and Power

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much combined heat and power (CHP) has been installed on the Government estate since 1997; and whether the Government expects to meet its CHP target by 2010. [135591]

Ian Pearson: Sustainable Development in Government (SDiG) reports, which monitor how the Government manage their land and buildings, set out that during the period 2001-02 (the date of the first report), three Departments sourced good quality CHP, while during the last reporting period (2005-06) seven Departments sourced good quality CHP. In this period DEFRA sourced 12 per cent. of their electricity from CHP and the DTI sourced 14.3 per cent.

The DTI's digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics (DUKES) sets out that in 2005, 14 CHP schemes had been installed in buildings on the Government estate.

All Departments are working towards the sustainable operations targets launched by the Prime Minister in June of last year. Government Departments are also mandated within the new targets to source at least 15 per cent. of electricity from Good Quality Combined Heat and Power by 2010 (with allowances for Departments that already purchase 100 per cent. renewable energy).

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on his commitment that 15 per cent. of electricity used in the Government estate will be from combined heat and power by 2010. [135594]

Ian Pearson: No representations have been made to me recently on the subject of the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate target to source at least 15 per cent. of electricity from Good Quality Combined heat and Power by 2010 (with allowances for Departments that already purchase 100 per cent. renewable energy).

Rights of Way: East Anglia

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many Rights of Way have been established since the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000; how many were in East Anglia; and how much land has been affected in (a) England and (b) East Anglia. [135212]

Barry Gardiner: Local highway authorities are responsible for the management of rights of way and hold the relevant information on them. DEFRA does not hold the information requested which could be gathered only at a disproportionate cost.

Rural Areas: Environment Protection

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many agreements have been made under the (a) Countryside Stewardship, (b) Entry Level and (c) Environmentally Sensitive Areas schemes, broken down by year of expiry. [134076]

Barry Gardiner: The following table shows numbers of agreements currently recorded broken down by the year of expiry expected at the time the agreement was entered into under the three agri-environment schemes in question.

Agreements by year of expected expiry under each scheme

Number

	CSS	ESA	ELS
1993	4	0	0
1994	5	0	0
1995	14	0	0
1996	10	0	0

Agreements by year of expected expiry under each scheme

	CSS	ESA	Number ELS
2001	990	0	0
2002	1,395	2,253	0
2003	1,192	2,822	0
2004	991	2,315	0
2005	573	1,691	0
2006	1,083	991	0
2007	1,120	889	0
2008	1,292	802	0
2009	1,196	579	0
2010	2,210	483	11,871
2011	2,506	594	12,801
2012	2,885	2,383	2,820
2013	2,772	2,412	0
2014	1,657	1,639	0
2015	0	2	0

Notes:
1. A small number of agreements do not run for the full duration as they are terminated early.
2. The full duration is 10 years for Countryside Stewardship Scheme (CSS) and Environmentally Sensitive Areas (ESA) and five years for the Entry Level Stewardship Scheme (ELS).
3. As the ELS scheme is open to new applications, the figures for ELS are a snapshot showing current live agreements, and accordingly this figure will be subject to future variation.

Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has made to the Home Department on the future of the Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme. [134341]

Barry Gardiner: My Department has regular discussions with the Home Office on a range of issues. The Government are aware of the importance of the Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme (SAWS) to farmers and growers. The scheme plays an important role in helping the industry to meet its demand for seasonal and casual workers, particularly during periods of peak activity. The views of DEFRA Ministers are fully represented in decisions taken by the Government about the future of SAWS.

Seeds: Imports

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many lots of seeds for (a) maize and sweetcorn, (b) winter oilseed rape, (c) spring oilseed rape, (d) sugar beet, (e) fodder beet, (f) beetroot and (g) winter brassicas were imported into the UK in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006; and what the (A) weight and (B) country of origin of the seeds was in each year. [133933]

Barry Gardiner: The following table gives the volume of seeds imported to the UK by country of despatch in 2005 and 2006 for the seed types recorded in the official overseas trade statistics. Note, some of the seed types requested are not separately available.

The statistics are provided by country of despatch rather than country of origin. Details of country of origin are not available for the vast majority of imported seeds.

The data are subject to a degree of statistical error. The overall level of errors is low, but these errors have a much greater proportional effect on countries with small values or volumes of trade. Therefore, care is needed when interpreting the data.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

EC Grants and Loans: North East Region

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Objective 2 schemes in the North East were held to be deficient in the management of expenditure, resulting in the suspension by the European Commission of all European Regional Development Fund payments to the UK. [135065]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 2 May 2007]: The European Commission is holding back the reimbursement of some expenditure by the Government on European Regional Development Fund 2000-06 programmes in some regions in England, including the North East, not across the whole of the UK. The European Commission has required that more on site checks of projects funded from the European Regional Development Fund are carried out by the Government Office for the North East to ensure that projects are complying with particular European Commission requirements. The European Commission has not referred to specific projects in the North East programme in this regard. The Government Office for the North East has put in place a robust action plan to deal with the issues and has achieved targets for on site checks set for the end of March. Discussions are continuing with the Commission with a view to getting expenditure reimbursed as soon as possible.

EC Grants and Loans: Government Office for London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking (a) to investigate and (b) to remedy the causes of the suspension of European Regional Development funding to the Government office for London; what those causes are; and if she will make a statement. [132513]

Yvette Cooper: The European Commission is holding back the reimbursement of some expenditure by the Government on European Regional Development Fund 2000-06 programmes in some regions in England, including London, until additional on site checks have been completed to ensure that projects comply with particular European Commission criteria. The Government office for London put in place a robust plan to deal with the issues as soon as they were raised and action has been taken to deal with them. Discussions are continuing with the Commission with a view to getting expenditure reimbursed as soon as possible.

Homelessness: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeless people there were in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region in each of the last 10 years. [130903]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than people. There are five local authorities in the Tees Valley sub-region: Darlington, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Cleveland, and Stockton-on-Tees. The constituency of Hartlepool comprises the local authority of Hartlepool.

Information reported each quarter by local authorities about their activities under homelessness legislation includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty.

The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available. The number of households in temporary accommodation arranged by the councils under homelessness legislation, as at the end of each quarter, is reported by local authorities, and includes both those households who have been accepted as owed the main homelessness duty, and those for which inquiries are pending.

These are data published in our quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, which includes a Supplementary Table showing the breakdown of key data, including acceptances and temporary accommodation, by each local authority. This is published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter.

Since 1998, information has also been collected on the number of people who sleep rough—that is, those who are literally rooflessness on a single night—and these are also published on our website, by local authority.

Summary tables showing the total number of households (a) accepted under homelessness provisions and (b) in temporary accommodation, from 1997-98 to 2005-06, and (c) rough sleeper estimates from 1998 onwards, for each local authority (including those within the Tees Valley sub-region), were placed in the Library in response to the answer given on 23 October 2006, Official Report, columns 1663-64W, to my hon. Friend the Member for the Vale of Clwyd (Chris Ruane).

Housing: Construction

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1329-30W, on housing: construction, what estimate she has made of the number and percentage of the houses built in each category in 2005-06 that were built (a) for rental purposes and (b) as social housing. [131134]

Yvette Cooper: Information on the total new build dwellings for rental purposes is not available centrally.

The following numbers of social dwellings for rent were provided in England, Hampshire and each district in Hampshire since 2003-04:

Social for rent housing provision in England, Hampshire and districts

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06

Notes:
1. LA figures are as reported.
Social housing provision includes new build and acquisitions.
Source:
Housing Corporation, statistical returns from local authorities.

Social for rent supply includes new build and acquisitions. The figures only make up part of the affordable housing supply with other dwellings being provided through low cost home ownership schemes. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on the 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1800W, for total affordable homes provided in Hampshire.

Housing: Energy

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to use building regulation standards to promote (a) energy efficiency, (b) modern heating systems including solar thermal and (c) microgeneration. [135726]

Angela E. Smith: Part L of the Building Regulations is concerned with the conservation of fuel and power. The provisions were amended in April 2006 to raise energy efficiency standards and change the method of showing compliance. Without prescribing solutions, this new approach and associated calculation tools, take into account the low carbon benefits of solar thermal and other microgeneration systems, thus encouraging their use. Guidance was published alongside the Part L changes to highlight the contribution that these technologies can make. These standards are kept under review and the Government have signalled the next comprehensive amendment will come into effect around 2010.

Housing: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the number of new (a) affordable and (b) social houses available in Hartlepool constituency in the next five years. [130904]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation programme for 2006-08 currently includes an allocation of over £3.7 million which should provide 65 new rented units in the borough. In addition a recent allocation has been made to fund 20 new social home buy units. There will be the opportunity for more homes to be provided by way of the next bidding round which covers the period 2008 onwards.

Through the planning system, the Secretary of State encourages planning authorities to assess need and make provision for that need through Local Development Frameworks.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what policy reason Planning Policy Statement 3 prevents local authorities from using windfall sites to meet their housebuilding targets. [129235]

Yvette Cooper: Planning Policy Statement 3: "Housing" (PPS3) does not stop local authorities taking advantage of windfall sites to boost the delivery of housing in their areas. But it does seek to ensure that, generally speaking, housing provision is properly planned, and that local authorities develop clear and informed strategies for the location of housing development, and for the infrastructure needed to service it. PPS3 asks local authorities, wherever they can, to identify specific sites in their plans where they consider homes should be built, including brownfield sites, and discourages an over-reliance on windfall sites (such as garden land) that may come forward randomly and speculatively.

We recognise that in some circumstances it may make sense for local authorities, within a planned strategy, to include a windfall allowance in planning their land supply. Under PPS3 policy, it is open to them to do this, if they can clearly demonstrate why, in the particular circumstances of their local area, specific sites cannot be identified.

Our objective is, however, that wherever possible, land supply and housing delivery benefit from a plan led approach.

Housing: South West Region

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the private sector housing renewal grant was for the south-west in 2006-07; what it is projected to be in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [131142]

Yvette Cooper: The regional housing pot, which includes private sector renewal grant, provides investment for the provision of new affordable homes, bringing local authority stock up to the Decent Homes standard, improvements in private sector stock and provision of sites for Gypsies and Travellers. The balance between these priorities is determined on advice given by the regions.

The south-west share of the regional housing pot rose from £154 million in 2006-07 to £190 million in 2007-08. Following advice from the region, we allocated £31 million in 2006-07 to local authorities to support improvement work in the private sector and will be allocating £28 million later this month for the same purpose in 2007-08.

Key Real Estate

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments her Department has made to Key Real Estate Ltd, trading as Key Homes in the last 12 months; and what the (a) date, (b) value and (c) purpose was of each payment. [133583]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has made no payments to Key Real Estate Ltd. trading as Key Homes in the last 12 months.

Local Government Finance: Noise

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will assess the merits of ringfencing council funding for noise abatement services. [133304]

Mr. Woolas: Policy responsibility for the provision and funding of local authority noise abatement services rests with the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. The Government provide funding for these services through Formula Grant (Revenue Support Grant and National Non-Domestic Rates). This is unhypothecated and decisions on the use of that funding are for local authorities. The Government are committed to ensuring that, wherever possible, councils receive funding through unhypothecated provision. The Chancellor announced in the recent Budget report that the Government are committed to set out a clear target to reduce specific grants and ring fenced funding to local authorities.

Local Government: Training

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what initiatives she is considering for the use of local authority contracts to stimulate the skills training and employment of local unemployed men and women. [133938]

Mr. Woolas: The Government's established policy is that all public procurement should be based on value for money, having due regard to propriety and regularity. Subject to their legal duties, including public procurement law, the duty of best value and equalities law, local authorities are responsible for taking their own procurement decisions.

The use of contract clauses to promote social, economic or environmental factors, for example in relation to skills training and employment, may be permitted in circumstances where the clauses link into the subject matter of the contract.

Members: Correspondence

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons she has not responded to (a) the letter from Mr. Fielder of Weston-Super-Mare on home information packs forwarded by the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare on 5 February and (b) the letters of (i) 14 March and (ii) 29 March from the hon. Member. [133633]

Yvette Cooper: I have now replied to the hon. Member's correspondence.

Planning

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the Planning White Paper to be published; and what provision will be made in the White Paper relating to (a) increasing public participation and (b) third party rights of appeal. [132493]

Yvette Cooper: The White Paper will be published later this spring. The Government of course recognise the importance of effective public participation in this area and the White Paper will propose arrangements for achieving this. The issue of third party rights of appeal was carefully considered when we developed proposals for radical reform of the planning system in 2001; the Government concluded then that such a proposal could add unacceptably to the costs and uncertainties of planning.

TRANSPORT

Pedestrian Crossings

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the document setting out the criteria used to determine the location of zebra and pelican crossings in England; what the requirements are for the minimum distance from which such crossings must be visible to oncoming motorists; and if he will make a statement. [135596]

Gillian Merron: There are no national criteria for the placing of pedestrian crossings in England. It is for the local highway or traffic authority concerned to decide on suitable crossing types and locations. The Department's published guidance, Local Transport Note 1/95, The Assessment of Pedestrian Crossings, recommends a decision framework approach which includes making an assessment of the visibility distance of crossings. Local Transport Note 2/95, The Design of Pedestrian Crossings, provides guidance on visibility distances. I have arranged for copies of both publications to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Palestinians: International Assistance

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how a terrorist is defined for the purposes of the Temporary International Mechanism. [135562]

Hilary Benn: The Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) does not make payments to individuals if they appear on the following internationally-recognised terrorist lists:

Bank of England terrorist list;

European Union terrorist list;

United Nations sanctions list;

Office of Foreign Assets Control (United States Treasury) terrorist list; and Hong Kong Monetary Authority terrorist list.

The TIM has also set up a comprehensive accounting and audit system to track payments.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many social welfare payments under the Temporary International Mechanism have been stopped by HSBC because of concerns of terrorism. [135563]

Hilary Benn: The purpose of terrorist checks under the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) is to provide assurance that EU assistance is not being used to support terrorism. Between 27 August 2006, when payments under the TIM began, and 1 May 2007 one welfare payment has been withheld because the individual's name was on one of the internationally recognised terrorist lists.

Sudan: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance he is (a) providing and (b) planning for policing in the internally displaced people's camps in Darfur. [135514]

Hilary Benn: Under the Darfur Peace Agreement, responsibility for monitoring security in camps for Internally Displaced People (IDPs) in Darfur rests with AMIS. The UK is currently paying the staff costs of the African Union Mission in Sudan's (AMIS) civilian police and military staff, as well as helping AMIS with its running costs.

The UK also has seconded 12 police officers to the EU Supporting Action to AMIS in Darfur to train and advise AMIS' civilian police force. These civilian police officers represent just under a half of the total EU contribution and cost the UK around £1 million a year.

TREASURY

Climate Change Levy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on the use of clean coal technology and the administration of the climate change levy. [135593]

John Healey: The Government receives a range of representations on the climate change levy and considers these representations, alongside other policy advice within the normal PBR and Budget cycle.

Employment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people are in (a) full-time and (b) part-time employment in each constituency; what the corresponding figures were in 1997; and what the percentage change in numbers has been in each constituency. [135561]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 3 May 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people are in (a) full-time and (b) part-time employment in each constituency; what the corresponding figures were in 1997; and what the percentage change in numbers has been in each constituency. I am replying in her absence. (135561)

The Office for National Statistics compiles employment statistics for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The table, attached, shows the number of people in employment by full-time and part-time status for all constituencies, in Great Britain, for the 12 month period ending in February 1997 from the annual local area LFS and for the 12 months ending in September 2006 from the APS. Data for the new Scottish constituencies, introduced in May 2005, are not available for the earlier period. The table also shows the percentage change between the periods, although most of these percentage changes are not considered statistically significant.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, most of the sample sizes are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over the period.

Since the information is so extensive, a copy of the table has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Loans: Students

Alan Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much the Government received for the sale of student loans in (a) 1998 and (b) 1999; and what the face value was of each of these loans at the time of sale; [132261]

(2) how much interest was paid to banks by the Government in support of the student loans scheme in each year since its inception. [132260]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

In 1998 the Government received £1 billion for the sale of student loans with a face value of £1.02 billion. In 1999 the Government received £1 billion for the sale of student loans with a face value of £1.03 billion. These are UK figures.

The following table shows the amount of interest subsidy paid to the debt sale owners in each year since 1998.

Financial year	Subsidy (£000)
1998-99	54,000
1999-2000	90,890
2000-01	110,476
2001-02	88,986
2002-03	88,963
2003-04	42,751
2004-05	48,091
2005-06	36,895

Note:
Figures are for England and Wales

Revenue and Customs: Manpower

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs offices are currently unstaffed; and what the estimated cost to the public purse is of such offices. [134311]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs currently holds 12 unstaffed offices which are still part of the estate due to various lease and legal title issues and longstanding commitments with other Government Departments.

The estimated annual cost of these offices is £1,435,512. HMRC is working to cease its liability for these offices as soon as is practical.

Skills in the UK Independent Review

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of employing Opinion Leader Research to organise the Skills Challenge: A Public Debate held on 8th February 2007 to discuss the Leitch Review. [133721]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

On behalf of the DfES, the Central Office of Information (COI) managed a competitive tendering process to organise and deliver "The Skills Challenge: A Public Debate" to be held on 8 February 2007. The tender was won by Opinion Leader Research, with a contract value of £153,484.38.

Stamp Duty: Suffolk

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many properties sold in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (b) the Suffolk county council area in each of the last three years attracted stamp duty at (i) zero per cent., (ii) 1 per cent., (iii) 3 per cent. and (iv) 4 per cent. [134687]

Ed Balls: Estimates of the number of property transactions for 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 are given in the following table for Bury St. Edmunds parliamentary constituency and Suffolk county, grouped by stamp duty band.

	Property transactions attracting 0 per cent. rate[1]	Property transactions attracting 1 per cent. rate[2]	Property transactions attracting 3 per cent. rate[3]	Property transactions attracting 4 per cent. rate[4]	Total
Bury St. Edmunds
2004-05	430	2,200	420	50	3,140
2005-06	1,300	2,200	510	90	4,100
2006-07	1,500	2,800	690	120	5,100

	Property transactions attracting 0 per cent. rate[1]	Property transactions attracting 1 per cent. rate[2]	Property transactions attracting 3 per cent. rate[3]	Property transactions attracting 4 per cent. rate[4]	Total
Suffolk
2004-05	3,500	14,000	2,100	500	20,100
2005-06	8,600	10,500	2,400	420	21,900
2006-07	8,800	12,100	3,100	730	24,800

[1] Residential threshold £60,000 in 2004-05, £120,000 in 2005-06 and £125,000 in 2006-07. Non-residential threshold £150,000 in all years.
[2] £60,001 to £250,000 range for residential transactions in 2004-05, £120,001 to £250,000 for residential transactions in 2005-06, £125,001 to £250,000 in 2006-07, £150,001 to £250,000 for non-residential transactions in all years.
[3] £250,001 to £500,000.
[4] £500,001 or more.

The number of transactions bearing stamp duty will be lower than the number shown in the non-zero bands due to the use of various reliefs, e.g. disadvantaged area relief, group relief, registered social landlord relief etc. There are also some lease transactions which fall in the 0 per cent. band on account of consideration, but which bear stamp duty on the lease rental.

Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many legal proceedings were instigated for recovery of tax credit overpayments in each (a) year and (b) quarter since April 2003; what the average level is of overpayment outstanding for which legal action has been instigated; what the total value is of overpayments for which legal action has been instigated; what the average cost has been of pursuing a case through the courts; and how much has been recovered through court action. [133995]

Mr. Timms: In 2006-07 some 38,000 legal proceedings were commenced at an average value of £2,260 and an average cost to HMRC of £135 to instigate proceedings. The other information is not available.

Taxation: Agriculture

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons he plans to withdraw writing down allowances on industrial and agricultural buildings between 2008-09 and 2010-11; what assessment he has made of the likely impact of this change on the farming industry; how many farm businesses he estimates will be affected; and to what value. [135573]

John Healey: The Government's decision to withdraw the industrial and agricultural buildings allowances were based on an assessment of a number of issues, common across industry sectors. The Government have not sought to target the farming industry or any other industry with this change.

Industrial buildings allowances (IBAs) and agricultural buildings allowances (ABAs) were introduced in 1945 to encourage post-war reconstruction. They are now a poorly focused subsidy, selectively available on a disparate range of assets, including some that typically appreciate in value. IBAs and ABAs have long been recognised as a significant distortion in commercial property investment. These issues are compounded by the compliance burden imposed by their complicated rules.

The withdrawal of IBAs and ABAs is not an isolated measure. The Budget also announced cuts in both the basic rate of income tax and the main rate of corporation tax and introduced a new annual investment allowance (AIA) of £50,000 for business investment from 2008. Taken as a whole, these reforms to the business and personal tax systems are designed to deliver increases in investment and growth overall.

Taxation: Public Transport

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the impact on tax revenue of increased use of public transport; and if he will make a statement. [134639]

Mr. Timms: We monitor tax receipts on an ongoing basis and take into account all the relevant economic, social and environmental factors in future decisions.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proportion of families with children are (a) eligible for and (b) claimants of tax credits; [135559]

(2) what proportion of families without children are (a) eligible for and (b) claimants of tax credits. [135560]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of take-up rates for child and working tax credits in 2003-04 and 2004-05, including information on families with children and families without children, are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

Written Questions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will be able to provide substantive replies to question (a) 133687, (b) 133686 and (c) 133685, on non-domicile tax status. [135263]

Ed Balls: I did so on 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1382W.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Sentencing: Appeals

Mike Penning: To ask the Solicitor-General how many unduly lenient sentences for crimes committed by serving police officers were referred to the Court of Appeal in (a) England, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) Dacorum in each of the last five years; and how many appeals were upheld in each year. [135324]

The Solicitor-General: I regret that information on sentences referred by the Law Officers to the Court of Appeal as unduly lenient is not recorded by reference to whether or not the offender was a serving police officer. This information can be obtained only at a disproportionate cost

SCOTLAND

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135160]

David Cairns: None.

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134824]

David Cairns: In the period April 2006 to March 2007, there were no complaints of bullying in the Scotland Office.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135378]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has received no complaints of sexual harassment in the last 12 months.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Climate Change

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the role of scientific innovation in tackling climate change. [135426]

Mr. Darling: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to discuss a wide range of issues.

Corporate Social Responsibility Academy

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy; and if he will make a statement. [135438]

Margaret Hodge: The CSR Academy played a significant role in raising the profile of CSR within UK companies. This success will now be built on as the work of the academy will continue through Business in the Community.

Trade Union Recognition

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to review the 21-employee threshold for trade union recognition by employers; and if he will make a statement. [135441]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The threshold was fully examined as part of the 2003 Review of the Employment Relations Act 1999. We continue to monitor the operation of the statutory recognition procedure, but we have no plans to undertake a further review of the threshold.

Africa: Exports

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what support the Government provided to British firms seeking to establish export agreements with African countries in the latest period for which figures are available. [134315]

Mr. McCartney [pursuant to the reply, 1 May 2007, Official Report, c. 1560W]: Incorrect figures were provided. They should read £6,194,177,000 and £5,777,083,000.

Bankruptcy

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to place in the Library a copy of the Office of Fair Trading Report on the mis-selling of individual voluntary arrangements. [134337]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Office of Fair Trading do not propose a specific report on the mis-selling of individual voluntary arrangements, however, its work in this area will be reported in its annual report, which will be laid before Parliament on 11 June 2007.

Business: Regulation

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress his Department has made towards reducing the burden of regulation on British businesses. [135428]

Margaret Hodge: The Department's progress on reducing regulation is set out in our Simplification Plan which was published on 11 December last year. We will publish another report on the progress we have made and the further plans we have later this year.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress his Department has made towards reducing the burden of regulation on British businesses. [135439]

Margaret Hodge: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I have given to the hon. Member for Mid-Bedfordshire (Mrs. Dorries) today.

Carbon Sequestration

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the use of clean electricity generated using carbon capture and storage technology. [135592]

Malcolm Wicks: The Secretary of State has received many representations on CO_2 capture and storage (CCS).

The Budget 2007 announced that a competition will take place to demonstrate CCS on a full scale power plant in the UK. Further details will be announced in May 2007 and the outcome of the competition will be announced in 2008.

The Government are aware of eight to 10 potential full-scale CCS power plant demonstrations in the UK. My officials and the Department's technical adviser have discussed plans with all the project developers on a number of occasions.

Energy Policy Progress Review

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he has made an estimate of the effect on costs to domestic customers and businesses arising from the time taken to publish the Government's Energy White Paper. [135429]

Mr. Darling: Consumers and businesses will benefit from the measures we will set out in the Energy White Paper, because they will help us deliver cleaner, more secure energy supplies.

Energy: Complaints

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to address the level of consumer complaints against energy companies. [135634]

Malcolm Wicks: Between 2002-03 and 2005-06, complaints to Energywatch declined substantially each year. We expect the final figures for 2006-07 to show an increase over 2005-06, principally because of complaints about British Gas. British Gas is working closely with Energywatch to address this. The Government have no plans to take any steps at this time. The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem), which is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, has extensive powers to act against suppliers that breach licence conditions.

Fuel Poverty

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many households in each parliamentary constituency were in fuel poverty in each year since 2001. [134612]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 27 April 2007]: Fuel poverty statistics are currently only available at Government office region level. Latest available figures are sourced from the 2004 English House Condition Survey. Figures for fuel poverty in each of the Government office regions in 2001, 2003 and 2004 are given as follows. Figures for other years are not available.

	2001	2003	2004
North East	127,000	95,000	103,000
Yorkshire and Humber	232,000	180,000	163,000
North West	313,000	178,000	190,000
East Midlands	156,000	112,000	101,000
West Midlands	213,000	146,000	153,000
South West	212,000	139,000	134,000
East of England	137,000	115,000	141,000
South East	205,000	149,000	133,000
London	151,000	108,000	119,000

Small variations between years may be due to sampling variability, rather than underlying trends in the data.

A fuel poverty indicator giving estimates of the level of fuel poverty in small areas of England is due to be launched on 25 May 2007. These will be published at lower super output area, a geography that splits England into 32,482 areas.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what average damages have been recovered by the 20 law firms with the greatest volume of claims for (a) vibration white finger and (b) chronic bronchitis and emphysema. [134782]

Malcolm Wicks: The averages damages recovered by the 20 claimants' representatives with the greatest volume of claims for vibration white finger (VWF), and for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) are shown on the following tables:

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many coal health claimants are awaiting a medical examination in (a) Bassetlaw and (b) the UK. [135425]

Malcolm Wicks: The number of coal health claimants that are currently awaiting a medical examination for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in Bassetlaw is 408 and in the UK is 65,221. For vibration white finger the figures for Bassetlaw is 35 and the UK is 1,639.

Iran: Export Credit Guarantees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what advice is being given by his Department to the Export Credit Guarantees Department on loan guarantees for UK exports to Iran. [134322]

Mr. McCartney: ECGD has advised Ministers on export credit cover policy towards Iran. For some time, ECGD has restricted the availability of cover. At present, applications for cover are not being processed pending clarification of the applicability of UN Security Council resolution 1747 to the provision of export credits. In any event, there has been a sharp decline in the demand for ECGD cover.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent changes have been made to Government policy on loan guarantees for UK exports to Iran; and if he will make a statement. [134323]

Mr. McCartney: ECGD has pursued a cautious policy towards Iran for some time. Cover capacity has been limited in order to contain exposure. In the light of recent developments with Iran, ECGD is required to consult Ministers before approving any applications for export credit support.

Since the adoption of UN Security Council resolution 1747 in March, ECGD is not processing applications for cover pending clarification on its applicability to the provision of export credits to Iran. In any event, there has been a sharp decline in demand for ECGD cover.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his role is in decisions on whether to approve export credit guarantees to companies wishing to trade with Iran; and if he will make a statement. [134329]

Mr. McCartney: In the light of recent developments with Iran, ECGD is required to consult Ministers before approving any applications for export credit cover. No applications for cover are currently being processed pending clarification on the applicability of UN Security Council resolution 1747 to the provision of export credits. In any event, there has been a sharp decline in demand for cover for Iran.

Migrant Workers: Minimum Wage

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to ensure that migrant workers (a) receive the minimum wage and (b) are protected from employer coercion in relation to their terms of employment. [135069]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs minimum wage compliance teams are devoted to making sure all workers receive their entitlement to be paid at least the national minimum wage. Every year the DTI publicises details about the minimum wage and the number to ring (0845 6000 678) if workers need more information or believe they are being underpaid. The helpline operators have access to language line interpreters so that callers can be phoned back allowing the caller to speak in their own language.

The Government will not tolerate the mistreatment of migrant workers. Legal migrant workers have the same employment rights and recourses as their UK equivalents. To ensure migrant workers are aware of their rights we have produced 'Know before you go' leaflets in partnership with the Polish, Lithuanian and Portuguese governments. The Home Office is also distributing a one page DTI note on "basic employment rights and where to go for further advice". This is going to all workers registering under the worker registration scheme and is available in a range of languages.

Nuclear Power

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 635W, on nuclear power, what additional areas the new consultation on nuclear energy will cover. [134929]

Malcolm Wicks: Our new consultation on nuclear energy will endeavour to bring together the evidence and analysis Government have collected and published since the Energy Review began. It will help people reach informed views and provide the Government with valuable contributions, which will help inform the Government's decision in the autumn.

Photovoltaics Demonstration Programme

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much money was (a) allocated for grants and (b) disbursed by the photovoltaics demonstration programme in each month since the scheme began. [131742]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information requested is as follows.

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices closed in villages and towns with populations smaller than 10,000 inhabitants in 2006-07. [135242]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I understand from POL that the post office branches in settlements with populations smaller than 10,000 inhabitants are classified as rural branches. Also that for 2006-07 the net number of rural post office branch closures was 128.

Renewable Energy

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what account he expects the forthcoming Energy White Paper to take of the Government's binding commitments made at the European Union Summit on 9 March for renewable energy to supply 20 per cent. of overall EU energy consumption by 2020; and how he plans to meet these commitments. [135635]

Malcolm Wicks: The Energy White Paper will be published in May.

Sellafield: Accidents

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects the terms of reference for the Sellafield historic autopsy inquiry to be published. [134775]

Malcolm Wicks: The terms of reference for the inquiry were published on 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 28WS.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the families of those affected by the Sellafield autopsy issue will be consulted on the terms of reference for the investigation to be led by Michael Redfern QC. [134776]

Malcolm Wicks: Although the families of those affected have not been consulted on the terms of reference for the inquiry, I know that Mr. Redfern is keen to talk to them at an early stage in the inquiry.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how long the Sellafield historic autopsy investigation is expected to continue; and whether an investigation team will be based at or in the communities around Sellafield. [134777]

Malcolm Wicks: I have asked Michael Redfern QC to report to me as soon as possible. I anticipate that some of the work of the inquiry team will take place in West Cumbria.

Solar Power

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what account is taken in the proposed accreditation for solar PV installers of (a) the costs of entry into the marketplace for smaller companies and (b) the compliance costs on those existing small companies in the market. [132177]

Malcolm Wicks: The microgeneration certification scheme is a voluntary scheme covering product and installation standards and a code of practice. The scheme is an important market mechanism aimed at building consumer confidence in microgeneration technologies. The cost of compliance to companies is set at a level to ensure delivery of a robust United Kingdom Accreditation Services accredited scheme that will provide consumer protection.

The DTI is subsidising compliance costs for industry, including new and existing small companies, over the first year of the scheme. This measure should help to support companies wishing to join the scheme in the short term. In the longer term, industry should benefit from increased consumer confidence, which should encourage investment in microgeneration at the domestic level, growing the market.

Wind Power: Grants

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether all applications which have been made for Stream 1 grants for wind turbines which meet the criteria of the scheme have been approved. [134899]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme supports grant applications for a range of microgeneration technologies including wind turbines. To date, we have received 1,849 Stream 1 grant applications for wind turbine projects, of which 1,669 met the scheme criteria and were awarded grants.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Opium

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her estimate is of the number of hectares of land in Afghanistan which were (a) used to grow poppies and (b) destroyed as part of the eradication scheme in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006. [135558]

Dr. Howells: The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime's 2005 Afghanistan Opium Survey reported that 109,103 hectares of land was used to cultivate opium poppy in 2005, of which 5,103 hectares was eradicated. Their 2006 Afghanistan Opium Survey reported that 180,300 hectares of land was used to cultivate opium poppy in 2006, of which 15,300 hectares was eradicated.

Committee of Permanent Representatives: Secondment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British civil servants were seconded to work full-time for the Committee of Permanent Representatives in each year between 1997 and 2006. [134810]

Mr. Hoon: The Committee of Permanent Representatives is divided into two parts. The UK is represented in COREPER I by the UK Deputy Permanent Representative to the EU and in COREPER II by the UK Permanent Representative to the EU. No UK official, nor that of any other member state, is seconded to either part of COREPER.

Cuba: Political Prisoners

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made on the judicial process in Cuba and the provision of legal representation for defendants. [134522]

Mr. Hoon: The UK will continue to seek opportunities to raise human right issues, including judicial processes, with the Cuban authorities, despite the limited contact granted to us by the Cuban Government. On 30 April my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade expressed concern about political prisoners and other human rights issues during a meeting with the Cuban Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade, Antonio Carricarte. In addition, officials regularly voice UK concern with their Cuban counterparts over such issues.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many grievance procedures have been initiated in her Department in the last 12 months. [135155]

Mr. Hoon: Since 1 April 2006, 27 formal individual grievances have been submitted in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Guidance on the procedures in place for lodging grievances is available to all staff. All formal individual grievances are investigated in line with the procedures.

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for which Government websites she is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135720]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has responsibility for 211 FCO websites, which cost £6 million to establish in 2001 and cost £650,000 to maintain in the year 2006-07. These websites include the main FCO Website, Ukvisas website, more than 180 embassy and high commission websites and the i-UK.com portal website. These fall under the following key domains with the associated number of visitors:

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134828]

Mr. Hoon: The number of formal complaints of bullying investigated in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in the last 12 months is very small. In line with guidance issued by the Cabinet Office, the information requested can therefore not be released on grounds of confidentiality. Guidance on the procedures in place for those who have a concern related to any form of unfair discrimination, including bullying, is available to all staff.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135372]

Mr. Hoon: There have been no formal complaints of sexual harassment in the last 12 months in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Guidance on the procedures in place for those who have a concern over all forms of harassment is available to all staff.

EC Law

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many European Union Directives have been transposed into UK law in the last 12 months. [133216]

Mr. Hoon: Individual Government Departments are responsible for transposing EU Directives into UK law in their policy areas. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not transpose EU Directives. Transposition notes stating all the main elements of individual EU Directives that have been or will be transposed into UK law are available in the Library of the House.

EU Directives may be directly applicable, implemented by administrative means, or introduced when domestic legislation is amended for other purposes. The European Communities Act 1972 (the ECA) allows the Government to implement EU Directives either by primary legislation or by secondary legislation.

Standard Note SN/IA/2888, which is available in the Library of the House, gives information on the number of Statutory Instruments (S.I.) enacted under the ECA in each parliamentary session and the proportion of the total number of S.I.s this represents. Between 1998 and 2005 an average of 8.9 per cent. of S.I.s were laid in order to implement EU legislation.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many European Union Directives have been repealed from UK law in the last 12 months. [133217]

Mr. Hoon: House of Commons Standard Note SNIA-02888 states that 60 directives were repealed or expired in 2006. The Commission continue to make progress with their ambitious programme to simplify and reduce existing EU laws. In November 2006 they announced a further 43 simplification proposals and identified 10 pending proposals to be withdrawn. The UK continues to support the Commission's efforts. We welcome the agreement at the Spring European Council in March to cut administrative burdens by 25 per cent. by 2012; delivering on this commitment will help boost European competitiveness and help stimulate further the Lisbon jobs and growth agenda.

A detailed progress report on better regulation is available in the Commission's 2006 general report available at:

http://europa.eu/generalreport/en/welcome.htm

European Union: Communication

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the role is of the European Union working group of national communications experts; what she expects the (a) format and (b) agenda of the next meeting of the group to be; and if she will make a statement. [133082]

Mr. Hoon: The role of the Council's Information Working Group is to examine the information policy and communication strategy of the EU, to assess ways to increase transparency and openness of the Institutions, to provide access to documents and to promote co-operation between institutions.

The Information Working Group is composed of delegates of the 27 EU member states, representatives of the General Secretariat of the Council and representatives of the European Commission. Meeting agendas contain a list of topics and references to documents on which discussions will be held.

The Working Group on Information meets every two weeks in principle. The next meeting is scheduled for 10 May. The agenda for this meeting has not yet been circulated.

European Union: Publicity

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK representation is on the Interinstitutional Group on Information; what the agenda is for its next meeting; and when it will next meet. [133543]

Mr. Hoon: The Minister for Europe of the country holding the EU presidency attends the Interinstitutional Group on Information. Officials from the incoming presidency attend as observers.

As such, UK officials will attend the Interinstitutional Group on Information as observers six months ahead of the next UK presidency of the EU, and the UK will be represented at ministerial level when it holds the presidency.

The next meeting of the Interinstitutional Group on Information is scheduled for 22 May. The agenda for that meeting has not yet been circulated.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the documents produced by the Inter-institutional Group on information in each of the last 10 years. [133547]

Mr. Hoon: Requests for this information can be made to the European Commission direct. The Commission provides the Secretariat to the Inter-Institutional Group on Information.

India: Diplomatic Service

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how much ground rent is paid annually by the Indian Government for its high commission at 9 Kensington Gardens, London; and how much was paid for the current lease on the building; [135231]

(2) when the decision was made to make rent payable on the Indian high commission at 9 Kensington Gardens, London; for what reasons it was decided to levy a rental charge on the building; and if she will make a statement. [135232]

Mr. Hoon: The Indian high commissioner's residence, at 9 Kensington Palace Gardens, is leased by the Indian Government from the Crown Estate; the Foreign and Commonwealth Office is not involved.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what reports she has received of the decision of the Indian Government to charge rent to the British high commission in India at 2 Rajaji Marg, Delhi; and if she will make a statement; [135233]

(2) how much the Government are expected to pay the Indian Government in annual rent for the British high commission in India at 2 Rajaji Marg, Delhi; [135234]

(3) what representations she has made to the Indian Government on the rent payable on the British high commission in India; and if she will make a statement. [135235]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have paid rent on 2 Rajaji Marg, the high commissioner's residence in New Delhi, since independence in 1947. At present, we are in negotiation with the Indian authorities on renewal of the lease, which we hope will be concluded shortly. I am sure the hon. Member will understand that I cannot go into precise details without jeopardising our negotiating position.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Constituencies

Mr. Cash: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when the Privy Council is expected to meet to consider the statutory instrument bringing into effect the recent Boundary Commission report on English parliamentary constituencies. [134489]

Bridget Prentice: The House of Commons has now approved the draft order, and the House of Lords is due to consider it on 17 May. The next meeting of the Privy Council is on 13 June.

Devolution

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the formal arrangements for liaison between the UK Government and the devolved administration. [134788]

Bridget Prentice: There are strong bilateral relationships between the Scottish Executive and Welsh Assembly Government and Whitehall Departments, which are guided by principles underpinned in formal documents such as the Memorandums of Understanding between the UK Government and the devolved Administrations and supplementary concordats and devolution guidance notes, all of which are published on the Department's website. The Scotland and Wales Offices continue to work closely across Whitehall and with the devolved Administrations to ensure that good practice is followed and policies and legislation are successfully implemented, in a way that is consistent with the respective settlements.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: Genetics

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many DNA samples have been taken by or, on behalf of, the Child Support Agency (CSA) in each year since its inception; in what circumstances and on what grounds the CSA may require someone to take a DNA test; how many DNA tests resulted in maintenance being demanded from those tested; how and by whom any DNA data obtained by the CSA are stored; for how long such data are stored; and to which other departments, agencies or authorities they may be made available. [130878]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 3 May 2007:

In reply your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many DNA samples have been taken by or on behalf of the Child Support Agency (CSA) in each year since its inception; in what circumstances and on what ground the CSA may require someone to take a DNA test; how many DNA tests resulted in maintenance being demanded from those tested; how and by whom any DNA data obtained by the CSA is stored; for how long such data is stored; and to which other departments agencies or authorities it may be made available. [130878]

The Child Support Agency does not require DNA tests to be carried out but may suggest a DNA test in cases where the parentage of a qualifying child is disputed. The parent with care and alleged non-resident parent must consent to such a test, as must the qualifying child if he or she is over the age of 16. If the alleged non-resident parent refuses to take a DNA test, the Agency may assume parentage and proceed accordingly.

The information requested concerning the number of DNA tests undertaken on behalf of the Child Support Agency is provided in the attached table. However information is unavailable prior to 1997/8 and the Agency does not record information on how many DNA Tests result in the pursuit of maintenance from those tested. We do know that on average since 1997/98 around 84% of tests return a positive result and it may therefore be reasonable to assume that in these cases a maintenance assessment will be undertaken. We do not have figures on how many of these assessments result in a positive maintenance assessment and are subsequently pursued as there may also be other circumstances in which maintenance is not pursued, for example, if the parent with care requests the case be closed.

DNA samples are stored in a secure environment by the Agency's contractor. Access to the data is restricted to laboratory staff, and managed by swipe card access controlled doors, alongside a number of other security measures. The case data is retained by the contractor for 3 months, and case records are kept for 1 year after the case has been resolved, after which they are destroyed by shedding and incineration.

Finally the CSA does not routinely share data relating to individual DNA tests with any other Departments, Agencies or authorities.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Number of DNA tests undertaken on behalf of the Agency

	Number of tests taken
1997-98	3,750
1998-99	4,173
1999-2000	3,317
2000-01	2,938
2001-02	2,346
2002-03	4,146
2003-04	2,444
2004-05	2,888
2005-06	2,454

Note:
CSA clerical MI is used from 1997/98 to 2001/02 for the number of tests taken. MI from the DNA test contractor is used from 2002/03 onwards for the number of tests taken.

Correspondence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many letters to his Department sent from hon. Members during Session 2005-06 remain unanswered, broken down by those which are (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four and (e) over six months old. [114602]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have replied to 90 per cent. of the letters received by Ministers from hon. Members within 20 working days in both the 2005 and 2006 calendar years. We have also taken action to ensure the remainder are being dealt with as soon as possible thereafter. The available information shows that 425 of the letters received by Ministers from hon. Members during the 2006 calendar year remained unanswered on 10 January 2007. Of these (a) 64 were one month old, (b) seven were two months old and (c) six were three months old, (d) one was four months old and (e) none was older.

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133804]

Mrs. McGuire: Four oral questions by hon. and right hon. Members to the Department for Work and Pensions have been transferred to other Government Departments since 1 May 2005.

Departments: Training

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1064W, on Departments training, how much was spent on training courses for staff aimed at reducing benefit fraud and error in 2006; and how many staff attended these courses in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [133893]

Mrs. McGuire: Considerable effort and resources would need to be used on interrogating the Staff Information System in order to obtain information that could be used to work out costs for the 2006. Obtaining this level of information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1064W, on Departments training, how much was spent on training away days for departmental staff in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [133894]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on training away days is not classified separately from other learning and would be scheduled as an event along with other courses. Attendance at external events will have been recorded by individuals on their learning history. This information cannot be downloaded centrally. Obtaining this level of information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1064W, on departments: training, how many people attended each course in each of the last three years for which figures are available; how many days were allocated to each course; which of these training courses were conducted at off-site locations; and which locations were used. [133940]

Mrs. McGuire: Considerable effort and resources would need to be used to interrogate the Staff Information System to obtain the level of detail required for 2006. Previous to this there were no IT systems in place to collect such detailed information. Any information still available would be held clerically at a local level. Obtaining this level of information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1064W, on departments: training, how much was spent in 2006 on courses in (a) media training for ministers, (b) handling media for civil servants, (c) strategic communications planning for civil servants, (d) leadership in the outdoors for civil servants, (e) managing change for benefits releases for civil servants, (f) strategy training for civil servants, (g) fireworks for civil servants, (h) core consultancy skills for civil servants, (i) public leadership for civil servants, (j) the communications network programme for civil servants and (k) turnaround leadership for civil servants in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [133941]

Mrs. McGuire: (a) The total specific media training costs for Ministers for 2006 was £3,794.84. (b-k) Considerable effort and resources would need to be used on interrogating the Staff Information System in order to obtain the level of detail required to identify the spend in 2006. Previous to this there were no IT systems in place to collect such detailed information. Any information still available would be held clerically at a local level. Obtaining this level of information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1064W, on departments: training, how much was spent on courses for staff in his Department in (a) stress awareness, (b) self development, (c) self awareness, (d) creative thinking, (e) curriculum vitae writing, (f) running staff clubs, (g) facilitation skills, (h) non-verbal behaviour workshops, (i) intervention skills and (j) being a change agent workshops in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [133942]

Mrs. McGuire: Considerable effort and resources would need to be used on interrogating the Staff Information System in order to obtain the level of detail required for 2006. Previous to this there were no IT systems in place to collect such detailed information. Any information that may still be available would be held clerically at a local level. Obtaining this level of information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2084W, on departments: visits abroad, how much his Department spent on foreign visits by staff which were subsequently cancelled in each of the last three years, broken down by (a) destination and (b) departmental agency. [133895]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only by incurring disproportionate costs. The Department will incur just a minimal charge if a trip is cancelled in good time. For example the cancellation fee for flights is currently £9.25. For hotels, if cancelled before noon on date of arrival, the Department would not incur any cancellation charges at all.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 7th March 2007, Official Report, column 2084W, on Departments: visits abroad, what the foreign travel costs in his Department were for the last three years, broken down by (a) destination, (b) type of expenditure and (c) departmental agency. [133896]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is available for the last 12 months but would require a detailed clerical examination in order to present it in the format requested, which would incur disproportionate costs.

Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of single parents on income support (a) have never been married, (b) are separated, (c) are divorced and (d) are widowers; and if he will give equivalent data for (i) five, (ii) 10, (iii) 15, (iv) 20 and (v) 30 years ago. [135703]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Medical Examinations

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of (a) existing and (b) new (i) incapacity benefit and (ii) disability living allowance claimants received an independent medical assessment in each of the last five years. [131823]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Social Security Benefits: Young People

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of 18 to 24-year-olds who were classified as not in employment, education or training, and who were claiming benefits, had been in that condition for (a) 0 to six months, (b) six to 12 months, (c) 12 to 24 months and (d) 24 months and over in each quarter since 1992. [122108]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 February 2007]: The information requested is not available.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Grants

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) the Film Council and (b) the Arts Council of England (i) received from the National Lottery in 2006 and (ii) will receive from the National Lottery in 2007. [135554]

Mr. Caborn: The following table shows the UK Film Council's and Arts Council of England's income, including investment income from the National Lottery Distribution Fund, for the financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07; and estimated figures based on the Departments latest income projections, for 2007-08.

	Distributor
	UK Film Council	Arts Council of England
Income 2005-06 to nearest £1,000	30,342,000	172,093,000
Income 2006-07 to nearest £1,000	26,289,000	149,257,000
Projected income 2007-08 to nearest £1,000	29,942,000	154,563,000

Departments: Energy

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) instructions are issued to staff in her Department and (b) technical procedures are in place to shut down computers at night. [136091]

Mr. Lammy: Guidance on energy saving, including switching off computers and monitors when not in use, is published on the Department's intranet. We are currently evaluating various tools aimed at making it easier to automatically manage IT power usage out of hours.

Departments: Marketing

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost was of the change in name from the Department of National Heritage to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. [134234]

Mr. Lammy: Following the introduction of the Department's new name in July 1997, a detailed review of all of the Department's internal and external communications processes was undertaken.

Part of this review included the production of a new visual identity or logo. The cost of this element of the review was £26,000. The work included the development of the logo and the layout of all internal and external documents and stationery.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by her Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [134995]

Mr. Lammy: The Department purchased 4,412362 kilowatt hours from renewable sources in 2006-07.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many complaints of sexual harassment have been investigated in her Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [135367]

Mr. Lammy: There have been no complaints of sexual harassment investigated in this Department in the last 12 months.

Gambling Act 2005

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what risk assessment has been carried out by her Department of the timetable and critical milestones leading to the 1 September implementation date for the Gambling Act 2005; and if she will place in the Library a copy of her Department's plan for managing risks identified. [132802]

Mr. Caborn: As part of its programme management arrangements, the Department has assessed the risk to the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 by 1 September 2007 at both individual workstream and overall programme level. Identified risks are monitored regularly and suitable controls are put in place. The plan for managing risks is an integral part of the programme risk register. I am unable to disclose the content of the register as to do so would inhibit the future provision of free and frank advice, and exchange of views.

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of companies in the UK gaming industry had applied for Operator Licences under the Gambling Act 2005 as at 31 March 2007. [132798]

Tessa Jowell: It is estimated that there are between 3,500 and 4,000 gambling operators in Great Britain. The number of operators who had applied to the Gambling Commission for operating licences by 31 March 2007 was 259, or 6-7 per cent. At 20 April it had received 758 applications which is estimated to be 19-22 per cent. of all operators.

However, of the approximate number of operators who are encouraged to apply by 27 April in order to secure continuation rights, the Gambling Commission had received applications from 11 per cent. by 31 March and 32 per cent. by 20 April.

Horserace Totalisator Board

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2006, Official Report, column 1120W, on the horserace totalisator board; what discussions her Department has had with personnel from HM Treasury concerning the future of the Tote; when she expects to announce how the Government will proceed; and what time scales apply to her definition of shortly. [135822]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are considering the offer they have received for the Tote businesses. We hope to be able to reach a decision on whether to proceed with further negotiations in the course of the next few weeks.

Labour Party: Fund Raising

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what role (a) UK Sport, (b) Sport England, (c) the English Institute of Sport and (d) the Youth Sports Trust will play in the Labour Party sports fundraiser to be held in July. [135566]

Mr. Caborn: The organisations listed will be playing no role in the event outlined.

Sport England

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what Sport England's public service agreement targets are. [135568]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England, as a non-departmental public body, does not have public service agreements (PSA), but does contribute towards delivery of the following Government PSAs:

PSA Target 1: To enhance the take-up of sporting opportunities by five to 16-year-olds so that the percentage of school children who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high-quality PE and school sport within and beyond the curriculum increases from 25 per cent. in 2002 to 75 per cent. in 2006 and 85 per cent. by 2008; and to at least 75 per cent. in each School Sport Partnership by 2008 (joint target between the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) and the Department for Education and Skills (DfES)).

PSA Target 2: To halt the year on year increase in obesity among children under 11 years by 2010, as part of a broader strategy to tackle obesity in the population as a whole (joint target between DCMS, DfES and Department of Health).

PSA Target 3: By 2008, increase the takeup of cultural and sporting opportunities by adults and young people aged 16 and above from priority groups by:

Increasing the number who participate in active sports at least 12 times a year by 3 per cent. and increasing the number who engage in at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity level sport, at least three times a week by 3 per cent.

Sports: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what level of funding will be available to (a) Sportswatch and (b) the National Sports Foundation in each of the next three years. [135567]

Mr. Caborn: It is not possible to confirm any funding allocations for the next three years until departmental settlements from the comprehensive spending review 2007 are known.

Sports: Schools

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of school children took part in a minimum of two hours of PE or sport per week in school time in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [135395]

Mr. Caborn: The joint DCMS/DfES National School Sport Strategy which aimed to increase the percentage of 5 to 16-year-olds spending at least two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport to 75 per cent. by 2006 and 85 per cent. by 2008 within and beyond the curriculum, commenced on the 1 April 2003.

Progress against the target for children in School Sport Partnerships is measured annually using the National School Sport Survey. The Survey has demonstrated that 62 per cent. of school children achieved this target in 2003-04; 69 per cent. in 2004-05 and 80 per cent. in 2005-06.

No data are available prior to the implementation of the strategy.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Screening

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate her Department has made of the attendance take-up rate of women aged between 50 and 70 years attending breast cancer screenings in each London primary care trust area; and if she will make a statement; [133761]

(2) what assessment she has made of the impact of recent trends in the number of breast screenings in North London; [133822]

(3) how many breast screening appointments were undertaken by each primary care trust in London in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [133823]

(4) how many breast screenings were undertaken by each primary care trust in London in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [133824]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The following tables show the coverage of women aged 50-70 in the London strategic health authority (SHA) area by primary care trust as at 31 March 2006. They also show the number of invites in the last four years by breast screening unit.

Additional information can also be found in 'Breast Screening Programme, England 2005-06' (ISBN: 1-84636-095-1), a copy of which is available in the Library.

The other information requested is not held centrally.

[1]This is the number of women in the resident population less those recorded as ineligible.

Notes:

1. Coverage is best assessed using the 53-64 age group as women may be first called at any time between their 50th and 53rd birthdays.
2. The coverage of the screening programme is the proportion of women resident and eligible who have had a test with a recorded result at least once in the previous three years (excluding those ineligible, e.g. those that have had a bilateral mastectomy)

Cost Shunting

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne (Julia Goldsworthy) of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 777, on cost shunting, whether she has made an assessment of the merits of permitting primary care trusts and local authority social services departments (a) to amalgamate to form one organisation and (b) to amalgamate their budgets to operate strategically through a single budget. [134991]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department encourages close co-operation between local authorities and primary care trusts as this is in the best interests of the overall health and social care system and in improving the health and well-being of local communities. The approach taken to this co-operation is a matter for local decision, but there are powers to make joint appointments and for partnership arrangements, which include powers to create single pooled budgets, to be established as permitted under section 75 of the NHS Act 2006 and for an application to be made to the Secretary of State to establish a care trust as permitted under section 45 of the Health and Social Care Act 2001.

Good Hope Hospital

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cancelled operations there were in each of the last 10 years at Good Hope Hospital. [134508]

Andy Burnham: Data were collected at health authority level only prior to 2001-02. From 2001-02 onwards, data were collected at trust level.

The number of last minute cancelled operations for non-clinical reasons at Good Hope Hospital NHS Trust for the years 2001-02 to 2005-06 are shown in the table.

Last minute cancelled operations for non-clinical reasons

	Number
2001-02	550
2002-03	781
2003-04	761
2004-05	465
2005-06	565

Note:
A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital, or on the day of their operation.

Health Services: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with Warrington Primary Care Trust on its decision to stop funding treatment services at a GP practice in Birchwood; and if she will make a statement. [135570]

Andy Burnham: The Department has had no discussions with Warrington primary care trust about the funding of treatment services at a general practitioner practice in Birchwood.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people who work but do not live in Birchwood have been treated by the GP practices there in the last 12 months; and what assessment has been made of the likely impact on accident and emergency services at Warrington Hospital if there was a reduction in the number and types of services available at those practices; [135571]

(2) if she will ensure that an independent expert in primary care is appointed to review treatment room services provided in Birchwood during the six months of extended funding which has been offered by the primary care trust. [135572]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected centrally. Warrington primary care trust, working in conjunction with North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust, is responsible for assessing the impact of any proposed changes to service provision.

Health Visitors: Manpower

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of health visitors working in the NHS; and what steps she is taking to increase these numbers. [135301]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 1 May 2007]: There were 12,034 health visitors in post as at 30 September 2006 in the national health services in England.

The overall number of nurses working in primary and community care settings has significantly increased by over 29,500 (38.2 per cent.) since 1997.

It is the responsibility of strategic health authorities and primary care trusts to commission, develop services in response to local needs, and to ensure that appropriate services are provided for the local population.

Healthcare: Acquired Infections

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 723W, on healthcare-acquired infections, when she expects the Health Protection Agency to publish on its website the number of reported cases of (a) MRSA and (b) Clostridium difficile for the period April 2006 to March 2007; and if she will make a statement. [132310]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus bloodstream infections have been collected through the mandatory surveillance scheme since April 2001 and are published by financial year (April to March). The Health Protection Agency (HPA) plans to publish the data for the last financial year (April 2006 to March 2007) in late July 2007.

Data on Clostridium difficile associated disease have been collected through the mandatory surveillance scheme since January 2004 and are published by calendar year. Data for 2006 are due to be published in April 2007 and the HPA plans to publish the data for the first quarter of 2007 (January to March) in late July 2007.

Data on both diseases have been routinely published quarterly since January 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 October 2006, Official Report, column 774W, on MRSA, what progress her Department has made on its internal desk analysis of hospital organisation specialty mix and MRSA; and when she plans to publish the report. [131929]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As part of its programme to reduce healthcare associated infections the Department is undertaking peer review of this internal desk analysis. It is planned to publish this later this year once the peer review is complete.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of STERIS Vaporized Hydrogen Peroxide technology in tackling MRSA within the NHS. [132968]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Rapid Review Panel has reviewed Steris' vaporised hydrogen peroxide and awarded it a recommendation 2 stating that basic research and development has been completed and the product may have potential value; in use evaluations/trials are now needed in an national health service clinical setting.

The Department is currently funding a project to evaluate environmental cleaning for methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus. As part of this Steris' vaporised hydrogen peroxide equipment will be evaluated alongside wet disinfection in both a hospital side room and a controlled exposure chamber.

Hospitals: Hygiene

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on improving hygiene in hospitals in each of the last five years. [132729]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected centrally on the amount that has been spent on hospital hygiene in the last five years. However, as a measure of the importance that the Government attach to this matter, a capital fund of £50 million was launched in December 2006 to support local initiatives to improve hygiene standards.

Hospitals: Leeds

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the plans for a children's and maternity hospital in Leeds. [132969]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Making Leeds Better is a comprehensive plan for improving healthcare in the city. It is the ambition of the Leeds Teaching Hospitals Trust, the Leeds Primary Care Trust (PCT) and the national health service to centre children's services on one new site in the city. This remains the case.

However, concerns have been raised about the affordability of this project. Leeds PCT is investigating how this might be resolved prior to public consultation and the next major milestone, the submission of the outline business case, which is still over 20 months away.

No decision will be taken on Making Leeds Better without public involvement.

Hyperactivity

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) the area corresponding as closely as possible to Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland were diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder in each of the last seven years. [134771]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected on the number of people diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).

In March 2006, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published guidance on the use of drugs to treat ADHD. NICE has estimated that around 5 per cent. of school-aged children meet the diagnostic criteria for ADHD, equivalent to 366,000 children and adolescents in England and Wales, but not all these children will require medication.

The position concerning ADHD in adults is unclear. There have been a number of follow-up studies of those given the diagnosis as children, which indicate that a small proportion may continue with ADHD problems into adulthood.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 746W, on Members' correspondence, when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay of 14 March on the proposed independent sector treatment centre for Basildon. [134940]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 30 April 2007]: I will respond to the letter of 14 March from the hon. Member for Billericay shortly.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1045W, on Members' correspondence, when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay of 8 March concerning Mr. O'Reilly. [134941]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The Department received a copy of the letter from the hon. Member on 26 April 2007. A reply was issued on 2 May 2007.

Mental Health Services: Greater Manchester

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was provided in unweighted allocated funds per head of population for mental health services in (a) Trafford and (b) Salford in the last 12 months. [135665]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Separate allocations are not made for mental health services. It is for each primary care trust (PCT) to determine what proportion of the resources allocated to it are spent on commissioning mental health services and on the other health care needs of their local populations.

The latest allocations made to the Salford and Trafford PCTs are set out in the following table.

		£ million
	2006-07	2007-08
Salford	346.8	374.6
Trafford	275.4	299.5

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average time was between referral and first appointment for primary care psychological services in (a) Trafford and (b) Salford in the last 12 months. [135667]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Mid-Essex Primary Care Trust

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 132W, on Mid-Essex Primary Care Trust, how many administrative staff there are in the Mid-Essex Primary Care Trust. [127913]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows the staffing figures as at September 2006 (which are the latest data available within the Department).

NHS hospital and community health services: administrative staff in the Mid-Essex primary care trust[1] by level as at 30 September 2006

[1] Mid-Essex PCT was formed on 1 October 2006 from a complete merger of Chelmsford PCT, Maldon and South Chelmsford PCT and Waltham, Braintree and Halstead care trust. 2005 figures are an aggregate of these three predecessor organisations, provided for the purposes of comparison. Due to various complex issues, it is not possible to directly compare previous staffing levels with those of the newly formed PCT—as not all local authority boundaries are co-terminus with those of PCT.

Multiple Sclerosis: Medical Treatments

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people received treatment for multiple sclerosis in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997; [135314]

(2) how many people were diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [135316]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of people diagnosed with, and receiving treatment for, multiple sclerosis is not collected.

NHS: Negligence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many claims for alleged clinical negligence against the NHS were closed in each year since 1995; what the cost was of such claims in each year in (a) nominal and (b) real terms; and how many and what proportion of such claims were successful in each year. [133524]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 23 April 2007]: Information on closed claims is presented within the following tables.

Table 1 shows how many clinical negligence claims have been closed by year since 1995, and includes what proportion of such claims were closed with damages (successful).

Table 2 shows the costs of closed clinical negligence claims by year since 1995 in nominal and real terms.

The following points should be noted:

The tables only include closed claims. It therefore excludes claims which are open but resolved for example, where the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) are still negotiating legal fees or where there is an ongoing obligation to make payments to the patient, such as where a periodic payment regime exists.

Category A claims are lower value claims that were handled by individual trusts up to 2002, and were reported to NHSLA upon completion. The NHSLA cannot account for the accuracy of the reported data.

Similarly, until 2000, individual trusts handled and funded existing liabilities scheme (ELS) claims less than £10,000 themselves. However these claims were never notified to the NHSLA on completion. Hence any of these smaller valued claims which closed prior to the ELS call-in in April 2000 will be missing from the data.

Table 2 shows the total value of the claims which closed in the year in question but the actual payments may have been spread over several financial years.

The real terms figures in table 2 are calculated using the deflator series provided by HM Treasury on 28 March 2007.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason the announcement of the order of the Future Aircraft Carriers has been delayed; and what his estimate is of the probable in-service date of (a) HMS Queen Elizabeth and (b) HMS Prince of Wales. [134728]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 1 May 2007]: No date has been set for an announcement and there has, therefore, been no delay. However, as my noble Friend the Minister of State for Defence Equipment and Support, Lord Drayson, stated in another place on 18 January 2007, Official Report, column 776, we are looking to get a robust, affordable deal negotiated quickly to allow a main investment decision to be taken as soon as possible.

With regards to in-service dates, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Shrewsbury and Atcham (Daniel Kawczynski) on 31 October 2006, Official Report, column 326W.

Armed Forces: Cadets

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people were enrolled in (a) gap year commission and (b) the combined cadet force in each year since 1997. [131694]

Derek Twigg: On the subject of gap year commissions, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell) on 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 687W.

Gap year commissions were introduced in 2000. Prior to 2000, personnel were granted a short service limited commission. Enrolments are interpreted to be those personnel on the strengths at each point shown.

The strength of untrained regular Army officers on a short service limited commission/gap year commission at 1 April each year is as follows:

	Strength
1997	20
1998	70

	Strength
1999	50
2000	80
2001	50
2002	80
2003	80
2004	70
2005	30
2006	40
2007	[1]60

[1] At 1 February 2007

The combined cadet force (CCF) is not a recruiting organisation. Although annual records of overall numbers in the CCF are held at 1 April each year since 1999, MOD does not keep account of yearly inflow and outflow numbers.

The annual numbers for the CCF, for years 1999 to 2006, are shown in the following table.

	Officers	Cadets	Non-commissioned officers[1]	Total
1999	1,750	40,010	210	41,970
2000	1,780	40,550	220	42,540
2001	1,790	40,780	230	42,810
2002	1,780	40,970	220	42,980
2003	1,840	41,270	230	43,340
2004	1,890	41,910	240	44,040
2005	1,910	42,460	240	44,600
2006	1,910	42,030	250	44,190

Totals and components have been rounded separately to the nearest 10 (numbers ending in "5" have been rounded to the nearest 20 to prevent systematic bias) and so may not equal the sum of their rounded parts.

A more detailed breakdown of the strength of all services' reserves and cadets is published annually and is available at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp7/tsp7tab1.html

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 130W, on Armed Forces: Council Tax, what options are being considered; when he expects to publish his proposals; and what powers he has to ensure that his proposals are implemented across the UK. [135421]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 2 May 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1455W.

Armed Forces: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of recruits to each of the armed forces were from ethnic minorities in each of the last five years; and how many were (a) British and (b) foreign nationals. [131099]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is currently being collated. I will write to the hon. Member when this is complete and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Military Aircraft

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Nimrod MRA4 aircraft to be brought into service. [134331]

Mr. Ingram: The planned in service date for the Nimrod MRA4 aircraft is 2010.

Armed Forces: South Africa

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency plans his Department has put in place to manage service personnel who are South African if the South African Prohibition of Mercenary Activities and Regulation of Certain Activities in Areas of Armed Conflict Bill is enacted. [135422]

Mr. Ingram: We are urgently investigating the potential consequences for South African personnel currently serving in the UK armed forces, should the legislation be enacted, so that we can support those who may be affected.

Active engagement with the South African Department of Defence is ongoing to try and mitigate the effect of the Bill on the armed forces.

Army Costs

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, columns 749-50W, on Army costs, what the reasons were for the amount spent on maintenance of rented property occupied by the Adjutant General; and if he will break down the costs incurred for that maintenance. [129990]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 26 March 2007]: The figure of £13,284.44 previously provided under the generic heading "maintenance" covered a range of costs including the supply of replacement equipment; redecoration; rectification of faults; and the supply and erection of garden fencing. A breakdown follows:

Description of maintenance	Cost (£)
Redecoration	863
Renew trellis fence panel	39
Repair leak to cast iron stack pipe	24
Supply and erect chicken wire fence	1,150
Supply and deliver 12.5lts of supa-stadia pitch marker	17
Supply and fit hooks and white PVC coated metal chain fitted to wooden posts	1,890
Reposition and upgrade radiator wall stats	35
Remove wooden casement around hand basin and bring hand basin back into working order. Check any electrics, and make good any decoration	538
Decorations to the study and kitchen/utility room	491
Clear blockage to toilet pan	43
Renew electric shower	334
Patch repair paper to wall and repair paintwork	28
Refix gate handle to wooden gate	6
Repair to shower	82
Renew mortise lock and furniture	75
Renew shelf to inside of door to built in fridge	50
Clear blockage to toilet pan	154

Description of maintenance	Cost (£)
Refit carpet to stairs	29
Fit family size microwave oven	230

Replace washing machine door gasket	62
Renew fluorescent light fitting	52
Ease and adjust doors	52
Renew brick paving-sand	41
Minor furniture and equipment costs	402
Purchase of tractor mower to replace beyond economical repair item	2,090
Purchase of tableware	2,686

Commonwealth Task Force

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the progress of the Commonwealth task force. [134503]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The Army's Foreign and Commonwealth task force was set up in 2004 and works to identify concerns and to implement practical and achievable measures to ameliorate them. Since its inception, the task force has seen adjustments to Tri-Service or Army policy and guidance, including changes in other Government Department regulations.

Notable developments have included:

Reviewing services allowances and ensuring priority allowances take account of country of origin implications;

Promulgating guidance on in-service UK naturalisation opportunities; and Providing a Commonwealth soldiers and families information website.

The task force met most recently on 26 April 2007. There are a number of ongoing issues; dialogue continues with other Government Departments where appropriate, while work within MOD control includes providing improved guidance for non-British soldiers during initial training and improving the flow of communications through the chain of command to both soldiers and their accompanying families.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military personnel are based in the North East. [135293]

Derek Twigg: Details of UK Regular Forces stationed in the North East region are given in the following table.

	1 April 2006	1 October 2006
Total	[1]1,510	n/a
Naval Service	30	30
Army	760	750
RAF	[1]710	n/a n/a = not available.

[1] Provisional.

Due to the introduction of a new Personnel Administration System (JPA), RAF location data for 1 April 2006 are provisional and subject to review, and after 1 April 2006 are not available.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ministry of Defence establishments there are in the North East. [135294]

Derek Twigg: Within the official North East Government Office Region, the Ministry of Defence has nine establishments, excluding Reserve Forces Cadet Association sites and Careers Offices which are not considered to be main establishments.

The nine establishments are:

Albermarle Barracks

Army Museum Alnwick Castle

Bowes Moor Chemical Weapon Stores

Catterick Training Area

HMS Calliope

Otterburn Training Area

RAF Boulmer

RAF Spadeadam

Warcop Army Field Training Centre

EU Defence Policy

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel from non-European Union member states are assigned to the European Union Military Staff. [135356]

Mr. Ingram: None.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which British military units will form the EU Battle Group in 2008. [135357]

Mr. Ingram: The British military units which will form the EU Battle Group that the United Kingdom will have on standby in the second half of 2008 will come from our Joint Rapid Reaction Force. We have yet to nominate the particular Battalion to provide the core of this capability. A decision is likely to be taken during the summer.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel are assigned to the European Union Military Staff. [135417]

Mr. Ingram: 18 British service personnel are currently assigned to the European Union Military Staff.

Ex-servicemen: Health Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps the Government take to ensure that war pensioners receive priority treatment on the NHS for their accepted disablements; what systems the Government have in place to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of these measures; and how many war pensioners were given priority treatment on the NHS for their accepted disablements in each year since 1997. [132842]

Derek Twigg: NHS hospitals should give priority to war pensioners, both as out-patients and in-patients, for examination or treatment relating to their pensioned disablement, subject to clinical priority. Reminders about priority treatment for war pensioners are circulated by the health services to senior NHS managers who are tasked to ensure that relevant clinical staff are aware.

There is no formal system to monitor or evaluate the provision, but officials take up cases with the relevant health authority where it is alleged that there is an issue around provision of priority treatment. The Service Personnel and Veterans Agency monitor these cases. The Ministry of Defence and its Service Personnel and Veterans Agency do not keep records of those war pensioners who receive priority treatment for their accepted disablements; this is a matter for the Department of Health.

Iraq: Peace-Keeping Operations

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements have been made for members of Royal Welsh Regiments 1 and 2 to visit friends and families before deployment to Iraq or Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [132161]

Derek Twigg: The First and Second Battalion the Royal Welsh will be deploying to both Afghanistan and Iraq this year (in the case of the Second Battalion the Royal Welsh the entire unit will deploy to Iraq; the First Battalion the Royal Welsh will send troops to both theatres).

Generally, commanders will ensure that troops who are about to deploy receive up to three consecutive weeks leave during the two months prior to deployment.

The First Battalion the Royal Welsh (1 RW) is based permanently in Cyprus, and in most cases spouses and children are located with the unit. The elements of 1 RW who will be deploying have already had their pre-deployment leave (Friday 30 March to Wednesday 18 April). However, a handful of personnel were not able to take this in full owing to operational commitment. Arrangements are in place for those affected to return to their home base and receive the balance of leave owed shortly after the unit arrives in theatre.

The Second Battalion the Royal Welsh (2 RW) is based in Tidworth, Wiltshire. 2 RW have been on leave since after duties on Friday 30 March and returned to work on Monday 23 April.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Joint Combat Aircraft to be available for service with the Royal Navy. [134729]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 1 May 2007]: As my hon. Friend Lord Drayson, who has ministerial responsibility for equipment and support stated in the other place on 8 January 2007, Official Report, column WA8, we will not be setting in-service dates for the Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) until we take the main investment decision, and we will take that decision when the project is sufficiently mature. Our plans for JCA remain coherent with the CVF programme.

Navy: Deployment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1359W, on Navy: deployment, whether any other ships are held at low readiness. [134505]

Mr. Ingram: As I made clear in my letter of the 6 March 2007 to the hon. Member for New Forest, East (Dr. Lewis), copies of which were placed in the Library of the House, it is not MOD policy to publish details of the readiness states of individual RN vessels or types. The only exceptions are HMS Invincible and ships in refit: currently HMS Gloucester, HMS Liverpool, HMS Cumberland, HMS Somerset, HMS Iron Duke, HMS Chiddingfold and HMS Grimsby. These eight ships are all at low or very low readiness. In addition, HMS St. Albans is preparing for refit.

Nimrod Aircraft

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the costs of replacing the (a) air-to-air refuelling system, (b) wing fuel tanks and (c) single skin fuel pipes in his decision to refurbish the current fleet of Nimrod MR2 R1 aircraft. [134923]

Mr. Ingram: The MR2 and the R1 are two separate variants of the Nimrod aircraft. There are no current plans to refurbish the MR2 fleet before it is replaced by the Nimrod MRA4 aircraft. The MRA4 design was costed as a whole, not by individual elements such as the air to air refuelling system, the wing fuel tanks or the fuel system. No decisions have yet been taken on whether the R1 platform will carry the replacement for the current mission system, and whether the R1 fleet would be refurbished.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Curriculum

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he has taken to involve industry and businesses in the content of apprenticeship courses. [134762]

Phil Hope: We have listened to employers and have involved industry and businesses extensively in the development of apprenticeships resulting in improvements to apprenticeship frameworks to keep them up-to-date and to make them more flexible. We will be working ever more closely with employer organisations to deliver the planned apprenticeship entitlement and the Leitch UK target of 500,000 apprentices by 2020. Development of new or revised apprenticeship frameworks for each industry are the responsibility of Sector Skills Councils (SSCs). Each SSC is an employer-led, independent organisation that covers a specific sector across the UK and provides employers with a unique forum to express the skills and productivity needs that are pertinent to the sector. Apprenticeship frameworks therefore reflect employer needs and requirements.

Frameworks are also submitted to a group of SSC peers for approval and to ensure minimum qualification requirements are met.

Bookstart Scheme

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children in Hendon participated in the Bookstart programme in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [118472]

Beverley Hughes: Booktrust tells me that the total number of packs issued to children in Hendon between April 2006 and March 2007 is as follows:

557 Bookstart baby packs

1,058 Bookstart Plus toddler packs

828 Treasure Chest packs for 3-year-olds

Over the three year period 2005-08 we are providing £27 million to Booktrust for the Bookstart Programme.

Child Care

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding is available to support child care for children (a) with disabilities and (b) without disabilities. [118859]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are investing in a wide range of financial support for child care in England. We are investing some £3 billion each year in the delivery of free part-time nursery education so that all three and four-year-olds can benefit from 12.5 hours a week free early years provision, rising to 15 hours a week by 2010.

Further funding to support child care is also provided through the General Sure Start Grant (GSSG). This includes supporting child care for disabled children and children with special educational needs (SEN). The GSSG can be used to provide training to staff, enable early education and child care settings to make adaptations to premises and equipment, provide additional staff and support multi-agency working focused on the needs of individual children for example as developed by the Early Support Programme for disabled children and their parents.

Local authorities have the freedom to decide how much they wish to spend on activity related to disability and SEN within the GSSG based on their knowledge of the local market. In 2007-08, £664 million of revenue funding and £544 million of capital funding is available to local authorities through the GSSG. Local authorities now have a duty through the Childcare Act 2006 to secure sufficient child care provision in their area for all children with a specific focus on provision that is suitable for disabled children.

Further funding is available to parents through the child tax credit, and the working tax credit, which was introduced in April 2003. The child care element of the working tax credit is designed to help remove the child care barrier that often prevents people taking up or returning to work. It is available for meeting up to 80 per cent. of the cost of registered or approved child care to a maximum childcare cost of £175 a week for families who pay child care for one child and £300 a week for families who pay child care for two children or more. For parents with disabled children, additional funding to help with the costs of child care is provided through the disability living allowance, the carers allowance and the disability and severe disability elements of the child tax credit. A longer period of help is given to families for children with disability.

Child care can be subsidised in a variety of other ways including local authority subsidies, Jobcentre Plus New Deals, Care to Learn, Learner Support Funds and NHS child care allowances. The Department supports initiatives with sector organisations such as the National Portage Association and Kids, to raise awareness and change attitudes towards the delivery of services for disabled children. Parents of disabled children can also apply for direct payments from local authorities in some circumstances.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many people are employed by the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS), broken down by (a) part-time and (b) full-time staff; and what the average length of service is of CAFCASS employees; [134252]

(2) what the average length of time taken for a case before the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service officer was in (a) the last 12 months and (b) each of the last five years. [134253]

Mr. Dhanda: These are matters for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS). Anthony Douglas, the Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his letter will be placed in the House Library.

Letter from Anthony Douglas, dated 30 April 2007:

I am writing to you in response to the two Parliamentary Questions that you tabled recently.

The table below details the number of part-time and full-time staff CAFCASS currently employs.

	CAFCASS staff
Full-time	1,405
Part-time	491
Total	1,896

In 2006/07, of the cases that CAFCASS closed, the average duration was as follows:

Cases	Days
Public	334
Private	257

This was the first year CAFCASS could collect these figures, following the introduction of our national case management system. Prior to this, the pre-CAFCASS legacy systems prevented us being able to arrive at a robust national figure.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

Education Act 1996

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful appeals have been made to him by parents under sections 496 and 497 of the Education Act 1996 in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. [133034]

Jim Knight: Data on heard and successful admissions appeals for all local education authorities in England covering the years 1997/98 to 2004/05 (the latest year for which data is available), have been placed in the House Library.

Further Education: Standards

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact of the Learning and Skills Council's proposed star rating on (a) further education and (b) sixth form colleges. [133717]

Phil Hope: The proposed star rating system—the Framework for Excellence (FfE) and the associated strategies announced in the White Paper 'Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances' will be developed and implemented as part of a coherent and evolving package of reform. The framework aims to improve the quality of post-16 provision and support better-informed choices and decisions by employers and individuals, thereby contributing to better and more relevant outcomes for end users, increasing skill levels in the workforce and increased productivity.

The Framework is in an early stage of development and will be piloted this summer in approximately 100 general FE, 6th form colleges and work-based learning providers. It will enable further education institutions to use a single performance management framework, with common sets of data and performance indicators instead of a number of different frameworks. Thus the framework will be more streamlined than existing arrangements and should help to reduce bureaucracy.

Higher Education: Scholarships

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what mechanisms exist for the Office for Fair Access to ensure higher education institutions spend budgeted levels on income-assessed non-repayable bursaries. [131430]

Bill Rammell: The Office for Fair Access (OFFA) requires institutions in their annual monitoring returns to report on the amount of spend on bursaries and scholarships disbursed to low income and other under-represented groups. OFFA is then under a statutory duty to provide an annual report to Parliament containing an overview of progress. Monitoring returns are due at the end of the academic year (end of July 2007). OFFA will analyse the returns over the summer and publish a short report on the findings of the monitoring process in autumn/winter 2007.

OFFA has successfully ensured that all institutions that have chosen to set fees above the basic level have successfully completed an access agreement. As a result these institutions are forecast to deliver in excess of £300 million per year in bursaries to students. I am aware that concerns have been raised about a potential underspend on bursaries in some universities. As I said in the Higher Education debate on 15 March 2007:

> 'I have been monitoring that situation very closely. The overall scale of underspend has been exaggerated in some reports. In several universities, including a significant number in the Russell group, the projections are that there will be no underspend at all.
> Forecasts of spend inevitably carry with them some uncertainty, especially in the first year of an entirely new bursary scheme, and some universities set a high figure for reasons of prudent financial management. I am not in the business of unfairly or unjustly criticising people. OFFA will monitor expenditure and performance annually, and we will have a full picture of year 1 after the relevant monitoring information has been collected this summer.
> At the same time, universities should be doing all they can to ensure that students get the support to which they are entitled. In recent weeks, several vice-chancellors have explicitly said to me that they intend to invest any underspend in their original bursary estimates on other measures to improve social inclusion. One of them told me:
> "The money for bursaries is 'budgeted out'. If it cannot be spent on bursaries, then it will go to support other widening participation projects."
> That is heartening. I would urge all universities forecasting a genuine underspend on bursaries to take that approach.'—[Official Report, 15 March 2007; Vol. 458, c.494.]

Members: Correspondence

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) when he will reply to the letter of 19 January from the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead on the account taken of plans for new homes in Hemel Hempstead constituency in determining the closures and amalgamations of schools in the area; [127256]

(2) when he will answer the (a) letter of 19 January 2007 and (b) question of 8 March 2007 for answer on 13 March 2007 from the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead, on the account taken of plans for new homes in Hemel Hempstead constituency in determining the closures and amalgamations of schools in the area. [134034]

Jim Knight [holding answers 13 March and 26 April 2007]: I regret that the Department has no record of receiving the hon. Member's letter of 19 January 2007.

Changes to local school organisation, including school closures and amalgamations, require the publication of statutory proposals which are decided under local decision-making arrangements. Ministers have no role. When taking a decision on proposals, the decision maker must have regard to guidance issued by the Secretary of State. This guidance sets out a range of factors that should be considered for the different types of proposals. The factors include considering the need for school places, taking into account pupil number projections.

Pre-school Education: Expenditure

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures the Government have in place for monitoring how funds for School Action and School Action Plus are spent; and what systems exist to evaluate the efficacy of the expenditure. [132886]

Beverley Hughes: There is a duty on local authorities to provide an explanation of that element of special educational provision for children with special educational needs (but without statements) which the local authority expects normally to be met from maintained schools' budget shares and that element of such provision that the authority expects normally to be met by funds which it holds centrally.

Local authorities must also provide information on the arrangements made by them for auditing, planning, monitoring and reviewing provision for children with special educational needs, both generally and in relation to individual children.

Details of the broad aims of local authorities' SEN policies, including the aforementioned information, must be published on their websites.

Ofsted school inspections judge the extent to which learners with special educational needs and disabilities make progress, and how effectively and efficiently schools deploy their resources to achieve value for money. Inspectorates' area-level assessments and inspections of children's services cover local authority services for children and young people with learning difficulties and/or disabilities.

Pupil Referral Units

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many and what percentage of pupil referral units were in Ofsted categories (a) special measures and (b) notice to improve in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007, broken down by local authority; [133781]

(2) how many and what percentage of pupil referral units were in Ofsted categories (a) special measures, (b) serious weaknesses and (c) underachieving in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. [133782]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House Library.

Pupils: Uniforms

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he plans to discuss removing VAT on school uniforms for over 14-year-olds with the Chancellor of the Exchequer. [135264]

Jim Knight: The Department has no plans to discuss removing VAT on school uniforms for over 14-year-olds with the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Current guidance on school uniform advises governing bodies to give high priority to cost when setting a school uniform policy, and states that no school uniform should be so expensive as to leave pupils or their families feeling socially excluded.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many admissions appeals were (a) heard and (b) successful for pupils in London in each year since 1997, broken down by local education authority. [132646]

Jim Knight: Data on heard and successful admissions appeals for all local education authorities in England, including those for London and covering the years 1997/98 to 2004/05 (the latest year for which data are available), have been placed in the House Library.

Schools: Appeals

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the process is for appealing decisions made by the Schools Adjudicator under the Education (New Secondary School Proposals) (England) (Amendment) Regulations; and if he will make a statement. [125575]

Jim Knight: The Education Acts do not provide for any appeals against a decision taken by the schools adjudicator. There is accordingly no scope for the Education (New Secondary School Proposals) (England) Regulations 2006 (as amended) to include an appeal process. The adjudicator's decision is final and can only be challenged by application to the high court for judicial review. Similarly, the Act provided that where a school organisation committee decided a competition, that decision could only be challenged by application to the High Court for judicial review.

Schools: Asbestos

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many school buildings in (a) England, (b) Greater London, (c) the London Borough of Havering and (d) Romford contain asbestos; and what steps are being taken (i) to remove the asbestos and (ii) to ensure the safety of students and staff. [134623]

Jim Knight: We do not keep information on which schools contain asbestos. However, the Health and Safety Executive advise that asbestos was commonly used in buildings constructed between 1945 and 1980. It is a requirement that the duty-holder as defined in the Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations keeps records of the location and condition of asbestos in all its buildings. For local authority maintained schools, the local authority as the employer is the duty-holder. The duty-holder is responsible for the safe management of asbestos. Removal is not a requirement and where the location and condition of the asbestos permits, it is often safer to manage the asbestos in-situ. HSE has issued guidance on the safe management and control of asbestos in schools[1].

Schools: Standards

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools in each local authority area his Department considers to be (a) low attaining and (b) under-performing. [132379]

Jim Knight: There are several ways to define low attainment and underperformance in relation to schools. The House of Commons Education Select Committee report of December 2003 recommended that a distinction should be drawn between low absolute levels of attainment (for example, a performance benchmark such as 25 per cent. five A*-C grades at GCSE) and low performance, which generally involves a value added measure.

Underperformance is particularly difficult to define with clarity. For example, by definition, 25 per cent. of all schools will appear in the bottom quartile of any performance measure, but the cohort of these schools will change year on year, so such schools are not necessarily persistent underperformers. Therefore, no schools have been formally classified as underperforming by DfES.

For the purposes of this question, low attaining primary schools are defined as those at which fewer than 65 per cent. of 11-year-olds achieved the target level 4 of the national curriculum in both English and mathematics in 2006 and where performance has been below 65 per cent. in both subjects for the previous three years. 65 per cent. is the minimum level set in the Department's floor targets for primary schools.

Low attaining secondary schools for the purpose of this question are defined as those in which less than 25 per cent. of 15-year-olds achieved five A*-C at GCSE or equivalent in 2006. 25 per cent. is the minimum level set in the Department's floor targets for secondary schools.

All low attaining schools are subject to support programmes, particularly those provided by the primary and secondary national strategies. Although we have not classified the schools as underperforming we have funded a programme that identified secondary schools that were likely to benefit from the raising attainment in teaching and learning (RAIL) initiative to tackle underperformance. A total of 764 schools are included in RAIL.

The national strategies are continuing to work with all local authorities in using comparative data to help identify underperforming primary schools and to support them in raising standards of literacy and numeracy through interventions such as the Intensifying Support programme.

The following table gives the number of schools in each local authority based on the above criteria.

Local authority	Number of secondary schools in which less than 25% of pupils achieved 5 A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent in 2006*	Number of primary schools in which fewer than 65% of 11-year-olds achieved the target level 4 of the national curriculum in both English and mathematics in 2006 and where performance has been below 65% in both subjects for the previous 3 years	Number of secondary schools which have joined the RAIL programme designed to address potential under performance

Secondary Schools

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what changes have been made to the statistical basis for recording absences from secondary schools. [129641]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 March 2007]: The absence data collection from secondary schools has changed from being an annual school level collection to a termly pupil level collection.

Statisticians within the Department believe that the collection of pupil level data will improve data quality and enhance the analysis we are able to conduct.

This new collection is the first opportunity to report nationally on the relationship between absence and pupil characteristics such as gender, ethnicity, special educational needs—and to highlight the concentrations of persistent absentees missing a fifth or more of lessons.

Social Workers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many social workers in England are registered with the General Social Care Council. [118971]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

On 1 May 2007 there were 76,894 social workers registered in England with the General Social Care Council.

Special Educational Needs

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many statements of individual children's special needs were compiled by local education authorities in 2006; how many recommended funding towards education at a special needs school; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the statement assessment system. [134871]

Mr. Dhanda: 22,600 new statements were issued for children with special educational needs in 2006.

Statements set out details of children's special educational needs, the provision to meet those needs and the school the child should attend. Once a statement is finalised local authorities are under a duty to arrange the specified provision. Of the new statements issued in 2006, 5,330 were for children placed in special schools. 4,870 children were placed in maintained special schools (including foundation schools); 110 were placed in non-maintained special schools; and 360 were placed in independent special schools. (Figures are taken from the SEN 2 Survey 2007 and are provisional.)

The Department's team of SEN advisers following visits to all 150 local authorities, report proactive dialogue with parents on statutory assessment matters. Excluding cases where it was impractical to comply with timescales, 95 per cent. of draft statements were produced in the 18 week statutory timescale in 2006.

The outcomes achieved by vulnerable groups of learners, including many children with SEN, are improving, for example, the proportion of children with SEN (with and without statements) achieving 5 A* to C grades at GCSE continues to rise.

Ofsted's survey "Inclusion: does it matter where pupils are taught?" (July 2006) also reported significant improvements in SEN provision since the publication of their previous survey in 2004.

Teaching Methods

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of (a) mathematics, (b) English, (c) science and (d) all lessons (excluding PE lessons) inspected by Ofsted were recorded as (i) setted and (ii) banded in years (A) 7, (B) 8, (C) 9, (D) 10, (E) 11 and (F) overall in each year since 2002. [134179]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 27 April 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

You asked what proportion of (a) mathematics, (b) English, (c) science and (d) all lessons (excluding PE lessons) inspected by Ofsted were recorded as (i) setted and (ii) banded in years (A) 7, (B) 8, (C) 9, (D) 10, (E) 11 and (F) overall in each year.

The tables attached show the percentage of lessons which were setted by ability, seen by inspectors during the academic years 1996/97 to 2002/03. Prior to 1996/97 inspectors were not required to record information about grouping and from 2002/03 records do not distinguish between setting and banding. Please note that the percentages do not add up to 100% as the data here do not include other categories that are counted. For example, groups formed by age and mixed ability have not been accounted for.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the funding given to participating local authorities will be (a) ring fenced and (b) via reimbursement for specific expenditure, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 1351W, on anti-social behaviour. [128664]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

This question refers to the Department for Education and Skills grant of up to £125,000, that can be accessed by 40 Respect areas and seven London boroughs. The purpose of the grant is to help improve and strengthen the delivery of parenting support in those areas, especially around the prevention and tackling of antisocial behaviour. The funding to these local authorities is non ring-fenced.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will seek legal advice on the compatibility of the ultrasonic antisocial behaviour deterrent device with (a) Article 3 and (b) Article 14 of the European Convention on Human Rights; and if he will make a statement; [134369]

(2) if he will require police forces to notify him of their purchase of ultrasonic antisocial behaviour deterrent devices; [134370]

(3) if he will issue guidelines to police forces on the use of the ultrasonic antisocial behaviour deterrent device Mosquito. [134368]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office encourages local agencies to consider the full range of innovations, schemes and practices intended to reduce crime, the fear of crime and antisocial behaviour. It is for local agencies like the police and local authorities to decide on the most appropriate interventions to tackle antisocial behaviour based on their knowledge of what works best locally. We do encourage agencies to adopt a tiered approach with a blend of measures to provide a proportionate response. The Home Office does not promote or recommend any particular commercial product or venture above this, and as such has not sought legal advice on this device.

The Home Office has not produced guidance for police and local authorities on the use of the mosquito device, and has no plans to require the police to notify the Secretary of State if and when such a device is purchased.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances criminal antisocial behaviour orders are issued; in what ways they are different from antisocial behavioural orders; and what assessment he has made of the impact of each type of order on changing behaviour in young people. [135070]

Mr. McNulty: Antisocial behaviour orders on conviction were introduced by the Police Reform Act 2002 to allow the courts to deal with the antisocial behaviour of a convicted individual in an effective and timely manner by removing the need for a separate application to be made on complaint to the magistrates court. The order is in addition to the criminal sentence and is considered separately from the criminal part of the proceedings.

An order on conviction has the same effect as an antisocial behaviour order and lasts a minimum of two years. Breach of the terms of the order is a criminal offence, whether the order was obtained on conviction or by way of a stand alone application.

The effectiveness of the Government's antisocial behaviour policies has been assessed in two key independent reports published last year, by the National Audit Office and by the Youth Justice Board. Both confirmed that our twin track approach of support and enforcement is effective in protecting communities from antisocial behaviour. This is bringing results—nationally, the percentage of people who perceive high levels of antisocial behaviour has fallen from 21 per cent. in 2002-03 to 17 per cent. in 2005-06.

We are due to commission an evaluation of various interventions (including ASBOs) designed to tackle antisocial behaviour. This proposed research is likely to explore what impact these interventions can have on tackling antisocial behaviour problems.

Arrests

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests have been made and (b) charges have been brought by the police since 1997; and how many convictions arose from such charges, broken down by (i) category of offence and (ii) police authority. [128261]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 March 2007]: Information is not collected centrally on how cases progress from arrest to prosecution or otherwise. Data collected by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) on arrests are collected separately from data on prosecutions and their outcome. Data on numbers charged are not collected by either OCJR or the Home Office.

The available data by notifiable offence group are given in tables A1 to A10 for arrests and B1 to B9 for convictions respectively. Arrests data for years prior to 1999-2000 are not available while the data for 2005-06 on both arrests and convictions will be available later this year.

Care should be taken in interpreting the tables not least because the main offence for which a person is arrested may be different from the one which resulted in a conviction. Also people arrested within a given year will not necessarily have been convicted in the same year.

Table A1: Number of persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) within the offence group "violence against the person" by police force area, 1999-2000 to 2004-05

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

[1] All convictions in the Crown court are included (those arrested and charged by the police cannot be distinguished separately although they will make up the vast majority of people tried in the Crown court).
[2] These data are on the principal offence basis.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[4] Staffordshire police force were only able to supply a sample of data for magistrates courts proceedings covering one full week in each quarter for 2000. Estimates based on this sample are included in the figures, as they are considered sufficiently robust at this high level of analysis.
[5] These data are for those persons proceeded against at magistrates courts that have resulted in a conviction for a recorded crime.
[6] Includes all indictable offences within the violence against the person offence group as well as recordable summary violence against the person offence group

Asylum

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the date of application was of each claim for an extension of discretionary leave decided in the week beginning (a) 23 October 2006, (b) 30 October 2006, (c) 6 November 2006, (d) 13 November 2006, (e) 20 November 2006, (f) 27 November 2006, (g) 4 December 2006, (h) 11 December 2006 and (i) 18 December 2006. [133451]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested cannot be provided except by examining individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Finance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what support is provided to failed asylum seekers. [134954]

Mr. Byrne: Families with children in their household when their asylum claims are finally determined continue to be eligible for asylum support under section 95 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 until they leave the UK or the youngest child reaches 18.

Support under section four of the 1999 Act is available for failed asylum seekers who have a temporary barrier to removal and who meet the eligibility criteria. Those supported are provided with accommodation and vouchers or supermarket payment cards to purchase food and essential toiletries. This is a limited form of support to meet essential needs as failed asylum seekers are expected to leave the UK.

Some failed asylum seekers may be entitled to support from a local authority under section 21 of the National Assistance Act 1948.

Crime: Statistics

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to issue a public response to the recommendations put forward in the Smith Review of crime statistics; and if he will make a statement. [133677]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 24 April 2007]: Recommendations from the Smith Review are being considered by the Crime Statistics Development Programme Board (CSDPB) which was established in January 2007. The CSDPB comprises representatives from the Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), the Association of Police Authorities (APA), the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) and the Royal Statistical Society (RSS).

The Home Office plans to issue a formal response to the Smith Review when the annual statistical bulletin on crime in England and Wales is published on 19 July 2007.

Departments: Departmental Reorganisation

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department's office space on 2 Marsham Street will be shared with the Ministry of Justice. [134307]

Mr. Byrne: It is intended that a small number of staff will move to Selborne House on 9 May. However the overwhelming majority of staff transferring to the Ministry of Justice and presently housed in 2 Marsham Street will remain there after 9 May.

Departments: Olympic Games

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's first estimate was of the total contribution to be made from his departmental budget towards the costs of hosting the Olympic Games; and what his Department's latest estimate is of that cost. [133296]

Mr. Byrne: We are in discussion with the Metropolitan Police Service and other relevant Departments and agencies about the costs of ensuring a safe and secure Olympic Games. We have provided the Metropolitan Police Service and other affected police forces with up to £4.6 million in 2007-08 to enable planning and preparation. Once firm proposals and costings are available, they will be evaluated by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary before being considered by the Home Secretary. We will inform Parliament of the outcome of this process when it has concluded.

Departments: Oral Questions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many questions tabled by hon. and right hon. Members to his Department for oral answer have been transferred to other departments since May 2005. [133798]

Mr. McNulty: Since the start of this parliamentary Session the Home Office has transferred a total of three oral questions to other Departments. Details of oral questions transferred since May 2005 are not held centrally.

Deportation

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he is considering deportation proceedings in the case of (a) Antonio Mia and (b) Shpetim Bujaj. [134880]

Mr. Byrne: I am not able to comment on individual cases within the House.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many allegations of assault have been made against deportation escorts in each of the last five years; and what the result has been of police investigations of allegations. [134974]

Mr. Byrne: We do not differentiate between escorts involving detainees who are subject to a deportation order and those who are subject to administrative removal. The figures given therefore cover all immigration escorts for the given periods. The figures for 2002 are not readily available and provision of these figures would be at disproportionate cost.

In the following years the figures are as follows:

	Number
2003-04	27
2004-05	79
2005-06	72
2006-07	44

All of the assault allegations received by the Border and Immigration Agency were reported to the police. None of the police investigations has resulted in charges against the escorts.

East Midlands Special Operations Unit

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will continue to provide funding for the East Midlands Special Operations Unit. [134793]

Mr. McNulty: Following a similar amount in 2006-07, we are planning to make £8 million available in 2007-08 to help tackle the police's response to level two crime. Recommendations on the allocation of the money will be a matter for the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

Entry Clearances

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his Department plans to decide whether to grant entry clearance to Iram Aziz Awan (reference 1070351). [134313]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

Ms Awan applied for entry clearance to the UK on 23 August 2005. Her application was refused with a right of appeal on 24 August 2005. According to records held at the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT), an appeal was received on 31 October 2005; however, this was outside the 28-day time limit from the date of refusal and was therefore dismissed by the AIT on 31 January 2006. We now consider this application to be closed.

Immigration Controls

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of applications for indefinite leave to remain were decided within (a) three weeks and (b) 13 weeks in 2006-07. [134118]

Mr. Byrne: Information in this format is not kept by the Border and Immigration Agency and could be obtained by examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time taken to process an application for further leave to remain from an applicant who had overstayed on a visa was in the most recent period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [135332]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is not available and could only be obtained by examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he is taking following the publication of his Department's Review of Home Office Publications of Control of Immigration Statistics. [102561]

Mr. Byrne: The implementation plan for the National Statistics Quality Review on Command Paper "Control of Immigration Statistics: United Kingdom" publications report was published on the Office for National Statistics and Home Office websites on 16 January 2007 on the following links:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/quality/reviews/population.asp; and http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/cpreview07.pdf

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department has had with representatives of foreign governments on the implications of the proposed new points-based immigration system. [134355]

Mr. Byrne: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Home Office have held two events for the London based diplomatic community to brief them on the points-based immigration system. A Migration Workshop was held on 29 September 2005 and a Migration Seminar took place on 24 March 2006. The foreign press based in London were briefed by Lord Triesman and my hon. Friend the Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety on 7 March 2006.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to implement the new points-based immigration system retrospectively. [134356]

Mr. Byrne: The points-based system (PBS) will not be introduced retrospectively. Anyone who is granted permission to come to, or stay in, the UK under the system that exists now will keep that permission when the PBS is introduced.

Anyone applying for further permission to stay here after the introduction of PBS will need to meet the requirements of the Immigration Rules as they are at the time he makes that application. This means that a migrant who came here under a category of the Immigration Rules that has since become part of the PBS will need to meet the PBS requirements in order to stay here when his initial permission runs out.

This is the approach that we have always taken to applications under the Immigration Rules.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of immigration systems used in other countries. [134357]

Mr. Byrne: We always look to learn from our international partners and meet regularly with them to share best practice. During the design of the points based system for managed migration, we examined how points based systems operated in other countries.

BIA officials regularly meet international partners. We are involved in the General Directors Immigration Services Conference (GDISC), a network of directors of immigration services across Europe and also the Four Countries Conference which includes Australia, Canada and the USA.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the new points-based immigration system on the (a) lower-skilled and (b) unskilled job sectors. [134358]

Mr. Byrne: Tier three of the points based system will provide for the introduction of quota-based schemes to meet labour shortages at low skill levels if these are needed. It will be for the Migration Advisory Committee to make an assessment of whether such schemes will in the future be needed to meet labour needs in any particular sector. Such schemes will not be introduced while restrictions on Bulgarian and Romanian nationals' access to low skilled employment in the United Kingdom remain in force.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate: Correspondence

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many letters from hon. Members, Peers and members of the devolved assemblies were received by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in each year from 2003 to 2006. [135057]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 April 2007]: The Border and Immigration Agency received 26,577 such letters in 2003, 38,015 letters in 2004, 41,086 letters in 2005 and 41,534 in 2006

Immigration: EU Enlargement

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether he plans to provide specific information for Scottish local authorities to clarify their duties for homeless EU2 migrants; [127307]

(2) whether he plans to make available to local authorities in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland information regarding their duties towards EU2 migrants; [127308]

(3) what steps are being taken to clarify to local authorities the entitlement of EU2 migrants for local authority services, including housing and social services and homelessness assistance, across the UK. [127310]

Mr. Byrne: Local authorities' responsibilities towards Bulgarian and Romanian nationals are similar to those for other EEA nationals, except with regard to employment, where restrictions have been maintained. Guidance on the rights and responsibilities with respect to work and employment is available on the IND website:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk.

The Scottish Executive has issued a statutory code of guidance to local authorities on EU nationals' eligibility for homelessness assistance in Scotland. This guidance can be accessed via the Scotland Executive website:

http://www.scotland.gov.uk/publications/2005.

The Home Office has not received any requests from local authorities with respect to the employment of Bulgarian and Romanian nationals. Guidance on eligibility for homelessness assistance is available from the Department for Communities and Local Government (which applies to England) and the Scottish Executive. Guidance on entitlement to benefits is available from the Department for Work and Pensions.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is working with the Improvement and Development Agency to share good practice on migration from the EU. A national event was held for local authorities in England on 21 March and a good practice toolkit will be issued in May 2007.

Immigration: Northern Ireland

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were granted leave to remain in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [133623]

Mr. Byrne: There were 810 people[1] who were granted leave to remain in Northern Ireland between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 2007.

[1] The aforementioned data is not provided under the National Statistics protocols. It shows volumes of applicants granted leave to remain decisions (regardless of application type) made within General Group in Managed Migration. It has been derived from local management information and is therefore provisional and subject to change.

Immigration: Telephone Services

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1058W, on immigration: telephone services, how many calls were received by the Border and Immigration Agency MPs' hotline in each year from 2003 to 2006. [135056]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 April 2007]: From 1 June 2003 to 31 December 2003 the Border and Immigration Agency MPs' hotline received 15,728 telephone calls; in 2004 it received 31,393 calls; in 2005 it received 34,338 calls and in 2006 it received 31,749 calls from Members of Parliament, the House of Lords and Members of the devolved Assemblies.

Statistical information is only available from 1 June 2003 onwards.

Naturalisation: Assessments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who were awarded passes in the Life in the UK citizenship test subsequently had that pass revoked in each month since November 2005. [125951]

Mr. Byrne: Appropriate action will be taken where concerns remain about an applicant's knowledge of English or UK society. This will apply if they seek settlement or citizenship or even after such a status has been granted to them.

The precise action to be taken will depend on the circumstances of an individual case but might include requiring a further test or an independent analysis of their language ability. The Government take very seriously any attempts to circumvent the legal requirements for settlement and citizenship, for example by taking part in fraudulent activity in order to obtain a pass certificate for the test. Ultimately revocation of, or refusal to grant settlement or citizenship may be appropriate in some cases.

Passports

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on compensation for time remaining on the validity of an existing passport where a person seeks a new passport to take account of a name change following marriage. [134692]

Joan Ryan: No compensation is currently paid for time remaining on a passport which is replaced before expiry for any reason, although up to nine months unused validity is transferred to the new passport. The Identity and Passport Service has to recover all its costs through fees and a replacement passport costs as much to issue as a passport renewed on expiry. The possibility of a reduction in fees in these circumstances will be considered with HM Treasury when passport fees are next reviewed.

Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police staff associations were consulted in advance of the announcement to review the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984. [133364]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 April 2007]: No police staff associations were consulted in advance of the announcement to review PACE 1984.

When the consultation paper was published it was formally sent to all police staff associations groups (ACPO, the Police Federation, the Police Superintendents Association and Unison) along with a notification that officials would contact them in due course to arrange bilateral meetings before the formal consultation period closes (at the end of May).

Police Cautions

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been given conditional cautions by the police since 1997; and what percentage went on to re-offend. [134765]

Mr. McNulty: The conditional cautioning scheme, introduced in the Criminal Justice Act 2003, is in the process of being implemented across criminal justice areas on a phased basis, and is not currently available across all areas. The central collection of numbers of conditional cautions administered began on one January 2005, but the data quality in its first year was deemed not to be adequate for any figures to be released. Totals for 2006 will not be available until November this year.

Police: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures his Department is considering introducing to reduce the levels of recorded assaults against (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers. [132958]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 April 2007]: There have been several recent developments which seek to reduce the levels of recorded assaults against police officers and police community support officers.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary following collaboration with key stakeholders has recently published a review of officer safety training entitled "Safety matters". This report contains recommendations to assist in the reduction of injuries and is now available for forces to consider and apply. The Health and Safety Executive has been fully consulted and collaborated with HMIC on the development of this paper and supports the report.

In addition the National Health and Safety Standing Committee recently agreed a joint report on benchmarking standards a "Strategy For a Healthy Police Service" which has been approved by ACPO council, and its implementation is being supported by the National Policing Improvement Agency.

This sets standards on issues affecting individual health and safety including personal safety training. Each of the major principles will be developed through the ACPO Joint Advisory group on Health, Safety and Welfare. Again there was full consultation with the HSE with regard to this document.

Also a Fitness Sub Group of the National Recruitment Standards—a standing committee of the Police Advisory Board—has been established. Emanating from this will be further research on this topic.

Police: Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of whether the resources available to the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis are adequate for the purpose of enforcing the ban on the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam; and if he will make a statement. [133289]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 April 2007]: The Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis is responsible for the day to day operational management of the force.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the ratio of police to public was in (a) Suffolk, (b) Bedfordshire, (c) Cambridgeshire, (d) Essex, (e) Hertfordshire and (f) Norfolk in each year since 1997; [134678]

(2) how many police officers per 100,000 residents there were in each police authority in England in each year since 1997. [134680]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are given in the table. The relationship between the number of police officers and the number of members of the public are published in the form of "Total officers per 100,000 population" and these data have been provided.

Police strength data are published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales". The latest publication (data as at 31 March 2006) can be downloaded from:

[1] Full-time equivalent figures are rounded to the nearest whole number. Figures up to 31 March 2002 'exclude' staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. The figures for 31 March 2003 onwards 'include' those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[2] Officers per 100,000 population for city of London and Metropolitan police are combined.
[3] Boundary changes on 1 April 2000 transferred some resources from the Metropolitan police to Essex, Hertfordshire and Surrey police forces.

Public Order Offences

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many penalty notices for disorder were issued in 2006, broken down by (a) police force and (b) offence committed; [132406]

(2) how many penalty notices for disorder issued in 2006 were paid within 21 days of issue. [132407]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 April 2007]: Provisional data from the Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) Database showing the number of PNDs issued, broken down by offence and police force area, are provided in the tables.

The figures show that the PND has been an increasingly useful disposal option for the police in tackling low-level antisocial behaviour, providing them with a simple, non-bureaucratic financial punishment. The figures also show a wide variation in the numbers of PNDs issued for the same offence from force to force. This reflects the fact that the extent to which PNDs are used is a matter for individual forces according to their local operational factors and requirements.

Of the 192,583 PNDs issued in 2006, 74,182 penalties were paid within the 21-day suspended enforcement period (SEP) with a further 26,068 being outside the SEP. 21 days is the minimum period before forces can register a fine against the recipient for not responding to a notice, so forces can accept payments after the SEP for administrative purposes.

Finalised data for 2006 will be available this summer.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Special Constables: Greater London

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many special constables there are in the Metropolitan Police Service; how many there were in each year since 1997; how many (a) were and (b) are civilian staff serving in the Metropolitan Police Service in each year; how many undertook their training and their special constable duties during their normal working hours as civilian staff; and how many received time off in lieu or extra holiday time for their duties as special constables. [134485]

Mr. McNulty: The available data for the number of special constables in the Metropolitan Police Service in each year since 1997 are given in the table. These data are also published in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales".

The remainder of the information requested is not collected centrally.

Special constable strength[1] for the Metropolitan Police Service as at 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2006

31 March:	Special constables
1997	1,714
1998	1,282
1999	1,138
2000	758
2001	774
2002	680
2003	692
2004	742
2005	697
2006[2]	1,221

[1] Total strength is based on headcount figures.

[2] The MPS have held a number of successful special constable recruitment campaigns over the years, the most recent of which ran throughout 2005 and would have been responsible for the increase from 2004-05 to 2005-06. Additionally, some of these changes are thought to be explained by the move from paper-based to computerised recording systems.

Written Questions

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer question 107856, on DC Stephen Oake, tabled on 30 November 2006 by the hon. Member for West Bromwich East. [125790]

John Reid [holding answer 6 March 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 1 May 2007, Official Report, column 1576W.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arts

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding was allocated to the arts in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997; and what the percentage change was between each year. [130959]

Maria Eagle: Funding provided for the arts in Northern Ireland in each year since 1999-2000 is shown in the following table, together with the percentage change between each year. Data for previous years are not readily available. The figures include both revenue funding and capital funding.

Financial year	Total funding provided by Departments	Percentage change
1999-00	8,461,181.46
2000-01	8,245,611	-2.54
2001-02	9,067,800	9.97
2002-03	11,078,537.13	22.17
2003-04	15,151,520.90	36.76
2004-05	14,277,212.91	-5.77
2005-06	14,890,675.62	4.3
2006-07	[1]15,348,890.08	3.1

[1] Provisional

The information provided in the table may be incomplete as the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety do not hold full information prior to 2003-04.

The Department for Social Development has also provided funding for the arts under Peace II for which details are only available in calendar years. In 2006 £52.4k was provided to the Community Arts Forum. The funding provided by DSD under Peace II for other arts based projects for the period 2002 to date is £565.6k. These figures are not included in the table.

Departments: Internet

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which websites received funding from his Department and its associated agencies in each of the last five years; and how much was allocated in each case. [130956]

Mr. Hain: The following table show the websites directly funded by the NIO and its agencies in the last five years.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by (a) Ministers and (b) senior civil servants in each Department in Northern Ireland. [132210]

Mr. Hanson: DAO (DFP) 10/06 sets out general principles on the provision of gifts and hospitality, which will include alcohol, and requires each NI Department to have its own guidance and approval processes tailored to suit their business needs. This will cover (a) Ministers and (b) senior civil servants where expenditure comes out of the departmental budget.

NIO has its own guidance and approval process for hospitality (including alcohol) that covers Ministers and senior civil servants.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what the end of year underspends for 2006-07 were for each of the Northern Ireland Departments; [132224]

(2) what overspends there were in budget lines of Northern Ireland Departments for 2006-07. [132225]

Mr. Hanson: Outturn data, regarding spending by Northern Ireland Departments in 2006-07, will not be available until late May 2007.

Human Trafficking

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the extent of human trafficking in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [133031]

Paul Goggins: Analysis of human trafficking in Northern Ireland is currently under way through the auspices of the QCTF Immigration and Human Trafficking Expert Group to assess the scale of the threat.

This analysis will update the assessment of a scoping report into human trafficking in 2006 which concluded that Northern Ireland did not, at that time, have an identifiable problem.

Licensed Premises

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many businesses were found to be selling alcohol without a licence to do so in each district council area in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years; and what penalty was imposed in each case in which all proceedings are complete. [130923]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not available in the form requested. The following information has been collated on the basis of two offences:

selling intoxicating liquor without a licence; and licensee making liquor available in unlicensed premises.

Information is presented by district command unit. PSNI does not have records relating to penalties imposed in all cases.

	District command unit	Penalty imposed
2001 (2)	Belfast North	Community service order

National Income

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of the British gross domestic product comes from Northern Ireland. [135071]

Mr. Hanson: Northern Ireland gross value added accounted for 2.3 per cent. of UK gross value added in 2005.

Northern Ireland Social Security Agency

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the performance of the Medical Support Service within the Social Security Agency; and if he will make a statement. [135402]

Mr. Hanson: A thorough and detailed analysis of Medical Support Services was completed in January 2007. The conclusion was that while Medical Support Services was currently 'Fit for Purpose' it would not have the capacity or capability to deliver a sufficient level of service to support the extended roll-out of Pathways to Work and the introduction of the new employment and support allowance.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will abandon plans to outsource the Social Security Agency's medical support service. [135403]

Mr. Hanson: As the procurement process has already commenced, there are no plans to abandon the decision to outsource the Medical Support Service within the Social Security Agency.

Open Skies Aviation Agreement

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the draft Open Skies aviation agreement. [128134]

David Cairns: The Secretary of State for Transport has kept colleagues informed of progress with on-going negotiations on the draft EU/US Open Skies aviation agreement.

Right to Buy Schemes

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of tenants who exercised the right to buy were receiving housing benefit in each of the last five years. [135995]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested for full financial years is only available from 2004-05. The percentage of tenants receiving housing benefit at the date of completion of the purchase of their home during the last three financial years is shown in the following table.

	Percentage
2004-05	8.9
2005-06	6.8
2006-07	7.1

St Patrick's Day: Belfast

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much public money was made available to support the Belfast Saint Patrick's day parade and festival in 2006. [134814]

Maria Eagle: The St. Patrick's day parade and festival is promoted by Belfast city council and public funding made available to the council for the 2006 event is shown in the following table.

Sponsoring organisation	Amount
Community Relations Unit, OFMDFM	41,376
Arts Council of Northern Ireland	25,000
Laganside Corporation	10,000
